Dr. Manion had offered some criticism of two of the commissions appointed by the Government— the Grain Commission, and the Pulpwood Commission. The Grain Commission had been established, said Dr. King, in response to numerous demands from the west and allegations that the circumstances connected with the marketing of Canadian grain required investigation. The government hoped that out of the report of that commission would grow legislation which would cure some of the things complained of. Similarly the report of the Pulpwood Commission might also prove valuable. He defended the action of the government in sending three of the party whips to Wembley at an expenditure of $4,200.

Manion's Liabilities.

Dr. King said that Dr. Manion had been a supporter of the mistakes of both Liberal and Conservative governments. "Therefore he has a double liability in that respect," he continued. He disagreed with members of the Opposition who stated that obligations of the Canadian National Railways should be carried as direct liabilities of the government. The railway was being operated separately as an experiment in public ownership, and its financing should be kept separate from that of the Dominion.

The Minister justified the handling of the Roumanian and Grecian loans by the Acting Minister of Finance in his budget. During the Conservative administration, they were frozen loans but now the interest was being paid, and the capital liquidated.

Conditions were bad enough today, but if the high protection policy and the embargo on natural products was in force, there would be no balanced budget. Dr. King spoke on the waste in the handling of natural products. Governments and railway companies in the past had not given proper protection to the forest growths, but to-day people were becoming increasingly aware of the value of their forests. He outlined the conservation efforts of the government. While it was desirable that natural products should be manufactured in Canada, the people would not tolerate an embargo on their exportation.

The Conservatives did not make one effort during their administration to further the industries for the refining of metals, while under the Liberal government bounty policy, Canada was to-day making more lead and zinc than she could consume, and was able to compete in the world's markets.

Opposed to Embargo.

Dr. King declared that he was opposed to "any embargo as proposed by hon. friends," but added that in times of stress a condition might possibly arise when an embargo might be required.

In 1911 the Conservatives had defeated in the election "the greatest trade agreement ever made by a Canadian government." Had this reciprocity agreement been carried into effect, there would to-day be prosperity in the Maritime provinces, Central Canada, the three prairie provinces, and British Columbia. Not having received the benefit in carrying out such an agreement, Canada had been forced to go further afield for her markets. "Canada to-day stands per capita as the greatest trading nation in the world," stated Dr. King.

FRENCH CALL IN OLD MONEY BUT NOT INFLATING

Hoarded Bills to be Brought From Hiding Places, Clementel Announces.

SENATE UNEASY.

Herriot Harassed By Socialist Demands—Opposition Stress Decline of Confidence.

PARIS, April 3. — (Canadian Press).—The Upper House of the French Parliament was officially informed Thursday afternoon of the impending increase in the circulation of paper money, an increase which the Government declares is not inflation. Finance Minister Clementel, explaining the Government programme for the solution of French financial difficulties, touched only vaguely upon the different projects in view, and the Senate was visibly disappointed at his lack of precision.

But the Finance Minister made it clear during his remarks that the Government realizes the necessity of an early funding of war debts. Once again he declared that France will pay.

The explanation for the Finance Minister's lack of precision regarding the financial programme was found during the afternoon, however, when it became known that the Socialist wing of Premier Herriot's majority had sent a delegation to the Premier yesterday morning to express the dissatisfaction of the group with the projects as announced in Wednesday evening's official communique.

The Socialists demanded that the Government substitute a capital levy for the increased taxation project outlined. The group did not veto increased circulation but declared it could not vote for it, or vote for an amended budget when it comes back from the Senate, unless the Socialist reforms incorporated in it by the Chamber were left practically intact, and unless the new proposed taxation was replaced by a capital levy.

Ex-Premier Francois-Marsal, who followed M. Clementel on the Speaker's stand, criticized the official programme and made such an impression on the Senators that the Upper House after his speech was in a state of effervescence.

Premier to Rescue.

Premier Herriot, informed of the bad effect created by M. Clementel's announcement, hurried to the Senate and conferred earnestly with the Finance Minister, M. Renoult, Minister of Justice M. Chautemps; Minister of Interior, and other Cabinet members who were present during the debate. Later he held conferences with Senate leaders. The Premier appeared worn and harassed, and it was said around the lobbies that during the morning he had threatened the Socialist delegation with his resignation.

Finance Minister Clementel, during the course of his speech, announced that the Bank of France had made preparations to reissue all French paper in circulation. Thus, it was hoped, he said, that people who have been hoarding bank bills would be obliged to bring them from their hiding places. He also said that it was time an estimate was made of bank notes lost since 1914. This could be done by the calling in of all old paper money, he declared.

Criticizes Government.

M. Francois-Marsal, who was Finance Minister in the Millerand Cabinet, said the hoarding of bank bills had been much exaggerated, in his opinion, and it was not of first importance. His description of the gradual loss of confidence by the country deeply stirred the Senate. About the middle of June last, the situation of the treasury was excellent; national defence bonds had been free from the income tax, encouraging the purchase of one-year bonds. There was the Morgan loan, which since had been fortunately consolidated, together with profits made from exchange operations.

Great sympathy toward the present Government had been shown by foreign Governments throughout August, September and October. But, he went on, "this sympathy has since weakened and internal confidence has become exhausted." He ascribed this to the financial bill as drafted by the Chamber, and, aiming at the Socialists, "fatal suggestions brought to the Chamber by a certain party." The worker felt his savings, his children's heritage, threatened, and it became impossible for railroads or the Credit Foncier to raise loans or increase their capital.

Crisis of Confidence.

"We have been taking part in a crisis of confidence," he concluded, "and that is why the Minister of Finance has come to ask us to increase the Bank of France's powers to issue in favor of commerce. Shall we suppress what is wrong if we fail to suppress the causes?"

Some time later M. Clementel returned to the Senate. He remarked that the lobby talk had proved to him that he had not been properly understood, but his renewed explanation brought no fresh light to the Senate. He merely repeated that the Government would not resort to inflation but make provision for the needs of commerce and also an early effort to put the treasury in a healthy condition, this requiring sacrifice from the country.

FILLING ELEVATORS.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 3.—With 56,000,000 bushels of grain in store at the head of the lakes, and with a total available capacity of 64,000,000 bushels, elevators at Fort William are facing the possibility of congestion as opening of navigation approaches, it was reported Thursday.

At present the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is sending a daily average of 332 cars of grain east from Winnipeg, but it is pointed out that about 150 cars of this was assorted by millers in the Lake of the Woods district. Since the beginning of the year 26,144,526 bushels of grain have left the hands of farmers on the prairies, including 17,136,138 bushels of wheat and 9,007,388 of coarse grains.

PARIS TO HAVE BIG EXHIBITION DURING SUMMER

Hope to Establish Modern Style to Replace Antique Furniture.

COVERS 47 ACRES.

PARIS, April 2. — The veil of secrecy which has been covering the Paris Exposition in course of erection during the past five months on the Champs de Mars, is now being lifted by the government officials. So non-communicative have they been that rumor had it that exhibitors were afraid that rivals from other countries were contemplating a wholesale infringement of their designs. It now appears that the French are out to scrap their Louis XV furniture and forever banish the Victorian effects in Great Britain and America. In other words after this exposition they hope to make the new style of household decoration so popular that other nations will come to France not for antiques but modern art. It may be mentioned in passing that so many antiques have found their way to America that there are very few genuine ones left to satisfy the buyers.

The committee of selection, composed of manufacturers, artists and art critics, had assured the press that only new ideas of furnishings suitable to modern life will be on display. No copies of anyth that has been will be admitted. The "impressionist' and the "cubist" however will not be encouraged. Visitors will receive every consideration and comfort. In the 47 acres there will be at least six large brasseries, canteens and restaurants, two theatres and four pavilions for midway attractions. The authorities have even engaged celebrated chefs to cater to the local tastes of the various provinces of France and at the same time demonstrate French cooking to the strangers.

At the moment, a view of the exhibition from the Avenue des Champs Elysees, conveys a Constantinopolitan impression of minartes, water towers and cenotaph constructions. When the trees, plants and gardens are planted and installed visitors themselves will have to decide whether the effect is French, Tyrolean or Italian or an entirely new style not hitherto conceived.

The Grand Palais has been wholly transformed on the inside but it will not be until May that a definite idea of what it will be like can be formed. However the glory of the previous exhibition will be reserved for the dressmakers, milliners and jewellers who have made Paris famous.

PROTEST C.N.R. RADIO.

Thornton Deplores Recent Ottawa Broadcasting.

OTTAWA, April 3.— In future no speeches or debates at public or social functions, calculated to offend other organizations, will be broadcast from Canadian National Railway radio stations, states Sir Henry Thornton, president of the railway, in a letter to the Association Canadienne Francaise D'Education D'Ontario, made public by the Association here Thursday. The Association had protested to Sir Henry regarding remaks made at a recent banquet here which, it was charged, reflected on the Pope and the Catholic religion in general.

Sir Henry, in his letter, depores the incident and adds: "The only way to avoid similar repetition in future is to prohibit the broadcasting of speeches and debates at such functions."

LAKEFIELD LADIES HONOR MRS. SUTTON

Thirty Attend Tea at Home of Mrs. W. W. Leonard.

LAKEFIELD, April 3.—On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. W. W. Leonard entertained about thirty ladies at the tea hour in honor of Mrs. S. W. Sutton, who leaves shortly for Newcastle. After the serving of tea, in which Mesdames H. Sherin, W. Sherin, Connell and Moore assisted the hostess, Mrs. H. Sherin, in a bright little impromptu speech, expressed the good wishes of the ladies to Mrs. Sutton, and presented her with a handsome boudoir lamp as a token of affection from the ladies present and to remind her of her Lakefield friends. Mrs. Sutton made a graceful reply, thanking the ladies for the gift and the kindly feeling which prompted it, and assuring them of her continual remembrance of them all.

During the afternoon Mrs. Burrows and Mrs. Sutton contributed solos, Mrs. Moore playing the accompaniments. The musical numbers were very much enjoyed and were especially pleasing.

AMBULANCE PATIENT IN LINDSAY RUNAWAY

Horses Crashed Headlong Into C.N.R. Station—Woman Unhurt.

LINDSAY, April 3. — (Special.)—An exciting runaway occurred yesterday when the team of horses attached to the local ambulance made a dash for liberty at the northern boundary of the town and got beyond control of the driver.

The ambulance was about to convey Mrs. Brown to the Ross Hospital, and the stretcher on which the woman was carried from her home had just been placed inside when the horses bolted.

They dashed along William street at breakneck speed, and crashed into the C.N.R. station. The horses were knocked completely out, and the ambulance badly damaged. Mrs. Brown escaped uninjured. A big delivery bus was requisitioned to remove Mrs. Brown to the hospital but the stretcher would not go through the door. She was again placed in the damaged ambulance which was towed by the bus to the hospital.

You Need a Bicycle for Business, Pleasure and Health

FROM early morn till late at night the bicycle plays an important part in our daily life.

It does its work so quietly, so smoothly, so efficiently, we scarcely realize its presence.

Ride to Work

Throngs of workmen cycle to and from work every day, saving time, car fare and the discomfort of riding in packed street cars or of walking long distances.

Multitudes of happy children — teachers, too—ride bicycles to school. And what in the world would the Boy Scouts do without bicycles?

Economical Deliveries

All day long messenger boys—and boys making light deliveries—flit by on bicycles.

A carpenter with his kit wheels from one job to another. The collector and the insurance agent glide along to make calls—many of them not near a car line.

Pleasure and Emergencies

Out in the country, the city man rides for a day's fishing with his rod tied on his wheel. Coming towards him a farmer's boy wheels hurriedly to the city to get a spare part for a farm machine that has broken down.

Away down in California, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks ride bicycles for pleasure and to keep fit. An example that other men and women could follow with benefit to their health.

More People Riding

More people are riding bicycles today than for years past. The paved roads are so smooth, so clean, and so easy to ride on, they are creating new riders by the thousands.

Just climb on a C. C. M. yourself and see how exhilarating it is to ride a bicycle.

See how easily it glides along, thanks to the C. C. M. Triplex Hanger—the three-piece hanger that gives the C.C.M. so much speed—and pep—and power.

Then press back on your pedals and see how quickly and smoothly the Hercules Coaster Brake acts.

Note how strong and rigid the frame is. It's of English Seamless Tubing, strongly reinforced.

Look at the brilliant, lustrous enamel—durable and lasting. And the glistening nickel. It's done over copper so it won't rust.

Glimpse the new Gibson Pedal, too—so light and so strong. Its silvery frame is of aluminum and cannot rust.

Stand back and look at the C. C. M.'s trim, graceful, racy lines. A beauty! A bicycle anyone would be proud of. And one that will give years and years of faithful service.

You need a bicycle—most everybody does.

This year C.C.M. prices have again been reduced. They're now $20 to $25 less than the after-war "peak" prices. The nearest C.C.M. dealer is waiting to show you the latest models.

DEMAND FOR NEW ALIGNMENT STIRS EUROPEAN COUNTRIES

Failure of Guarantee Pacts and Divergent Policies Blamed.

FOUR ALTERNATIVES.

By HERBERT ADAMS GIBBONS.

To those who have not given much thought to the background of European alliances or alignments or who have grown accustomed since 1914 to think of European nations as falling naturally into certain groupings, the news that has been coming in recently from Europe must seem bewildering. Why should there be so much questioning and discussion? Why should there be indications—sometimes almost immediately contradicted—of diplomatic change of position, of realignment?

Certainly something drastic must be going on in the way of readjusting international relations. A competent correspondent, not given to exaggeration, tells us that we are approaching "probably the most important political negotiations since the Paris Conference."

It is not a matter of opinion but of fact that the settlements arrived at a few years ago with so much difficulty in the long-drawn out Peace Conference have not proved sati factory, and are not regarded as a sufficient guarantee of peace. If the Paris Conference had really established a complete charter for Europe and the world, there would not have been talk in the continuation conferences of additional treaties or agreement among the victors. If the Covenant of the League of Nations had demonstrated its ability to fulfill the high purpo e for which it was drawn up, we should not have the proposed Geneva protocol.

Wilson's Common Sense.

Must we not reluctantly adm t that the great powers still feel, as they did before 1914 and at the Peace Conference, that their security and prosperity—and therefore the secur ty and prosper ty of the world—depend more upon the mutual adjustment of the r own interest and aims, making possible well-defined agreements among themselves, than upon the adoption of the principle of a common pooling of interests of all nations, great and small alike?

In 1923 we see clearly that President Wilson, with all his eagerness for international co-operation in its broadest form and with all his warm sympathy for the rights and aspirations of small nations, was talking common sense when he told Premier Bratiano on May 31, 1919, that the allied powers had won the war and would have to guarantee the peace!

Let us trace briefly the history of the various proposals of new alignments in Europe following the Paris Conference.

The first of these was revealed in the supplementary pact, signed by Great Britain and the United States and France, simultaneously with the Treaty of Versailles. It guaranteed France against a renewal of German aggression, and the quid pro quo was the waiving of France's demand for the Rhine frontier or the erection of a Rhine buffer State. As it was to become operative only if ratified by both Great Britain and the United States, the unwillingness of the American Senate to endorse it caused its abandonment.

Divergent Policies Arise.

Both in France and Great Britain the failure of the United States to accept the guarantee pact and to enter the League of Nations was regarded as necessitating new negotiations to insure the permanency of the new status in Europe established by the Treaties of Versailles, St. Germain and Trianon. Divergent policies immediately manifested themselves, and the assertion of these policies at Paris and London has been strikingly independent of the different changes of Cabinet that have occurred in the two countries since 1919.

France has not only regarded the provisions of the treaties in the matter of limitations imposed upon the defeated powers (aside from Turkey) as sacrosanct and to be taken as a whole in assuring her security, but has also assumed the right to go beyond the treaty terms in bringing pressure to bear upon Germany.

Great Britain, on the other hand, has made a sharp distinction between the question of frontiers and other guarantees as immediately affecting France and Belgium and the other territorial settlements and she has refused to go along with France in taking measures against Germany beyond those provided for in the Treaty of Versailles as she has interpreted its terms.

This divergency throws light upon the difficulties that have arisen in the negotiations between France and Great Britain for an Anglo-French agreement to prevent the renewal of German aggression, and it also explains the policy of France in negotiating with Belgium and the succession of States.

What Britain Refused.

At Cannes, early in 1922, the British and French were on the point of concluding a limited agreement by which Great Britain would have guaranteed to both France and Belgium their Versailles frontiers when Premier Briand was overthrown. Former President Poincaire, succeeding him, insisted that the British should interpret German aggression to mean aggression against Poland or Czechoslovakia also and should join with France in compelling Germany both to disarm and to pay the indemnities imposed upon her.

The agreement was not signed, and no new agreement has taken its place.

In the meantime France formed a close alliance with Belgium; she made a treaty of mutual gaurantees with Poland; and she negotiated similar treaties with the countries of the Little Entente, who had already formed an alliance to preserve the territorial status quo established by the Treaties of St. Germain and Trianon.

In the light of past policies and prewar alignments it is easy to see why over four years of comradeship-in-arms, sealed by blood and suffering and crowned by victory, did not bring Great Britain and France into the kind of an alliance that bound together Russia and France before the World War. And it is easy to see also why France has felt that, failing Great Britain, she must have something definite and tangible and automatically operative to replace the Russian alliance.

For several hundred years the principal field of Great Britain's foreign policy has been extra-European. Her expansion throughout the world has made her increasingly dependent upon the Dominions, India, and her colonies and protectorates for prosperity; and her island position, protected by naval supremacy, has caused her to feel little concern for a menace to her security coming from Europe.

Her policy has been to keep free of political entanglements in Europe; to intervene in European wars only when one power, whatever that power might be, threatened to dominate Europe or to occupy Belgium and Holland on the North Sea, and to confine her gains after successful European wars to colonial expansion and picking up naval stations on the great sea routes.

She has destroyed successively the Spanish, the Dutch, the Danish, the French and the German fleets by intervening in European wars; she has taken her pick of their colonies at the ensuing peace conferences; and then, having no further reason for quarrel, she has striven for a rapid restoration of the political and economic equilibirum in Europe, because she is a great industrial nation and Europe is a splendid market for goods.

It cannot be too strongly emphasized that the political understandings that brought Great Britain into close ties with France and Russia during the decade before the World War were agreements having to do with extra-European questions.

Why Britain Entered War.

In 1904 the Anglo-French agreement was the sensible and practicable alternative to war between the two countries over conflicting ambitions in Africa; and the Anglo-Russian agreement of 1907, in which Persia was sacrificed, was a similar compromise of differences that might have led to war between Great Britain and Russia over conflicting ambitions in Asia.

The entente thus formed would never have led to British intervention in a European war had it not been for the direct menace to Great Britain of the increase of the German fleet, followed at the outbreak of the war by German violation of Belgian neutrality. Great Britain could never have tolerated a German victory, which would have led to the occupation of Antwerp and the French Channel ports.

After the defeat of Germany, the destruction of her fleet, and the loss of her colonies, Great Britain's objective in Europe became the restoration of peace as speedily as possible.

She has not wanted indemnities that would lead to economic chaos; she has not wanted to see France take Germany's place as the potential master of Europe; she has felt that it would be both unsafe and unwise to guarantee the frontiers of Poland and other Eastern European States, which virtually all her publicists and statesmen regard as wrongly drawn and temporary; and she is willing to guarantee only to France and Belgium the frontiers established by the Treaty of Versailles, which she believes can and ought to be maintained.

In adopting this attitude, British statesmen are acting in accordance with tradition and national interests and public opinion; they have behind them, too, the consensus of Dominion opinion. The Dominions have frankly stated that they will not follow the Mother Country in a policy of commitments in Europe.

France Wants Germany Held in Check.

France feels that she cannot accept the limited guarantee offered by Great Britain. We have no space to discuss the psychological factors in Anglo-French relations; but these would make it difficult to feel satisfied with the guarantee even were it a more sweeping one. To the French the transcendant fact, the fact that shuts out every other consideration, is the distressing numerical inferiority to Germany, which is becoming more dangerous every year. No Government could live in France today that would accept the intangible for the tangible, the mirage for the reality. Traditional distrust of the British has unfortunately been increased by all that has happened since the World War.

The French are not drunk with victory; they are not gratifying their vanity by humiliating the vanquished. They are simply afraid of what might happen any day.

It actually did happen in 1914; and France was barely saved, despite the automatic working of the Russian alliance, the prompt intervention of Great Britain, the intervention of Italy in 1915, and the eventual entry of the United States.

With fear of Germany is combined a wholesome respect for her military power, which today involves factories and laboratories. France has been manoeuvring, therefore, ever since the war ended to leave not one stone unturned to cripple Germany permanently and hold her in check.

Failing to get the Rhine frontier in the treaties, France has manoeuvred to keep the left bank provinces as long as she can. Failing to get a blanket guarantee of underwriting for the Treaty of Versailles from Great Britain and the United States, she has negotiated where chances of success were greatest, with nations that had the same fear of Germany and equally potent reasons for wanting to prevent the resurrection of German power. The treaties with Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania are an effort to replace the pre-war Russian alliance with another automatic military counterweight against Germany in Eastern Europe.

It is logical, therefore, that France should have done and should still be doing all in her power to build up the military establishments of these countries and that she should be the jealous defender of the frontiers won by them in the Paris treaties. By this means alone will these countries be able to help France in time of need.

Things are not, however, working out as France feels that she must have them. Soviet Russia has not gone to pieces, as France expected; and, the Rhur adventure has only proved the ugly fact of the fundamental economic stability and political solidarity of Germany.

New Alliances Insufficient.

As early as last Summer French political circles began to discsus the advisability—on the ground of practicability!—of the policy of France building on a future in which she would have to reckon with the continued enmity and opposition of vital national interests of both Germany and Russia. This, too, in face of the defection of the United States, the limited interest of Great Britain and the disconcerting indifference to European problems of Italy. Since the settlement of her Adriatic conflict with the Serbs the Italians, like the Americans, had been limiting their interest in France's burning problems to criticising and giving advice. We have not space to enumerate the reasons here, but we can state as an accepted fact in French policy that Italy cannot be counted upon either as friend or foe in the formulating and maintaining of any European policy.

Italy is a potential menace to France in the Mediterranean—but that is for the future. At present Italy is neutral in the manoeuvres toward new alignments in Europe.

Last year, therefore, France had to face this question, Great Britain being counted out as far as European guarantees for peace are concerned, and Italy indifferent and unreliable, are the alliances formed by France with Belgium, Poland Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania, sufficient to maintain the status quo of the 1919 settlement and to insure the security of France, even with France able to call on her African troops?

Every Frenchman would like to have given an affirmative answer to this question; but the French are level-headed enough to know that the answer is negative.

So Tactics Were Changed.

Tactics had to be changed. They were changed. As regrads Russia, the old policy was thrown overboard, and diplomatic relations were renewed. As regards Germany, with much misgivings it was decided to accept the Dawes plan, even though there was the risk of rapid German economic rehabilitation, which, in French eyes, is now coupled with the return of military power. But it was a choice between two evils.

How could France get back to the old friendly relations with Russia, and start over again the process of making Russia anally, without incurring the danger of being compelled to give up her championship of the eastern frontier of Poland and her defense of Rumania's incorporation of the Russian province of Bessarabia? And if Russia insisted on changing frontiers, Germany would be emboldened to suppress the Vistula corridor, incorporate Russia, and take a lot of territory away from Czechoslovakia.

A good chance to avoid embarrassment with Russia, to prevent the revision of the territorial clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, and to keep Austria away from Germany, seemed to be the new proposals that some students in conjunction with statesmen of the smaller States were working out for outlawing war. These were to be presented at the September meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations.

Territory Fixing Unsatisfactory.

Naturally the smaller States, having everything to gain by it, were enchanted with the idea of the protocol. It would increase the scope of Article X. of the covenant, and it would unite all the great powers in underwriting the territorial status quo in Europe. For France, the only one of the great powers vitally interested in maintaining that status quo, it was a great opportunity. French statesmen and French public opinion were wise enough to see it, and they seized it. Immediately the protocol was ready France signed it, followed by the smaller States, who had benefited greatly by the Paris settlements of 1919.

But Great Britain and her Dominions, for reasons that we have outlined, refuses to accept commitments and obligations in Europe. Italy and Japan do not want to put themselves in the position of subscribing to a world-wide status quo decidedly to their disadvantage. It is difficult to see how Germany and Russia could be persuaded or manoeuvred into signing the protocol even if it, is radically revised.

Did France feel that the protocol might take the United States by storm where the League covenant had failed to do so? Was France counting upon force of public opinion in England to get Great Britain in with her in this indirect form of guaranteeing what British statesmen had refused to do in a two-power treaty?

We shall not attempt to answer these questions, which would lead us into the field of speculation. But because the French press is susceptible to inspiration from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs we do have proof from what was published in Paris in October and November—even in December—that France hoped that Great Britain and the United States, the two other powers most satisfied with the existing world-wide status quo, would get on the Geneva bandwagon with her.

Starting New Groupings.

But at the beginning of the new year it was evident that this was not going to happen. And France was again faced with the alternative of relying implicitly upon her small European allies or making some new move to assure her future.

For many years before the World War there were in France advocates of a rapprochement with Germany instead of with Great Britain. In England there were advocates of a rapprochement with Germany instead of with France. In Germany there were advocates of a rapprochement with Russia instead of with Austria. In Russia there were advocates of a rapprochement with Germany instead of with France.

All these partisans of a different tendency of alliances than those that actually developed had their day. They remained influential enough to have to be reckoned with even after war broke out. The initiated, in fact, had good reason to believe that these groups never really did disappear. Certain it is that they have gradually emerged and are once more speaking out in meeting.

Statesmen, diplomatists, and publicists to whom the alignments among nations are a game, have discussed seriously, and have sometimes tried to bring about, groupings startlingly different from those that are commonly believed possible.

For instance, Germany and Great Britain very nearly came together at the end of the nineteenth century, and the attempt failed only because of disagreement as to the respective allotments of Portuguese colonies. Fifteen years before the World War France and Russia actually discussed attacking Great Britain. Diplomatic correspondence indicates that Russia and Germany made several attempts to get together, and that Austria-Hungary seriously thought of an alliance with France. We know how Italy, up to the last moment, played one group against the other, and how both groups in 1914 tried to get Rumania, Bulgaria, Greece, and Turkey on their side, with about an even chance of success. Most of all, the community of French and German interests was emphasized by Premier Caillaux during the years immediately preceding the World War.

It is possible to trace these intrigues and diplomatic bargainings through the years of struggle and through the six years that separate us from the conclusion of the war.

Nor have the smaller States been any more faithful to their friends during and since the war. France has not put her faith blindly in any of her small allies. Belgium wavered between France and Great Britain, and it was hard to keep her in line during the Ruhr occupation. Today there is even a Germanophile party growing up in Belgium.

France Has Four Alternatives.

One reason why the small States in the East have been so eager for the international safeguard of the Geneva protocol is their doubt as to the efficacy of French military protection against Germany and especially against Russia. France did save Poland in 1920, but with Germany in her present mood and freed of some of her shackles, it might be a different story in 1925. Czechoslovakia got back into touch with Russia when such action was still considered rank heresy at Paris. Yugoslavia realised how little France could or would help her against Italy several years ago. Rumania avowedly does not know where she stands.

France has four choices: (1) She can maintain and strengthen her present diplomatic understandings with Belgium and the Little Entente; (2) she can return gradually to the Russian alliance; (3) she can come to a direct and close understanding with Germany, including Belgium in the combination; (4) she can form an alliance with Great Britain and Germany, a corollary of which would be the return of Belgium to her old position of a neutralized State.

Partisans of Each Choice Active.

The first would mean keeping Europe under increasingly heavy military burdens, a large naval program to assure the transport of African troops across the Mediterranean, and the eventual return of Italy to the German alliance through fear of the powerful combination that had taken the place of the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

The second would tempt France, if the Russo-Japanese understanding persists, into an uncertain Far Eastern policy. For these reasons the third and fourth policies are being more seriously considered in France.

Against the third there is, of course, the barrier of the dead in the World War and the wrongs France has suffered; the risk of falling under the domination of Germany, and the possibility of such a combination becoming a rival and a menace to Great Britain, which is just what some of its advocates want.

The fourth policy appeals to many in all four countries as the practicable solution of the impasse from which they are vainly seeking an outlet.

But it is a solution only for Occidental Europe!

Great activity is being displayed at the beginning of Spring in behalf of all these policies, and it is this activity that inspires our newspaper dispatches.

Against these tendencies, which prolong unrest or at the best afford only regional tranquility, the advocates of international co-operation are still upholding the League of Nations and some form of protocol, and they are still insisting upon trying to see what good might come out of a universal conference for limitation of armament.

But, in view of the realignment of the great powers at the beginning of 1925, these earnest internationalists sorrowfully agree that there is little hope of the triumph of their cause unless Germany and the United States—Russia, too, if she will—are ready to do their part in working for the realization of the high ideals of 1918.

Many trade schools are now being established in Brazil.

G. A. BRETHEN GIVES RESUME OF DOINGS IN PARLIAMENT

SIDELIGHTS

Dear Sirs,

The fourth session of the fourteenth Parliament of Canada opened at Ottawa on Thursday, February fifth. Unusual interest is attached to the present session from the uncertainty as to whether it will prove the last, or whether the statutory time will be fulfilled and a fifth session be held. Down here this question has not been given the prominence by the members either in or out of the House that the newspapers would indicate.

Apparently no group in the House is particularly anxious for an election at this time and the Government will decide to go to the country at the close of this session only if indications warrant a fair promise of success.

The usual pomp and brilliance was present at the "Opening" this year, and to anyone seeing it for the first time, it is likely to prove very interesting. February fifth prove a real old-fashioned Canadian winter day and this suited His Excellency the Governor General, who always likes to see real Canadian weather when he comes to open Parliament. Great crowds are always present and the annual crush at the Speaker's reception following the opening ceremonies in the Senate had the commendable virtue at least of breaking down formality among those of different rank and effusing a spirit of good nature and friendliness throughout. His Honor, Speaker Lemieux, is himself a wonderful asset in spreading the gospel of good feeling among the members and his sense of fair play and respect for his position makes him eminently qualified for the Chair.

The "Speech from the Throne" which is read by the Governor General, first in English then in French to the members of the House of Commons, the Senate, and others present at the Opening of Parliament, is supposed to be an announcement of the programme or bill-of-fare of the Government for the Session. This year particular emphasis was placed upon the transportation problem by land and water and the reform of the Senate. When the House of Commons meets the debate upon the reply to the Speech from the Throne begins, two of the newer members of the House from the Government side are asked to move a reply. This year the duty of moving the resolution fell upon Sir Eugene Fiset, who spoke in French, the seconder of the motion being Chas. E. Hanna the victor in the recent West Hastings by-election. The speech of Sir Eugene, since translated into English was of very high order as was expected from a man of his experience and ability. Mr. Hanna, although laboring under the handicap of inexperience and the strain that almost every new member experiences, acquitted himself very creditably and his speech which dealt with the problems of Canaad as a whole and those of his own country was the subject of many complimentary remarks by several speakers who followed.

As is the custom the Leader of the Official Opposition follows and the Premier replies and so the debate goes on, back and forth across the House. Mr. Meighen has added some twenty pounds to his weight since last session and it appears to have had the effect of making him much more agreeable than in the past. His attack on the Government policies, while energetic lacked the vitriol and bitterness of previous sessions and probably for this reason did not arouse his followers to the same height of enthusiasm as is his custom. Whether due to this or the recent loss of W. Hastings there was a noticeable appearance of depression among the followers of Mr. Meighen which disappeared somewhat as a result of the fighting speeches of Hon. E. H. Stevens and Hon. Dr. Manion. The Premier was very effective in reply and seldom appeared to better advantage than in refuting the rather pessimistic views presented by Mr. Meighen. In fact he almost overdid the good work and became extravagantly optimistic more so than the present condition of the country would warrant.

Mr. Forke, who followed referred to the speeches of Mr. Meighen and the Prime Minister in the following words, "I believe, Mr. Speaker, we can have a fatal pessimism and a foolish optimism although I do not wish to insinuate that either of the honorable gentlemen went to that extreme. If too pessimistic we are apt to lose heart, get too sorry for ourselves, courage fails and objects aimed at are not accomplished. On the other hand it is sometimes just as foolish to underestimate the task that lies before us. While the Prime Minister was very optimistic I hope he realizes that we are not yet out of the woods that we have a great many difficulties to overcome and everything is not just as happy as it ought to be."

The Government and Progressive members did not enter very largely into the debate, at this time preferring to withhold their remarks until such time, as the several questions came before the House in more detailed form. The onus of carrying on the debate was therefore left upon the Conservative opposition a position they did not seem to enjoy in view of the criticism throughout the country upon much needless waste of time of Parliament in nonproductive debate.

Among the speeches on the address worthy of special mention was that of Mr. Marler of Montreal. While quite lengthy it had the merit of careful preparation and the suggestion that an annual statement or balance sheet should be presented by the Government in a form readily understandable by the people was a good one. Such a statement would show the capital debt and interest, pensions, etc., attributable to the war as distinct from the annual controllable expenditure by Parliament.

In this connection it is interesting to note that whereas in the year 1914 taxes were levied by the Dominion Government to meet a total expenditure of $106,351,391 today or during the year 1924 the Canadian people were taxed to meet an annual expenditure of $310,194,598 an increase of some $203,843,209 of which $178,000,000 represented war and war services and interest on public debt and largely uncontrollable by any Government.

The debate upon the Address from the Throne began on February 9th and the motion was accepted by the House on February 16th.

In future letters I will deal with some of the questions coming before the House including the Peterson contract and the budget. In closing this letetr would like to draw the attention of my constituents generally to the fact that from time to time my attention has been drawn to some oversigh or injustice in the disperation of pensions to veterans of the Great War. By taking up such cases with the Department I have on different occasions been able to get an adjustment in keeping with the justice of the claim. If any know of cases where an injustice is seemingly being done to our returned men or dependents of those killed in the Great War I would appreciate getting such particulars as will enable me to take immediate action.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Faithfully yours,
G. A. BRETHEN.

NEW BODY SHOULD ASSIST NEWCOMERS

Land Settlement Association Formed to Help Settlers in West.

WINNIPEG, April 1—The formation of the Canadian Land Settlement Association which has been granted a charter, should prove an important step in the settlement of Western Canada is the opinion held by E. A. Field, commissioner in charge of the colonization and development department of the Canadian National railways, in the West.

The purpose of the association, he pointed out was to assist, not only the newcomers, who are in search of suitable land, but also those owners of improved and unimproved land in Western Canada, who are anxious to find purchasers.

"Improved and unimproved lands in the three prairie provinces, Mr. Field, declared," are held by ourselves, by mortgage and other companies and private owners. The new association will bring the settler in touch with these. In the case of lands listed with us, they are first inspected by men from our own department, and if they are reported upon satisfactory, they are then listed with our 150 agents operating in the middle western states, who are in contact with potential buyers, seeking farms in Western Canada. Care is taken also to see that the legal end of the transfer is satisfactory to both parties and also that the newcomer is given whatever assistance as may be subsequently needed.

"By this means," said Mr. Fields, "the settlement of the next few years will be along already established means of communication and transportation, rather than in unsettled districts where the new farmer might perhaps have to wait for many years before railway and other facilities could reach him."

SNEEZE IT.

A young Russian was introduced to an aged Englishman, who was slightly deaf.

Just before the Russian bowed he sneezed.

"Of course," said the Englishman, "I knew your father well."—London Tit-Bits.

ANGRY FOREVER.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 3.—Professor W. B. Cannon of Harvard University has discovered a method of operating on the brains of animals which makes them permanently angry and at the same time removes all sense of pain. The cat's hair stands up, its claws are drawn out and it scratches and spits.

BEMOAN WOMEN'S TASTE

Jewelry Firms Suffer Because Women Wear Fewer Ornaments.

LONDON, April 3.—(Associated Press). — Women's constantly changing ideas regarding what they shall or shall not wear always affect some trade or another. This time it is the jewelry trade which is suffering, owing to the new simplicity of tastes regarding the wearing of jewelry. All women want pearl necklaces for the moment, and if they cannot get real ones they will have imitations, with the result that pendants which ornate gold settings as well as brooches are out of fashion.

According to the head of a jewelry association in Birmingham, where much jewelry is manufactured, there is today a slump in gold watch wristlets because women are now wearing a plain moire ribbon band, and whereas it was quite usual for a woman to wear four rings it is now only usual to wear two, a wedding and an engagement ring.

LONDON, April 3.—(Associated Press).—A tennis ball filled with nitrogen and claimed to be airtight has been invented by a technical expert of one of the big rubber companies.

Doctors Report Fewer Women Now Suffer From Anaemia.

LONDON, April 3.—(Associated Press).—The tight corset has disappeared and will never come back because science has declared against it, Professor W. W. Dixon of Cambridge University asserted recently in a lecture under the auspices of the People's League of Health. Twenty years ago the London hospitals were visited regularly by great numbers of girls and women suffering from anaemia, most of them workers in factories and offices.

"The kind of anaemia which the doctors of those days had to contend with has entirely disappeared," averred the lecturer, "and the reason is that tight-laced corsets are no longer worn by the young women of today who are interested in keeping their health."

CATHEDRAL MAY CLOSE.

LONDON, April 3.—(Associated Press).—The poorest cathedral in Christendom is Southwark Cathedral, according to the Bishop of Woolwich.

There is practically no endowment, the Bishop explains, and the Deans, the Sub-Deans and Canons were not paid a single penny. The cathedral is in a poor locality and for 12 years the windows have not been cleaned because of lack of finances. The organization faces bankruptcy.

EAT FOR HEALTH'S SAKE

After completing her studies in first aid Mrs. Mann of Anytown decided that she would study foods for health's sake.

There were three youngsters in Mrs. Mann's family and a large part of the family income was spent for food.

Thus if she could find the most economical and wholesome foods for health she would be doing her husband and her family a real service, Mrs. Mann thought.

Colds, headaches, backaches, nervous exhaustion, irritability, and that "all in" feeling, are more often caused by improper diet than any other one thing, Mrs. Mann's doctor had told her.

"Many folks depend upon medicine to cure them of these ills," he said. "Medicine is good, but it is much better to prevent illness by taking care of the body than to cure after the illness has taken hold," he added.

The leaves of the mimosa plant are highly sensitive to the touch.

Y.W.C.A. ACTIVE IN SPRINGTIME

Preparations Being Pushed for Pageant on May 1 and 2.

NEW DANCES

There is plenty of activity in the big rooms of the Young Women's Christian Association building at the present time. Everybody is getting ready for the annual pageant, to be held on May 1st and 2nd in the Grand Opera House. Ladies with busy fingers are occupied daily in the sewing rooms, converting gay materials into the prettiest of costumes for the various dances which will make his year's performance as colorful and interesting as any of its predecessors.

The dances this year are entirely new, as is the programme from start to finish, from the Kewpie Doll dance for the babies' class, including tots of two and a half years in age, to the French 'flame' dance, "Vive la France."

An Irish dance will be a jaunty number, with the simulated "boys" in brown knee breeches, black swallowtail coats and tall green stovepipe hats, and their colleens wearing green frocks and bonnets and white aprons.

For the Russian operatic dance, "The Soldier and His Sweetheart," their are tricorne hats and French blue suits for the men and frilled yellow gowns for their sweethearts; the lovely interpretive measures of the dance to Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" will be done in varying shades of blue chiffon, and for the Spanish dance, the girls are wearing vivd reds, Spanish shawls in black with orange fringe, and huge black Spanish hats with red roses beneath their brims.

A Grecian number will interpret a group of Shubert waltzes, done in chiffons of pastel shades of lavender peach, leaf green, turquoise blue, pink and yellow; "The Dance of Youth" will have leaf green costuming, with golden slippers and hair wreaths; a pantomimic fan dance, to the music of "The Dream of Love" will have frilled pink frocks with white pantalettes, and "Katinka", the Russian doll dance, will be a gay affair of bright blues and oranges, with green and gold ribbons on the head-dresses.

A dance by the little boys' classes will be done in cowboy outfits. In all, an aggregate of about four hundred costumes will be made for the big event.

An item on the programme never before attempted in a pageant of this sort is the single club exercise by the juniors. Also, one of the most intricate club-swinging drills by the Senior class will be included in the entertainment. The balance of the programme will give illustrations of the various physical drills and exercises taught in the 'Y' classes.

COMFORT FOR TRAMPS

Nuneaton Workhouse Supplies Good Beds and Comfortable Chairs.

NUNEATON, Eng., April 3. — (Associated Press).—In order to discourage vagrants from tramping the road, Poor Law authorities have turned the local workhouse into a work-mansion.

The old casual ward has been abolished and replaced by a cheerful room with bright colored wall-papers, linoleum covered floors and comfortable chairs in which casuals may sit while having meals at a long polished table.

A supply of books and newspapers is provided for evening reading in a steam-heated room, and spring mattressed beds await the weary traveller at night. Regular inmates have the use of a piano and a radio set, and there is a supply of toys for the children.

NO ENGLISH SIGNS

Japanese Railways Print Directions in Their Own Tongue.

TOKIO, April 3.—(United Press). —Foreigners in Japan were surprised one day recently to notice the signs in English on trains in this country and on the inter-urban between Tokio and Yokohama had been removed. Only Japanese signs remain. Later the platform signs at each station along the route, heretofore bearing the name of the place in both English and Japanese, were pointed out. Another nationalistic movement apparently is indicated. The change is a decided inconvenience to all foreigners. It was done at the order of the Government Department of Railways. No explanation is forthcoming.

LONDON ADOPTS BUNKS

Room is so Valuable That Newest Flats Have Folding Berths.

LONDON, April 3.—(Associated Press).—The demand for living space in London is so acute that bunks, one above the other similar to those aboard ships and which fold up out of sight when not in use, have been installed in some of the newest flats in the crowded city of London, where inches have to be taken into consideration whenever any building is being done.

Another innovation in the compressed furniture line is a "six-in-one" contrivance which includes a folding bed, washstand, chest of drawers, mirror, shoe rack and space to place the bedding when the bed is not made up.

In other words, costs will be reduced to a minimum.

GETTING SKINNIER EVERY DAY

Hollows in Cheeks and Neck Growing Deeper Every Week.

Something Must Be Done and Done Right Now—Quick.

Ten of thousands of thin, run-down men—yes, and women too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile and enjoy life right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and now feels fine.

We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitalizing, flesh producing vitamines, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets are as easy to take as candy and if any thin person don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will give you your money back—and only 60 cents for 60 tablets. Ask Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, or any live pharmacist anywhere.

But be sure to get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and bear in mind that for thin, sickly kids they are wonderful—a very sickly child—age 9, gained 12 pounds in 7 months.

CHANGING THE COURSE OF RIVER A MINOR DETAIL; IN LENGTH A CITY WILL GO TO CONSERVE HEALTH

Chicago's Defense in Action to Restrain City From Diverting Water of Lake Michigan —Diversion of Water to Drainage Canal Has Supplied Sewage Outlet Since 1900 for Sanitary District Containing 3,300,000 People.

(Contributed.)

Chicago's sewage disposal problem is a splendid example of the lengths to which a city must go to insure the health of its people. Changing the course of a river is but a minor detail; bringing down the wrath of neighboring States and the supervising eye of the Federal Government is perhaps a more important one. To-day Chicago is virtually in a position of a prisoner at the bar of justice, charged with diverting the waters of Lake Michigan. At present the big city is taking out approximately 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan, thereby, according to some States, lowering the level of the Great Lakes and endangering lake traffic. Another cause of complaint is that by diverting the waters for home use, Chicago greatly decreases the water power at Niagara Falls used for generating electricity.

Chicago pleads guilty, with reservations, if such a thing is possible, and upholds her position on the ground that the decrease in disease which finds its origin in polluted water is sufficient justification for her act. In the decade before the diversion of the Lake Michigan waters for dilution of sewage in the canal that carries it down the Mississippi, Chicago's typhoid death rate averaged 64.4 per 100,000 people. In the year 1892 it ran as high as 172 for every 100,000 people. In recent years the death rate has gone down to 1.1 for the same basic population figure. During the same period nine other representative large cities of America reduced their composite typhoid fever death rate from 38.5 to 3.5 per 100,000 people.

Perhaps the why and wherefore of this water diversion will be more clearly understood when the fact is stated that before 1900 Chicago's sewage was sent into Lake Michigan and Chicago's drinking and bathing water was taken out of Lake Michigan. Today the 10,000 cubic feet of water per second sends the city's sewage away from the lake, down the river, whose course was changed, and keeps the lake comparatively free of polution.

To a population like the one living in New York, this situation may be difficult to comprehend. New York gets its drinking water from mountain springs and empties its sewage in rivers and seas surrounding it. The two are not taken from and dropped into the same basin. New Yorkers are hardly aware of the fact that the water supply is of the best and purest.

Chicago, on the other hand, built on the apex of the watersheds of the St. Lawrence and the Mississippi Rivers, stands in an unfortunate position. Her waters naturally drained down to the lake, from which extend the various cribs which lead the drinking water back into the city. Chicago's answer to her sewage problem, and simultaneously her health problem, lay in putting herself on the Mississippi instead of the St. Lawrence watershed "Let us continue taking our drinking water from the lake," is what the engineers working on the problem said, "but let us divert the Chicago River so that instead of flowing north it will flow south, carrying the city's sewage with it through a canal."

Polluting the Water.

In 1856 the first sewers of Chicago were built. They took care of the population of 80,000 by depositing most of the sewage into the Chicago River, which flowed into the lake and succeeded most admirably in polluting the waters and causing typhoid epidemics. The city was not unaware of this danger, and from time to time improvements were made to keep as much of the sewage as possible out of the lake.

As the population grew the condition got worse. By the time the population reached the 800,000 mark, in 1886, it was decided that something had to be done to meet the present and the future needs of the city. An engineering commission was appointed to make a survey and recommend methods of improvement. The three possibilities suggested were a discharge into Lake Michigan, disposal of sewage upon land, or a discharge into the Des Plaines River, a tributary of the Mississippi. After discussing at length the virtues of the three methods, the report recommended the last, proposing the construction of a drainage canal with a capacity of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second, sufficient to dilute the sewage of a future population of 2,500,000, at the rate of four cubic feet per second per 1,000 people, and also sufficient to keep storm flows from flushing the reversed Chicago River back into Lake Michigan.

As a result of this report the Sanitary District of Chicago was organized by the State of Illinois. The original area of the district took in 185 square miles, with a population of 1,140,000 people. Today its area has grown to over 430 miles with a population of 3,300,000. Besides Chicago it includes about forty-nine other towns and villages This is necessary owing to the fact that the health of cities near Chicago and along the sewage canal must be considered at the same time that plans are made for the Lake City.

Construction of the canal was started in 1892. It was opened in 1900. It is twenty-eight miles long and connects the Chicago River with the Des Plaines River. By the time it reaches a city where the river water is needed for general drinking purpose it has been purified by process of natural oxidation and filtration. There is, apparently, little quarrel on that score.

In 1886, when Chicago's problem was discussed there were two artificial methods of sewage treatment used by large cities. Paris and Berlin used irrigation upon sandy land, London and other English cities treated sewage with chemicals for removal of suspended solids and sent the so-called purified liquid back into the rivers. Chicago's argument against both these methods was that the areas of suitable land within reasonable distance were not available for irrigation or for more intensive land treatment called intermittent sand filtration, and second, that the removal of solids as practiced by English cities was not sufficiently hygienic to warrant the return of the liquids into Lake Michigan to be later used for drinking and bathing purposes. Therefore the dilution method was adopted. Dilution in the Sewage Canal, however, took care only of a population of 2,500,000 people. Chicago's population today is over 3,000,000. Added to that is the industrial sewage of stock yards, packing houses and converting plants. It is estimated that the sewage of Chicago today is comparable to that of a population of 4,800,000.

New Experiments With Waste.

Way back in 1908 the members of the Sanitary Commission of Chicago were aware that the Sewage Canal under the most ideal conditions could adequately dispose of the sewage of only a 2,500,000 population. They knew also that the city was bound to grow beyond that mark A study of artificial sewage treatment was then promulgated, resulting in the adoption of several experiments in methods of sewage treatment. Since that time, it is declared, Chicago has led all cities in the country in the work on this problem and has been the pioneer on the treatment of trade wastes.

Artificial treatment sewage plants to supplement the work of the canal were started in 1914. Owing to the interference of the war, their completion was retarded until 1922. Meanwhile the State Legislature in 1921 passed an act making obligatory, beginning with 1925, the construction of additional sewage plants each year until a sufficient number were built to take care of the sewage of approximately 1,800,000 people. The rest, it is maintained, will be taken care of by dilution in the canal. One hundred twenty-five million dollars was voted for this purpose.

Already a number of treatment plants have been built in sections of the city where the need is great. The writer visited one of them where sewage of a 300,000 population is taken care of. The sewage, dark with the waste of plants, homes and street flushings, came through the mouth of the sewer and was pumped by electrical power into treatment tanks. In this particular plant the two-story Imhoff sedimentation tank is used. After passing through various tanks which permitted the solids to settle and the fluid to run, the solids were submitted to a sprinkling filter process which further purified them. This stage reached, they were run through a drying machine and packed into bags ready for sale as fertilizer base.

Many Things to Consider.

Opponents of the canal declare that it is in sufficiently good condition to be sent back into the lake, that with chlorination of the lake water it is harmless as drinking or bathing water. Supporters of the canal system, who include practically all of Chicago, will not hear of this and maintain that apart from esthetic and emotional reasons which make treated sewage impossible as drinking water, the liquid that is drained is still not fit for human consumption. At present, and it seems the practice will continue, all the flow from sewage treatment plants is sent into channels connecting with the Sewage Canal. Even at that, however, the lake is not considered safe and the heavy chlorination of its waters is easily recognizable by a visitor to the city

The charge made by navigation and water power interests that 10,000 cubic feet of water taken from the lake every second lowers its level and that of Lake Huron is admitted by the Sanitary District. The extent of the lowering, it is maintained, however, never exceeds six inches. The question has been asked by many people whether continued abstraction of water for sewage purposes will not eventually drain both these lakes. In answer to that the Sanitary Commission makes reply that a cask is never drained dry if there is as much water flowing in as there is flowing out. More, the inflow to Lakes Huron and Michigan is about eighteen times as much as the flow of 10,000 cubic feet per second which goes out to the Sewage Canal. The effect of the canal is very much the same, it is pointed out, as if there were two holes in the side of a cask, the smaller an inch in diameter, corresponding to the outgoing canal water, and the other eighteen times as large, corresponding to the waters that are constantly pouring into the lakes.

To make up for the five and one-half inch change in the level of the two large bodies of water, Chicago is willing to contribute toward the building of water regulating machinery of the kind erected for Lake Superior on St. Mary's River, and completed in 1916. The water yield at Lake Superior has been about 25 per cent. below normal during the past few years, owing to deficient rainfall on the Lake Superior Drainage Basin. The regulating works, however, have maintained the level of the lake at a nearly uniform high stage equal to that of ten years ago. At present, it is said, Lake Superior is from one to one and one-half feet higher than it would have been without regulating works.

What has been done for Superior, Chicagoans declare, can be done for the other lakes, thus safeguarding lake traffic and the water power at Niagara. Chicago is as anxious that lake steamers be enabled to draw their full cargo as is any port.

Besides serving as a sewage canal, the channel under discussion serves also as a link in the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway project. For more than a hundred years both the United States and the State of Illinois have proceeded on a policy of improving the navigation facilities of the country by connecting the Great Lakes through Chicago with the Gulf of Mexico. Construction work on this waterway is now in progress.

While the Chicago diversion of water is made primarily for sanitary and secondly for navigation purposes, the water contains potential power. This power is utilized at Lockport, where there is an appreciable drop in land levels. Most of it is used to run the works of the sanitary district; the surplus is sold to the city of Chicago and other cities in the district for municipal lighting and pumping. A few industries buy what remainder there is. When the sewage treatment works now building and planned are completed, the entire water development will be insufficient to meet the operating requirements of the district. In answer to the complaint of Niagara power interests, Chicago declares that, whether or not she utilizes the potential power of the canal, she needs the 10,000 cubic feet per second to take care of her sewage.

In bringing suit against Chicago, the various interests do not demand that the sewage canal be closed. What they ask is that the amount of water be limited to 4,176 cubic feet per second, which would serve to raise the lake levels about three inches. The method of arrival of their figure entails much legal matter and controversy. According to the Sanitary Commission, this amount of water would be little better than nothing, owing to the topography of the land. Ten thousand cubic feet per second is needed to keep the river reversed.

There is a good deal more to this problem, most of it confined to engineering problems and water litigation. The metering of water used by the consumers in Chicago is included in this. At present Chicago uses 800,000,000 gallons of water daily, equivalent to 273 gallons per person. About one-half of this is wasted and adds to the burden of the sewage system which must dispose of it. The control of this and other waste are details which must be considered. But above all and including all is the 10,000 cubic feet per second which carries the sewage from all parts of Chicago down to the Mississippi River.

In The Morning Her Tongue Was Coated HadBad Taste In Mouth

Miss Pearle L. Zinck, Barss Corner, N.S., writes:—"I was awfully troubled with my liver, and used to get such dizzy spells I would have to sit down while I was doing my work.

In the morning, when I used to get up, my tongue was coated and I had a bad taste in my mouth and often times, throughout the day, I was troubled with pains in my stomach.

I suffered in this way until a friend of mine who had used your MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS. told me of having taken them, so I decided to try them, and I can truthfully say that they certainly did me a lot of good.

I cannot recommend them too highly to all those who suffer as I did."

FIGHTING GERMS.

Systems Must Be Kept at Fighting Pitch in Readiness.

"Quite a bit of truth in what you say of people feeding themselves germs," Mr. Mann agreed with his wife.

"But what about these germs not being able to live out in the open air?"

"Well, most of them will live an hour of two in the least," she replied.

"And it does not take that long for them to be transferred in these days of modern living conditions."

"Incidentally, March is the worst time of the year for influenza and colds and pneumonia," Mr. Mann ventured.

"Probably the germs would not be able to get such a death grip on people if their systems were not run down by the hard arduous living conditions of winter.

"There are two ways of fighting off disease. Keep germs out of your system, of course, and then by proper food, sleep, exercise and general care of the body make the system so strong that germs cannot get a hold.

"As for me, I am going down to see a doctor and see of I need toning up a little bit."

WHEN PIRATES WORK RUM ROW

BY CAPT. TWEEDIE.

By MILTON BRONNER.

LONDON, April 3.— "Hands up, Englishman, and damn quick about it! I'm nervous tonight and one of these guns might go off."

These savage words, according to Captain J. T. Tweedie, were his first introduction to the manners of the rum pirates, who rob the rum runners, who supply the bootleggers, who oblige thirsty Americans at so much per "oblige."

Captain Tweedie had such a rough experience that he says he is through with American waters. He would rather sail to the Orient and take his chances with Malay and Chinese pirates. They are gentle by comparison. And Capt. J. T. Tweedie.

Tweedie is a seasoned old Scotch salt who isn't easily daunted.

"It sort of takes it out of you to step into a regular movie and have a gun pressed into your ribs every time you turn around, to be half-starved for days on end, and to be kicked and cuffed whenever a desperado takes a notion to do so.

"It came about this way:

"Last summer I signed on as chief officer of the schooner Veronica, which was lying in the port of Bremen, Germany. The captain, John Daniell, and I were the only Britons. The rest of the crew of 11 were Germans.

"Our destination was Meilla in Morocco. Our cargo 20,000 cases of whisky and champagne, valued at over $600,000. Afterwards we were to proceed to Bermuda and from there to go to to St. Pierre, Newfoundland, by way of Montauk Point.

"In October we were 25 miles off the latter place when a big speed boat came up to us. Two men who represented themselves as prospective buyers of our cargo, came aboard. One went with the captain to his cabin. The other, who pretended to be ill, went below with me to my cabin where I gave him a drink. When I started to leave him he told me to put up my hands. He wasn't sick a bit and each hand held a gun. He marched me up to the deck. There I saw the captain in similar plight and the crew had their hands up, being covered by armed men on the speed boat. All our weapons were taken away and then the crew were locked up in the hold. Captain Daniell and I were locked up in the officers' mess.

"For two days we were practically without food or drink. Then I was ordered to go aft to meet the pirate leader who was called Slim and was an undoubted Yank. His chief officer was a big American always called George.

"'You'd like some fresh air and food I guess,' said Slim to me.

"I said I would.

"'All right, I want you to do some navigating for me. Play a straight game and I'll take care of you. Try any funny business and I will let the daylight clear through you.'

"All the time I was taking a sight and working out the position of the schooner I was covered by guns. Sometimes the pirates pressed them none too playfully into my ribs. One day, for no apparent reason except that I was helpless, George bashed me in the jaw and knocked me down. They were a tough lot and I gathered some of them were ex-convicts. All of them were ready to shoot at the slightest provocation. I imagine a revenue cutter tackling them would have a tough fight.

"I navigated the ship up and down the coast outside the international line for six days. Finally the schooner the pirates were evidently expecting was sighted and I was again locked up.

"That night they let me and the rest of the crew out and made us unload the cargo, into their schooner. We were all weak from hunger and it didn't help us much when the pirates kicked us and knocked us down because we didn't work fast enough. The last night somebody hit me and knocked me clean out. The next I knew was one of my own crew telling me the pirates had gone and that we were free again.

"Free?

"A crew of haf-starved men with only two days' provisions on board, with our life boats smashed, our motor put out of business, our chronometer broken and compass stolen.

"A storm would have wrecked us.

"We had been in the hands of the pirates from October 24 to November 16. The British ship, Scottish Borderer, saw our distress signals and gave us a tow to Halifax.

"At that we were very lucky. Things are so bad over there that many small ships are afraid to reply to distress signals for fear they may be a pirate trap.

"From what I saw I am convinced that the following happens every time a ship takes a cargo of booze 'destined for Bermuda':

"First, a representative of some big rum runner cables his chiefs in America that the stuff is on the way.

"Second, a representative of your government also cables to wise up your revenue officials.

"And lastly and most important of all, a spy of the booze pirates cables to somebody in America the name of the vessel, the size of its cargo and its probable destination.

"I am convinced that in our case one of the pirate crew was himself in Bremen. He saw what we had aboard. He learned how small our crew was and how inadequate was our supply of arms. Then he took a fast boat back to America and helped lay the plans for our capture. It sounds fanciful, but think of the stakes—over a half million dollars' worth of booze. Gold mines and oil wells aren't in it—if you pull it off."

THE GRENFELL LABRADOR MISSION.

No. 6. Harrington Hospital, Canadian Labrador.

This Grenfell hospital, with staff, has served the Canadian Labrador now for over twenty years, and it would be a great hardship if the people had to manage without it. In the out-post of civilization safe-guards to human life are greatly valued and appreciated. Harrington hospital is situated on one of a group of islands, near Cape Whittle, and nine miles from the mainland. It has accommodation for sixteen patients and the staff there furnish the only medical or surgical aid available between Natasquan and the Straits of Belle Isle, along the north shore of the gulf, a distance of a little over 200 miles. Those who contribute toward its upkeep may rest assured of an investment which pays large dividends in health, happiness and usefulness on our own Canadian Labrador.

A permanent resident doctor for Harrington could not be found last summer, when Dr. Frost's resignation went into effect, but the mission was exceptionally fortunate in securing first-class volunteer doctors who did splendid work. One was a practical man, as well as physician and surgeon, and supervised many repairs to buildings, boats, etc., putting everything into good shape. Dr. Geo. W. Harley, who was in charge, goes to Liberia next season as a medical missionary, and is bound to be a great asset wherever he goes.

Nurse Brown, head nurse (from Owen Sound), was ably seconded by Nurse Jones, from Passedena, California. It seems a far cry from California to Labrador, yet this mission always has some volunteers from that distance. Nurse Murray, who has previously served seven years on the Harrington staff, returned in October for another term, and was warmly welcomed back.

The hospital supplies and clothing sent Harrington by various Canadian branches (including Peterboro'), are greatly needed and much appreciated. Nothing gives our staff greater pleasure than to be put in a position to meet the many demands made upon them, and the one for new and second-hand clothing is always heavy.

The hospital launch, "Northern Messenger," was thoroughly overhauled last winter and gave good satisfaction in taking the doctor on his long round of calls, bringing patients to hospital and taking them home again when better.

We bespeak for this hospital within our own beloved Canada, the heartiest support from Canadians.

All who are interested in the work of the Grenfell Labrador Mission are reminded that the annual membership fee is only $2.00, which includes the quarterly magazine, Among the Deep Sea Fishers.

Subscriptions may be received by The Examiner, or may be sent to Mrs. Gerald A. Wood, local treasurer, Box 990, Peterborough.

THE SPRING EVENING GOWN

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, April 3. — (United Press).—There are two dominate silhouettes for the evening gown this spring—the slender sheath and the numerous bouffant models.

Matrons seem to continue to hold the straight-lined, unbelted frocks in favor, while slender youthful figures are choosing skirts of bouffant type with slender-fitting bodices. Chiffon is the chosen material of both silhouettes. In the slender models one sees many chiffons that are but slightly beaded, as the ornately beaded effects are a bit too heavy for this season.

Most of the Parisian designers are striving to get away from absolutely straight lines, rounding necks and sleeveless frocks which have been in style for several years. One of the most prominent designers has induced the bustle of tulle or chiffon for the otherwise slender gown. Until now the bustle effect has been used in heavier materials, such as velvets or moires, and the effect has been too heavy to become popular. Transparent tulle butles, however, are very pretty in effect and do not take away from the slenderness of the wearer. On some of the gowns designed for youthful figures the bustle looks like a huge butterfly bow with ends falling to the hemlines.

Another interesting feature has been added to the evening gown this season. That is the long transparent sleeve. These are very effective on the lacy frock which gets away from the batteau neckline by using the V-shaped front and back. As a dinner frock, one could not choose a more appropriate or newer model. Blond chiffon is also made with long sleeves to good advantage. Of course the sleeve in every case is tight-fitting and comes well down over the hand. So few women have really beautiful arms that it is to be hoped that the long sleeve for evening will meet with success. For over-fleshy arms the black lace sleeve is more attractive and the very slender arm will also appear to better advantage when draped in the transparent material of the frock. The neckline of the long-sleeved gown may be cut as low as one wishes, since the sleeve seems to be entirely divorced from the neckline. One of the most stunning frocks worn at the Metropolitan Opera recenty was made of black silk lace with tight lace sleeves and a very lowcut neckline. The wearer of this gown was extremely slender, but a wide band of back tulle draped tightly about her throat and tied with a many looped bow at the left side produced a decidedly flattering effect. Blond chiffon formed the underslip to the black lace as it often does this season.

Lingerie types of evening gowns are being shown by several fashionable gownshops. Among the loveliest of these are the net and lace models which are dyed in pastel shades. One of the prettiest is made of pale blue net in long, slender lines until it reaches the knees, where it flares in lace trimmed flounce effect. It is worn over slip of silver cloth and the effect is very soft and youthful. The net is trimmed in pin-tucks and lace. Many women possessing white net frocks can take advantage of the colored net this season by tinting the white net. This may give an idea to the girl graduate who wishes to utilize her white net graduation frock this summer.

Covering the bobbed headdress we see wide bands of pastel-hued tulle wrapped about the head and fastened at one side with a floral ornament. Many women dislike bobbed hair for evening occasion and false locks, though popular, are difficult to adjust to the boyishly trimmed hair. A draped bandeau of chiffon takes away the hoydenish effect of the bob. Sometimes a jeweled medallion or ornament is placed at one side of the head to cover the fastening of the chiffon. With the white frock the white tulle bandeau fastened with a large rhinestone buckle is very effective. Another very lovely headdress which takes away the bobbed effect, is the wide coronet of tiny flowers which is worn at the rear of the head. Although these have not been shown in the shops, one sees them occasionally worn by very smart women. They are shaped somewhat like the Russian headdress, being cut wide in the center and narrowing at the sides. One surmises that they are made on a buckram frame covered with tulle, although the framework is completely obscured by the small flowers One particularly attractive model worn by a golden blonde was made of tiny gold rosebuds and green leaves. The bandeau fits tightly to the back of the head completely covering the tightly cropped hair.

AN ENSEMBLE FOR SPRING

This attractive ensemble has a coat of beige jeweltone banded with fox fur and lined with the same printed silk of which the dress is made. The dress is of beige with designs in green. It is a straight frock with long sleeves and long overtunic.

BURNS LECTURE AT BRIGHTON

WAS A REFORMER

BRIGHTON, April 3.—On Monday evening in the Methodist Church auditorium, Dr. Jas. L. Hughes of Toronto gave a very interesting and highly education lecture on the real life of the great Scottish poet, Robert Burns. The lecture was illustrated by a number of colored slides, which were excellent reproductions of the country in which Burns lived.

Dr. Hughes began his lecture by stating that Brighton was by no means unfamiliar to him. Fifty-nine years ago, while teaching in Frankford, he was offered a position as teacher in Brighton, but he accepted a position in the Normal School, Toronto, instead. He said he always knew Northumberland was the county which had a jail and that he used to be glad that he lived in Durham—because there was no jail there. A traveller once told him that judging from the people in Durham, this was nothing to boast about. When questioned as to what they knew about Robert Burns, the great Scottish poet, the majority of college graduates have said that he was a very immoral man and that seemed to be the limit of their knowledge. Carlisle said: "Burns an immoral man! I have no such conception of him. He is better than one in ten thousand." Burns was not an immoral man although he was a drunkard, and to misrepresent the dead is a very low act—scandalmongers of the dead are even worse. All the university men and country gentlemen of his time loved and admired Burns.

Robert Burns was the greatest religious reformer of his time, said Dr. Hughes. He had three great visions, namely, to make the Presbyterian Church purer, to make brotherhood the basis of democracy and to show to his fellow-men his hatred for hypocrisy. He did great work among the poor people who were real people but had no right to vote. When Burns was on his death bed he wasn't sorry for not having lived a better life, but was sorry he hadn't made his poems ready for publication. There were a number of poems that he never intended should be published. He always wrote his poems out in the woods near beautiful rivers, some of which are the most beautiful in the world. As he was a farmer and had to work all day he would steal away to the river banks after supper and could write until eleven o'clock and later without the aid of artificial light.

Burns did not attack religion but the evils connected with it at that time. He hated the superstition of a fanatic but loved the religion of a man. Some people joined the Church for certain financial advantages. Burns vigorously attacked such hypocracy.

Many Sects.

Dr. Hughes stated that during his early manhood there were no less than five kinds of Methodists in the county of Durham and there were two kinds of Presbyterians in Bowmanville. The rival preachers did not care to associate with each other and would never think of exchanging pulpits for a Sunday. The Anglicans did not care for either the Presbyterians or the Methodists, whom they considered to be very ignorant. Seventy-eight years ago the Presbyterians wouldn't be happy if anyone else were in heaven but them. The speaker stated that he was a Past Grand Master of Orangemen, but was willing to omit being a Protestant for the cause of Union of all for one cause.

In the time of Burns it was a horrible thing to be happy on the Lord's Day. A Christian then was a solemn man, who held himself together so he wouldn't fall apart. He never saw the beauties of nature but worried about religion.

The father of Robert Burns read the best books in Scotland, and taught Robert after the age of nine, and he had to recite what he had heard. If he differed with his father about the teaching the latter was glad.

It was not the genius of Burns that impressed people but his great knowledge and oratorical power, the latter being greater than his knowledge. John Murdock, who was one of the greatest teachers in Europe, then taught Burns.

Burns said he would imbue the minds of all his children with religion. How many fathers to-day do such a thing? asked the speaker. Burns was profoundly reverent of women. At that time British freedom meant freedom for men only.

Everybody Drank.

Robert Burns' great fault was that he was a drunkard. But even in the early life of Dr. Hughes he didn't know any Methodist preacher who didn't drink. Needless to say, all Presbyterian preachers drank—every body drank. At a banquet of Methodist ministers 50 years ago, there was every kind of wine, whiskey and ale. They said that an Englishman never used water except for a bath.

There are more monuments in the world erected to the memory of Robert Burns than to any other man. Eighty-two thousand people visit his grave annually as compared with eighteen thousand who visit the grave of Shakespeare.

The lecture was followed by slides which were made by Dr. Hughes himself from the pictures taken of the Burns' country.

Presentation Made.

A very pleasant evening was spent in the Methodist Sunday schoolrooms Tuesday evening, when the members of the Ladies' Aid met and presented their president, Mrs. E. A. King, with half a dozen silver knives and forks and one and one-half dozen spoons. The following address was read by Mrs. Potter and the presentation made by Bessie Perry:

"Dear Mrs. King.—As the time is drawing near for the new year of our Ladies' Aid Society, we cannot let the year pass away without expressing in some modest way our appreciation of your work as president in the last year. You have not only been a faithful president, but good and kind to all. We trust that you may feel you have a warm place in our hearts and no broken link in the chain of friendship and that it will always exist in our hearts.

"As a small token of our goodwill kindly accept this gift from us.

"Signed on behalf of your many friends,

"Mrs. Covert.
"Mrs. Corby.
"Mrs. F. Stoneburg."

During the evening those present were entertained by a pleasing solo by Mrs. F. Bradley, a humorous reading by Marie Covert and one by Mrs. A. Perry.

Mrs. Covert acted as chairman, and after the presentation Mrs. King was so thoroughly surprised, it was difficult to find words to express her appreciation of the kindness of the members to her during her term of office.

DODGE STOCK TO BE OFFERED TO PUBLIC

Powerful Banking Interests in New Ownership.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Some of the country's most powerful financial interests will be associated with Dillon, Read and Company, in financing the purchasing of Dodge Brothers, Inc., automobile manufacturers, for slightly less than $175,000,000 in cash.

Allied with Dillon, Read and Company will be Kuhn, Loeb and Company, the National City Company, Blair and Company, the Chase Securities Corporation and the Central Union Trust Company, all of New York, and the First Trust and Savings Company and the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Company at Chicago.

More than $100,000,000 worth of stocks and bonds of the new Dodge Company will be sold to the public. Although bankers have not yet decided on the total amount of financing, it was estimated in the financial district that by applying part of the Dodge cash reserves to the purchase price the public offering could be limited to about $125,000,000.

"SHOW OFF" DANGEROUS

Too Much Petting is as Bad as Too Many Don'ts.

After studying social psychiatry as its relates to the early training of children, Mrs. Mann came to the conclusion that rearing children was surely one of the most difficult of tasks.

Mothers do so many things they should not do, she learned.

For instance, where is a mother who is not so proud of her child that she likes to "show off" the child before her friends.

Yet Mrs. Mann was told that when a mother "shows off" her child in company she is developing in the child conceit and superficiality.

And she learned that if a mother "don'ts" a child every minute the child soon moves like a person with his hands tied.

The most exaggerated nervous cases in children, such as poor appetites, temper, tantrums and disobedience, are often due to "too much petting" by the parents, and making the child the center of attraction, Mrs. Mann learned.

MANY INDIANS STILL PAGANS

More Than 5,000,000 in South America Still Unreached.

AGRICULTURAL PFOPLE

MONTEVIDEO, April 3.—(Associated Press).—In a report on "The Indians of South America," prepared by a commission headed by Dr. William I. Haven, Secretary of the American Bible Society, for presentation today to the Congress on Christian Work in South America, it was declared that there are between 3,000,000 and 10,000,000 Indians in South America who have never been reached by the gospel or by modern civilization. So numerous and so inaccessible are these people that no census of them ever has been taken.

The report points out that some attempt has been made to assist in the civilizing and Christianizing of these Indians by Governments and by some of the early missionaries of the Catholic church. Governments have assisted somewhat in agriculture, and the early missionaries did some work in translation, in education and in religious work. Evangelical missionaries have taught and preached among some tribes in the highlands of Bolivia in the Peruvian Andes, in the southern part of Chile and Paraguay, and in Brazil.

"But, on the whole," says the report, "almost nothing has been done, at least in an organized, syatematic, comprehensive way, and the people are living feebly and like a stagnant stream, tilling the soil, fishing in the stream, hunting in the forest, by methods that have not changed for centuries. Disease, pestilential fevers, bites of insects and exposure, all prey upon them. Their minds are full of the superstitions of pagan peoples, fearing the presence of spirits in all the mysterious operations of nature. Few realize the great burden of fear which lies like a pall on such untutored minds."

The report points out that since the Indian is largely an agriculturist any effort to approach him along agricultural lines at once establishes a vital point of contact. During recent years, however, the great cry of the Indians in their appeals to missionaries has been, "Give us schools, come teach our children." Where there is such a keen desire for education, the report says, such work cannot fail to be an effective means of approach.

ITALIAN DEPUTIES CLASH IN CHAMBER

Blows Struck Followed By Challenge to a Duel.

ROME, April 3. — Important events developed almost simultaneously in both houses of the Italian Parliament on Thursday—a pugilistic incident in the Chamber, culminating in a challenge to a duel, and postponement by the Senate, upon the request of Premier Mussolini of the vote on War Minister General Di Giorgio's army reform bill, the successful passage of which appeared threatened by strong criticisms from Italy's most prominent military leaders.

The uproar in the chamber was caused by the charge made by Deputy Viola that the government had concentrated black shirts on the occasion of the recent election in the Casort commune for the purpose of intimidating voters opposed to the fascist candidates. This charge led to an exchange of blows between Viola and the Fascist Deputy, Bottai, and Bottai thereupon challenged Viola to a duel.

Numerous other Deputies, including Farinacci, Secretary-General, of the Fascist party, and some of the arms, had trouble in separating the combatants.

REPAIRS

There's plenty of stitchin' and sewin' and such, that's gotta be done right soon. There's plenty of clothes that are needin' the touch that will put them in proper tune.

A peek in the closet at lightweight clothes—the clothes that you wore last year—is likely the reason that everyone knows, repair time is drawin' near.

There's father's old suit, with the buttons shy, but it looks pretty good at that. There's a chance for more wear that he won't pass by, if the tailor will come to bat.

Then mother and kiddies are all concerned, as they're eyein' the rip and tears. But the old clothes to new ones are quickly turned through the magic of neat repairs.

Let summertime come, 'cause we'll all be set. We'll be stitched to the latest style. The made-over things we are going to get, are makin' the tailors smile.

ST. JAMES' METHODIST CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Thriving Young Congregation Formed in 1908—First Services in Tent.

PROSPERING NOW.

Next Sunday will mark another milestone in the progress and history of St. James church, which is holding its anniversary on that day.

St. James is one of the most recently organized churches in Peterborough, and its institution dates back only a few years. The first services were held in July, 1908, in a tent at the corner of Romaine and Aylmer streets which was later to become the site for a new church.

The services were continued in the tent until November, and were then discontinued until the basement of the new Sunday school hall, then in course of erection, was available. But the Sunday school was continued without interruption, its sessions being held in the King Edward school The corner stone was laid in 1908. It continued to be used both for the church services and Sunday school purposes until April, 1916, when the present beautiful church edifice was opened and dedicated to the worship of God.

Out of these comparatively small beginnings St. James has grown to a large and flourishing church, with the promise of a splendid future. It has a large Sunday school with an enrolment of over five hundred. The Sunday school has from the very beginning been a very special feature of the work, and a constant source of inspiration. Mr. Arnold E. Prest has been superintendent of the school since its organization and to his splendid leadership much of the success achieved has been due. He has brought to his task vision, consecration, sane methods and sound judgment. He is ably seconded by a faithful staff of officers and teachers, who have the work very much at heart.

Splendid financial assistance has been given to the church by many friends throughout the city, and special assistance has been given to the cause of St. James by Messrs. W. G. Morrow, A. W. Cressman and B. F. Ackerman, who are members of the trustee board.

At the anniversary services on Sunday, Rev. A. J. Johnston, B. A., Toronto, Professor of Pastoral Theology and Church History in Victoria College, will be the special preacher. He is a popular and outstanding speaker. Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw, basso-contralto, Detroit, will sing. The services will be in charge of the pastor, Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A., and there will also be present to assist in the services former pastors, Rev. H. M. Manning, under whose ministry, St. James' church was instituted, and Rev. Benj Greatrix, during whose pastorate the present church edifice was erected.

PAY INCOME TAX AT CUSTOMS HOUSE

New Arrangement Should Prove a Convenience to Local People.

Peterborough people who have to pay a Federal income tax or to make returns regarding the same to the government should remember not only that the tax must be paid before the end of this month, but also that it can be paid at the local customs house to the collector of customs instead of being sent to the Income Tax Office at Belleville as formerly. This new arrangement should prove a great convenience to Peterborough citizens. The forms can be obtained either at the post office or at the customs house and the tax can be paid at the latter.

BRITAIN'S NEW PLAN.

Instead of Penalizing German Exporters Individually, Take Lump Sum.

LONDON, April 3 (Canadian Press).—Chancellor of the Exchequer, Winston Churchill, plans to move resolutions in the House of Commons next Tuesday suspending the reporations recovery act, and enabling a new arrangement for payment of the 26 per cent. import levy on German goods to come into operation. The plan provides that, instead of penalizing German exporters individually, Great Britain's share under the recovery act shall be paid out of a lump sum deposited in Germany.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER.

SHOT BABY AND THEN HIMSELF

Danbury Man Settled Quarrel With Wife By Revolver Shots.

CAREFUL FOR WIFE.

DANBURY, Conn., April 3. — (United Press).—Taking care not to injure his young wife, Millard R. Berry, 21, put a revolver against the head of their 18 months old baby boy and shot him as he lay in his mother's arms. The child died instantly.

Berry then turned the gun on himself and inflicted wounds in his head from which he died three hours later at the Danbury Hospital. Mrs. Berry is in a state of collapse today as the authorities probe the tragedy.

According to the story told by friends, Mrs. Berry took the child and went to the home of a relative, following a quarrel with her husband. Last night he went to the house and demanded the baby. The mother rushed upstairs with the child and locked herself in the bathroom but Berry shot the lock off the door, and when the police arrived the child was dead, Berry was dying and Mrs. Berry hysterical.

GHASTLY FIND IN OLD HOUSE

MANY RUMOURS.

LONDON, April 3. — Scotland Yard yesterday added mystery to a strange death story that is engaging British crime experts. Detectives rummaging in a gloomy old Bloomsbury mansion built over a graveyard, in which were found recently the bodies of Granville Cooke, aged 50, a poet and inventor, and Selwyn Foster, aged 21, a son of a wealthy family, found a number of human bones.

The mansion, which Cooke used ostensibly in connection with engineering experiments, was formerly a school of anatomy, operated by Cooke's father, a noted surgeon. The police say that the bones found today may have been left over from the days of the anatomy school, but the officers wrapped them up carefully for expert examination by Sir Bernard Spilsbury, the Home Office pathologist.

The deaths of Cooke and Foster have baffled the police. While it seems to establish that Cooke died of gas poisoning Foster apparently died several hours earlier. Cooke was known as a brilliant engineer and inventor. He was graduated from Bonn University, and had perfected several inventions which brought in good royalties. He also wrote a number of poems, one of which was accepted by Queen Alexandra. Both he and Foster, however, had criminal records, and the police had been watching Cooke's movements for some time before the mysterious deaths occurred.

Scotland Yard agents also are investigating a report that Cooke promised two girls he would teach them stenography at his Bloomsbury establishment, although the authorities say it is known that he was ignorant of that work.

Police and Home office experts made a minute search of "the mystery house of death" and its dingy backyard, a disused graveyard, without further discoveries. They removed large quantities of books and documents and a collection of skulls and bones.

While up to the present no definite proofs have been forthcoming, the Scotland Yard men are fololwing up various clues, of which one at Oxford is said to be likely to shed new light on the mystery.

Meanwhile former acquaintances and neighbors of the two men have come forward with sensational stories regarding the men's lives and habits and a Government analyst is busy tonight making laboratory tests to settle the manner of Foster's death for the inquest tomorrow.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use. An antiacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form, enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestants. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

HERRIOT CHANGES HIS POLICY TOWARD THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

CLEMENTAL RESIGNS.

PARIS, April 3. — Premier Herriott and his colleagues in the Cabinet after prolonged deliberation, have changed their policy toward the Catholic church in France. They have determined to withdraw their insistence on the suppression of French diplomatic representation at the Vatican.

This decision is tied up with the financial question. Anatole De Monzie, named to succeed Etienne Clementel as finance minister, upon the latter's resignation, made the change in policy a condition of his acceptance, for the reason that the religious controversy was destroying the unity of the country and Catholic support of public finance was essential.

Senator De Monzie's acceptance of the office of finance minister was formally announced this morning in the Senate, following the sudden resignation of M. Clementel last night. M. Clementel penned his resignation after Premier Heriott had made remarks in the Senate tantamount to disapproval of his policy of increasing fiduciary circulation.

The resignation was submitted to a hastily called meeting of the Cabinet and accepted.

It had long been manifest, political observers say, that M. Clementel was inclined to act on his own responsibility, taking steps with acquainting his colleagues in the cabinet of what he was planning, and thereby embarrassing the government.

Hitherto, these incidents have been passed over but the manner in which Clementel announced to the Senate his new financial measures to increase the output of francs beyond the fixed limit, put the government in such a position that the Premier was obliged to rush to the upper house and make a reassuring statement.

Senator De Monzie said to-day he had accepted the office conditionally on the government's agreement to a compromise on the question of the Vatican embassy. The compromise is believed to be along the lines of extending the powers of Alsace-Lorraine's representatives at the Vatican to cover France.

Senator De Monzie announced that he would introduce a bill next Monday providing for the needs of the treasury without a fresh issue of bank bills.

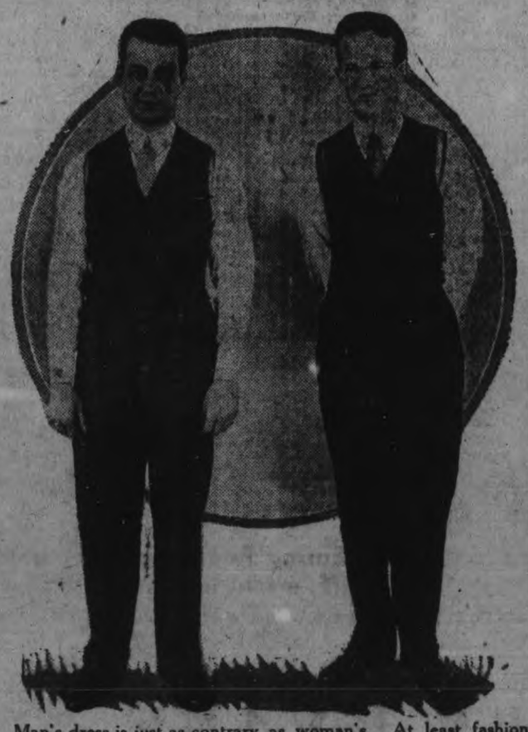
FACE MURDER TRIAL.

Six Year Old Crime to be Reopened—Two Men Held By Police.

MONTREAL, April 3 (Canadian Press)—Charged with the murder, six years ago, of Leon Demers, hermit farmer at Shawbridge, Que., who was killed by a blow on the head in a barn on the premises of the "Boys' Farm" and whose body was buried in a heap of manure, one hundred feet distant, Alec Cahan, aged 23, and Gordon Faulker, aged 21, former inmates of the training school, were brought by two detectives before a notary public at St. Jerome this morning, from whence they were conducted to Bordeaux Jail to await an enquette on April 8. The murder of Demers occurred in January, 1919, and created a great deal of interest, owing to the fact that the motive and perpetrators were veiled in obscurity.

PRINCE OF WALE S CAUSED THIS.



Man's dress is just as contrary as woman's. At least fashion experts said so when they informed us that double-breasted waistcoats with single-breasted suits and single-breasted waistcoats with double-breasted suits would be the smart thing. There will also be plenty of cloth in the trousers. And they blame the Prince of Wales for the style.

The plans had been in the hands of the Provincial authorities for some time and at the last meeting of the Board of Works it was decided that if they were not returned during this week W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., would be asked to look into the matter.

DR. SUN YAT SEN BURIAL IS NEAR

Long Drawn Out Ceremonies Draw to Close—Canadians View Body.

PEKIN, April 2 (Special to The Examiner).—The long drawn-out ceremonies attendant upon the consigning of the remains of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen, president of Southern China to the tomb, are drawing towards their close. For some time past the body has lain in state in a wonderful blue tiled old temple, a short distance from the "Altar of Heaven."

Yesterday, through the courtesy of the Government, the bier was viewed by a large party of Canadians and Americans touring the world on the Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of France.

They have also been invited to attend the final burial which with a wealth of colorful Chinese ceremony will take place in the Western hills later in the week.

During the course of his evidence, Mr. Drury said he put $300 into a farm paper in Peterboro in 1912. He didn't know anything about Peter Smith's investment in farm papers or anything else.

Hearing in Kingston.

The public accounts committee battled for over an hour as to whether Peter Smith, former treasurer, and Charles Matthews, former assistant treasurer, should be examined in Toronto or Kingston. It was agreed that the examination should be by sub-committee of the public accounts committee representative of all groups in the House. It was also agreed that both Smith and Matthews have counsel. Col. Currie moved and M. M. MacBride seconded, that the examination be in Toronto. Mr. Sinclair moved an amendment, that the examination be in Kingston. The Sinclair motion carried by 17 to 7.

MOVING PICTURES

Ho, hum, in the spring, it's the regular thing for the housecleaning job to arrive. Hence, this is the season when father has reason to feel that he'll never survive.

The nice comfy spot that he loafed in a lot, while perusing the paper each night, has suddenly changed, for the room's disarranged, and his reading lamp's shy of a light.

'Tis shortly detected, the meal he expected was really a hope that was rash. Mom fairly is dizzy from work, and too busy too cook anything but some hash.

Right after he's eaten, some rugs must be burned. Mom does the directing and wind-up inspecting, while getting the rest that she's earned.

Soon dad says, "let's go to a cool movie show," but the hunch passes out of his dome when the missus just sighs and then calmy replies, "there are pictures to move here at home."

DRAWING MATCH IS RETAINED ON FAIR PROGRAM

Mr. V. Eastwood Believed Most of Crowd Disapproved of This Competition.

DIRECTORS MEET

Junior Directors Appointed to Board—Judging Contest for Young Farmers.

Whether or not the drawing contest should remain on the programme was the subject of considerable discussion when the Peterborough Industrial Board met last night to receive the reports of committees on the prize lists. The question was raised by Vincent Eastwood who thought that the hundred dollars for that event was the poorest value of all the board's expenditure. He claimed that sixty per cent. of the people in the stands were disgusted and thought it cruelty to force horses to draw heavily laoded stone-boats in the competition. A number of the members said that they would not enter their own horses in this event, but it was a drawing card, so it was left in.

President Denne was not on hand when the meeting started, so Vice-President Reg. Turner took the chair. The various committee brought in their recommendations, most of which called for the same prizes as last year. The light horse committee asked for the inclusion at the head of the prize list of the clause from the rules authorizing the judge to refuse second or third prizes in classes where there was a small entry and the animals were not thought worthy. This will be added to both light and heavy horse classes. Hampshires will be added to the prize list for sheep.

Retain Dog Show.

The representatives of the dog fanciers reported that they had attended the kennel club meeting and had been able to get only two days. Friday and Saturday, September 18 and 19. They also reported that they would be unable to get any more as long as they conflicted with London, where they had run a dog show for over thirty years. They asked for the same contribution as last year from the board, which was granted.

Chairman Turner had a novel idea for the grandstand attractions. While in Toronto he had attended a carnival and witnessed there a burlesque military ride on hobby horses. This he described as the funniest thing he had ever seen and he suggested that the board buy the horses and get some of the young men of the city to take part. The horses could be purchased for $100 and could be sold to some other fair afterwards for an equal amount. It was decided that the amusement committee be authorized to purchase the horses.

Judging Competition.

F. C. McRae, agricultural representative for Peterborough County, was present and reported on the judging competitions. He recommended four prizes in each class for boys and girls, and a trip to the Winter Fair as prize for the boy and girl getting the highest number of points in all the classes. President Denne repeated his donation of last year of the money to send the winners to Toronto. He said that it had given him great pleasure to see the happiness of the winners and the benefit they had received from the trip. Mr. McRae said that the judges last year, who were four agricultural representatives from nearby districts, had laid stress on the giving of oral reasons for the placing rather than on the placing itself as they felt this was necessary to develop good judges. Mr. Denne said that they had succeeded in getting Mr. McRae to come to Peterborough every Saturday and hoped to be able to get him here oftener.

A meeting will be held on April 17, to which the officers of the different fraternal societies are to be invited, to draw up plans for a fraternal day at the Exhibition to which they could invite their sister lodges and have meetings and addresses.

Junior Directors.

At the last meeting a number of young men were appointed junior directors and one of them, Gordon Hancock, of Smith township, was present at the meeting last night. Chairman Turner welcomed him on behalf of the board and Mr. Hancock replied, saying that he hoped to obtain great benefit from the association with the members. The other junior directors appointed were Messrs. Cecil Bolton, David Forsythe, Raymond Foley, Frank Graystock, Clarence Mann, and Earl Roseborough. Messrs. Shields and Milburn were appointed to add their names to different committees.

The Royal Oak Cricket Club will be granted the same privileges they enjoyed last year as the De Laval Cricket Club, provided that twenty-five of them take out membership tickets in the Exhibition.

U-BOATS AT WORK PROVIDE THRILLS

Pictures Taken by Germans For Home Consumption Shown To British.

The British patriotic film, "Zeebrugge" is an accurate and dramatic reconstruction of the very brilliant enterprise which resulted in the crippling of one of the main bases from which Germany conducted her barbarous U-Boat warfare.

It has been produced from material supplied by Commander Bruce, D.S.O., R.N., by H. Bruce Woolfe and A. V. Bramble, and verified by officers who took part in the action.

U-Boats at Work.

In the early part of this picture, a startling sequence shows a number of British ships being sunk by U-boats. These scenes were taken by Germans, and intended for anti-British propaganda. The U-Boat which set out to carry this film to America was captured by the British.

Unhappily Unrecorded.

Thus we have the astonishing and delectable spectacle of anti-British propaganda, made in Germany, being used to re-inforce a British patriotic picture. The German submarines carried cinematographers with them to photograph the sinking of British merchant ships. The film shows the sailors being ordered into the boats, and then their ship being torpedoed and sunk. There is one point where we see a British ship's captain telling the U-Boat crew exactly what he thinks of them. This is an episode which we feel sure will make all picture-goers regret that motion pictures never speak. It would be interesting to know what the captain said!

NINTY-NINTH BIRTHDAY.

HAMILTON, April 3.—(Canadian Press).—Adam Brown, Hamilton's "grand old man," is to-day celebrating his 99th birthday.

"The Longest Way Round——"

"What a storm! flash, bang! There goes our last line!"

The speaker was the engineer at the Dundas Hydro sub-station. He and his assistants had been striving ever since the sleet storm started, to keep the electricity flowing. But the storm King was too strong, as the blown fuse indicated.

"I'll telephone the Niagara Power House," said the chief. He did, and in a comparatively short time the damage was repaired and the electric current flowing again.

But the chief had little idea of how that telephone call got through. Not until sometime afterwards did he learn that owing to the same storm which disabled his power leads, the telephone connection between Hamilton and Niagara Falls was out of commission.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation, the Hamilton Long Distance operator took a chance when the Dundas call for Niagara Falls came in. She called Toronto asking for a connection via Montreal, New York, Buffalo and thence to Niagara Falls, Ont. It worked, and as the power people stated, Miss Florence Caulfield's quick work in the emergency saved them thousands of dollars. The twelve-hundred-mile talk was the shortest way to safety.

HALLIDAY MEMEMORIAL NIGHT

The annual Halliday Memorial night, repeated yearly by the Peterboro Medical Society, in honor of the memory of the late Dr. J. T. I. Halliday, was held last evening in the hall of the Collegiate Institute, which was comfortably filled for the occasion. The special speaker was Rev. Dr. Sclater, pastor of Old St. Andrew's church Toronto, who gave an illustrated lecture on "Memories of the Old Land."

The president of the society, Dr. A. Moir, occupied the chair, and introduced the speaker of the evening. Nurses in uniform acted as ushers.

Rev. Dr. Sclater commenced his address, which was profusely illustrated with a quantity of excellent slides, depicting scenes of natural beauty in the "Old Land" of the speaker, Scotland, with a tribute to the work of physicians generally, as observed by him during a long ministry in the Old Country, and during war service as a chaplain.

Prefacing his talk on his own land of Scotland, was a reference to the acievements of its sister countries of the British Isles. To Ireland belonged the honor of sending St. Columba to bring the Christian religion to Scotland and to Wales he attributed pre-eminence in the educational achievements of its poor. "In some department," he said, "degrees obtained from Welsh Universities are the best in Great Britain." To England, "with its history and its courage, and its bigness, and, above all, the wonderful justice of the Englishman," he paid an eloquent tribute, asserting that the star in every department of achievement was invariably an Englishmen.

"In literature, you find Shakespeare and Milton, in discussion of scientific methods, Bacon, in application of these same methods, Newton and Darwin, and in the region of government, there is Cromwell. It is a distressing admission, but it is a fact."

As for the Scotsman, "he is the most modest, the humblest, the most self-effacing, the least self-assertive, and the poorest man on earth."

The Scotchman, declared the speaker, had been made the butt of the world's humor. To Sidney Smith had erroneously been attributed the saying that it was impossible to make a Scotchman see a joke, whereas the great wit had really said that it was impossible to get a joke out of a Scotchman; Dr. Sclater asserting that this was due to the canny Scots' desire to keep a good thing to himself. In order to accomplish the feat, however, the use of a corkscrew had been recommended as the most effective agent.

Rev. Dr. Sclater spoke eloquently in defence of the Scotch habit of saving. By "saving a sixpence here and fourpence there," by constant attention to small expenditures, the Scotch parents were enabled, in many instances, to secure for their children the coveted education so much prized. A notable example of this was the case of the famous Principal John Cairns, the eldest son of a family of ten children, all living with their parents in a one-roomed house. In such conditions, the father and mother and the family combined to save enough to send the eldest boy to college, and then he contributed in turn to the education of several of his brothers and sisters. "When you tell me that a Scotchman pinches the pennies, I say "right-o," and it would be a good thing if every other nation did the same.

The illustrated portion of the programme opened with a map of Scotland. In description of the scenes which followed, as well as in his introductory remarks, the very attractive manner of address of the speaker was the cause of an evening of real enjoyment to his audience. With a mellow-toned, pleasant voice, its Scotch vowels rolling out robbed of their harsh burr, with a companionable, friendly mode of speech which took his hearers at once into his confidence, and a leaven of mirthful humor, Dr. Sclater's lecture was interesting in the extreme.

To his own birthplace, the far north Islands of Orkney, he attributed "the most guileless, the kindest and the freest of original sin" inhabitants of the British Isles. His father was the first missionary from the Orkney Isles since the Reformation and spent much of his life on the Dark Continent of Africa.

Personal reminiscence and humorous reference colored the descriptions of the ensuing scenes, which included pictures of the great Forth Bridge and the Bridge of Tay, Aberdeen University and the fish market of Aberdeen, "where no Jew has the faintest chance," and the fish train, which has precedence over every train in the British Isles, except the Royal coaches, and of which a petulant old lady, seeing it fly by her without stopping, remarked, "If I were a haddie and no a buddy, I would have more notice taken of me." Balmoral Castle was shown; Elgin Cathedral, "the most notable ruin in Scotland"; the old inn in the northern village which escaped the onrush of Reformation days, and still remains Roman Catholic in the midst of a Protestant country; the famous stone which marks the place where the last of the clanamen fought their losing battle against the dominance of the Saxon; the friend who was one of a family of ten children of a schoolmaster whose yearly salary never exceeded the sum of £170 and a house, but everyone of whose offspring went in turn to the university. Scenes also from Inverness and Glasgow were thrown on the screen.

Dr. Sclater, who has been resident in Canada for only a short time spoke of the musical names bestowed on many of our town and cities, such as Toronto and Gananoque and Cataraquai, and the ugly names of Streetsville and Cooksville. He acclaimed the Scots' choice of names such as Tighnabrugha, a place which a rich contractor had wished to call "Bella's Fancy," after his wife, Bella.

Rothesay was shown, where it is said the workmen of Glasgow go for their annual bath. A note of warning was struck in the address at this point, when Dr. Sclater referred to the danger spot of Glasgow, where the Clydeside members come from, and its revolutionary tendencies, due primarily to congested housing conditions which kept 60,000 families of that city living in one room each. Similar conditions in other cities would lead to the same dangers as were now being experienced in Glasgow.

Dunoon, where Harry Lauder lives, was shown—the Glasgow University—Edinburgh and its castle—Holvrood—Arthur's Seat and the Hall of Justice. Speaking of architecture here, the reverend gentleman paid a tribute to the beauty of Canadian architecture, and the perception of loveliness contained in many of its examples. "There is no better scholastic architecture anywhere than that of Knox College and the Burwash library of Victoria College in Toronto." The address concluded with a sincere reference to "the amazing kindness and generosity of heart manifested by Canadians, in this great land of opportunity and promise." Renewed applause echoed through the hall at the close of Dr. Sclater's discourse.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker and soloists and the Medical Society by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner and seconded by Mr. A. Mowat.

Several loudly-encored vocal solos were given by Miss Florence Scott and Mr. M. H. Park, the former receiving a beautiful bouquet of roses.

Big hats are returning to favor so rapidly that the London General Omnibus Company are trying to rearrange the seating of their 'buses. It is no longer possible for two women wearing the new cart-wheel headgear to sit side by side in comfort on the seats at their present size.

NIAGARA FALLS PREDATED TUT

38,000 YPEARS OLD

CHICAGO, April 3 — Niagara Falls was heavy with age when King Tut's slaves were building his tomb. When the falls came into being, the Neandertha man was becoming ancient history.

Mother Nature created the falls 36925 B.C., at Leadston, N.Y., according to an announcement by the University of Chicago.

"Estimates based on careful study of the falls, the gorge and the Great Lakes indicate that Niagara Falls was born at Leadston, N. Y., from 30,000 to 40,000 years ago," declared Prof. J. Harlen Bretz, university geologist.

"Nature has left us a record, if we read it aright, showing how long ago, in years, the Northern States were covered by glaciers. It is the Niagara Falls. The falls are wearing away the rock over which they tumble. They are undercutting it at the rate of abour four and a half feet a year, so that the falls are moving up stream. They were originally at Leadston and Queenston. They took origin when the ice sheet retreated from the southern part of the Grea t Lakes country."

PREPARE FOR WAR URGES MUSSOLINI

Increase to Limit the War-Like Efficiency of the Nation.

ROME, April 3 (Canadian Press) —Benito Mussolini, Italian Premier, made a stirring speech before the Senate yesterday, when he took up the question of reorganization of the Italian army. The gist of his speech was the age-old adage: "In time of peace, prepare for war."

Mussolini expressed the belief that there were more wars to come.

"You must not dream that eventually war in Europe of tomorrow will keep us exempt from sacrifices. We must prepare now, because war comes usually with such suddenness that it gives no time for preparation. We must, therefore, prepare in time, the present time, and for that purpose increase to the limit of human war-like efficiency of the nation." war-like efficiency of the nation."

SMALL SHIP NAVIES GROWING

One Effect of Failure of Arms Treaty to Restrict Auxiliary Craft.

The British Admiralty, according to reports from London, has asked that the naval estimates for the coming fiscal year be increased £10,000,000 on account of the program for building light cruisers, destroyers and submarines—all types of vessels not limited by the naval treaty.

Sufficient time has now passed since the ratification of the Washington naval treaty to reveal its actual effects upon the naval policies of its five signatory powers. By this time the treaty is having a striking, and certainly an unintended, result. It is turning the five navies away from the highly expensive battleship and diverting them to the building of comparatively cheap cruisers at a rate which may soon justify description as a naval race. In a word, it has brought the high cost of navies down to a point where everybody can afford a building program. The result is that what was announced to be a Limitation of Armaments Conference now appears by virtue of its actual results to have been a revival of armaments conference. Within the framework erected by the treaty, what was hoped for at Washington is being reversed.

As is generally known, the treaty imposed a limit on the construction of fighting ships above 10,000 tons displacement, but no limit was imposed on ships of 10,000 tons or under. In battleships and aircraft carriers the five powers agreed to a tonnage ratio of 5-5-3-1.75-1.75 for the United States, the British Empire, Japan, France and Italy in the order named. But when they failed to agree on a tonnage ratio for light craft they compromised by restricting the size and armament of "auxiliary combatant ships." Under the terms of this compromise no fighting ship other than a battleship or an aircraft carrier may exceed 10,000 tons displacement or carry guns heavier than 8-inch calibre. On the number of these "auxiliary" ships which any one power may build the treaty imposes no limit. The result has frequently been predicted by naval experts, but only recently has it found its way into navy estimates and into the offices of naval architetects and naval constructors. The battle cruiser is dead. The battleship is tending to go into reserve. The so-called "auxiliary" is tending to become the principal type of fighting ship, with no tonnage ratio limiting its construction.

Now the "Treaty Cruiser."

At the time the treaty was drawn up most of the light cruisers building were under 8,000 tons. Building and authorized, Japan had four which had been planned to displace 7,000 tons each, but as soon as the treaty was signed no time was lost in redesigning them up to the 10,000-ton limit. The other signatories followed suit, for it is obviously unsound policy to build fighting ships inferior in strength to those of foreign contemporaries. The result is that the treaty, simultaneously with reducing the size and cost of battleships and aircraft carriers and imposing a limit on the construction of each, has actually increased the size and cost of light cruisers without in any way limiting the number of them which the powers may build.

Nobody now is satisfied with anything less than 10,000 tons and a battery of 8-inch tons and a battery of 8-inch guns. The treaty has brought a new type of fighting ship into existence. The "treaty cruiser" has arrived. At present Great Britain has laid down five of them and two more are soon to be laid down for Australia. France has laid down two and four more are to be laid down before 1926. Italy has five building and authorized and Japan has four. Congress has authorized eight for the United States Navy and there is talk in London that the 1925-26 navy estimates may authorize eight more for the British Navy. Thus there are at present thirty of the new "treaty cruisers" building and authorized for the five signatories of the Washington treaty.

What this new type of fighting vessel is to be like remains to be seen. It is the belief in London that American, French and Italian naval architects are going in for gunpowder and speed, and that only the conning towers are to be armored. If this is true the "treaty cruiser" will be a 35-knot ship with a battery of eight or more 8-inch guns, developing a volume of fire of about thirty rounds a minute, with each projectile weighing somewhere in the neighborhood of 250 pounds. This is a tremendous volume of fire and only the fact that 35 knots is hardly conducive to accurate shooting would make it possible for an unarmored enemy to face it. The result would be that a few hits would decide the issue, and naval action would be of the sort which naval officers describe as "short and sweet." Engagements between fast unarmored ships mounting 8-inch guns would be joined and decided within a matter of minutes. With restricted battle fleets receding into the background for use only as a last resort, the next Jutland may be fought by opposing squadrons of 10,000-ton cruisers and may be ended before the battle fleets can reach the spot. It is a prospect which recalls a description Winston Churchill once applied to fighting ships in action as "egg-shells striking at each other with hammers."

Treaties, of course, cannot in themselves divert the changing currents of history. They can only acknowledge a change of direction which has already set in. What the Washington treaty now seems to have done is to set the imprimatur of the five powers on the destroyer craze which swept the allied world during the war. The advent of the torpedo before the war resulted in the counter-development of light craft with high speed and quick manoeuvring power, and by the time the war ended the destroyer had become the darling of the navies. It was not an ideal anti-submarine weapon, for human wits enter very largely into the process of attacking submarines, and a vessel whose silhouette is as obviously warlike as that of a destroyer is apt to warn off a submarine commander in circumstances in which it is desirable to lure him nearer.

But the destroyer has embedded itself deeply enough in the navies to divert the main current of naval history, and what the Washington Treaty now seems to have done is to turn the navies toward the building of 10,000-ton cruisers which will combine the heavy armament of the old-fashioned cruiser with the high speed and the quick manoeuvring power of the destroyer. The battler ship, by mutual consent, goes under an agreed tonnage ratio. The "treaty cruiser," which may be built in sufficiently large numbers to bear the brunt of the fighting at sea, becomes a large scale destroyer.

Every cruiser is necessarily a compromise and none requires the harmonizing of a wider range of demands upon it than the new 10,000-ton type. Whether the British Admiralty intends to follow the reported lead of American, French and Italian naval architects in eliminating armor and going out for gun-power and speed has not yet been announced. The admiralty has the reputation of holding to the middle of the road and avoiding extremes, and no doubt it will live up to its reputation in the building of its "treaty cruisers." It is safe to assume that the admiralty's architects, in common with their American, Japanese, French and Italian confreres, will reach their own terms of compromise and will get as much efficiency out of 10,000 tons as they can.

New British Battleship.

Under the terms of the treaty the British Empire retains twenty-two capital ships with a total displacement of 580,450 tons and for replacement purposes the admiralty in December, 1922, laid down two battleships, the Nelson and the Rodney, the former in the Armstrong-Whitworth yard on the Tyne, the latter in a Cammell-Laird yard on the ment of battleship at 35,000 tons and their maximum armament at 16-inch guns, and although no announcement has been made respecting the Nelson and the Rodney it is generally understood that they are being built to displace 35,000 tons and to carry a main armament of nine 16-inch guns in triple turrets.

This type of ship is obviously enormously expensive to build and the tonnage ratio which the treaty has imposed on battleships has been frequently interpreted as an admission on the part of the five powers that $50,000,000 is a lot of eggs to put into one basket.

MOTOR EXPERTS NOW WORKING ON PLAN TO REDUCE AUTOMOBILE WHEEL WOBBLE

No Vibration Apparent When Driving Is Held at Moderate Speed—Solution May Lie in Adjustment of Car to Proper Tire Use.

One of the important subjects which aroused a live discussion at the recent meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers in Detroit was the subject of wheel wobble or shimmy, which has attracted considerable attention since the introduction of balloon tires. No positive solution of the problem seems to have been reached, and many divergent reasons for the cause was presented. There was a sharp difference of opinion between the passenger car engineers and those of the tire industry, many of the former, according to Automotive Industries, being inclined to saddle balloon tires for much of the blame, while the tire engineers pointed out that shimmy or wheel vibration was a question for technical discussion long before the advent of low-pressure tires.

R. B. Day of the Research Division of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, after explaining various tests, stated that axle bounce is a resonance effect between the tires with their unsprung weights and the body springs with their loads. Each front wheel is a hammerhead that strikes down against the tire and then upward against the springs. The impact against the springs moves the car body. When the impulses produced by bounding of the axle attain to a period that synchronizes with the natural period of the body and its springs a resonance condition is reached in which the action will be maintained as long as the car speed is maintained.

"The safe, sane and unfailing remedy for high-speed shimmying is to drive within the legal speed limit," said Professor H. A. Heubotter of the Engineering Experiment Station of Purdue University recently, who is making an extensive investigation into the causes for shimmying and its remedies.

"With the advent of the low-pressure tire and the front-wheel brake," says the university professor, "the motor car has developed some new steps that were never planned for it. The problem of front-wheel vibration is of recent origin. It is confronting the automobile industry at a time when riding comfort and safety at high speed were supposedly assured. Tire manufacturers have responded to the popular demand for comfort by producing a tire suitable for low inflation pressures. This tire could absorb a bump the size of a paving brick without a quiver.

"Every effort was made to provide comfort and safety independent of road conditions. But these refinements in themselves served automatically to enforce the speed laws. When the smooth road invited a burst of speed something seemed to seize the front wheels and to demonstrate how rapidly it could turn them from left to right and then back again.

"When we study the phenomenon of high-speed shimmying we begin to wonder why cars have never shimmied before. The causes have always been present, in kind, if not in degree. The mechanical improvements in the latest automobiles have, however, not only made the shimmying forces more potent but have removed much of the opposition offered them by the earlier cars.

"The origin of the shimmy seems to lie in the front axle. Supported between the tires below and the springs above, the axle is set in motion by every inequality of the road surface. If one wheel strikes a small bump the axle begins to see-saw up and down. This vibration induces a peculiar motion of the wheels which changes direction with every reversal of the axle motion.

"The action is necessarily quite apid. In a well-developed shimmy he wheels reverse about fifteen times per second. There seems to be a rate, however, beyond which the wheels do not respond to the axle vibrations, and when this rate is exceeded the car does not shimmy. The frequency with which the axle vibrates depends upon three factors —the weight of the axle, the air pressure in the tires and the stiffness of the springs. A heavy axle, low air pressure in the tires and the stiffness of the springs. A heavy axle, low air pressure and soft springs all lower the frequency of vibration. It is evident, then, that the means intended to make the car safe and comfortable may defeat their own purposes by bringing the vibration rate within the range that will promote shimmying.

"The fact that not all cars are subject to this trouble shows that shimmying is avoidable. Although some cars shimmy with balloon tires and plain axles, and others shimmy with balloon tires and front wheel brakes, many cars similarly equipped operate normally throughout their entire speed range. There must be some trick of design that will banish the shimmy bogie. The secret has not been discovered, but it lies chiefly in the distribution and the suspension of the units mounted on the frame, together with the design of the frame itself. The effect of position and of height of both the power plant and the body is especially open to investigation as a possible cause for shimmying.

"Regardless of the underlying reasons for a car's shimmying, we know that certain modifications assist materially in stabilizing the front wheels. Some cars yield more readily than others to such corrective treatment. Shimmying is aggravated, although not caused, by unbalanced front wheels, by flexible and loose steering linkage, by incorrect drag-link position and by excessive gather or "toe-in" of the front wheels. Such faults should be corrected in so far as is possible before attacking the major defect."

Professor Heubotter indicates three methods by which shimmying may be corrected. They are:

1. Freedom of spring action is reduced by friction applied either with a suitable shock absorber or in the spring itself. In the latter case the spring leaves are lubricated very sparingly.

2. Resistance to the rapid motion of the wheels is introduced into the steering system. The crudest scheme of this kind is to adjust the tie-rod and the drag-link pivots very tightly. Any friction thus obtained leads to rapid wear in the steering gear and fatigue in the driver. An effective remedy of this type, which checks the shimmying but does not affect the steering is a hydraulic dashpot, which acts much in the same manner as a door check, between the axle bed and one of the steering knuckles.

3. The vibration rate of the axle is increased to the point at which the wheels cannot respond to the shimmying forces. Stiffer front springs and higher air pressures are obvious methods of this kind.

In discussing the efforts of tire-makers toward baloon tire improvement for maximum riding comfort, B. L. Lemon of the research division of the United States Tire Company said at the Detroit meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers that wear a uniformly compounded moving surface is dependent on profile, pressure and velocity, and he felt it had been demonstrated satisfactorily that tread pressure and velocity and wear therefrom can be slowed down by the natural-wear profile tire.

"Our own opinion," said Mr. Lemon, "is that the car owner still needs a non-skid design in larger doses than 50 per cent. of the tread-contact area. We designed and tested our quota of treads in the search for one to give maximum traction and flexibility in all directions, stability, ease of steering and uniform wear over a reasonable range of inflation pressure.

"The number of plies of fabric in balloon tires depends on the size, strength and spacing of the cords and the load to be carried. Tire manufacturing practice discloses differences mainly in the size and spacing of the cords, but shows practically no difference in the number of plies, due to economic reasons. Regardless of the number of plies and the size and spacing of the cords, sufficient fabric must be used in all tires to maintain a safe bursting-strength factor. On the other hand, because of constant flexing and the heat generated therefrom, and to secure a riding quality demanded of balloon tires, the number of plies and amount of cotton must be kept at the lowest point consistent with the strength requirement. Ninety per cent. of the car manufacturers use four-ply balloon tires.

"In regard to ease of riding, six plies of fabric will not afford the flexibility of a four-ply tire of the same sectional size, because of the stiffer carcass and because higher inflations are advocated and logical. But riding comfort is not determined solely by tires. In the higher-priced cars more can be given to spring suspension and to the co-ordination of springs with tire inflations therefore, in such cars, it may be possible to adopt a stiffer tire, run at higher pressure, and still obtain satisfactory riding."

JUDGEMENT GIVEN IN DENNISTOUN CASE

Justice McCardie Declared Case Had Failed and Set Aside Verdict.

LONDON, April 3. — (Canadian Press).—Justice Sir Henry McCardie delivered his reserved judgment in the Dennistoun case this morning. He held that the alleged agreement for Mrs. Dorothy Murriel Dennistoun's support by her former husband, after their divorce, was void and could not be enforced in law. Therefore he ruled that Mr. Dennistoun's claim for damages for breach of contract had failed. This judgment sets aside the verdict of the jury last month awarding Mrs. Dennistoun £5,000.

The production "School for Wives" is out of the beaten track and is different in theme and treatment from anything we have seen before.

We are informed that the Royal is running this picture before Toronto. Any close follower of the better movies will notice the little differences in direction, etc., between the 1924 product and the 1925. The mo...s are improving.

"STEPPING OUT"

Just as we love to hear old melodies, so do we like to see old faces again. The Originals, that brilliant groupe of soldier funmakers, who have with them many of the Original Dumbells, will be back in town next Friday, April 10th at the Grand Opera House for Friday matinee and two nights with their latest and biggest fun show "Stepping Out," headed by those ever popular favorites, Gene Pearson "The Male Galli Gurci", and Bob Anderson, Canada's cleverest character comedian, a native of Lancashire, with Alan Murray; Leonard Young (The Duchess), Bertram Langley, Jerry Brayford, etc. The Company, as before, is under the management of Percy Campbell, and directed by Leonard Young.

"Stepping Out" opens up with a re-union of the Officers of the 14th Battery, from the time Bob Anderson enters as John Willie Shufflebottom, the piece is one continuous roar. Gene Pearson plays the role of Madame Helena, an Opera Singer, and is the most convincing Operatic star we have seen for many a long day, "Her" singing of "Love Will Come Back" is a treat; and his gowns are a delight to the eye. There are two acts and four scenes in "Stepping Out", all of them uniformly clever and suitably staged and lighted.

Till "The Originals" come again with fresh tunes and laughter the performance of "Stepping Out" will be remembered by all who witness it as a scream from start to finish. To let the audience get a fresh hold on its shaking sides a few serious numbers such as the "Soldier's Monument" and two or three musical classics are brought into the program for diversion, but for the most part the dozen performers, comedians all are merciless.

JACKIE COOGAN PROVES GENIUS IN LATEST FILM, "THE RAG MAN."

With each succeeding revelation of the genius of Jackie Coogan the conviction is strengthened that there is but one Jackie Coogan in the world, and that there never has been another. Not only in the personal appeal of the child, as a child is Jackie a spiritual benefaction to the race: he is in his acting art nothing less than what David Warfield proclaimed him—a master!

This was all demonstrated yesterday to an adoring audience at the Regent Theatre, when Jackie in his latest Metro-Goldwyn picture, "The Rag Man," filled the house. One might have thought that in one picture or another, the full length portrait of Jackie, the genius, has been revealed; but yesterday's performance revealed the folly of guessing at the infinitude of Jackie's gifts, for new ones were disclosed in abundance.

Has Human Humor.

Mainly, however, "The Rag Man" is an appeal to the humor that is to be extracted from life. Jackie is not exactly a comedian—he is more than that, for comedians are too frequently merely mimics and mummers, exhibiting tricks and mannerisms without any spiritual or mental humor. But Jackie's comedy is as appealing as a Mark Twain anecdote, because it is invested with character and a human quality that is not taught in any school of acting.

The story relates the adventures of little Tim Kelly after he has lost his home in a New York orphan asylum that is seen to burn to the ground. Tim Kelly is registered as among those that perished in the flames and Tim is well satisfied to be considered a "dead one," for he finds himself a home and job with old Max Ginsberg, who begins by befriending the boy and ends by be-gives every opportunity for comedy touches which are given weight and depth by episodes appealing to the heart of the most stolid. When little Tim made his plea to the crook who defrauded Ginsberg, and showed the guilty man the way to peace of mind and serenity of soul, there was hardly a dry eye in the house.

AT THE CAPITOL

"DICK TURPIN."

The popular Tom Mix has temporarily abandoned his Western roles to hark back to the stirring days of English stage coaches and dashing road agents. As a knight of the road, the gallant Tom still sports a wide-brimmed hat somewhat similar to the sombrero he affects in his ordinary roles, but there the resemblance ends. He is entirely separated from the atmosphere and setting that have made him a favorite with thousands of movie fans. He even stabled his wonder horse, Tony, and bought a superb black mare to enact the role of Turpin's famous mount, Black Bess.

However, there is plenty of the Tom Mix dash and spirit in the thrilling scenes that show the exploits of the famous highwayman. Suspense and hairbreadth escapes surround the steps of the hero in this picture. All the chivalry and romance of the days when knights of the road took toll of the rich and gave to the poor, when the gallows at Tyburn waited for the gallant Turpin, the "Robin Hood of the Road," are in the latest Mix picture, and there is plenty of excitement too in the staging of a London ring fight in the famous old Blue Boar Inn, a savage battle between Turpin and Jack Herrick, Dempsey's sparring partner. The ride from London to York, to chase by day and night of the bold Turpin by his pursuers, is probably the most exciting bit of a thrilling picture. On the gallant Black Bess, Turpin makes his way to the Lady Alice who waits for him at York. Saved from the hangman's noose by the last minute intervention of his friend, impersonating the hangman himself, with the mob beneath stoning the King's men who follow him, Turpin rides madly over hill and dale, to reach York in time to save his lady fair from a persistent wooer, but to see his faithful horse fall, stricken by the toll-keeper's bullet. It is one of the rides in which Tom Mix excels.

The episodes showing the "knight of the road" taking toll of laden coaches, gallantly escorting shrinking women to places of refuge and stripping valuables from their swains, with bandits clad in silks and laces and velvets, bring back the story tale days of merrie England.—Jeannette.

ENGLISH AND SCOTS CLASH

International Soccer Championship Decided in Glasgow Saturday—Teams Selected.

GLASGOW, April 3.—(Canadian Press).—The International soccer championship of the United Kingdom is scheduled for decision here to-morrow, when England are the guests of Scotland at Hampden Park. This will be the 49th annual encounter between these two countries, and since the title is at stake, some excellent and strenuous football is in prospect. Up to the moment the two countries stand even in the international table, with Scotland having a slight margin on goals, and since both elevens have been materially changed from the former contests, the fans here are uncertain just how their respective favorites will fare.

No fewer than five changes have taken place in the English eleven that defeated Wales at Swansea on February 28. A. G. Bower, of the Corinthians disappears from his position at right back, and his place is taken by Wadsworth of Huddersfield Town. The intermediate line has been re-cast with Magee of West Bromwich ousting Hill (Burnley) on the right wing, and Townrow of the Orient taking the place of Spencer, Newcastle United's speedy half-back, at centre. On the forward line, Cook of Brighton and Hove and Dorrell of Aston Villa have been dropped, with Seed, Tottenham Hotspur's goal-getting trickster, and the redoubtable Tunstall of Sheffield United occupying their positions.

The Scottish Association have been less drastic in their substitutions, but it is noted that Nelson of Cardiff City has been given his discharge, and Hutton of Aberdeen adopted in the right-back position. The left-half on Saturday will not be Bennie of the Airdrieonians, but McMullen of Partick Thistle, while playing inside right to Gallagher is Russell of Airdrie, who takes the place of Dunn of the Hibernians. This change in the team is made over that which defeated Ireland at Belfast five weeks ago.

The teams will line up on Saturday as follows:

Scotland—
Goal—Harper (Hibernians).
Backs—Hutton (Aberdeen) and McStay (Celtic).
Halves — Meiklejohn (Rangers), Morris (Raith Rovers) and McMullen (Partick).
Forwards — Jackson (Aberdeen), Russell (Airdrie), Gallagher (Airdrie), Cairns (Rangers) and Morton (Rangers).

England—
Goal—Pym (Bolton Wanderers).
Backs—Ashurst (Notts County) and Wadsworth (Huddersfield Town).
Halves—Magee (West Bromwich), Townrow (Clapton Orient) and Graham (Millwall).
Forwards—Kelley (Burnley), Seed (Tottenham Hotspurs), Roberts (Manchester City), Walker (Aston Villa) and Tunstall (Sheffield United).

OFFER FOR "CONGRESS."

Rumor of Interests After the Stanley Cup Winners.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 3. — That eastern promoters have their eye on the Victoria Cougars, world hockey champions, was rumored in the city on Thursday.

It is well known that efforts are being made to organize a new league in the east to oppose the national hockey league. Promoters behind the "loop" have to secure players and as there is a shortage of good material they are said to be scouring the continent for likely looking players.

It was stated a few days ago that the promoters endeavored to secure the Hamilton club, and had offered $110,000. A still higher figure is said to have been offered for the Cougars who are looked on by experts as the best balanced hockey machine in the history of the game.

City League Officials Need Help to Develop Future Central Leaguers.

COME OUT AND HELP.

A meeting of the City Baseball League was held last night in the Chamber of Commerce. The situation was thoroughly discussed and those present were of the opinion that a good city league could be run this year if a few men would get out and take hold of teams. There are plenty of players in town to make a good four team group in each series but the lack of men to handle the youngsters. President Jack Sullivan was appointed to attend the O.B.A.A. meeting in Toronto on Saturday and another meeting will be held during the week after Easter to elect new officers and organize for the coming season. Anyone who is considering taking a hand in the game should be there. The lack is not ball players; it is for men to look after them and help the boys along.

This "straight" line principle for the hips which we have been discussing should really start with the beginning—and that means with the start of the clubhead in the backward swing.

First you relax your wrists. If there is tightness in the wrists at the start this tightness will extend itself to the arms and shoulders later on. With the club felt in the sensitive finger muscles, make your staring point a movement outward of the right hip, letting the clubhead drag just a trifle away from the ball. Pick it up, then, and take it on up with either the left hand pushing or the right hand pulling—makes little difference which so long as you continue to feel the clubhead in your finger muscles. Keep left arm straight clear up. Pause the club slightly at the top. Then come down with it—stepping forward onto the left leg just as you start. Keep the head down!

BILLY EVANS SAYS

FT. MYERS, Fla., April 3— After having discussed pennant chances with every major league manager, I am more firmly convinced than ever that pitching is the chief concern of every club.

Pitching Always Problem

Every manager in talking over the chances of his club to show an improvement, if not win a pennant, stressed the part that pitching played in every game.

In nearly every case there was some big IF relative to the showing of this or that club and the IF always centered around the pitching strength.

Last season good pitching made the Brooklyn club a pennant contender. The sensational work of Dazzy Vance, the super-pitching of Burleigh Grimes in the early stages of the race and nine straight wins by Bill Doak, passed up by Branch Rickey as through, put Brooklyn in the running.

At that time Vance had just come into the fold while Grimes was still a holdout and Doak had announced his retirement from the game.

Petty Gets Chance

Bobbie was frank to admit that even if these two veteran pitchers did agree to terms, they would be off to a bad start, due to lack of proper spring training.

Since that time, realizing his pitching weakness, Robinson made a deal with Indianapolis for Pitcher Jess Petty. In the spring exhibition games showing against several major league clubs.

Recenty I saw Petty work against the New York Giants and hold them runless for three innings. I sat with the Veteran Joe Cantillon, now an aide to the Comiskey forces at Chicago.

Eddie Collins needs a southpaw and Cantillon wanted to get a line on Petty. He expressed the opinion that Petty's fast ball wasn't good enough to get by in the majors. That remains to be seen.

It is just possible that Petty's advanced form is due to the fact that he pitched ball all winter in the Florida League. Petty has what players call a rubber arm; it never gets sore, can stand all kinds of work. 6

MICHIGAN TURNS TO TRACK AND BASEBALL

Michigan, after a mediocre basketball season, has turned to track and baseball activities where prospects in both sports appear good. The thin-clad aggregation stacks up as one of the best in years while the diamond squad needs but a sucessor to Jack Blott behind the plate and a first-class pitcher to look formidable.

Montreal—Market lower. Extras 30 1-2, firsts 30 f.o.b. country.

Winnipeg—Market weak. Dealers paying, delivered, extras 28, firsts 26, seconds 22. Retailing, extras 40, firsts 36 to 37. Lower prices anticipated. A car is reported rolling Quebec, costing extras 34, firsts 32, delivered Quebec.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand $4.77 3-4.
Sterling cables $4.78 1-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 2.—Grain values went to wreck wholesale today in excited selling started by general rains that ended a drought which was threatening millions of acres of winter wheat. Reports of financial troubles in Italy, added to the nervousness of traders. At the maximum, setbacks in prices as compared with yesterday's finish were:

Wheat 7 1-2 cents a bushel; rye 8 1-2 cents; corn, six cents; and oats three cents.

Today's closing was wild in all the trading pits, wheat being 4 3-4 to 6 3-4 cents net lower, May 1.42 3-4 to $1.43, and July 1.32 1-4 to 1.33; corn 5 1-4 to 6 cents down; oats off 2 1-4 to 2 7-8 cents, and provisions varying from 22 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, April 2.—A moderate demand from foreign buyers for wheat in the Montreal market today resulted in sales of 100,000 bushels and quite a few loads of oats to both the United Kingdom and the Continent. The local market for cash oats was weaker at a decline of two cents per bushel in sympathy with the weakness at Winnipeg.

The feature of the local flour trade was the weaker feeling that developed for Spring wheat grades and prices were reduced another 30 cents per barrel, which makes a net decline for the month of April so far of 60 cents per barrel, and prices are now at the lowest level of the year 1925 to date. The reduction is attributed to the further depression in the Winnipeg wheat market. The demand was limited. In sympathy with the foregoing Winter wheat flour was also easier and prices declined 10 cents per barrel. The demand was quiet in this direction.

There was no new developments in the local egg situation, the tone being about steady. The demand for supplies for immediate consumption was steady, and a fairly active business was done in a wholesale jobbing way. The receipts were 2,803 cases, as against 1,765 for the same day last week, and 3,207 for the corresponding day a year ago.

On the large reduction in the supplies of butter available on spot and the improved demand from outside sources, a stronger feeling developed and prices scored an advance of 1 to 1 1-2 cents per pound. A fair trade was transacted. The receipts of butter were 515 packages, as against 168 for the same day last week, and 593 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of cheese today were 426 boxes, as compared with 183 for the same day last week, and 291 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no important change in the condition of the market, prices being maintained under a steady demand for all supplies coming forward, but as the offerings were still somewhat limited only a small business was done with fodder made Western No. 1 white and colored quoted at 22 1-2 to 23 cents per pound; No. 2 grades at 21 1-2 to 22 cents per pound, and Quebec 20-pound cheese at 24 cents per pound.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

With reference to the stocks of creamery butter in Montreal on the first of the month in these columns on Wednesday, they should have been 32,156 packages, showing a decrease of 38,477 packages, as compared with March first, and an increase of 19,375 packages with a year ago.

FISH AND GAME MEN END YEAR

Millbrook Association Has Been in Existence Twelve Months.

GOOD WORK DONE.

MILLBROOK, April 3.—The annual meeting of the Millbrook Fish and Game Protective Association was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, the past president, J. N. McGill, occupying the chair.

The Association has been in existence only one year, and the good attendance at the annual meeting gave evidence of the success and interest which have characterized its accomplishments during the twelve months.

Some unavoidable delay had occurred in awarding the prizes for 1924, the following being the winners, and the award given:

Largest brook trout — J. Steele; fishing basket, value $8.

After discussion it was decided to offer prizes for the same varieties of fish this season, and also to encourage juveniles to take an interest in the aims of the Association by offering prizes for the four largest fish caught, in a similar classification, the boys and girls eligible to be under twelve years of age. A later meeting of the executive will decide upon what the prizes for this season will be.

The secretary-treasurer's report showed sufficient funds on hand to meet current obligations. The membership fee will again be fifty cents for adults and twenty-five cents for those under twelve.

Thorne & Yake were appointed official weighers and referees. Fish must be caught in Rice Lake, Otonabee River to Peterboro, Pigeon Creek and any trout stream within a radius of twenty miles. Members only are eligible for the competition.

As the Association had one thousand pamphlets, setting forth the attractions of Millbrook as an enjoyable place in which to spend a summer holiday, with good sporting facilities in close proximity, printed last season, there will be no need for this expense to be duplicated this year. New membership tickets will be ready in the immediate future, and may be secured from any of the officers of the Association. Seventy-two members were enrolled in 1924, and it is hoped this may be exceeded for the current year.

The officers for 1925 (re-elected) are:

Honorary Presidents—Reeve W. T. Wood, A. J. Fallis, M.P.P., A. A. Smith, Warden J. L. McCamus.

President—J. N. McGill.

1st Vice-President — R. H. Edmunds.

2nd Vice-President—W. E. Ball.

Secretary-Treasurer—J. A. Vance.

Executive Committee—H. J. Grassett, L. C. Russell, J. W. Hutchison.

FOR WRESTLING TITLE.

Munn Accepts Challenge of Strangler Lewis.

CHICAGO, April 3. — Billy Sandow, manager of E. Fitzsimmons posted a $30,000 forfeit in a Chicago bank. Munn has not yet been signed, but Fitzsimmons said that he expected to close contract by Monday with Gabe Kaufman, Munn's manager.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

SHREVEPORT, April 3. — The large interrogation in this camp is, "What will Eddie Collins do with the White Sox?" It is regrettable that Eddie has so much respect for the law. Otherwise he could pour poison in their split pea soup and end everybody's misery.

Eddie is the new manager of the team. Eddie started in the big leagues under an assumed name. A lot of the bolognas playing for Eddie now are travelling under assumed reputations. This proves you can't snap your fingers in Destiny's face and not get lumbago.

Eddie can't do any worse this year than Johnny Evers did last season, when the White Sox limped home an impressive eighth. An eighth-place ball club is like antiquated cheese. It can smell only so strong.

EDDIE HAS ALWAYS WANTED TO MANAGE A BALL CLUB. WE DON'T KNOW WHETHER HE FINALLY GOT HIS WISH OR NOT. MAYBE THE AMERICAN LEAGUE HANDED HIM THE WHITE SOX TO CURE HIM.

The experts are wondering whether managing the team will affect Eddie's play at second base. If it doesn't it is sure to affect his mind. It is said that Mr. Evers is still confined to a cell cutting out paper donkeys as a result of his experiences on the South Side last summer.

Ray Schalk is still with the team, starting his fourteenth season. Ray has skidded a lot, but he can still make most of the catchers in the league look like a paper geranium in a California rose garden.

Another octogenarian on the squad is Harry Hooper, who was playing the outfield when Pop Anson was a bat boy. Harry doesn't cover as much ground as a gadfly's shadow. He doesn't need to. Harry knows the enemy batters better than Ziegfeld knows feminine anatomy.

Six soup inhalers are trying out for the shortstop position this year. It will take at least six to make a good double play partner for Collins.

THE HARDEST JOB ON THE WHITE SOX SQUAD THIS YEAR WILL BE ANNOUNCING THE PLAYERS.

Grabowski, Cortazzo, Wojack, Rentfrow, Blankenship, Leverette, Ovengros, Stemgrafe, Mostil and Bischoff are names that will give any vocal equipage a strenuous workout.

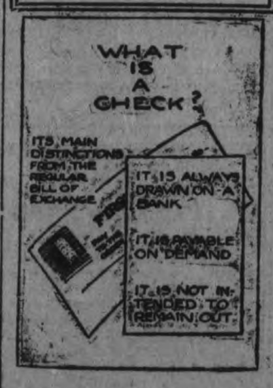
Money AT WORK



Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Most people use checks at some time or another, but can you satisfactorily answer the question, "What is a check?" The answer is given below.

A check is a form of a bill of exchange and is governed as far as possible by the same rules which govern ordinary bills of exchange. However, the check has four distinctions from the regular bill of exchange.

A check is always drawn on a bank or banker: a straight bill of exchange may be drawn on private parties or firms.

The check is drawn by one who thereby asserts that he is a depositor and has funds sufficient to cover the check in that bank.

A check is not intended to remain out unpresented for payment except for a brief period. Many lawsuits have hinged on the definition of "brief period."

BILLY EVANS SAYS

A COINCIDENCE

CLEARWATER, April 3. — Had quite a chat with Jack Bentley, famous pitcher of the New York Giants, the other day. Bentley is a great ball player and just as fine a fellow.

I was one of a party of three, Joe Cantillon, famed as a player, umpire, manager and club owner, being the other, in addition to Bentley.

It was a rather strange coincidence that we all happened to meet in the little grandstand at Plant City, Fla., as the New York Giants took on the Indianapolis club.

The meeting was made even more interesting because it was under Cantillon that Bentley made his initial steps toward the big leagues.

"There is no better manager in baseball to play under than McGraw," said Bentley, "but Cantillon was just as good." He said it loud enough for Joe to hear it and what's more he meant it.

The three of us began to reminisce. I gave Joe a laugh by recalling a stunt he once pulled at the expense of Outfielder Ollie Pickering.

SNAPPY RETORT.

Ollie was out of the game with a bad leg. Some one had recommended a southpaw pitcher to Cantillon in a nearby town. Joe wanted somebody to look him over.

I was sitting in the Washington dugout ready to start the game when Cantillon summoned Pickering from a box seat to the bench. With the aid of a cane he hobbled down to where Cantillon was sitting.

"I want you to go over and look at that southpaw pitcher in such and such a city," said Cantillon. Pickering nodded his head in assent and started back to his seat in the box.

"Just a minute," said Cantillon, stopping him abruptly. "I suggest you take your bat along, stay there a week and if you make so much as even a foul off that southpaw phenom, leave him there."

At that time Joe had lost about eight straight ball games but his sense of humor hadn't deserted him, although I doubt if Pickering appreciated the sally.

Cantillon is now a member of the executive staff of the Chicago White Sox. Joe is a practical baseball man and should be a great help in the administering of the affairs of the club.

RECALLS YARN.

The fact that Cantillon is now working for Comiskey recalls a story that is worth repeating.

Back 25 years ago, when the American League was fighting for its life, Joe tried to slip two men through the Chicago pass gate. Business being none too good, the custodian of the complimentary turnstile objected.

Cantillon having no intention of putting up real money, had the pass man send word to Comskey that the umpire with two friends was at the pass gate seeking admission.

After a short wait the messenger returned, said a few things to the man at the pass gate and Cantillon with his two deadheads were admitted. What did "Commie" say, asked Cantillon, who was curious.

"Let 'em both in. Cantillon is the first umpire I ever heard of having even one friend, to say nothing of two."

ATHLETICS ENIGMA OF AMERICAN LEAGUE

Club Has Great Possibilities, But Needs a Better Fighting Spirit.

BY BILLY EVANS

FT. MYERS, Fla., April 3.—The Athletics are the enigma team of the American League.

Last season when I discussed with Connie Mack the chances of his team he was hopeful of finishing second. His club disappointed.

This year his team is a much improved combination. It is stronger everywhere, yet Mack, always reticent, is not inclined to make any boasts or do any predicting.

"The showing of the Athletics is entirely up to the club," said Mack.

"It is a good team, first division caliber. It lacks only one thing, confidence in the ability that it actually possesses.

Needs Will to Win.

"The will to win, a fighting spirit that will overcome handicaps that are certain to arise, is the one thing my club must get befort it is able to cash in on its possibilities."

Mack so unburdened himself after his club had dropped two loosely played exhibition games, one of which was tossed away. The New York Giants were scheduled to be played that afternoon.

Leaving me, he walked into the clubhouse and had a long conference with his regulars. What Mack said, no one but the players will ever know, but I am sure it was straight from the shoulder stuff.

Seemingly it did much good for in the first two innings of the game with the Giants, the Athletics piled up a commanding lead of seven runs, winning easily. Simmons hit a home run with two on, Hauser turned the trick with the bases filled.

Those two innings made it apparent to me what Mack meant when he referred to the possibilities of his club. The Athletics have a punch at the plate.

Real Contrast in Clubs.

There is a striking contrast to the play of the Giants and the Athletics. McGraw's team even in defeat makes you feel that it is just about the best ball club ever. There is a cockiness to the team that has a tendency to throw the opposition off its stride.

Mack's club, on the other hand, hasn't yet come to realize its greatness. The moment the team makes up its mind that it is a real ball club, a pennant contender, it will immediately become such.

Perhaps the fact that the Athletics have finished down in the ruck so many years causes the players to quickly lose heart the moment the tough breaks set in. Once they start to slip they no doubt feel that the inevitable is happening.

The acquisition of one player often makes a ball club. Such a player adds the proper balance to a team inclined to waiver.

If "Lefty" Groves is a big winner, he may turn the trick. Groves unquestionably is a great pitcher. If able to win consistently for Mack it will make for a different spirit.

May Suppy Needed Tonic.

It is just possible that one of the recruits will supply the needed tonic. It may be either one of the youthful catchers, Cochrane or Fox, Infielder Red Smith or some other player now slightly regarded.

After watching the Athletics in spring training and over a period of several years, I agree with Manager Mack in his deductions. The Athletics are a good team who can win if they will to do it.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

SAYS PRESENT SYSTEM OF TIME IS DIVINE PLAN.

Sir,—In reading the various letters in your paper from time to time with regard to daylight saving, I have been amused (nothing more) at the excuses that are put up by those in favor of it.

Apparently they have dropped the old one (production) this year altogether; they must have worn it out the last time.

Now, sir, the last time that we were permitted to express our opinion on this matter we told them that we did not want it; but now it appears that because a certain class want it, they are going to force it upon us.

That seems to be the popular idea now anyway; first hold an election, and if you win out then cheer, but if not they say well we have to have it anyway. This not only forces upon us who labor the daylight saving which we voted against, but also takes away from us that which we said we were satisfied with.

If this is forced upon us the only remedy that I can see is for us to take from our list next January the names of all the aldermen who forces upon us that we do not want.

Imagine if we were to run our other election on this same principle if the Alderman that was popular was left at home, then you would say no, this man is to be one of our Aldermen, no matter what the people think.

In taking notice of those in favor of this scheme, I am fully convinced that over eighty per cent. of them can be seen coming down to work about half-past eight and nine o'clock (and some much later, in fact have to run out to a restaurant to have a lunch). Therefore I say that they are trying to get an extra hour for sport at the expense of the laboring man, many of whom have to rise at five or shortly after already. Surely they are cheap sports. Why not let them get up this extra hour earlier, or two if they wish. No doubt they will feel the better for it, but not interfere with the man who works, also mothers and children who go to school. If they do not want to get up for fear that they might be mistaken for a laboring man coming down street near that time, we might arrange to have a taxi call for them. Now, sir, in conclusion I would say that it is only another case of men trying to change the Divine plans which has always been a miserable failure. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space I have taken in your paper. I remain, yours,

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL.

LEAVE CLOCK ALONE.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I have been watching with great interest the different opinions expressed on daylight saving. To me I think it is a shame to ever think about bringing such injustice on the working people. These people who want an extra hour in the day, let them get up an hour earlier in the morning without forcing other people, who need their rest to get up, for I think I am safe in saying that the people who are so very anxious for daylight saving don't work very hard or they would be jolly glad of an extra hour's rest in the morning. They say it don't make any difference for you can go to bed an hour earlier. Well then, if that is the case, why can't you let the clock alone? What care we what the other cities do? This is a working man's town, and they are the people who should be considered, not those people who can ride around in their cars all evening. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain,

ONE INTERESTED.

PARLIAMENT HEARS OF CANADIAN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES IN INDES AND CARRIBEAN SEA COUNTRIES

Hance Logan's Report of Commission's Trip to Ascertain Trade Possibilities.

AGENTS NEEDED.

Only Two Canadian Trade Commissioners Met by Logan in His Travels.

OTTAWA, April 4.—H. J. Logan (Liberal, Cumberland) who headed the trade commission appointed by the Government to visit the West Indies and countries bordering on the Carribean Sea, gave a report of his investigations to Parliament yesterday.

The commission had been appointed under order-in-council in November, 1922. He had visited the islands and several of the South American countries, and throughout his travel he had met only two Canadian trade commissioners. Speaking of Bermuda, Mr. Logan said that the island depended largely on tourist trade, and if a proper steamship service to Canada was started, the Canadian trade would be considerably increased. He felt it was the duty of Canada, as a British country, to undertake to counteract to some extent American influences in that country.

Should Speak French.

Mr. Logan named the various ports and islands at which he touched in his trip through the West Indies. He recommended that a trade commissioner be appointed in the Island at Haiti, where he found a keen desire for trade with Canada. This commissioned shauld be familiar with the French language. In the Barbadoes, the invitation of the Canadian Government to a conference for the improvement of trade relations between Canada and these islands was received with enthusiasm, as also at Port of Spain, Trinidad, and Georgetown, British Guiana. The Barbadoes, he stated, was a wonderful health resort. British Guiana, with imports of $11,000,000 and exports of $13,000,000 per annum produces very large quantities of sugar. Canada was her second best customer, and he thought that it would be the course of wisdom to establish a trade commissioner at Georgetown.

Trade between Canada and the Island of Trinidad could be greatly increased, Mr. Logan said. It was on this island that one of the greatest supplies in the world of asphalt was located. He had visited the republic of Venezuela, where he found complaints of lack of adequate steamship service. Canadian flour was going to Venezuela via New York, he said, and entered that country as an American product. There was an excellent opportunity for the sale of Canadian products in Venezuela.

Increased Flour Trade.

In Venezuela, Mr. Logan found that the flour trade with Canada had been increased from 15,000 barrels in 1921, to 128,000 barrels in 1924 through the enterprise of a Canadian company. This record could be duplicated, he believed, by other industries through proper management. He gave an instance of one of the islands which did $2,000,000 worth of business with the United States, and $200 worth with Canada in the same year.

In Colombia, South America, Mr. Logan found a Canadian manager of a mill who would use more Canadian wheat if better shipping facilities were provided. The trade of Colombia was $100,000,000, of which Canada's share was only $750,000. This could be improved by proper trade representation. Any trade commissioners to be sent to the South American Republics should be able to speak Spanish.

Mr. Logan found Jamaica dissatisfied with the results of the 1920 trade conference between the island and Canada. It was felt that Canada had not lived up to her agreement to provide adequate steamship service. Jamaica accepted the invitation of the Canadian Government to another trade conference.

Better Shipping Needed.

Mr. Logan advocated the appointment of a trade commissioner to look after Canada's trade with the eastern part of the Island of Cuba. It would also be in a similar capacity to further the interests of our trade with Haiti and the Dominican Republic. Canada required sufficient trade commissioners and better

AIRPLANES CARRY GOLD

Transfered From London to Paris Through Air in Special Boxes.

LONDON, April 4.—(Associated Press).—Two and a quarter tons of gold were carried by two airplanes from London to Paris recently. This method of transport was chosen for its speed, and to lessen the risk of pilferage. The bullion was carried in special metal-bound cases and was guarded from the time it left the banks here until its arrival in Switzerland, its eventual destination.

Duff's Sister Appeals For Cape Breton Relief

OTTAWA, April 4 (Canadian Press) — A telegram received from Glace Bay Friday by Miss Agnes MacPhail, Progressive member for South-east Grey, says that Mrs. Dr. Morrison, New Waterford, sister of William Duff, M.P., for Lunenburg, has sent out appeals for relief in Cape Breton.

The telegram reads:

CHAPMAN GUILTY SENTENCED TO DIE

Spectacular Mail Bandit Is Convicted of Slaying Patrolman.

JURY COMMENDED.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 4. — Gerald Chapman, the spectacular mail bandit, jail breaker, and criminal extraordinary, was to-day sentenced to hang in the Connecticut State prison, on June 25th, in payment for the life of a New Britain patrol man, of whose murder last October 12th, the jury had convicted him less than an hour before.

After dismissing the jury and congratulating the jurors on reaching this verdict, "which I believe is a just verdict," Judge Jennings recessed the court for half an hour at which time he set for hearing the defence counsel motion to set aside the verdict. The Connecticut law provides that a person decreed guilty of first degree murder must be hanged.

CALGARY'S UNEMPLOYED SCORNED WORK ON LAND

200 of Them Told to Take Farm Jobs or Get Out.

CALGARY, Alta., April 4—Two hundred of Calgary's unemployed lounged around the Alberta Government employment office on Friday morning and refused to consider farm jobs which were being offered. Conditions have been gradually working up to this situation for the last few days and some drastic action by officials is being considered to deal with the problem.

The men were told that they either had to work or get out, and out they went, although many of them resented the decision of the Bureau officials and were inclind to argue at first.

For more than an hour the officials, in addition to several farmer-implored the men to take the work and almost went to the extent of pleading. The calls refused to bring a single response.

TWO DURHAMS ARE COMBINED

County to Lose One of Its Provincial Electoral Divisions.

OTHER CHANGES.

TORONTO, April 4.—(Canadian Press).—The redistribution committee of the Legislature met Friday afternoon. So far the committee has discussed only what reduction there can be in certain counties in representation. They have not yet discussed what ridings are to get more representation. It is almost certain now that the following counties will lose one member each: Simcoe, Grey, Bruce, Huron, Middlesex, Wellington and three counties of Frotenac, Addington and Lennox now with three members will be reduced to two Lennox and Addington being put together to elect one member. The two Durhams are to be combined.

The government side of the committee is said to support the idea that there be no increase in the representation from Northern Ontario. However, other parties are putting up objection claiming that the riding of Cochrane particularly should be changed so that it will have two members instead of one. The population of this riding which includes most of the big mining area is said now to be about 50,000 people. This is above the rural electoral unit and the northerners support their argument with the declaration that this being a rapidly growing riding that by the time of the next redistribution that the province will have a population of nearly 100,000. They therefore claim more representation now.

The committee will consider extra seats for London, Ottawa, Windsor and Toronto. In London the score will be evened by wiping out one of the Middlesex seats and creating an urban seat instead of a rural. One of the Middlesex seats now includes a portion of suburban London.

Montreal Judge Passes Sentence on Two.

THREE RIVERS, Que., April 4.—(Canadian Press).—Joseph Simard and Ovila Blanchette were condemned to St. Vincent De Paul Penitentiary Friday by Judge Lacourciere in Court of Sessions.

Simard, who had pleaded guilty of having broken into a drug store at Louiseville, was condemned to three years on this count and to two years for having tried to escape from Three Rivers Jail, last Sunday. Blanchette, also guilty of burglary at Cap-De-La-Madeleine, got two years, and another two years for having tried to escape from jail. In both cases, sentences will run concurrently.

During their unsuccessful escape, both prisoners assailed a warden, and the day after Simard tried to commit suicide.

BELANGER ASKS INSTRUCTION IN FRENCH TONGUE

Says French-Canadian Parents Anxious That Children Learn English.

DISCUSSES MOTION.

Says Province Should Improve the System it Has Already Adopted.

TORONTO, April 4.—The use of the French language in the schools of Ontario was the topic occupying the attention of the Legislature Friday afternoon. It came up on a motion proposed by A. Belanger (Liberal(Russell) "that in the opinion of the House, the government should: Enact a regulation providing that in English-French schools, now in existence or hereafter established, the use and teaching of both French and English languages be conducted in accordance with the principles and methods applied in the schools of bilingual countries generally, and also recommend by several British educational conferences for application in the bilingual parts of the British Empire. .2. To provide for the adequate training of teachers for such schools."

Mr. Belanger spoke for about two hours and on the adjournment at 6 o'clock had not finished his address. The debate will be continued next week. Mr. Belanger reminded the English-speaking residents of Ontario that the French was the first Christian tongue heard by the shores of the Great Lakes, and that the first settlements in Ontario were French. He spoke of the loyalty of the French people, since their conquest, to Britain and British institutions, as had been proved in the several wars in which the British Empire, including Canada, had engaged in since that time. The French he said, had always been a solid, stable people in economics, industry and politics. The 300,000 French people in Ontario or one-tenth of the population were a natural connecting link between this province and Quebec. It was Ontario and Quebec, he said, which were the backbone of the Confederation of Canada together as a British Dominion.

Not Political Capital.

Mr. Belanger said he had no desire to make political capital out of the question he was discussing, and yet he was not apologizing for bringing up the subject. He pointed out that because he felt strongly on the subject, that he might be accused of being an agitator, but all reform ever accomplished had been brought about by the so-called agitators and extremists,

Mr. Belanger first reviewed the attitude of French-Canadian people towards the Englisl language. He argued that French-Canadian parents in Ontario were anxious that their children learn English because it was the commercial and every day language of the people. Mr. Belanger read extracts from reports by M. H. Stappells and Dr. J. L. Hughes that the French child with a knowledge of two languages felt rather a superior person, and he thought this feeling a good one to cultivate.

"The French-Canadian people," he said, "will not rest content until they know that their children are being taught English adequately." He thought, however, that the government should improve the system and inquire into the best way of teaching English to children whose mother tongue was not English. He would continue that process until they all had a thorough knowledge of the English tongue. He pointed out, that there were difficulties. In Ottawa, the separate schools raised $235,000 as against nearly a million for the public schools, and yet there were more children in the separate schools than there were in the public schools in that city.

Language of Instruction.

He argued that, that the French-Canadian both from old British constitution and from Canadian constitution was entitled to certain minority rights. The schools where French-Canadians attended must also prepare the scholar in his mother tongue, as well as in English. He pointed to changed conditions in Europe since the war of giving minorities language rights. He declared that the home language of French-Canadians should be recognized as the language of instruction in French-English schools.

Mr. Belanger adjourned the debate, which will continue next week.

SECRETARY WEEKS ILL.

Confined to Home With Clot in Brain.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(Canadian Press). — Secretary John W. Weeks, of the War Department, is ill with thrombosia.

The War Secretary has been confined to his home for several days but there had been no intimation that he was seriously ill until his physicians Friday announced the cause.

Mr. Weeks' physician issued a statement saying that the secretary had a "thrombosia of one of the small branches of the middle cerebral artery." The statement added that Mr. Weeks "should be out in a short time."

THE ANNUAL BOBBING

RIVER FLOODS PRAIRIE TOWN

Qu' Appelle River Broke Through Embankments Thrown Up By Citizens.

ONE MAN DROWNED.

REGINA, April 4.—The town of Lumsden was under water Friday as a result of the Qu'Appelle River bursting through the temporary embankments erected to confine the flood tide Thursday night. With the exception of the business section, all the town is affected though the citizens had been working for days to enlarge and strengthen the embankments and dykes against such a possibility. The water also flooded the C.N.R. tracks, but trains were able to proceed after the Regina-Saskatoon express had been delayed for six hours.

Falling from a raft on which he was working in attempting to repair a bridge over the C.N.R. near Coppen, Sask., on the Gravelbourg line, Francis Gowans, a carpenter of this city, was swept away in the swift current and drowned before help could be given him Thursday.

ARMENIAN FREED.

Sentence Suspended With Peace Bond of $500.

OTTAWA, April 4. — (Canadian Press).—Magistrate William Joynt, in Police Court, suspended sentence on David Mesropian, Guelph, who some weeks ago pleaded guilty to a charge of perjury in connection with the issuance to him of a certificate of naturalization by the Department of the Secretary of State. E. J. Daly, counsel for the Department, pointed out that Mesropian has spent a month in jail and has to some degree mitigated his offence by giving evidence for the Crown against George H. Alexander.

"He was only a tool of Alexander's in any case," said Mr. Daly.

The Magistrate bound Mesropian over for $500 to keep the peace for a year.

King Bought Cottage For Maimed Italian Veteran

ROME, April 4.—Giovanni Piroli, age 31, a mutilated war veteran, partly paralyzed, unable to speak perfectly and in tatters, approached the guard of the Royal Palace Thursday, saying, "I want to seek King Victor Emmanuel, for whom I fought and bled."

When informed of the man at the gates the King sent for him, but in the presence of his monarch, Piroli was too nervous to stand. So the King asked the veteran to sit beside him while his story of misfortune was told.

"What can I do for you?" asked the King when it was completed.

At length, Piroli, who had been evicted from his house, said his life dream was a cottage of his own. But it would cost 10,000 lire, he added.

King Victor Emmanuel immediately ordered 20,000 lire given to the veteran and as Piroli departed the monarch took 500 lire from his pocket, saying, "Buy food with this."

FIREMEN'S SUITS FROM THE GRAFTON COMPANY

Shirts to be Supplied by the Cressman Company.

The committee room at the City Hall looked like a clothing store last night when the Fire, Water and Light Committee inspected samples and considered tenders for uniforms for the firemen. Tenders for shirts were received from Graftons, Regal Co., H. LaBrun, Maher and Wesley and Cressmans. The tender of the Cressman Company for $153.35 was accepted. Uniforms for two officers and 18 men were tendered for by Cressmans, Graftons, Maher and Wesley, LeBrun and the Regent Tailors. The tender was awarded to the Grafton Company at a price of $925.

The Utilities Commission will be asked to place lights at several places in the city, one on Reid street between Smith street and Victoria avenue, and one opposite 304 Park street and to arrange the lights on George street between Lake street and the C.N.R. crossing under the direction of the Chairman.

SOUTH AFRICA TO FIX WAGES

House of Assembly Passes Enabling Legislation For Minimum Rate.

BOARD PROVIDED.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, April 4.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).—After an all-night sitting the House of Assembly by a vote of 57 to 31 gave second reading to the Wage Bill enabling the introduction of a minimum wage in each industry in South Africa and the establishment of a board to fix such wage. While agreeing to the principle of the minimum wage, the opposition objected to the bill on the ground that it placed control of the whole unions and industries in the hands of the Minister of Labor and directly conflicted the policy of conciliation and voluntary agreement between the worker and the employer which, they said, the minister desired to abolish.

Col. Cresswell, Minister of Labor, denied this contention of the opposition speakers and stated that the bill was only designed to apply to sweated industries where a voluntary agreement was impossible. He also denied that he had any intention of getting control of the unions and the industrial system.

The bill was referred to a select committee of the assembly.

GLACE BAY HAS NO RESOURCES

Negotiating Loan to Pay Salaries of Public School Teachers.

TAXES UNPAID.

GLACE BAY, N.S., April 3—The following telegram signed by Rev. M. A. Macadam and Rev. A. M. MacLeod of the publicity committee of the Glace Bay Central Relief Committee, was sent Friday to William Duff, M.P., in reply to a telegram sent by him Thursday to the committee:

In reply to your telegram of April 2, your public utterance in the House of Commons stated that conditions in Cape Breton had been portrayed in a very much worse light than they really are. Your telegram admits their seriousness but lays the blame on the municipality, infering that it is not using its financial resources to relieve distress. Municipality has no financial resources. It is now negotiating a loan to pay public school teachers' salaries. Owing to short time labor, taxes are not collectable. Local merchants, hard hit by depression, have no resources and the entire municipality is at the mercy of the coal industry. We consider your criticism of the municipality as gratuitous.

"Referring to your suggestion advising miners to return to work at wages paid previous to the strike pending an investigation, we would answer that this has already been done by the United Mine Workers who are the proper authorities to do so. Miners are now waiting such a move from the company. What we cannot understand is why competent authorities have not already taken action. Neither provincial nor federal government has given any indication of authority in the matter. If, as you consider this is the right and humane thing to do we will hopefully await some action on your part."

WOMAN SOLD LIQUOR.

Lindsay Woman Fined $250 With Month in Jail.

LINDSAY, April 4—(Special).—At a session of the police court, which lasted well into the afternoon, Mrs. Spencley, a resident of this town, was yesterday fined $250.00 for selling liquor. Besides the fine, the woman receives a month's sentence in jail and imprisonment for three months in default of payment of the fine.

C. G. E. FACTORY VOTE 2 TO 1 FOR DAYLIGHT PLAN

Ballot Included Families of Workers and Women Are Enthusiastic.

AN ACID TEST.

Representatives of All Classes of Workers Registered Their Opinions.

NAME
	AGAINST:	712

Considerable correspondence and editorials have appeared with reference to a system of daylight saving for the City of Peterborough. The expressions of opinion by the different parties of course is only an individual opinion. To arrive at the general feeling in regard to this subject requires the taking of a vote. This was done this week at the C.G.E. plant, and the result is reported to The Examiner as follows:

These large works contain representatives of all classes of workers, therefore, they probably represent the total opinion of the city. The ballot which was issued read as follows:

"We, the undersigned citizens of the City of Peterborough, respectfully petition that the Mayor and Council inaugurate a Daylight Saving System for the City of Peterborough.

"We feel very strongly that the benefits to health and happiness for the individual members of the community will far outweigh any theoretical objections. This has been definitely proved wherever the system has been given a thorough trial and in this connection we would respectfully direct attention to the fact that England, France, Belgium, and in the majority of the cities in the United States and Canada have felt it advisable to make the system permanent.

INSTRUCTIONS. Employee voting is requested to have each voter in his household vote on this same ballot, each voter personally signing the ballot.

If against Daylight System mark "X" in portion of ballot reserved as against; also mark "X" on each month that you would prefer if the wishes of the majority are for Daylight Saving.

For example—even if you are against Daylight Saving for five months you would consider June, July and August, thus not interefering to any extent with school work.

Have every person vote, please, as an honest expression of opinion is requested."

The results of this ballot have been given out as follows: For daylight saving 1528; against daylight saving 712; total number voting 2240; percentage in favor of daylight saving 69 per cent. This represents over two to one in favor of daylight saving.

It is stated that while the men are in favor the women are not. This vote that was taken disproves this statement. The women's vote is two to one in favor of daylight saving. Men in favor 816; women in favor 711; men against 365; women against 357.

Arguments have been used that the daylight saving starts too early in the spring and extends too late in the fall. The vote would indicate that there is quite a number of people who prefer just the months of June, July and August while the vote was as follows: For the month of May 1210; June 1580; July 1603; August 1598; September 1110.

It is understood that votes have been taken in all the other factories and the vote is running about the same percentage, from 70 per cent to 100 per cent in favor of the daylight saving plan.

Other Factories

The results to date reported from other factories are:

Quaker Oats—223 for; 80 against 72 per cent. for.

De Laval—80 per cent for.

Canadian Woollens—75 per cent. for.

Westclox—100 per cent for.

Green's Foundry — 90 per cent for.

Raybestos Factory—100 per cent for.

Kiwanis—100 per cent for.

Prudential Insurance — 100 per cent for.

Life Assurance Underwriters—100 per cent for.

Canadian Nashua Paper Co.—70 per cent for.

Employees of The Cressman Co. and the B. F. Ackerman Co. both sent strong petitions.

HICKORY ISLAND.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 4.—Another legal tangle has been brought to the surface in the famous trapping district of Bradley Bay, a tangle that is likely to become the basis of an interesting law suit, which will deal among other points with the transfer of Indian lands.

William Smith, who resides at Bradley Bay, purchased from John Thackeray, Indian Chief at Roseneath, 28 years ago, that picturesque piece of land in the Trent River known as Hickory Island, on account of the kind of timber which originally grew upon it in profusion. The transfer was made through the Department of Indian Affairs in the regular way. Mr. Smith has a deed for the property signed by L. Pope, who at that time was secretary of the department. This document, which bristles with the usual high-sounding legal phrases, and which is ornamented with a most imposing seal, describes Hickory Island as consisting of six acres more or less. As a matter of fact those who are familiar with the territory declare that there is at least 100 acres of dry land at high, and more that that at low water. The deed was never registered, Mr. Murray being assured by his legal advisers that registration was not absolutely necessary unless he planned to dispose of his property.

For 28 years, Mr. Smith was monarch of all he surveyed so far as Hickory Island was concerned. No one ever disputed his possession. He cut timber on his land, trapped in season and pastured his cattle on it during the summer, as many as 25 head of stock grazing on it at one time.

Then came Charles Potts and George Atwell, two expert and confirmed trappers, who reside near Campbellford. They appeared on the east end of the island and began to make themselves at home in a manner which gave Mr. Smith infinite concern. When he challenged their right to dig and set stakes on his property, he was informed that they had deeds to two lots which they had purchased from the Canada Land Company of Toronto. Mr. Smith was in Campbellford yesterday to secure legal advise, and more will be heard of the matter in a few days.

So far as can be learned, the Canada Land Company secured from the Dominion Government certain timber rights on Hickory Island, hence the present conflict in titles to the property.

There is still considerable timber on the island, it is a favorite resort for picnic parties and is now regarded as one of the best trappng grounds in the district.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL.

DEPUTY REEVE PALLISER.

C. W. Palliser, Deputy Reeve of Campbellford, was born in this town and has built up a successful business that brings him in touch with the country for miles around and so helps to advertise the place. Mr. Palliser served six years as a Councillor in those stirring days when the building of a new High School was the main issue, and if he suffered reverses for the stand which he took he has had the satisfaction of living to see his public policy justified and to be called back into the service, wearing a stripe that entitles him to a seat in the Counties Council.

Deputy-Reeve Palliser is progressive, and has ideas of his own with regard to developing his native town in which he has a large business as well as financial interest. He is not disclosing his plans now, but everybody expects to hear from him before his term is up. So far as his county policy is concerned, he believes that the towns and townships should make an effort to work together in harmony.

SOCIAL BY I.O.O.F. OF CAMPBELLFORD

Scouts Present Gold Badge to F. W.. Wilsher.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 4.—Members of Campbellford Lodge of Oddfellows held another of their delightful At Homes in their lodge rooms in the Ferris block on Thursday evening when about 100 of those belonging to the Order, including Rebekahs and invited guests, spent several hours in pleasant social intercourse. In the forepart of the evening a literary programme was rendered, G. A. Kingston occupying the chair. Those who took part, with the offering of each, were as follows: George Lucy, piano solo; Carl Maguire, reading; Joseph Poulton, Sr., song; S. A. Maguire, reading; Hutton's orchestra, two musical selections.

Progresisve euchre was next on the programme and 20 tables were occupied by the players. The ladies who won prizes were: Mrs. Garnet Cassan for number of games, a Rebekah pin, and Mrs. Charles Hay, who held the greatest number of lone hands, a bar pin. The consolation prize, a lady's Eversharp pencil, went to Miss W. Duncalfe.

The gentlemen who won prizes were E. Roberts, who got a pair of Oddfellow's gold cuff links for games, and Robert Dunk, who won a lapel pin for lone hands. E. Daly, a guest from Fenelon Falls, carried home the consolation prize, a pair of handsome cuff links.

After refreshments had been served at 11.30 the room was cleared and all those who cared to dance were given the opportunity.

A. P. Hind had charge of the radio outfit, the selections from which proved one of the most interesting features of the entertainment.

Charles Holmes was chairman of the committee on arrangements, and the affair was voted one of the most successful ever given by the organization.

Members of the Boy Scouts called Thursday evening at the home of Fred W. Mr. Wilsher, who resigned his position as downtown ticket and express agent after six years' service, leaves next week with his family for Granby,(Que., where he will take up farming.

RICE LAKE ICE IS BREAKING UP

Open Water Along the Shores Facilitates Trapping.

U.F.Y.P.O. DEBATE.

BAILIEBORO, April 3.—The ice on Rice Lake has begun to move away from around the shores. The trappers are now able to paddle their canoes around near the shore. If the weather continues warm for a couple of days it is thought that the ice will disappear entirely.

The water is fast draining off the land, and it certainly looks as though the land is going to dry very evenly this spring. If the weather is suitable the majority of farmers will commence their spring work next week.

U.F.Y.P.O. Meeting.

The South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. club held their fortnightly meeting on Wednesday evening, instead of their regular Friday evening. This was owing to the fact that the U.F.O. club held their euchre party and dance on Friday evening.

In the absence of the president, the chair was taken by the vice-president, F. Barnard, and the business of the evening was brief. At the conclusion of the business meeting a female committee had been appointed at the previous meeting to arrange a humorous programme for this meeting. Those acting on the committee were Misses C. McConnachie, E. Tate and R. Kidd.

The programme consisted of an impromptu debate between the boys. Messrs. George Morrison and W. Waterman chose up sides, and when the boys had all been chosen one of the leaders drew a piece of paper from the hat and whatever subject was written on this sheet was the subject chosen to debate on. The one drawn was "Resolved, that single life is preferable to married life." Mr. Geo. Morrison's side chose the negative side of the debate. Each one had to give one good point, the affirmative and negative alternately. The debate made a lot of humour for all present, and the judges, who were Miss Weir, and Rev. A. H. McConnachie, gave the decision in favour of the negative.

A splendid apple orchard contest was the next item on the programme. The winners of the prizes were Miss Edna Huggins and Mr. W. Hall.

Home-made candy was served by the ladies during the evening.

Presentation at Dartford

About fifty friends and neighbors assembled recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Mackie, Dartford, where a very pleasant evening was spent socially. The host and hostess were made the recipients of a living room suite, accompanied by the following address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Mackie,—The wheels of time roll on and again we come to the parting of the ways. It was with much regret that your many associates of the past number of years in this neighborhood learned of your departure. Although your removal will not place you so far from us, yet you will leave vacant a little corner whom no one can fill in the same manner as you have.

Your citizenship has been all that one's heart could desire. Your helping hand in time of need, your faithful attendance to duty, your cheerful manner and thoughtful ways have been greatly appreciated by your many friends in this district. As a slight token of the great feeling of goodwill we hold for you both we take much pleasure in asking you to accept this gift. Its intrinsic value is small but the giving was inspired by warm hearts who love you well. May you see imaged there as the years advance faces of those who extend to you tonight their best wishes for a long and happy future. Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours.

SCHOOL LUNCHES END.

CAVAN, April 4.—On Tuesday, the last day of March, the serving of a hot lunch at the noon hour at Matchett's School was finished for the season. This hot lunch was served since November the first, with very little inconvenience to either parents or pupils, and it was good for the pupils during the cold months to have a hot cup of cocoa or some other hot dish with their lunch. During the last three days of the lunch, the pupils, thanks to the kindness of some of the parents, enjoyed some extra treats. On two of these days sufficient maple syrup for all was sent in, and on another day a lady sent a salmon loaf, a cake and ice cream. This made a pleasing finish to their domestic science course.

This is the seventh winter that the lunch has been served in this school. One benefit from it is, that the pupils are seated, and take time to eat their lunch in an orderly manner. The school is small, has less than a dozen on the roll, and this makes it easier to prepare and serve.

transportation facilities for the purpose of working up a trade with these British possessions. Mr. Logan made certain suggestions and recommendations with a view to establishing a weekly service from Canada to these islands in the Winter, and fortnightly in the Summer. He was convinced that in developing an interchange of trade with these countries, "lies Canada's opportunity. It means an extension, and increase of markets for products grown on our soil and the cost of tropical fruits for us would be reduced."

Progressive on Budget.

R. A. Hoey ,Progressive, Springfield) complimented Mr. Logan on his instructive address about the West Indies trade.

Turning to the Budget, Mr. Hoey remarked that a Budget should before everything else, reflect the policy of a government. In its last Budget, this government had implied "the death-knell of Protection" and had been supported by the Progressives because it indicated an intention to carry out the platform on which the Government was elected. Since then, the policy of the Government had been approved by the electors in all but one of the several by-elections which had been held.

Everywhere in Canada Mr. Hoey found a demand for a revision of the tariff. Some wanted an upward revision, and some wanted a downward revision, but everybody wanted a revision.

It was all very well to talk about "howling pessimism," but this epithet could not be properly applied to a member because he referred to the abandoned farms and to critical conditions in Western Canada. Because he realized the "hopelessness of any Western member making any observations on the tariff without being considered biased and prejudiced" Mr. Hoey proposed to support his argument by quoting the opinion of some responsible Canadian business men.

He quoted several statements by advocates of lower tariffs. Criticism was directed at the present tariff policy as Protection for only a limited part of the population of the country.

Doubts Compromise.

"Year after year I return to Western Canada wondering if some compromise cannot be worked out equitable to all parts of Canada," said Mr. Hoey, "but when I note the handicap under which Western Canada is laboring, I realize that a compromise cannot be worked out without great sacrifice." If the Western agriculturists were assured of a regular average crop, they could make money under almost any fiscal policy, but the natural handicaps were so great that this could not be assured. He was forced to conclude that if agriculture was to be re-established, the artificial handicaps should be reduced to an irreducible minimum. Unless rapid development took place in Western Canada, there could be little development in the rest of the country.

"I object to this tariff board," stated Mr. Hoey, referring to the proposed tariff board, "because it indicates, if it indicates anything, the triumph of the Conservative policy in this country." If there was any Hon. Member in the House who should feel triumphant over the appointment of this board, it was the Hon. Leader of the Opposition. "It is going to be a smoke screen behind which governments will seek protection," continued Mr. Honey.

The action in appointing such a board was "comparable to a man who would take shelter behind a cobweb to protect himself against a Canadian blizzard." The board would not be satisfactory to business men or agriculturists and was "impracticable, nebulous and meaningless."

Faborable Balance.

Dr. J. Arthur Denis (Liberal, St. Denis, Montreal), said the Conservatives had spent so much money while in power that no one should take seriously their arguments for economy.

Dr. Denis pointed out that the trade balance of Canada was favorable with the British Empire and the rest of the world, and it was only with the United States that there was an adverse balance. The favorable balance with the British Empire was $430,000,000, and with the rest of the world $200,000,000.

A reduction in expenditures could be effected by the abolition of the Civil Service Commission, Dr. Denis proceeded. He did not wish to criticize the personnel of the Commission, but was of the opinion that its work was not useful. He advocated that the licenses for the exportation of power should be granted for one year only.

SPRING IMPURITIES DUE TO POOR BLOOD

A Tonic Medicine a Necessity at This Season.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an all-year-round tonic for the blood and nerves. But they are especially valuable in the spring when the system is loaded with impurities as a result of the indoor life of the winter months. There is no other season when the blood is so much in need of purifying and enriching, and every dose of these pills helps to enrich the blood. In the spring one feels weak and tired—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give strength. In the spring the appetite is often poor—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills develop the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. It is in the spring that poisons in the blood find an outlet in disfiguring pimples, eruptions and boils—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills clear the skin because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood. In the spring, anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, and many other troubles are most persistent because of poor weak blood, and it is at this time when all nature takes on new life that the blood most seriously needs attention. Some people dose themselves with purgatives but these only further weaken themselves. A purgative merely gallops through the system, emptying the bowels, but does not help the blood. On the other hand Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich the blood which reaches every organs in the body, bringing new strength and vigor to weak and easily-tired men, women and children. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring—they will not disappoint you.

Among those who have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mr. Austin Wile, Hemford, N. S. who says: "I have reason to be deeply grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. An abscess developed in my head and the doctor who was called in said my whole system was poisoned. My appetite completely failed and I grew so weak I was unable to do any work. The doctor's medicine did not help me so I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. At this stage I was reduced almost to a skeleton and my friends did not look for my recovery. I soon found however that the pills were helping me, and after taking them for about two months I was fully restored to health. My case was known to all my neighbors and my recovery looked upon as almost a miracle."

You can get these pills, through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CORRECTING AN INJUSTICE.

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature by Hon. J. R. Cooke of the Ontario Hydro-electric Commission providing that retail Hydro stores through the Province shall be placed on the same footing as other retail stores as regards liability to taxation.

Hitherto the retail stores maintained by the Hydro for the sale of electric appliances have been exempt from taxation, and as a result other dealers in the same articles have been competing under a handicap.

The exemption was manifestly unfair to the private firms, and strong representations have been made on several occasions by retailers, asking that this inequitable condition of affairs be remedied by the Government.

These protests have at last been successful, and Mr. Cooke's bill will correct a situation that was obviously a one-sided arrangement.

The measure will undoubtedly carry, and from now on the Hydro stores will have to compete with other retailers on even terms, which is quite as it should be.

The only wonder is that such institutions should ever have been given a unfair advantage over their competitors.

MR. BRETHEN'S PLAN.

Mr. G. A. Brethen, Progressive member for East Peterboro in the Federal Parliament, is again following the custom inaugurated by him since his election to Ottawa of keeping his constituents fully informed as to the events of the session.

His first letter dealing with the opening of Parliament and giving a review of the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne appeared in the Examiner last evening, and Mr. Brethen will in later articles cover the balance of the proceedings in Parliament.

The member for East Peterboro, in carrying out such a practice, has originated a method of interesting his fellow-citizens in political events that might be followed with profit by other Parliamentarians.

While the newspapers cover the daily activities of Parliament at considerable length, and many people, of course, keep themselves posted through this medium, it is undoubtedly true that there are too many citizens who fail to follow the events in the House as closely as they should.

It is possible that some of these at least may take advantage of the opportunity to view the proceedings at Ottawa through the eyes of their representative, and thus Mr. Brethen's plan should be of service in this regard.

THE C. G. E. VOTE.

When a daylight saving bylaw was submitted to the people of Peterboro in 1921 the scheme was rejected by a vote of 624 to 437.

The result of that plebiscite four years ago is being used now as an argument against daylight saving.

Yet in the face of a vote that has just been completed among the employees of the Canadian General Electric Company it is evident that the 1921 figures are of little significance.

Employees of the C. G. E. were given a ballot and requested to have the members of their families also vote on daylight saving with a view to getting an adequate expression of opinion.

Two thousand, two hundred and forty votes were polled, well over twice as many as were cast in the plebiscite of 1921, and a recapitulation shows over 2 to 1 in favour of summer time, the total being 1,528 in favour of the plan and 712 against.

It has been claimed that women are opposed to daylight saving—undoubtedly many are—yet the C. G. E. vote indicates that the wives and daughters of the employees are as keen as the men to have the change made during the summer months.

Seven hundred and eleven women voted in favour of daylight saving, as compared with 357 opposed to the scheme, while the male vote was 816 for and 365 against.

The result of this ballot, representing the opinion of one-tenth of the city's population, should be of great assistance to the city fathers in considering the daylight saving proposal, particularly as it will be supplemented by similar results from other industrial concerns.

WRONG FROM EVERY ANGLE.

Supplementary estimates brought down in the Ontario Legislature make provision for an added $600 for each member, or a total of $66,000.

This practice of a Government voting itself increased salary is bad in practice and especially wrong at this time, says the London Advertiser. The Province is in debt, and the Provincial Treasurer found it necessary to develop several new sources of taxation in his budget for the year in an effort to take more money away from the people in order to break even.

Knowing this condition to be so, and being thoroughly familiar with all the details in connection with it, what justification can the Ferguson Government offer for further saddling the Province with an expenditure of $66,600 for increased sessional indemnities?

There were two courses open to the Government in seeking to make their books balance for the year, (1) cut expenditure to the bone, or (2) place more taxation on a people who are already too heavily taxed. The former course required a courage the Government does not possess—it would clash too severely with the sweets of office. So the Government has taken the other course, making taxation greater, and at the same time multiplying the reasons why it should be still greater.

There is not a business firm in existence that would dare, knowing it was going to have a deficit on the year's operations, make an increase of $600 to the employees. A Government has no right to depart from sound business practice, especially when it deliberately turns on the people and collects from them the toll of its folly.

DUPLICATIONS IN SERVICE.

Mr. W. F. MacLean has done a public service in drawing attention to the amazing conditions at Ottawa regarding the staffs of the Senate and the Commons, says the Montreal Star. That there should be separate post office, accounting, Hansard, messenger and other staffs, each necessitating a separate administration, for each House, certainly seems an unnecessary extravagance, in those cases where such separate staffs are not indicated as essential to the effective operation of the business of the Chamber. There certainly is no good reason why the Houses of Parliament should have duplex post offices. The mail could quite easily be collected by one service, sorted in one office, distributed by one office, and a definite economy effected thereby. The same argument will be found to apply to other departments of service that do not involve special duties peculiar to either House individually.

There is an enormous amount of red tape still at Ottawa that might be eliminated with advantage to the expeditious discharge of the public services. Surely, if ever there was a time when economy should be expressed in praetical terms in every direction where its application can be made advantageously, it is today, when the Dominion is staggering under such an unbearable load of debt. Privileges of long standing and special facilities enjoyed hitherto by members of both the Commons and the Senate are naturally to be regarded with due respect and are entitled to every consideration, but the continuation of certain duplicated offices, just because they always have been separate, as regards the Commons and Senate, is not defensible on any economic grounds and is not justifiable in any instance where it can be shown that the consolidation of two departments into one will be followed by any decrease in efficiency or economy in public charges.

BALFOUR AND THE UNIVERSITY OF SCOPUS.

Great Britain always faithfully keeps her pledges. In the midst of the war, when the very existence of civilization was at stake, she made certain definite promises to the Jews, which were incorporated in the Balfour Declaration. They were obviously intended to solidify on the side of the Allies the important and widely ramified influence of the Jewish race. They sought to giv eto this long persecuted and still at times mistreated people a genuine stake in the victory for liberty which the Allied enemies of Germany were fighting to win.

When the war was won, there were those who seemed to imagine that the British, having escaped the overhanging peril that had menaced them, would find some way of evading a promise made to a people "without a home," consequently with little military importance, which stirred the anger of the hard-fighting and strategically powerful Arab races. But the British are not built that way. In spite of dangerously uncertain conditions in the Hedjaz and unrest throughout the Moslem world, the British stood steadily by the Balfour Declaration; and they have just crowned that policy in a purposely spectacular manner by sending Lord Balfour out to Jerusalem to open the new Hebrew University on Mount Scopus.

Mount Scopus is one of the most conspicuous of the mountains around about Jerusalem. The high road to Samaria runs close to it, and the sacred Mount of Olives lies between it and the Jordan Valley. From any considerable elevation on its top, one can see the blue expanse of the Mediterranean to the west and the jewel-like mirror of the Dead Sea deep down below to the east. A finer spot for the great Hebrew University could not have been chosen.

It overlooks many of the most cherished scenes in Jewish history. From it can be discerned the fords of the Jordan over which Joshua led his hosts which were presently to conquer Ai and Jericho; and in the wide valley lying under the eye modern excavation has recently uncovered the very walls of Jericho which fell to the blasts of the seven trumpets of rams' horns. In the distance rises the mountain of Nebo, with Pisgah plainly in view; and doubtless when Moses from that height was showed all the land of Gilead unto Dan, and all the land of Judah to the utmost sea, his eyes fell on rounded slopes of the Mount of Olives and its companion, Mount Scopus, and who dare say that there did not come to him a prophetic vision of the shining University of his ever-learned race which was to rise after long centuries of exile under the aegis of a flag that ever stands for freedom.

Nearer at hand across the Kidron Valley is the Temple Area. On it today shines the blue dome of the Mosque of Omar, but to every Jew, as to every Christian, it is sacred soil as the site of the succession of magnificent Temples raised there by Jewish genius and piety. All Jerusalem is a monument of Judaism. The great figures in Jewish history played out their imperishable parts upon that majestic stage. The Tower of David rises near the Jaffa Gate; and however much we may doubt the authenticity of the Tower or of his tomb in a crypt on Mount Zion, the inspiration of this most romantic figure in the golden days of the race—this matchless poet called to a throne—will last as long as the written word endures. The name of Solomon is stamped upon a dozen of the outstanding features of the city and its environments, reminding us that "Solomon in all his glory" was no empty figure of speech.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The heading in a Toronto paper, "Hicks Back at Queen's Park," is not as bad as it sounds. It merely refers to a visit from the former U. F. O. whip.

Col. Currie announces that he is going to "talk out" the Church Union bill. Nobody in the Legislature has had better training in that sort of thing than the member for Southeast Toronto.

Four-four beer will not go on sale until at least 60 days after prorogation, or possibly some time later. This announcement will increase the anxiety that the Legislature should wind up the session as soon as possible.

"The next bout is between Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., and William Duff, M.P., both members of this club."

Lady Astor seems to have demonstrated that even Jack Jones, M.P., can't have the last word in an argument with a woman.

The Legislature may not be able to find out who got the $42,000, but everybody knows who is going to get the $66,000.

A St. Thomas man says that gardening is the greatest nerve restorer in the world. That perhaps explains why some Ontario gardeners want to keep early fruits and vegetables from the United States off the local market.

EVERLASTING LIFE.

"And this is life eternal, that they may know Thee the only true God and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent."—John 17:3.

The greatest joy and peace which can come to man is when he seeks truly to be a co-worker with God, for by so doing he knows what it is to have His love and favor, and the joy which comes through being in some way or other a lifter of burdens from the backs of the burdened and oppressed.

IS THIS YOUR BIRTHDAY

SATURDAY, April 4.—If to-day is your birthday, you have a pronounced mechanical trait. You will like to make several radio sets for yourself, and do all the repair work on your car. If a woman, you will be able to make fine dresses for yourself, without any special course of instruction.

SUNDAY, April 5.—If to-day is your birthday, you will lead an active, busy life. You will be so brutally frank at times that you will break friendships of long standing. Despite this, you will be a true friend, and your brutal words, hastily spoken, will cause you sincere regret. In some year the 10th of January will be a very happy day for you.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 3.—This week at the Union Stock Yards was again unsatisfactory from a shipper's standpoint. It was generally expected that the run would not be a happy one, but with over 5,000 on Monday and fair-sized shipments the two following days, the week's total was around 8,300, the largest this season.

Export cattle were slightly easier and some not good enough for overseas were taken by the packers as low as $7.35 a cwt. For a few top export steers $8.35 was paid, but the bulk did not average as high as $8. Export heifers were steady from $7 to $7.75. Export cows were little changed at $5.75 to $6.50, but bulls were lower at $4.50 to $5.25 a cwt. Around 200 are held over this week-end for overseas next week, and with only one boat the number needed in addition to these will not exceed 500.

The demand for light beef of quality is keeping the abattoirs busy to get the right type, and baby beeves are filling the bill. These are selling well, and four were sold by H. P. Kennedy & Co. on Thursday at $10.50 a cwt., the highest price for the week. Other babies have brought $8a cwt. up. A few 1,100 to 1,200-lb. steers for the home market have sold around $8 a cwt., and choice handyweight butchers held from $7.50 to $7.75. Good handyweights were $6.75 to $7.25 and mediums $6.25 to $6.50 a cwt. Common butchers worth considering sold from $5.50 to $6 a cwt.

Butchers' cows were not as strong as they have been, and in some cases prices were lower by 25 cents a cwt. Choice cows brought $6 to $6.50 and good cows $5 to $5.50. Medium cows were $4.50 and up to $5 a cwt. A lot of Western stockers and feeders came in this week, but prices remain steady. Feeders 800 to 900 lbs. average about $6 a cwt., and light stockers about $5 a cwt. Milch cows are in a little more demand at firmer prices. Any better market in butchers' cattle depends upon a much lighter run, and if the advice of some commission houses is followed this will occur next week.

Calves are holding remarkably steady considering the season, and this is in part due to the disposal of what would otherwise be a surplus to the Buffalo market. Prices were firm all week, with choice calves 12½ to 13½ cents; good calves, 11½ to 12 cents, and mediums, 10 to 11 cents. Common calves are bringing from 7 to 9 cents.

Few Ontario yearling lambs are left to market, and the local demand was filled from the West this week at $13.90 a cwt. Choice local lambs are still around 15 cents. Sheep are steady, with tops up to 9½ cents. Spring lambs are selling at a wide

Mutual Investments Help Men Sleep at Night

THE MUTUAL LIFE OF CANADA has had the benefit of shrewd, far-sighted counsel in the placing of its investments. Government bonds, Municipal bonds and debentures and such securities form a very large proportion of the total investments of the Company. Many of these, purchased during the war period and its aftermath, will yield high interest for long terms to come.

The strength of these selected investments means absolute security for Mutualists. The profitable income they assure lowers the cost of Mutual insurance, because under the Mutual principle, the entire net profits are paid back to policyholders.

Let us send you the Mutual Book which explains in full detail.

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

CHAPTER XXIX.

Baree was on his feet, rigid as hewn rock, when Carvel came out of the tent, and for a few moments Carvel stood in silence, watching him closely. Would the dog respond to the call of the pack? Did he belong to them? Would he go—now? The wolves were drawing nearer. They were not circling, as a caribou or a deer would have circled, but were travelling straight—dead straight for their camp. The significance of this fact was easily understood by Carvel. All that afternoon Baree's feet had left a blood-smell in their trail, and the wolves had struck the trail in the deep forest, where the falling snow had not covered it. Carvel was not alarmed. More than once in his five years of wandering between the Arctic and the Height of Land he had played the game with the wolves. Once he had almost lost, but that was out in the open Barren. To-night he had a fire, and in the event of his firewood running out he had trees he could climb. His anxiety just now was centred in Baree. So he said, making his voice quite casual:

"You aren't going, are you, old chap?"

If Baree heard him he gave no evidence of it. But Carvel, still watching him closely, saw that the hair along his spine had risen like a brush, and then he heard—growing slowly in Baree's throat—a snarl of herocious hatred. It was the sort of snarl that had held back the Factor from Lac Bain, and Carvel, opening the breech of his gun to see that all was right, chuckled happily. Baree may have he rd the chuckle. Perhaps it meant something to him, for he turned his head suddenly and with flattened ears looke a his companion.

The wolves were silent now. Carvel kne what that meant, and he was tensely alert. In the stillness the click of the safety on his rifle sounded with metallic sharpness. For many minutes they heard nothing but the crack of the fire. Suddenly Baree's muscles seemed to snap. He sprang back, and faced the quarter behind Carvel, his head level with his shoulders, his inch-long fangs gleaming as he snarled into the black caverns of the forest beyond the rim of firelight. Carvel had turned like a shot. It was almost frightening—what he saw. A pair of eyes burning with greenish fire, and then another pair, an after that so many of them that he could not have counted them. He gave a sudden gasp. They were like cat-eyes only much larger. Some of them, catching the firelight fully, were red as coals, others fiashed blue and green—living things without bodies. With a swift glance he took in the black circle of the forest. They were out there, too; they were on all sides of them, but where he had seen them first they were thickest. In these first few seconds he had forgotten Baree, awed almost to stupefaction by that monster-eyed cordon of death that hemmed them in. There were fifty—perhaps a hundred wolves out there, afraid of nothing in all this savage world but fire. They had come up without the sound of a padded foot or a broken twig. If it had been later, and they had been asleep, and the fire out——

He shuddered, and for a moment the thought got the better of his nerves. He ha not intended to shoot except from necessity, but all at once his rifle came to his shoulder and he sent a stream of fire out where the eyes were thickest. Baree knew wha the shots meant, and, filled with a mad desire to get at the throat of one of his enemies, he dashed in their direction. Carvel gave a startled yell as he went. He saw the flash of Baree's body, saw it swallowed up in the gloom and in that same instant heard the deadly clash of fangs and the impact of bodies. A wild thrill shot through him. The dog had charged alone—and the wolves had waited. There could be but one end. His four-footed companion had gone straight into the jaws of death!

He could hear the ravening snap of those jaws out in the darkness. It was sickening. His hand went to the Colt .45 at his belt, and he thrust his empty rifle butt downward into the snow. With the big automatic before his eyes he plunged out into the darkness, and from his lips there issued a wild yelling that could have been heard a mile away. With the yelling a steady stream of fire spat from the Colt into the mass of fighting beasts. There were eight shots in the automatic, and not until the plunger clicked with metallic emptiness did Carvel cease his yelling and retreat in to the relight. He listened, breathing deeply. He no longer saw eyes in the darkness, nor did he hear the movement of bodies. The suddenness and ferocity of his attack had driven back the wolf-horde. But the dob! He caught his breath, and strained his eyes. A shadow was dragging itself into the circle of light. It was Baree. Carvel ran to him, pu his arms under his shoulders, and brought him to the fire. For a long lime after that there was a questionable ght in Carvel's eyes. He reloaded his tions, put fresh fuel on the fire, and from his pack dug out strips of cloth with which he bandaged three or four of the deepest cuts in Baree's legs. And a dozen times he asked, in a wondering sor of way,

"Now what the deuce made you do that, old chap? What have you got agains wolves?"

All that night he did not sleep, but watched.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 3.—A combination of bearish forces acted as a battering ram in smashing down grain prices on the Winnipeg exchange today. Wheat and rye suffered the heaviest loss in today's debacle, the May future declining 9 cents from the high point, while rye skidded 10 cents below yesterday's figures. The weakness which was of a general character was attributed to lack of demand, lower Liverpool cables and improved weather conditions in the Winter wheat areas. During the closing stages of the session, the market recovered some of its loss, May closing at $1.33 1-8, 4 3-8 cents under Thursday's close, October was down two cents at $1.23 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 3—Dashing suddenly down below a dollar a bushel for all deliveries, the corn market today carried the entire grain trade along into wild run-away selling. The stampede resulted from half-frantic efforts of corn owners to save themselves from losses which appeared to be impending and which were made certain by the stampede itself. As compared with yesterday's finish, the worst breaks in price were 7 7-8 cents a bushel for corn, and 6 1-2 cents for wheat. Corn and wheat closed extremely unsettled, corn 6 1-8 to 7 7-8 cents net lower, May 92 1-4 to 92 5-8; wheat 2 to 4 3-4 cents down, May $1.38 1-4 to $1.38 1-2, and July $1,29 to $1.29 1-4; with oats 2 to 2 7-8 off, and provisions ranging from 35 cents decline to five cents advance.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, April 3—There was a steady demand from foreign buyers for Canadian grain here today and a moderate amount of business was transacted with the Continent in Manitoba wheat for April-May shipment, and quite a few loads of oats and barley were worked with the United Kingdom for May-June loading. There was also a fair demand from New York exporters for coarse grains and sales of No. 4 barley were made at the Winnipeg May option price, c.i.f. Bay ports, while No. 2 Canadian Western oats sold at 7 cents per bushel over the May option, and No. 2 feed oats changed hands at 4 cents per bushel under the same future, c.i.f. Bay ports, and on the whole a fair amount of business was done. The domestic market for oats was weak again today and prices were reduced another 2 cents per bushel, which was attributed to the further break at Winnipeg.

Flour Drops Again.

Owing to the continued depression in the Canadian wheat situation and the further decline in cash prices at Winnipeg, the weakness in the local market for Spring wheat grades of flour was more pronounced and another reduction of 25 cents per barrel was announced. The volume of business was small. The market for Winter wheat flour also displayed weakness, and prices were reduced 10 cents per barrel on account of the continued downward tendency of values for the raw material and the very limited demand for supplies.

Little business was translated in millfeed, but prices were steady. The market for rolled oats was easier and prices were reduced 10 cents per bag.

The local market for eggs was without any special feature, and prices were steady under a continued good consumptive demand and a large volume of business was done. The receipts were 2,807 cases, as compared with 1,873 for the same day last week, and 3,844 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Butter Market Firm.

The receipts of butter today were 160 packages, as compared with 197 for the same day last week, and 1,043 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no further change in the condition of the market, but the undertone was firm at the recent advance noted, with a steady demand for supplies from both local and outside buyers, and a moderate amount of business was done.

In a wholesale jobbing way a fair trade was reported and prices were advanced 10 cents per pound, with sales of finest creamery at 34 cents per pound in solid packages, and at 36 cents per pound in 1 pound blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 6,889 boxes, as against 620 for the same day last week, and 318 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market was easier and prices were reduced 1-2 cents per pound. Latest sales of fodder made were No. 1 white and colored at 22 cents to 22 1-2 cents per pound, and No. 2 grades at 21 cents to 21 1-2 cents per pound. The market for Quebec 20-pound cheese was also lower at 23 cents per pound.

CONTROL HEALING BY DRUGLESS MEANS

Limit Term Doctor, Physician Or Surgeon to Graduates Of Medical Schools.

TORONTO, April 4.—(Canadian Press).—Designation of those who shall be allowed to term themselves doctors, physicians or surgeons, and provision for the establishment of a board of regents for the control of those who desire to practice drugless healing are contained in two bills which were introduced by Attorney-General W. F. Nickle in the Legislature yesterday. The first bill, which amends the Ontario Medical Act, said Mr. Nickle, restricted to graduates of orthodox medical schools the terms doctor, physician or surgeon.

The second bill, called the Drugless Practitioners' Act, made provision for a board of regents to which should be given the administration and control of those who desire to practice medicine by drugless means.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 1

Tea as a Beverage

Tea first became known in China nearly 3000 years before Christ. In that country tea was greatly prized, both for its remarkable qualities as a beverage and for the almost religious ceremony attached to the drinking of it. Up to the sixth century, tea was used only for medicinal purposes. Even in the seventeenth century it cost $25.00 to $50.00 per pound. All tea caddies were constantly kept under lock and key. Today when even fine quality like "SALADA" costs less than one-third of a cent per cup, it is not surprising that the consumption of tea is increasing tremendously.

NEW YORK HAS ITS OWN PETS

Eleven Cats in One House—Elephant Outgrew His Stable.

MONKEY IN FAVOR

Cats as pets are not so popular as in the days when people lived in their own homes, before the present ten-story apartments overshadowed New York. But the ash-colored feline still pervades and his song of the night still arouses the spleen of sleepers. There is a lady in Harlem who sometimes gets into trouble with her neighbors by her retention of eleven tabby cats who make night hideous. Angora and Persian grimalkins are in great demand, and a Manx cat—which is tailless—has also been seen in New York disporting itself on a window sill.

There is no animal more difficult to get rid of than a cat. Recently a man who possessed a red cat with an evil eye—he is an Italian, of course—objected to housing that cat any more. He gently but firmly squeezed the cat into a basket, secured the top with a skewer—no pun is intended—and strode manfully with his burden across Queensboro Bridge, penetrated inland perhaps half a mile. Then he raised the lid of the basket and puss sprang out and dived into darkness and Long Island City. The Italian, satisfied with the night's work, proceeded triumphantly home on a surface car. When he reached his destination the cat was calmly reposing on the stoop. The cat is still with him.

A raven is occasionally met as a household pet, but a talking raven is not to b found in New York. At least one is told so. Birds are popular pets, and canaries will be found in thousands of households throughout the city. As for parrots, and parrots that talk, they are not so often met with as formerly.

An elephant as a pet is somewhat unusual. A man who did a little farming in the old days out on Jerome Avenue had a baby elephant presented to him. It was about as bulky as a good-sized cow, but he didn't mind, and he did him in an old barn adjoining his home. In about three months the elephant grew so large and strong that he pulled the barn to pieces and got out, and the last seen of him was in the direction of White Plains. He was found eventually and sold to a circus man.

Goats used to be admired pets, especially in Harlem, and there was a man in upper New York who kept a snake—non-poisonous—for the purpose of destroying cockroaches. White mice and guinea pigs are seldom seen nowadays, but monkeys are coming into fashion among people with a fancy for genealogical and ethonological studies. Sarah Bernhardt bestowed her affections on a youthful tiger, but such devotion is not to be encouraged.

Movieland Attracts Many Visitors

HOLLYWOOD, April 4 (United Press).—If Barnum were alive today he would probably secure the sight-seeing privileges to Hollywood, erect a fence around the film capitol, and charge admission to its allurments.

More than a million tourists come to Southern California annually, and the chief lure for the sight-seers is not the ocean, the orange groves, the old Spanish mansions, the sunken gardens of Chinatown. It is Hollywood—dreamland of film fans.

Whether they hail from Iowa or Gotham, the visitors elect almost invariably the same sight-seeing menu—they want a close-up of their favorite screen stars, or at least a glimpse of their homes and the studios where the "movies are made."

The sight of a myriad of parks, gardens, orange groves and other scenic spectacles thrills many of the travellers.

"But nothing is viewed with so much interest as the places where the picture stars themselves really eat and sleep and move about," declared Joseph M. Abrams, general manager of the largest fleet of sight-seeing busses in Los Angeles.

"And if the tourists can catch a glimpse of a film star himself or herself, they will have something to write home about and discuss the rest of their lives."

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks receive the most vote of tourists, according to Abrams. Their magnificent Beverly Hills estate is the mecca of hundreds of sight-seers daily.

Rudolph Valentino's palatial Hollywood home is second in interest to the travellers, and the magnetic "house on the hill" which Charlie Chaplin built for his 16-year-old bride and leading lady, Lita Gray, comes third.

Others, in the order of their popularity with tourists are the homes of Gloria Swanson, Will Rogers, Pauline Frederick, Milton Sills, Jackie Coogan, Tommy Meighan, William Desmond, Bill Hart, Eugene O'Brien, Pola Negri, Lois Wilson and J. Warren Kerrigan.

Next to the home of the cinema stars, the views most sought by tourists are the orange groves. Capitalizing on this demand of his patrons, Abrams has arranged with a grower near La Verne to permit the tourists to enter his grove and pick oranges from the trees at a nickel apiece.

"But even this doesn't interest the tourists as much as the little church in Hollywood where they have been told Ben Turpin passes the collection plate," declared Abrams.

"And after a tourist has been shown the homes of the film stars and the various scenic spots, he will usually ask: 'Do you suppose we could get to see Doug. Fairbanks?'"

"One of our trips leads to Universal City and we stop for lunch at the Studio Restaurant," continued Abrams. "Travellers almost forget to eat as they look at the actors and actresses in their makeups. They begin speculating on who they are—they are certain they recognize Charlie Chaplin, Eugene O'Brien, Corrine Griffith and Norma Talmadge. But none of these stars was ever screened at Universal City, and right at their sides, unrecognized, will probably sit William Desmond, Jack Hoxie, Jack Dempsey, Mary Philbin or Laura Le Plante."

Colleen Moore has been crowned "queen" of the "baby stars" and awarded the Arthur J. Kline gold loving cup of the Wampas (Western Association of Motion Pictures Advertisers). The trophy was presented by the Hollywood press-agentry at the recent Wampas Frolic, proclaiming Miss Moore the "baby star" of 39 chosen the past three years who has made the greatest stride to fame and stardom. The choice was based on a telegraphic ballot among editors of motion picture trade papers and "fan" magazines.

Miss Moore made her debut as a full-fledged star in the current film "So Big" and has since completed "Sally," not yet released. Her next starring vehicle will be "The Desert Flower."

Tom Mix, hard-riding cowboy of the screen, plans a six-weeks' tour of Europe the coming spring. Mix's European fans want to see the cinema cow-puncher in person, and he has arranged an itinerary that will take him to most of the old world capitols. "Tony," his celebrated pony, and Pat Chrisman his ranch foreman, will accompany him on the trip.

Hollywood has displaced New York, London and Paris as the fashion centre for men's headgear. There is a universal demand among men for hats like those worn by their favorite screen stars, according to Reed Heustis, secretary of the Los Angeles Retail Hatters' Association. The country's leading hat manufacturers, as a result, have sent their designers to the film capitol for the new spring modes.

VENETIAN GONDOLIERS GRUMBLE AT CHUG CHUG OF MOTOR BOATS

TOURISTS BLAMED

Natives Tell of Man Who "Did" the Grand Canal in His Pyjamas.

By ISHBEL ROSS.

With the encroachment of morot boats on the silent waterways of Venice, one of the last touches of native quiet in Europe seems to be going. The Venetians are mildly alarmed. They blame the tourist—particularly the American tourist. They quote the sad case of the man who wakened in a sleeper, found it was in Venice, jumped into a gondola in his pajamas, "did" the Grand Canal in twenty minutes and caught the same train out.

The gondoliers, black figures of mystery who propel one romantically through the network of lagoons, are most alarmed of all. This rude invasion does more than touch their amour propre: it has its effect on their pockets. The most aloof of the gondoliers have a quite considerable interest in their material rewards, however out of character this may seem. They scowl darkly and lose a beat in the perfect rhythm of their dip as the impudent motor boats chug by, gay with a flutter of flags and leaving a stream of foam to rock the narrow keel of the gondola.

The tourist has much to answer for in Venice. Left to itself, it is a leisurely city of dreams, hushed but for the steady swish of the gondolier's pole plying in the sun-streaked byways. Its creamy Istrian stone is crusted with the dirt of ages and its Byzantine palaces still recall the glories of the ancient Venetian Empire. But on the Grand Lagoon, where most of the modern hotels are clustered, there is a touch of Coney Island, a noisy sector of life that harmonizes ill with its environment.

By night the Lagoon sparkles with golden lights under a perfect moon—it is always a perfect moon in Venice—and the fishermen's sails, rust and orange by day, are etched in dark triangles far out toward the Lido. The black hoods of the gondolas bob up and down along the water's edge, but in through one's window come the cries of hawkers, the clip-cop of feet on the paved promenade and a harsh blending of many tongues. Honeymooners from all over Europe, hand in hand under the spell of the magic night; school teachers getting all they can out of the few days of their vacation they have apportioned to Venice, artists rhapsodizing over the obvious, middle-aged husbands and wives snatching belatedly at romance in an atmosphere heavily laden with the incense of love—all engage themselves in ardent worship of such pictorial beauty.

Stroll from the Lagoon to St. Mark's Square, and one finds the tourist note more dominant still. The little tables are filled with chattering mobs, sipping American sundaes—not very good ones—and American cocktails, within a stone's throw of gorgeous St. Mark's and the long, rambling pile of the Doge's Palace. The band switches now and again from classical music to American jazz at European tempo. Chewing gum is offered for sale. A gondola disappears under the Bridge of Sighs with a serenader strumming "Yes, We Have No Bananas" on his guitar. So much for the Venetian night.

By day one wonders where the real Venetians hide themselves. Only the tourists are in evidence. They hunt in droves, usually with a guide who cracks threadbare prohibition jokes at every opportunity. All around St. Mark's Square the shopkeepers stand guard to lure them in to buy marble figures, Venetian beads, exquisite glassware or silks which could be bought at much the same price on Fifth Avenue.

It is impossible to tell whether the Venetians resent or welcome this invasion. They are less demonstrative than most of their fellow countrymen and do not give themselves away so lightly. But they are aware that catering to tourists is one of Venice's chief industries and act accordingly. So they merely smile with tolerance at the postcard buyers and the camera enthusiasts, who spend their mornings feeding the pigeons and having their pictures taken with the birds perched on their shoulders. The old photographer and bookseller on St. Mark's Square, known to almost every one who has ever visited Venice, shakes his head wisely over the persons who line up to take pictures of the Bridge of Sighs and the Rialto. He knows that he plants an expert photographer at show spots for weeks, and even months, to take pictures when the lights and shadows are exactly as they should be. But, then, such pictures! And how lucrative the prices he gets from Americans for them! Go into his shop and he is sure to bring out a handsome book filled with these photographic masterpieces, at the same time reeling off the names of a long list of well known buyers.

While the Venetian may blame the tourist for encouraging the motor boat, it is also true that the business man of Venice finds it a convenience in the morning. Unless he travels to work by the little steamers on the Grand Canal he has to amble along at the very leisurely pace of the gondola. This defection on the part of the native worries the gondoliers quite as much as the fickle taste of the tourist. No visitor is likely to travel all the way to Venice without spending at least part of his time in the historic boats. Who on earth wants to be rushed through the Grand Canal except a native or some one like the hurried traveler in pajamas?

ADORNMENTS TO MILADY'S SMARTNESS

Pearls, pearls, pearls—the more we wear them the smarter they grow. Perhaps because their soft irredescent luster is so becoming—perhaps because their demure simplicity expresses the feeling of the mode of to-day better than any other jewel. But no longer is it necessary to be able to afford a king's ransom for one slender strand. For, so beautiful are many imitation pearls that they are worn by the smartest women.

The three-strand necklace is unusually smart—especially for afternoon or evening wear. But for those to whom it is becoming the choker necklace is a great favorite. A novelty with an evening dress which is cut rather low in the back is a choker necklace with a single strand of pearls hanging down the back like a Chinaman's queue.

Many a smart woman still winds a pearl necklace about her arm for a bracelet while others wear bracelets of fine strands of tiny pearls fastened with a single stone.

And of all rings, the large pearl is quite the best. Many a well dressed woman wears two of them on her little finger—one of a faint pink-like tone—the other a soft smoke grey.

Gold and Silver.

And next in importance to the vogue of pearls is gold and silver. In fact, gold and silver is even more popular—for tailored wear. There are choker necklaces of filigree gold or silver. With these are worn the new gold and silver spiral bracelets.

It is small wonder that evening frocks are very simple for they are almost covered by the hugh feather fans which are quite the most recent aids to chic. They are larger than ever before and most favored when the plumes are gracefully long and uncurled.

The New Gloves.

The pull-on glove, with a carelessly wrinkled wrist, is by all odds the newest and smartest. They have an insouciante, unstudied effect which goes extremely well with the care-free mode of to-day, and they are equally smart with sports or more tailored attire.

A dainty little handkerchief which will complete the charm of many a summertime costume is shaped like flower petals, and is seen in countless gay and gaudy colors. But the handkerchief usually chosen to accompany the smartest frocks, especially in the evening, is of linen unbelievably sheer and fine with the smallest of hand-rolled hems. The gay linen handkerchief is more in the realm of sports and tailored wear.

Purses Are Still Flat.

The flat purse is still the newest purse. A very clever version is seen for tailored wear, which is a flat leather purse on a tiny metal frame which is so cleverly jointed that it opens out into almost a complete circle, allowing easy access to the innumerable small articles a woman likes to carry.

However, nothing is quite as smart as the leather purse of soft lizard skin with your monogram in silver mounted in one corner.

For more elaborate occasions, the flat silk purse sometimes in bright colors or gaily embroidered and others exquisitely trimmed with petit point. But, of course, the luxurious beauty of a softly beaded bag must never be forgotten for it never seems to go out of fashion—especially with the soft and graceful frocks of afternoon.

READ THE WANT ADS.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Many a busy person is apt to look on hobbies as sheer waste of time when he or she is engaged in the business by which they earn their daily bread.

They will tell you scornfully that "So-and-So is mad on moths." "Who-Is-It spends all her spare time messing about with a camera." "This-and-That thinks his garden absolutely 'it.'" And they go on to say that they themselves don't intend devoting their time and thought to anything but their wage-earning occupation.

"Plenty of time for a hobby when I'm retired," you hear.

But hobbies have a funny temper, and it is more than likely when All-Work Jack decides to take one up that he will find they have all banded together, and won't have anything to do with him in his old age.

"Be connected with a person who has lost all zest and has had no experience!" "Allow myself to be picked up by a being who called me 'silly' for years!" "I'll show him!" and so forth.

Providing that it is not ridden to death, so that it becomes a bore to all outsiders and a detriment to the real affairs on hand, a hobby is as great a godsend to the busy person as to the leisured. Whether it be bees, rabbits, gardening, fancywork, curios, or anything else, it is the lever that lifts the hobbyist (to coin a word) out of the groove or ordinary life. It provides an interest when other things fail.

The man or woman who comes home from office or workshop tired and vexed with the happenings of the day, too tired, they are positive to rouse themselves for anything or for anybody, can be seen half-an-hour later, if they happen to be ardent gardeners, chasing the elusive slug that has been having a festive gathering over their young seedlings.

Of all hobbies, gardening and live stock are the most insistent. They care not if the bottom has fallen out of your world, wherein lies their blessedness to you. Attention they demand and must have. Of course, you can hand it over to others, feeling that all you will do from henceforth is eat, drink and just exist, because it would be cowardly to do otherwise; but you will be superhuman if even then you don't bestir yourself when your jobbing gardener "weeds" your crazy stone path and leaves not a vestige of all your little creepers in it, or someone does something similarly tragic.

Let your hobby beckon to you with all its charms, and you, if you respond, will find that, although your world has been badly shaken and bruised, the bottom hasn't fallen right out of it.

So, too, when the time comes that circumstances render it no longer necessary or possible, perhaps, to pursue one's ordinary daily mode of living, with what satisfaction one can reflect that now we can show our friends and neighbours what we really can do at golf, bowls, stamps, beadwork, or whatever happens to have been our recreation in the days of work.

Surely that person must have been sitting down with a hobby about whom Ella Wheeler Wilcox wrote:—

"Fate served me meanly, but I looked at her and laughed,
That none might know how bitter was the cup I quaffed.
Saying, 'I came to see what you were laughing at.'"
So—have a hobby if you can.

SMILE.

Smile, once in a while—
'Twill make your heart seem light,
Smile, once in a while—
'Twill make your pathway bright,
Life's a mirror; as we smile
Smiles come back to greet us;
Frowns forever meet us.

Winter Gone —Warm Days

How good to get in silk socks and low shoes!

But alas, heavy socks have protected our feet during the winter and now they soon become fatigued and blistered.

Blisters usually break, and then there is serious danger of infection. A few drops of

"The Story of Petroleum"

A famous film

The fascinating story of a substance more valuable than gold, explained and demonstrated by W. A. P. Schorman, Petroleum Engineer, to be shown at

at 8 p.m.

PETROLEUM—the name that means life or death to the nations—the possession of which means supremacy or servitude in war or commerce.

Petroleum—a product that is of vital interest to every man, woman and child in Canada.

See how prehistoric animal and vegetable matter has been transformed into petroleum, the 20th Century wonder product.

How the pioneers locate the likely deposits of petroleum bearing sands. How they raise the derricks and sink the shafts. How they blast out the oil pockets. How gushers act. How the oil is pumped up from hundreds of feet below. How it is stored. How they lay pipe lines across hills, valleys or rivers. How the oil is forced through hundreds of miles of pipe lines to refineries far distant from the producing wells.

How the "Go Devil" chases dirt out of the pipe lines. How the oil is received at the refineries and how by many distilling and refining processes, calling for vast and costly mechanical equipment, they produce gasolene, benzine, lubricating oils, fuel oils and petroleum coke, all from the original "crude".

Admission is FREE but by Ticket Only.

Tickets may be obtained while they last from our Peterboro dealers: Story & Webster, B. W. Manning, House's Garage, Dawson & Johnson. Look for the British American Oil Pump.

Come and bring your growing boy or girl. You'll be glad you did.

DRESSETERIA IS ADDED TO LIST

Self-Service Idea Has a Try-Out in the Dry Goods Zone.

PICK YOUR OWN

"Serve yourself, my child." The call reaches twentieth century men and women and carries them back to a time when no service could be had. The forefathers of "us moderns" did serve themselves, it is said. In their homes they produced what they ate and what they wore. From that state of being civilization promoted man until, if he still laced his own shoes and chewed his own food, he was required to do few of the other chores of living for himself.

But the pioneer spirit of independence did not lie. Louder and louder rings the slogan, chanted anew, "Serve yourself."

It is a case not of each man producing for himself, but rather of each procuring with as little aid as possible what another has produced. The self-service idea got a running start when some one conceived the notion of eliminating restaurants waits. People soon got used to picking up their trays and picking out their food for themselves. They joined the quickly moving cafeteria crowds, ever filing past steam tables and hot coffee urns.

The cafeteria cleared the way for the groceteria. Market baskets came back when automobiles had been invented to carry them. Housewives took their baskets on their arms and made their way among the canned-goods shelves at the new sort of grocery store. They read price tags and picked out stuff for themselves, checking out as they passed the cashier's desk and carrying the load home.

The "terias" spread as fast as mankind can invent slot machines. For a nickle, a penny or a dime any one may serve himself with a shoe shine, a whiff of perfume or a stick of chewing gum. He may gain admission to many places, see many sights and buy many things without the need of a person to stand by. The self-service spirit breaks out in a fresh place ever and anon.

A Self-Service Shop.

The dresseteria is the latest to make its bow on Broadway. It is crowned with success, it is said, and has been eagerly copied elsewhere. The dresseteria is a shop where a woman does o wearing apparel what in the cafeteria she has learned to do for a meal and in the groceteria for household supplies. She helps herself all along to whatever she likes and pays on the way out.

The shopper enters at the centre of the store and checks at the door whatever parcels she may have. About her is a dense undergrowth of frocks of every hue—coats, skirts, blouses and furs—hung thickly on long racks that take up most of the room. Each rack bears a price placard· its contents are expected to speak for themselves. The shopper runs through them, examines, picks and rejects. So far she may not have been addressed by a soul. Girls stand near, it is true· but no saleswomen are there—only attendants to look after stock and direct customers to the racks that they wish.

"This is wonderful quality."

"That is excellent style."

"This suits you perfectly."

"That is a dream."

No such comments as these are heard from shopeteria girls. Their conversation by rule is confined to a statement of size and price. The garment and the customer, between them, effect the sale.

When a customer has selected a frock that she likes, self-service becomes a little less strict. In one of the fitting rooms some one may assist her into the dress. If she decides to take it, she carries it herself to the cashier and pays, receiving a wrapping stub in return for her cash. The parcel is handed over at the showing of this stub, which is kept as a pass to get by the man at the door.

In the self-service store, work is reduced to the minimum. Stamping machines take the place of hand-writing on slips, and the color of cards further simplifies the sale.

This chart tells, in sufficient form, exactly when, where and what to plant, and almost anything else a gardener would want to know about 50 varieties of garden flowers and plants.

It is good at any time, Professor Flint, the maker, explains how it can be used:

"Consult the chart in regard to the number of days it takes from sowing to blooming of any particular plant. Compare this length of time with the time of your growing season, based on the time elapsing between the last killing frost of spring and the first of fall. This data can be obtained from your local weather bureau.

"Turning to the chart you can pick out the annual flowers that can be expected to grow in your season. Other plants, of course, will need protection and in the colder section fall planting of seed cannot be resorted to. Perennials can be used and protected in the colder sections by mulches or leaves or manure."

Cut out the chart and paste it on cardboard for reference. Look for today's article entitled "Your Garden."

YOUR GARDEN

This is the first of The Examiner's Spring and summer series of gardening articles, written by an expert horticulturist. In other columns of this issue will be found a useful chart for the Gardener's use. Other articles will follow, two or three every week.

If there is any question on horticulture you would like to have answered, address your enquiries to "The Garden Editor" and answers will be given as quickly as possible. Settle your garden problem through The Examiner service.

At this season of the year the enthusiastic gardener is just itching to be doing something about the home grounds and in the garden.

The paths and roads will be dry early and these should be edged and put in shape. A very good edging tool with a cutting disc may be purchased which does efficient and rapid work. Measure the width of the road carefully and line the edges up accurately. Use a garden line pegged at frequent intervals especially on curves, and cut off just a wide enough slice to nicely catch the edging tool. A high edge will break off in pieces very accurately and the sod right on the road is much better. Also a slight slope backwards towards the lawn is preferable to a straight vertical cut.

As soon as the lawns are dry enough to work over without damage, commence clearing up all the debris. Branches, sticks and left over leaves should all be removed. Rake off the roughest part of the manure from the lawn and spread the finer parts thoroughly. Then roll with a heavy roller. Care should be taken to do this just at the right time or more harm than good will result, especially on clay soils.

Spading or forking around the shrubbery and in the perennial border may be attended to as soon as the ground is sufficiently dried out for working. Care should be taken, however, not to disturb any of the spring flowering bulbs. Any areas to be planted with annuals should be given an application of well rotted manure and dug. The most important points to watch are, to dig early and to thoroughly break down the soil by raking so that the ground will become firm and will not readily dry out. Care on these two points will conserve the moisture in the soil.

Any mulch should be removed from the roses, perennials or bulbs before growth starts. With roses especially the mulch should be removed gradually, so that the plant will receive no shock. If the bushes or climbers are planted against a wall with a warm southern exposure, extra care will be needed to see that they do not sprout ahead of time. Examine such at the earliest possible moment, loosen up the covering and endeavor to harden them off as soon as possible. Should pale sprouts develop three or four inches, care should be taken to avoid burning by the sun and consequent loss of the sprouts. These will not seriously hurt the plant, however, and the succeeding growth will be quite satisfactory. With care though they can be brought through, greened by exposure to the light and hardened satisfactorily. A good idea is to remove all the litter and replace just sufficient to lightly cover them until hardened. To help out, the cover may be removed during the day and replaced at night.

A general thinning out and removal of old wood (branches) may be given shrubs at this time if they really need it. That is if they are not blooming well or getting leggy (the bases showing bare or smaller branches and foliage). With the early flowering shrubs, however, a certain amount of bloom will be lost for the season. Do not prune for the sake of cutting into the shrub and avoid shearing shrubs to a flat top or pruning to any formal rounded shape.

When shrubs cannot be manured, a good complete fertilizer should be applied. A mixture of four pounds nitrate of soda, eight pounds phosphoric acid and six pounds of potash will be found satisfactory. Apply at the rate of one-half to one pound of this mixture to each shrub, depending on its size.

Spraying.

Watch for scale (Oyster shell) on lilac, cotoneaster and dogwood particularly. Also any fruit trees or closely related species, as the flowering plums, Japanese Quince, etc. They may be seen with the naked eye, moving about on the branches. This is the only time they may be destroyed on ornamentals. Spray the whole bush or tree with one gallon of commercial lime sulphur to 10 gallons of water, using a strong pressure and applying the liquid until the branches drip.

As soon as the leaf buds of the Snowball (Viburnum opulus sterilis) and the High Bush Cranberry (Viburnum opulus) begin to burst, watch out for green aphids. These little insects suck the sap from the leaves and tender twigs, causing them to curl badly which is a decided disfigurement. The spray must be applied before the leaves curl or it will be of no avail.

Use Black Leaf Forty (a commercial tobacco preparation), one ounce to twenty gallons of water, with ½—2 lbs. whale oil soap as a sticker. If the first spray is not successful apply again in a day or two. In a bad season it may be necessary to spray several times to check the pest. If, however, the first spray is applied at the right time it should be sufficient or at most, two sprays.

UNPAID TAXES NEARLY $12,000

Finance Committee Recommends Restoration of Judge Huycke's $300 Salary.

TALK BANK RATES.

The interest rate on the city's money came in for considerable discussion at the finance meeting of the Council last night. A letter was read from the Bank of Montreal giving the same terms as last year of 6% on borrowed money and 4% on credit balances. The bank collects taxes, pays the City's coupons, and has the custody of the City Trust Securities. They make no extra charge for all these services.

The Mayor reported that he had conferred with Mr. Martin, manager of the local branch, in an attempt to get a lower rate, but he had said that, with all the extra service, the bank was getting less than 6% and they could not reduce the interest charged without reducing the rate paid. Several of the Aldermen thought that as the amount borrowed was much more than the amount credited, they should take the lower rate, but the Mayor pointed out that the City Trust and Utilities Commission had considerable deposits which would be affected by the change. The Treasurer will be asked to bring in a statement showing how much was paid to the bank and how much the City got.

On motion of Alderman McIntyre and Greene, Judge Huycke's salary, as chairman of the Police Commission, was restored to $300.

W. J. Green, Tax Collector, reported that about $12,000 was still outstanding on the 1924 roll. The poll tax last year realized $2,535.

Choir Asks for Grant.

A letter was read from the Male Voice Choir asking for a grant of $200. Alderman Crowe suggested that members of the Council should visit the Symphony Orchestra, which he classed as the best musical organization in the city. He asked that the matter be left over till the next meeting, which was done.

A letter was read from the City Treasurer that a by-law be passed authorizing the payment of grants to the Exhibition Board, Health Association, and others which were included in the estimates. A motion to this effect was carried.

A letter was read from Mr. Roche, of Port Hope, asking for a reduction in the license fee for peddling fish. The request was refused.

Arbitrators Named.

A by-law was received from Ed. M. Elliott, appointing Geo. B. Nichols as arbitrator for the county to settle the appointment of the cost of justice between the city and council.

It was moved by Mayor Turner that E. H. D. Hall be representative for the city. The motion passed.

A letter was read from the Municipal Electric Association asking for membership. This will be left to the Utilities Commission.

A letter was read giving the amount owing by the city for maintainance on the provincial highway as $657.27. This is due in August, and will be dealt with in July.

A letter was read from the Ontario Municipal Association asking for co-operation and membership at a fee of $50.

Alderman Crowe wished to know if both Dominion and Provincial Associations were worthy of support. Aldermen Greene and Jones moved that membership be renewed. Alderman Phelan said that Peterborough was the only city which had been a member of the Canadian Association continuously since its inauguration.

The Canadian Deep Waterways Association asked for the city's support in their campaign for development of the St. Lawrence. The letter was received.

A picture of Peterborough as a village will be given to the Public Library to hang up where the public can see it.

A number of indigent patient accounts were passed. One from New Liskeard was refused, as the patient had left Peterborough in May, 1924.

Keep Strong and Healthy.

Sufferers from Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Headache frequently are uncertain as to the remedy they need.

Experience has shown them that harsh purgatives if not positively harmful, give no permanent help.

In the Spring season it is particularly necessary to cleanse the system with a gentle tonic and laxative, restoring stomach and liver to healthty activity. You then look forward to Summer with new vim and energy.

The ingredients of Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets are printed on the label. Doctors and Druggists will tell you that if you require a tonic and laxative they know of no preparation so effective as Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets.

The Dr. Norvall Tablets are sold throughout Canada at 25c. a bottle. If your dealer cannot supply you at once we will mail them to any part of the Dominion or Newfoundland at 25c. a bottle.

HOW TO ADJUST STEERING GEAR

Joints Must Be Well Packed With Grease to Ensure Satisfaction.

BY H. F. BLANCHARD.

One of the first considerations in keeping the steering system in good shape is to keep the joints well packed with grease. The housing holding the reduction gears ought to be packed with a soft grease at least three times a season. It is not necessary to pack the housing so tightly that grease works out at all crevices. Simply pack the housing sufficiently so that the gears will never run dry.

In addition to the gears requiring grease, the ball joints at the ends of the drag link must be cared for. It is almost impossible to keep these joints packed for any length of time when the joints are open, so that the owner ought to be packed more often than the gearing.

But the steering system goes beyond. The ends of the tie rod are fitted usually with pins, and these also must be lubricated. Then the steering knuckle pins must get their share. The average owner is under the impression that the steering system is in operation only when he turns the wheel and therefore he assumes there cannot be much wear. As a matter of fact, the steering parts are constantly moving even when you are driven over what you consider a smooth road. On a rough road, when the steering wheel is held firm, there is a considerable amount of movement to the rest of the system. It is interesting to watch this movement on another car. It is because of this constant moving of the parts that attention to lubrication is so necessary.

Dryness of the steering knuckle pins (sometimes called king pins), will result in hard steering because the pins will bind in the knuckles. Later on they will be entirely too free in the knuckles, with perhaps a binding point at one position of the steering wheel. Knuckle pins dhould be lubricated about once a week.

Adjustment of the steering system should be made with some idea of the location of the wear that is to be compensated for. If the wear exists in the steering knuckle pins, there is no use adjusting the steering gears. Likewise, if the drag link is bent, there is little sense in doing anything but straighten it. In making adjustment always jack up both front wheels so that you can make different adjustments and try each one. This also affords a mean of disconnecting the drag link or tie rod to locate the exact part that needs adjustment, for sometimes the owner finds difficulty in doing this.

Wear in the gears is quite easy to take up, as there usually is an adjusting nut just above the gear housing. This nut when turned gives a firmer mesh to the gears. In the worm and wheel types of steering, only a section of the worm wheel comes in contact with the worm. After the adjustment has been taken up as far as it will go, it is advisable to use the other half of the worm wheel. This is done by disconnecting the steering arm and turning the steering gear shaft one-half revolution. This brings the other half of the worm wheel in mesh with the worm and you put in effect a new steering gear. In disconnecting the steering arm, mark the shaft with chalk or pencil indicating its position. Then you will know more easily when you have turned the worm around to its new position.

In the screw and nut types there are two general types, the split nut and the complete nut. In the split nut type one half the nut moves up while the other half moves down. As they do this they rock a horizontal shaft which imparts the necessary motion to the steering arm. In the complete nut type, the nut travels up and down on the screw and in doing so operates the steering arm by means of a connecting link.

When either of the screw types become so worn that the nut no longer holds the screw but cocks at one position, it is a sign that a new nut ought to be fitted.

Sometimes excessive strain will cause a tooth in the worm gear to chip, or a portion of the screw on the other type. This will be felt at the wheel and may cause binding at one point in the steering.

Steering is, of course, affected by other things besides lubrication and adjustment. If the front wheels are not properly lined up they will have a tendency to scrape across the road surface and this gives the effect of a stiff steering gear. The front tires should be kept well inflated, for when the pressure drops the steering becomes harder.

The alignment of the front wheels ought to be checked twice yearly at least and if an error is discovered it should be corrected by means of tie rod adjustment. The rod may be lengthened or shortened to spread the wheels or to bring them closer at the rear, so that the effective toe-in of the wheels is thus altered.

In most steering systems there is an upper bushing to carry the steering post. This bushing lies between the outer shell and the post that turns. Excessive wear of the bushing will cause the steering wheel to rattle. There is no remedy but to install a new bushing.

Money AT WORK

What general rules can be laid down for purchasing property which is, apparently, good value?

Never be tempted to buy property (lots or buildings) unless you can see your way clear to make the payments regularly upon the property. In estimating whether or not you will be able to make these payments do not take into consideration the income from rentals which the property may rentals which the property may bring unless you are absolutely certain that these rentals can be obtained and obtained regularly.

Often, property does not yield its calculated returns. Hard times come, tenants move out, taxes change, and a great many other things, which make a property owner's life miserable, can happen to cut down or cut off the rentals which you had counted on for making the payments.

Of course, these rules hold only for the man who wishes to be safe and conservative. The speculator who has money to lose and is not afraid to lose it disregards these rules in the hope for high, quick profits for taking high, drastic risks.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

LOUCHEUR BLOC QUITS HERRIOT; CRISIS NEARING

Socialists' Demand For Capital Levy Costs French Premier Radical Left.

POWER DWINDLES.

Friday's Vote of Confidence of No Heartening Significance, Premier Told.

PARIS, April 4. — (Canadian Press).—That political events rapidly are developing toward a crisis from which the only issue will be dissolution of the Cabinet and new elections was the prediction last night of impartial observers versed in Parliamentary affairs.

The Senate openly favors the stand of Etienne Clementel, who resigned the portfolio of Minister of Finance Thursday night, in his controversy with Premier Herriot. A great majority of the Senators sympathize with the former Finance Minister, express regret over his resignation and comment on the Premier's intervention in far from complimentary terms.

The Chamber of Deputies so-called vote of confidence of 530 against 25 given the Herriot Ministry yesterday was absolutely without significance, for M. Maginot, leader of the Opposition, laid emphasis on the fact that, while his followers were voting in favor of the Government's proposal for a postponement of discussion of the interpellation on financial questions until the Government's new bills were laid before the Chamber, under no circumstances should the vote be construed as implying confidence "in this moribund Government."

Herriot Making Fight.

M. Herriot was a busy man Friday afternoon, appearing before friendly political groups and making a determined fight. But all indications last night, from the viewpoint of the political observers, are that the political structure erected by the Left parties in the May 11 elections is cracking.

Premier Herriot since Thursday has lost his Minister of Finance and forty-one members of his majority in the French Chamber of Deputies. He has found another man, Senator Anatole De Monzie, to grapple with the formidable task of unravelling French finances, but keen political observers of nearly all parties are of the opinion that the Premier will have a hard time filling up the gap in the ranks of his supporters.

Added to other difficulties a break in the coalition that has been solidly back of the Premier occurred yesterday when the group known as the "radical left," led by Louis Loucheur, decided it could no longer support the policies of the Herriot Government.

Split On Capital Levy.

M. Loucheur had already hinted he would abandon the coalition ship, even before he refused the portfolio of Finance Thursday. It is understood that his decision, in which all the members of his group concur, is due to the tendency of the Herriot Government to look with favor on a capital levy.

The deflection of the Loucheur group will bring the Government's coalition strength in the Chamber down to the neighborhood of 300 out of a total of 584 members, which is a smaller margin than many preceding have required to remain in power.

Change On Vatican.

The Minister of Interior, M. Chautemps, announced after the Cabinet meeting Friday that the Ministers had decided to abandon the paragraph in the budget which by reducing appropriations for maintenance of the French representative at the Vatican amounted to the suppression of the Embassy there. Strong pressure is being brought to bear on the irreconcilables of the Socialist group to induce them to accept this change of front, in order to make it possible for the Government to put through its financial measures, which largely were inspired by the Socialist leaders, Leon Blum and Vincent Auriol.

Foremost among its projects, the Herriot Government is expected to propose a capital levy, details of which are still incomplete, according to the best official information, but which it is said will be limited in duration.

The prices realized were very satisfactory, the whole consignment averaging over $100 a head. The highest priced cow brought two hundred and thirty-five dollars and was the consignment of A. J. Tamblyn of Orono and purchased by F. Hubbs of Picton.

Wilford Elson bought a fine cow, consigned by R. R. Stevens, Bowmanville. The highest priced bull brought two hundred and twenty-five dollars, this was a six months old calf, consigned by L. C. Snowden of Bowmanville and bought by the Whitby Hospital.

MILLBROOK TALKS OF NEW INDUSTRY

Oil Burner Company Wants $15,000 Stock Taken Before Locating.

MILLBROOK, April 4.—F. G. Clark, Industrial Commissioner, of Toronto, was in town on Tuesday, and met with the reeve and council to discuss with them a business proposition having reference to the Rotary Steam Oil Burner Company locating here, if suitable arrangements can be made.

The firm is a new one, making its initial venture in the commercial world, and is capitalized at $40,000, of which $15,000 would have to be subscribed locally, should the proposition submitted be taken up.

The high taxes and cost of plant in larger centres are leading manufacturers to consider locating in smaller places. The Company would employ fifty men to begin with, and the senior member of the firm, Mr. Fauder, is anxious to come and give a demonstration of the device to be manufactured—an appliance to be attached to furnaces using oil as fuel in place of coal.

The council will give the matter definite attention at its regular session next Monday evening, April 6th. The initial expense may possibly prove a deterrent factor to further action in the matter.

Successful Dance.

A number of the young people of the town enjoyed a dance in the town hall on Wednesday evening, the gentleman outnumbering the ladies on this occasion.

Excellent music was furnished by an orchestra composed of A. Stagg of Port Hope, and H. Cardwell saxophone; H. Rogers, violin; and Harold Moncrief, piano. Miss Myrtle Russell relieved Mr. Monterief at the piano during part of the evening.

One of the most enjoyable social events of the season is reported by all present, and the thanks of the young folk are extended to Mr. N. Gilmour whose kindness made the occasion possible.

Signs of Spring.

Signs of spring are not lacking in the village, the school girls with skipping-ropes, and the boys with marbles, while children of all ages play jacks on the pavement in more than one happy-hearted group, now the snow has cleared away, giving proof that winter's sway is definitely ended.

H. Lord, whose market garden is one of the earliest and best in the vicinity, has cabbages, cauliflower, celery, Brussells sprouts, tomatoes, etc., up over two inches in his hot beds, and a large variety of flower seeds showing equal growth as well. The frames are left uncovered in the daytime when weather permits, and the glass put in place over night.

Mr. Lord planted his sweet peas in the garden on Thursday, which is about two weeks later than last year. His onion beds are ready and will be planted this week.

Russell Smith, and family, have moved this week to the house on Main street owned by Russell Bros. Councillor T. J. Lang has purchased the residence at the east of which Mr. Smith was tenant. There will probaby be a turn-over of this property in the near future, Mr. Lang being noted for his brisk buying and selling in local real estate deals.

Quarterly Meeting.

The last quarterly meeting of the Methodist Sunday School executive, before the United Church comes into being on June 10th, will be held on Tuesday, April 7th, in the basement of the church. To mark the occasion the gathering will take the form of a banquet, the husbands and wives of the members being included in the invitations to attend. About fifty guests are expected to sit down to supper at 7 p.m.

The regular business session in connection with the annual meeting will be held immediately following the supper, and will be conducted while seated round the tables, instead of the formal manner in which the executive usually meets.

It is hoped there will be a full attendance for this the final business and social gathering under the name "Methodist", which will be merged in the term "United Church" within the next three months.

H. Tate, 4th Line, Cavan, who is usually one of the first farmers in this vicinity to begin the season's work, has already sowed clover on his fall wheat fields, and expects to start seeding the beginning of next week.

Jas. Peel is among the first of the local citizens to purchase a new car this season, W. G. Rowland being the sales' agent. W. Thorne has also bought a new model, F. W. Smith being sales' agent.

Lang and Madill shipped a carload of mixed stock, cattle and hogs, to Toronto on Monday from Millbrook and Frazerville.

Russell Beatty, of Port Hope, was a business visitor in town on Wednesday.

SPRING AT LAKEFIELD

Housecleaning and Spring Plowing Are Certain Signs.

LAKEFIELD, April 4—The more enterprising housewives of the village have begun their spring cleaning and the clothes lines, which for so many months are used for the snowy product of the weekly wash, now are showing every known hue as rugs, carpets, curtains and bedding, appear for their bi-annual airing. In spite of the popularity of the vaccum cleaner the noise of the carpet beater is heard persistently in the superceding the buzz of the sawing machines, whose season is now nearly past.

Spring plowing has begun on the higher land; the farmers are glad to be getting on their land so much earlier than last season which was unusually late.

RARE OPERATION ON KINGSTON VET

Thoracoplasty or Resection of Ribs Was Successfully Performed.

(Special to The Examiner)

KINGSTON, April 3.—One of the first operations of its kind was performed at the general hospital here yesterday by Dr. Archibald of Montreal. The operation, which is known as "thoracoplasty" is a resectiure of the ribs on one side of the chest to allow the lung to be collapsed. It was necessary for Dr. Archibald and Dr. Frederick Etherington, of this city, who assisted to take away a portion of the ribs on one side. The patient, who is a soldier of the Soldiers Civil Re-Establishment is suffering from tuberculosis and it was decided that the disease could be cured if the lung, which was effected, could be collapsed. The operation required one hour's time and the majority of the Kingston surgeons were on hand to witness it. Today, it was stated that the patient was doing well. The soldier is a patient at the Mowat Hospital, which is controlled by the Kingston Health Association.

The deceased, who had many friends in this district, was struck by a trolley car on Lake Avenue, Saturday night, and died in St. Mary's Hospital shortly after eight o'clock Sunday morning. He had been employed by his uncle, Mr. James Harrington, who, with his family, will feel the loss keenly. Although he had lived in Rochester but a short time, Harry had won for himself a host of friends, as the many expressions of sympathy and floral tributes would indicate.

He leaves to mourn his loss his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harrington, three sisters, Frances, Maidie and Agnes, and six brothers, Bert, John, Joseph, Thomas, Patrick, and Peter, all of Rochester. The pall bearers were Messrs. Lloyd Statt, Merton Bigler, Aleck Fair, Wm. McGwin, Walter Farrell and Harry Ridmond.

MRS. HAZEL THURSTON

DUNSFORD, April 3—The sad and unexpected death of Mrs. Hazel Thurston at the Ross Memorial Hospital on Saturday, March 28th, evoked expressions of keen regret from a host of friends in the district. The deceased had been unwell for several days, but her illness did not assume a serious phase until the day prior to her death. Despite all that medical science combined with the care and attention of the nursing staff of the hospital could do in her behalf she passed to her eternal rest, death resulting from an abscess of the brain.

The late Mrs. Thurston, whose maiden name was Edna Emeline Richardson, was born in the Township of Drummond, County of Lanark, on February 25th, 1890, and was the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson. She received her education at Lanark High School and later at Toronto Normal. She taught school for ten years and was most successful in her chosen profession. For two year she was teacher at Scotch Line School, Verulam township, and during that period earned the love and esteem of everyone in the district. On Sept. 3rd, 1918, she was united in marriage to Mr. Hazel Thurston of Dunsford. The deceased was a member of the Dunsford Methodist Church, was a regular attendant at the services and took a deep interest in all Christian activities. She possessed an amiable and lovable disposition and in all her relations exemplified the highest type of Christian character, and the ideal wife and mother.

The late Mrs. Thurston leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing husband, Hazel G. Thurston and one child, Phyllis; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson, Lanark; five sisters, Mrs. L. A. Warren of Winnipeg; Mrs. R. M. Tameson of Perth; Mrs R. F. Macfarlane, Pakawki, Alberta; Georgina of Dunsford and Irene at home.

The funeral took place on Monday, March 30th, from the family residence, Greenhurst, to the Dunsford cemetery, and was an impressively sad one. A large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends gathered at the home where the funeral services were held, conducted by Rev. J. A. Carmichael and afterwards followed the remains to their last resting place. The pall-bearers were: Wm. Arnott, Walter Kennedy, Martin Thurston, Milburn Thurston, Milton Thurston, Pertram Thurston.

The many beautiful floral tributes spoke eloquently of the love and esteem in which the deceased was held. These included: broken circle, Daddy and Phyllis; pillow, mother and father of deceased; spray, mother and father (Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Thurston); spray, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Warren, Winnipeg; anchor, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. MacFarlane, Pakowki; broken wheel, Georgina and Irene; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kennedy; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Thurston; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Arnott and family; sheaf, Midland Chapter 94, Lindsay; wreath, Mr. Sam Thurston and Wallace; spray, Mr. J. C. Thurston and family; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Thurston and Milburn; spray, Ethel, Myrtle, Garnette; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Thurston; crescent, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Agnew and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Helme; wreath, Mr. Kenneth Griffin, Bobcaygeon; spray, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Watt and family, Perth; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Will Arnold, Toronto; wreath, Methodist Sunday School; wreath, Dunsford Curling Association; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall, Toronto; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Maurs; spray, Mrs. T. Kingsboro, and family; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Algar, Lindsay; spray, Mr. and Mrs. T. Arnold, Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kennedy; crescent, Mrs. Moore and Miss Lintick, Lindsay; spray, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Skitch; spray, Mr. and Mrs. John Glass, Lindsay; spray, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. BIRTH CONTROL CLINIC RELATES ITS SUCCESSES

First Five Thousand Applications Tabulated to Show Results.

NOT ALL NEGATIVE

(United Press)

LONDON, April 3—Those critics who assert that a public birth control would disseminate among young girls knowledge which would pave the way to immorality, are rebuked by Dr. Marie Stopes in a little book entitled "The First Five Thousand" describing the work of her birth control clinic in a poor district in London.

Careful records of every case, says Dr. Stopes, were kept by the trained nurses in charge of the clinic.

These records, she says, show that of "the first five thousand" girls and women who consulted the clinic:

4,946 were married women,
2 were unmarried mothers

52 were girls about to be married and who had to go abroad immediately or into lodgings where the immediate advent of a baby would be undesirable.

But the above figures include a number of childless wives who wished to know how to have children, not how to avoid them.

"A number of our cases," says Dr. Stopes, "in fact an increasing number, are of childless wives who come to us for advice about how to have children.

"That's what the clinic is for—to teach birth control and by control we mean control. We mean not merely the repression of lives which ought not to start, but the bringing into the world of healthy, happy, desired babies."

But simultaneously with the publication of Dr. Stopes' account of her first 5,000 cases comes the annual report of the Registrar-General of Vital Statistics showing that the public is learning birth-control faster than any single clinic can teach it.

The Registrar-General says that the number of births in Great Britain is steadily declining.

1924 170,995
1923.. .. .. .. 178 423
1922.. 176,313

The birth-rate, 17.5 per 1,000 living, is the lowest for any December qquarter except the war years 1918 and 1919.

DENY PRESENCE AT KIDNAPPING

Men Charged With Attempt to Abduct Indian Girl Plead Alibi.

BOMBAY, April 4. — Most of the nine men who are charged with attempting to abduct Mumtaz Begum Mustapha, the beautiful Indian Nautch girl, once a favorite of the Maharajah of Indore, pleaded through their counsel at yesterday's session of the trial that they could prove that they were not at the scene of the alleged outrage on January 12, referred to as the date of the kidnapping.

Anand Ras Phansa, adjutant general of the Indore state forces, one of the accused, made a statement that it was his understanding that the girl was anxious to return to Indore after she had made her escape from the Maharajah's household, but was being forcibly detained by Abdul Kadir Baula, a wealthy Mohammedan merchant, in whose home she had taken asylum.

CAVAN, April 3.— The annual meeting of the Cavan Ladies' Aid was held in the basement of the church on Thursday afternoon. The number of ladies present exceeded a score.

The president, Mrs. R. Matchett, conducted the meeting. After the devotinal exercises and business items arising from the minutes of the last meeting, the annual election of officers took place.

Then slips were distributed, each having a proverb written on it. When these parts were put together, the two ladies who had them were partners in a "cake" contest.

Measles Epidemic.

There has been an epidemic of measles among the children of the Whitfield school section. The attendance has been very small. This folowing so soon after mumps had been through the school, has been a serious handicap to the teacher and the pupils in their work.

Mrs. Harry Gardiner has returned to her home at North Battleford, after an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Elliott and other friends here.

Mr. D. White is in Cavan Centre district finishing up his season's work. Circular sawing machines, bees are the order of the day just now.

WAR VETERANS DO WELL AS FARMERS

Soldier Settlement Board Reports Good Results—Many Loans Repaid.

OTTAWA, April 4.—(Associated Press).—Former soldiers of the Dominion's war-time armies to the number of 30,604 have been established on farms of their own, according to the report of the Soldier Settlement Board.

Of this total 24,143 have been granted loans, some as high as $7,500 each, according to the report, and the remainder have been given grants of Dominion land without loans. A total of $103,150,098 has been spent for land, clearing, permanent improvements and stock equipment. Veterans already have returned $19,000,000 to the Government in repayment of principal and in interest on loans.

"The majority of the soldier settlers have made good on the farm," said the report. "Those who had no agricultural experience have been trained in special schools. Field supervisors of the Soldier Settlement Board visit the veterans at intervals, superintend their farming operations and give them practical help.

"The Department of Soldiers' Civic Re-establishment reported an average expenditure of $50,000,000 a year on soldiers' pensions, hospital treatment for the disabled, vocational education and unemployment relief."

PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE ROMAN CHURCH

Has Done Good Work in Latin Countries, Says Bishop McConnell.

MONTEVIDEO, April 4.—(Associated Press).—A tribute to the evangelistic and social service efforts of the Roman Catholic Church in South America was paid by Bishop Francis J. McConnell, resident bishop of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in a report prepared by the Commission on Church and Community for presentation to the Congress on Christian Work in South America.

"The Roman Catholic Church, which is the Christian organization which from the commencement has had the care of these Latin American countries, doubtless had not in its mind the embracingly social duty which is implicity in the ideal of the Kingdom of God," said the report. "Neither did the church of the reformers conceive this, for it is a modern ideal, the fruitage of the studies due to the progressive discovery of the spirit which animated primitive Christianity.

"Nevertheless, the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America has done a very appreciable work in the sense of forming the character of the creole populations, especially by means of its teaching establishments its moral influence being particularly appreciable among women.

"The Roman Catholic Church has labored in favor of the civilization and Christianization of the wild peoples (primitive races) and of the imported negroes, although, in countries such as Peru and Bolivia, the civilizing work has been precarious, and, even to-day leaves much to be desired.

"In these latter days, the Catholic Church has taken on a social outlook. It produced, in the last century, such men as Lamarmais, Graty and Pope Leo XIII. In Argentina, as in Chile, this tendency is opening a path to-day with men such as Edwards, de Andrea, Francheschi.

"From a recognition of these points the organizations affiliated with the Committee on Co-operation in Latin America should be able to deduce that the best chance of advancing Christianity in these countries, will be found in assisting to intensify the sociological drift of the Roman Catholic Church, which is the spiritual power of the greatest traditional prestige at work in these countries.

QUESTION HOUR IN PARLIAMENT

MINISTERS REPLY

LONDON, April 3. — (United Press.)—A British cabinet minister gets a good salary but in return for it he has to answer the most extraordinary questions of any statesman in the world.

On the other hand, your British member of Parliament rarely or never drafts a bill, but applies all his energy and acuteness to searching out the weak spots in the Government of the British Empire and asking in the House of Commons the most devilishly tormenting questions about the aforesaid weak spots.

This has the curious result of making the House of Commons—almost alone of parliamentary bodies—begin each day's session with its maximum attendance which gradually dwindles as "question hour" passes and the Government, having passed through the fiery furnace of these tormenting questions, resumes its more or less stately course.

Any Government that tried to shorten the "question hour" or to evade more than a small proportion of the qquestions asked of it, would be overturned in fifteen minutes by an indignant house.

The Prime Minister would be obliged to resign, so widespread would be the indignation.

The Magna Charta is more or less moth-eaten in spots, but "qquestion hour" in the House of Commons has taken its place in the affections of Englishmen as the "bulwark" of the unwritten British Constitution.

These questions are printed daily and each M.P. picks up a copy as he hurries to his seat. About two-thirds of them are marked for "oral reply," which means that the minister under whose jurisdiction the question comes, has to rise from his place on the Government bench, face the house and answer it.

Ordinarily he has to answer it very seriously. If he attempted to be facetious, the House would be instantly annoyed. Once in a blue moon a minister succeeds in giving a witty answer to his tormenter, but he must do it with that blank expression, that air of elaborate solemnity, with which the clever Englishman masks his wit.

But any under-secretary can attract the attention of the Prime Minister and rise to greater and greater heights if he displays skill and political sense in the ways he answers these questions because his job is, at one and the same time, to conciliate the House and to hide if possible the Government's blundres and weaknesses.

Government Control Of Trade a Failure

MOSCOW, April 4. — Far-reaching decisions affecting the future economic policy of Russia, were taken yesterday by the council of labor and defence. Finding complete government control of trade and industry was a failure, the council meeting of which Leo Kameneff, the acting premier, was chairman, decided to invite private capitalists to enter trade.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Editor, The Examiner.

Sir,—The opinion of the Divine origin of our present-day time still prevails, and in numerous articles appearing in your paper the fallacy of this has not been brought out.

Solar time might justifiably be termed "Divine," but our present-day clock time is absolutely man-made. In the older civilizations and the days of sun-dials the time of day was told by the sun's shadow, but nowadays a convention is adopted and clock time based on the sun's reaching its daily highest point in the heavens at Greenwich, England (which time is correct only for points situated on the same meridian as Greenwich). The breadth of the American Continent is so great that one time is not suitable (Vancouver would have a four hours longer evening than St. John), so that the clock is put back an hour approximately every fifteen degrees.

Refer to a map of Canada and United States and you will see that Peterboro is just half-way (as regards longitude) between New York and Detroit. This latter city uses Central time, which is one hour behind Standard (Eastern) time as used in New York. Peterboro is therefore half an hour behind New York (as regards sunshine) and would be half an hour ahead of Detroit if this latter town did not put back its clocks. Being as this change is made at this town, Peterboro is therefore also half an hour behind Detroit (behind all the time!) If, therefore Peterboro approved retarding the clock it would only mean that we would be a half-hour ahead of these two cities.

These two cities, however, use daylight saving time for the summer months, so that we in Peterboro would then still be half an hour behind them if we made the change, otherwise we would be an hour and a half.

If cities like these normally get a half hour's extra daylight in the evening more than we, and adopt summer-time also, making it one hour and a half, why should we be content to lose it.

Let's get back to Nature.

Yours faithfully,
PAUL MANNING.

BEAUTIFYING HOMES

G. E. Moore Speaks on Horticultural Work at Lyceum.

Mr. G. E. Moore of Toronto, governmental expert on horticultural matters, gave an interesting illustrated lecture yesterday afternoon in the assembly hall of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum attended by about five nundred school girls and boys, pupils of St. Peter's High School and the Entrance classes. A large number of slides gave the audience an idea of what has been accompfished in the beautifying of homes and grounds, the subject of Mr. Moore's address.

By beautifyng his premises, the farmer gains financially, Mr. Moore asserted. The tourists who pass by are attracted by the appearance of his grounds and are more ready buyers of produce or even of the premises themselves.

The beautifying of towns and their surroundings is becoming a more general practice. Even the towns of Northern Ontario, such as Cochrane and Timmins, are engaging in competitive rivalry in such things.

FOOD SCARCE.

WINNIPEG, April 4.—(Canadian Press).—The world may become overpopulated in the comparatively near future, said Mazyck H. Ravenel, M.D., of the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo., last night, when delivering the Gordon Bell memorial lecture at the University building. Dr. Ravenel discussed the subject, the prolongation of life, "to what goal is it leading?"

Dr. Ravenel said there are two facts evident to the most casual observer, that we are saving more lives than ever before in the history of the world.

"At the least," Dr. Ravenel stated, "it required 25,000 years to produce 850,000,000 in the world, but only 100 years to double that number. The third generation from ourselves would see a world population of seven thousand millions, or two thousand millions more than the estimated number the world can produce food for."

Speaking of the lessening birthrate now common to most civilized countries, Dr. Ravenel said the best stocks were not reproducing themselves in proportiron to the poorer ones. As for birth control, he said there was no question that the movement had gained the support of many biologists, eugenists, physicians and not a few clergymen.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

BIG BUSINESS VS. HAPPY HOMES.

Mr. Editor: I hardly think the good people of this city realize the far-reaching effect of the city council's decision to allow the British-American Oil Company to erect their gasoline tanks in East City.

These tanks are to be erected along the C. N. R. tracks immediately south of Hunter street, in the heart of what should be a good residential section, within a block of three churches and an hospital.

The City Council, when this application came before them, granted the company permission for the erection of their tanks, with evidently little discussion or consideration of the wishes of the residents of the district, and now that the company have started work and the citzens of the district have become awaked to the situation, some if the members of the council quite honestly take the stand they have given their word and cannot go back on it.

In effect they say to us: We are sorry you object to these tanks but we cannot do anything now; we are sorry we are going to depreciate your property and oil the district as a place for happy homes and families, and perhaps make it necessary for you to move to another locality, but we have told the company they can locate there and we are not going back on it. They tell us the company are going to beautify their grounds, keep nice lawns and flower beds around their tanks, so if one of them did happen to explode you and your families can die happy, knowing you are going up with the accompaniment of flowers.

The people of other residential district probably think that they have very little interest in this and it is up to the people of East City to fight it alone; but how about your home? It may be the next to be destroyed. How about the erection of a fertilizer factory on Weller St., or a glue factory in the North End next year. You cannot tell; with men who are looking out not only for the business interests and not the home interests of the city anything is liable to happen, so it is also up to you to take a stand—and now is the time to do it.

It is time for all fair minded men to come to the support of the people of East City and help them win their fight. Yours truly,

EAST CITY.

CONTROL PLANE WITHOUT PILOT

French Inventor Perfects Apparatus to Manoeuvre Planes From Ground.

WORKED BY KEY

(By MINOTT SAUNDERS, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, April 4.—Pilotless planes can be sent into the air, manoeuvred at long distance and great altitudes, brought back and landed intact, according to the claims of French experts at Istres, the big aviation base near Marseilles.

Demonstrations are being planned for inspection and observation by a Government commission, which will study the great possibilities of this new science of air transportation with a view of adopting it to military and naval defence.

These possibilities are unlimited, according to technicians. One foresees a fleet of pilotless planes, loaded with poisonous gas and carrying bombs, speeding in formation over an enemy country and accurately directed by radio signals dictated by an operator whose pawns flew out of sight hours before. These planes, by a touch of that operator's finger, could be nosed over and sent crashing down into a large city in a way that would mean its destruction. It is conceived that this science can easily be developed so that pilotless planes will climb higher that man can do himself, and travel at greater speed than the human system can endure.

A French Invention.

The amazing apparatus is the invention of Max Boucher, former French aviation officer, after ten years of research work and experimentation. During the war he was in command of the big aviation station at Avor, and as early as 1914 he saw the effectiveness of night bombing by airplanes without pilots. His early experiments were discouraged because of stabilization problems and lack of manoeuvrability and this gave him the idea of control by wireless.

During the war, in 1918, M. Boucher at Etampes started the first military group of telemechanic flying. He succeeded in flying a plane automatically stabilized, but at that time could not land it. The war ended and the Government put an end to his work.

The inventor continued his experiments as a civilian, and soon won the support of the Air Ministry. His first successful pilotless flight was realized in 1923, when he sent a plane into the air, directed it through manoeuvres and landed it at will. Now he is asked by the Government commission to direct a 200 kilometre flight over a twisting course and at variable altitudes, and this he is ready to do.

Mr. Boucher's weird machine is called inhumanly human. He claims it is now perfect, after the most arduous labors. He spent one entire year perfecting a single detail of the control system.

Worked by Simple Key.

The operator sits at a switchboard on the ground and the plane is worked by wireless by the simple pressure of keys. Its equilibrium is made automatic by gyroscopes. The engine plant is likewise automatic. The operator flies the plane as he would do if he were in its cockpit. He can make it climb at various angles, dive, turb loop, or anything else that a pilot can do. There are secret devices which M. Boucher is ready to put at the disposal of France.

The feature of the system, said to be of incalculable importance, is a new means of controlling the plane after it has passed beyond the visual range of ground operators. Automatically regulated wireless signals may be sent back from the plane, and these enable the operator to its exact position and altitude, and if he wishes he can alter its course. M. Boucher claims that he can manoeuvre his automatic flyer with such accuracy that—when carrying poison gas—it will be the most fearful engine of destruction which has ever come into the hands of man.

Such automatic planes may be produced rapidly in vast numbers and with engines and air screws adapted to function at immense heights. Fleets of them could be sent out of sight and hearing from the ground, and sent plunging widly at the simple tap of a key.

LOW-COST TRIP TO PACIFIC COAST.

A captivating four-week tour of Western Canada and the Pacific Coast, with a trip through the United States on the return journey, is being planned for Canadian teachers and their friends this summer.

Those who take advantage of this trip will see the greatest scenery on the Continent—the Buffalo herd at Wainwright; Jasper National Park; with its unsurpassed mountain scenery; Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies; the totem poles of Kitwanga, and the mystic beauty of the Skeena River.

At Prince Rupert the party transfers from train to boat for the glorious water trip of 750 miles through the sheltered Scenic Seas of the North Pacific Coast to Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

On the return trip five wonderful days will be spent touring Yellowstone National Park by motor, with a trip to Salt Lake City and three days at Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado. Then it's Denver, Clear Creek Canyon, Idaho Springs and Lookout Mountain before heading for Chicago and Toronto.

The tour leaves Toronto, July 9th, and you cannot afford to miss it. Full information, fares, etc., can be secured with illustrated booklet from A. E. Bryson, 44 Silverthorn Ave., Toronto; Martin Kerr, 4 Beulah Ave., Hamilton, or any Canadian National Railways Agent.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH CONCERT

The annual anniversary concert of St. James Methodist Church was held last evening, and proved a decided success. There were nearly 300 people in attendance in the church, and there was plenty of applause for every number of a well-balanced and attractive programme of choral numbers and vocal and instrumental selections by assisting artists. The songs by the visiting artist of the evening, Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw, basso-cantante, of Detroit, were repeatedly encored, and his appearance was greeted with prolonged applause. Rev. Mr. Richardson acted as chairman.

The choir itself, an aggregation of about thirty-five members, opened the programme with two selections in splendid voice. Led by their youthful director, F. W. Chenhall, they sang in very attractive fashion, with a surprising degree of volume and power. Careful attention to clear enunciation and phrasing, with a rounded, full tone, showed exceptionally good training, and both numbers were accorded hearty applause. Gounod's "Unfold, Ye Everlasting Portals," sacred in tone, and a bright secular offering, "We Rock Away on the Billows Gay," were the opening choral selections. Mr. M. B. Chenhall, Senior acted as accompanist at the organ for the first number, also playing the piano accompaniment for the second.

The programme was varied and interesting, including several vocal solos and quartettes, outstanding among the former being the numbers by Mr. Greenlaw, and violin and 'cello selections by local musicians.

Mr. Greenlaws powerful, rich voice was heard to wonderful advantage in a series of attractive selections. The pleasing timbre of his warm, ringing tones, resonant and full, was splendidly manifested in his first selection, "A Toreador's Love Song," and its lovely encore, a "heart' song of home and mother. Encores also followed the rendition of "A May Morning,' and repeated enthusiasm was accorded the always popular Negro spirituals, two of which sung by Mr. Greenlaw were "Heaven, Heaven,' and "Swing Low" rendered with all the pathetic charm of these folk songs of the dusky peoples of the Old South.

A male quartette, composed of Messrs. Worrall, Pratt, A. Williams and T. Williams, sang "One Fleeting Hour," and Tosti's "Good-bye"; vocal solos, in splendid voice, with encores in every instance, were given by Mrs. E. Kitney, who sang "The Dove," Mrs. Walter Byers, heard in "Spring's Awakening," and Mrs. F. H. Doig, who sang "A Birthday" and "An Open Secret." A mixed quartette, composed of Mesdames Doig and Kitney and Messrs. Turner and Baldry, sang "The End of a Perfect Day" and "Abide With Me."

Special instrumental selections were those by Mr. C. Rusau and Mrs. E. Gilchrist on the violin, the former playing numbers from "Il Trovatore" and "Souvenir,' the latter playing Wieniawski's "Legende" with encore, also 'cello numbers, "Humoresque" and encore, by Mr. R. Farthing.

At the close of the programme, Rev. Mr. Richardson accorded hearty thanks to all those taking part in the programme, and mentioned the special anniversary services on Sunday, at which Mr. Greenlaw will sing.

MOCK TRIAL AT MURRAY STREET

Splendid Entertainment Given by Baraca Class on Sunday School.

Henna Henpeck's Vote.

The mock trial, "Mrs. Henpeck's Vote," held by the Baraca Young Men's Class in Murray Street Sunday School Hall, was a scream from start to finish. The story hinges on the accusation that Hannah Henpeck had been bribed by B. Giles Many to vote as he wished. The stars of the act were Cecil Lapp as Ima Pumpkin and Sherman Preston as Hannah Henpeck. These two characters gave a wonderful exhibition of female impersonation. Ronald Deyell made an imposing Judge, and Harry Baptie was an efficient clerk of the court. The rival attorneys, Noah Heep (Graham Eastwood), for the prosecution, and M. T. Brains (Emmons Crawford), for the defence, were good. Percy Johnson, as Henry Henpeck, sported a black eye all through the production. The part of G. Giles Many, the villain, was played by Ray Purdy, who took the part to perfection. The other characters, Fillup Kegs (Harvey Webber), I. C. Little (Sidney Drury), Owen Bills (George Holman), and Bo Veen (Percy Nicholls) all did good work.

Two solos by Bob Moore and a few remarks by the chairman, Roy White, completed the evening's entertainment.

Mr. Ralph Switzer made a very interesting speech on British Justice.

Alderman Crowe Honored.

Mayor Turner Entertained at Birthday Party for Dean Of Council.

After last nights committee meetings, Mayor J. J. Turner entertained some of the aldermen and city hall staff at a little supper in honor of Alderman Joseph Crowes birthday.

MYSTERY NEAR SOLUTION NOW

Two Did Not Die Simultaneously in London Mansion, Said.

INQUEST TO-DAY.

LONDON, April 4 (Canadian Press). — The mystery of the gloomy old Bloomsbury mansion where Granville Cooke and Selwyn Foster met strange deaths was believed nearer solution today with the conclusion of a post-mortem examination of the bodies. Police are in possession of great accumulation of detail concerning the lives of Cooke, an inventor-poet, and Foster, a young-man-about-town, which it is expected will be presented at todays inquest.

The first suspicion that Foster died several hours before Cooke and from poison rather than from the effects of coal gas from which his companion died, is reported to have been confirmed by the post-mortem examination. The police, however, have not yet revealed whether the indications were that Foster had killed himself or whether the poison was administered by some other person. It is known that Cooke had power of attorney over certain money that would eventually have come to Foster from a trust fund, and the police now have discovered that Foster had also executed another power of attorney to an unnamed London accountant.

CLASS HELD SHOWER

Music for the evening was provided by Mrs. Bugg, Mrs. Deyman and Miss Bacon, songs. Games and dancing were indulged in. Miss Hollings, in a few words, thanked all present for their kindness, and especially Mr. and Mrs. Collis for the use of their home. HER NERVES SO BAD SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

Mrs. Grace Kitchen, St. George, Ont., writes: "After having a severe attack of pneumonia I was left in a weak and run down condition. My nerves were so bad I could not sleep nights, and in the day time I had terrible fainting spells, caused by my heart being weak. Finally I got so bad I had to take to my bed for weeks at a time, but one day I read about so decided to try them.

After taking one box I felt a slight improvement. I have now taken five boxes, and have gained 35 pounds in weight. I am now more than able to do all my own housework as well as considerable outside work. I cannot recommend Milburn's H. & N. Pills too highly for those suffering as I did."

The Financial Outlook From Banker's Viewpoint

An Address to Kiwanis Club by A. J. Reynolds, Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

I see by the circular letter that I am billed to speak to you on the financial outlook from a banker's viewpoint. That was hardly the subject on which I had proposed to talk. I shall briefly deal with this situation in a few sentences in which, generally, I may say that, from a banker's viewpoint, the outlook this spring is probably more hopeful than any similar period in the last five years. Who, for instance, this time last year would have dared to prophesy $2.00 wheat again or the return to parity of pound sterling? You, as business men, of course, all realize the effect a settled political situation by the decisive elections in the United States and Great Britain would naturally have on trade, and then again the fact that the vexed question of reparations has been temporary at least, lulled by the application of the famous Dawes plan is also a contributing factor. It would seem to the writer very desirable in Canada, and that we should have definite political situation established because it is difficult for any Government to carry on with any force on narrow marginal majorities. The banks have lots of money to lend, but, as Sir John Aird, I think, expressed it, it is "timid money." Borrowers are not found with sufficient confidence to hazard the risks attended upon heavy capitalizations with low margins of profit, and then, again, our heavy burden of taxation seems a thing that will have to be adjusted by some method of simplification. For instance, at a recent tax conference one industry found it had to comply with 33 difference tax acts while another one found it had filed 62 different official returns for taxing purposes during the year. The banks themselves are now heavily taxed, and according to a Toronto financial paper, the tax bills of Canadian banks in one year was over $6,500,000. With these brief remarks, and the expression of a view that we have passed the worst and all indications point to a steady normal recovery from now on, I will turn to the subject on which I porposed to address you—that of Canada's Creditable Banking System.

Canada's Creditable Banking System.

We have, in Canada, undoubtedly one of the best systems in the world. I say this advisedly, in spite of the amount of loose thinking and looser talking about it. However, most thinking and informed people realize that with the depressed conditions that have prevailed recently, banking troubles in Canada are comparatively low, and that it is only natural that the banking business, which finances industry, should not prosper where conditions themselves are bad. The world for the past few years has been commercially upset, and the financial foundations of some countries have been seriously disturbed. It is only natural that such should be the case after such an unparalleled world disaster as the Great War, when millions of dollars were destroyed in unproductive purposes every day that it went on. When values of commodities supplying the contending armies were inflated beyond all previous records and given false temporary values. We are now suffering what we might call post-war headache.

Accusations Against Banks.

It seems inevitable in human nature when depressions and misfortune come to look abroad for something on which to blame them, and as our present misfortunes are largely those of monetary conditions, naturally the first thought is to lay the whole blame upon the shoulders of the banking system. During the past five years the most contradictory charges have been levelled. To-day the banks are charged with loaning too much money. A short time back they were accused of not loaning enough. Some accused the banks of giving customers too much advice about their business. Others claim that they did not give enough guidance. Some make the charge that the banks have opened up too many branches and by competition made business unduly expensive. Then there are others who claim that the banks do not serve the country by opening enough branch offices. When a bank opens in a town its citizens urge it to put up a creditable office in which to transact its business, yet on the floor of the House of Commons the banks were strongly criticized for putting their money into expensive buildings. A charge has also been made that banking in Canada is a monopoly. A monopoly implies a special privilege that is held only for a few and which gives very profitable returns. Now the requirements to enter into the banking business in Canada are moderately simple and are open to any who think they can make a success of it, and the charge that banking is gradually falling into the hands of a few of the stronger banks disproves the accusation that banking is profitable, because these mergers have been forced by the discovery that the field for profit in the banking business is exceedingly limited. Moreover, the banking system in Canada is under more direct government supervision than probably any country in the world. It is not controlled by any crowd of capitalists in Montreal or Toronto, as has been asserted, but is under the jurisdiction of the 235 members sitting at Ottawa, who have power to revise the Canadian Bank Act at any session of parliament when they consider abuses of it may need correction.

Comparison with U.S.A.

However, as conditions in Canada and those in the United States are possibly of a more similar nature it is only fair to the Canadian banks to briefly compare the situation. In the United States in the last ten years there were 1895 bank failures, according to Dun's reports, involving $649,000,000 as against seven failures, covering 89 branches, in Canada, involving $2,000,000 assets, or almost three times as heavy in proportion to the population in the United States as in Canada as to amount, and over twice as heavy in proportion to places. In fact, in Lewiston, Montana, a place of 6,000 to 7,000 population, which possessed four banks a year ago, there was none left last spring. Still, the fact that we have even such comparatively little trouble leads us to consider remedies of our present system so that losses may be even further eliminated, and it is my intention to deal briefly with some of the proposed remedies.

Government Banks.

One of the most natural solutions is that Governments take over the banking business of the country. Now, the trouble with Government banks is fairly obvious when one examines it, even superficially. The feature of personal interest and competition is lost, and the danger of politics interfering with candid control is immense, and the result, so far, in most Government banks, has been simply either a locking up of money from the use of the industry and transferring it into Government securities of an unproductive sort, or loose loaning of such a nature that eventually people, on the whole, have to pay in taxes the time the fiddler plays. It speaks a good deal for the common sense of the Alberta farmer Government last year when, on investigating experiments of other Provinces, they decided to shun the Government banking field. The Rural credit system in Manitoba, which has been in operation for only a few years, is credited with amazing losses, and this year showed losses in excess of $500,000 on a principal sum outstanding of $2,726,009. Then it must be also remembered that a Government bank pays no taxes, and the revenue which banks, in the ordinary course, contribute must be made up from some other sources. Moreover, what economic incentive is gained? The Government presumably would pay 3% on deposits and its overhead would be an additional 2½%, the approximate overhead of any banking business, which would mean it was paying 5½% for its money. A Government can float its own bonds cheaper than that to-day, so why should it risk the rather hazardous business of commercial loaning to no profit. What we want to-day is less Government in business and more business in Government.

Guarantee of Deposits.

Another solution that has been pretty well exploded recently was the idea of banks guaranteeing each others deposits, which found a ready reception by the demagogue and the man who lacked investigation into the subject. Where is the money to come from to do the guaranteeing? Surely not from the money of thrifty, capable and honest people who have no responsibility for the frauds or mismanagement. By such system the assets of good will which the strong, well-managed and successful banks of the country have developed, will be entirely lost, and it would practically amount to a confiscation of character and would simply mean placing a premium on bad loans. What would be the object of any bank being properly managed or building a reserve out of profits if the credit for all banks were to be the same, and if such reserve was to be subjected to pay losses by dishonestly managed banks? To attempt to make all banks equally safe by passing a law, it would establish the same credit for the incompetent and dishonest as for the sound and conservative, and, in the long run, lead to disastrous results. No decent, ambitious and honest banker would have any incentive to remain in the business. The whole principle is unmoral. The Canadian banks all have already insurance in the shape of heavy reserve funds. A couple of our banks only recently drew against this insurance to adjust their losses. This guarantee of deposits is not a new thing. It has been tried in some eight of the States in the Union and has been successful in nones The most outstanding cases of failure have been Nebraska and Oklahama. In the State of Oklahama, the quality of banking depreciated so badly under the deposit guarantee system that after fifteen years' experience it has cost the honest state banks and trustful depositors $15,000,000, and the law itself is now thoroughly discredited and was repealed early in 1923, and no good has come except to those who are receiving fees and salaries for its administration. The calls on the fund by failure were so heavy that it has not had a credit balance since 1914, and in the Northwest and the Dakotas it appears likely when the smoke has cleared away, that repeal will also follow.

Home Bank.

There has been a great deal of mud-slinging at the chartered banks on account of the Home Bank failure. I would point out, however, that this failure is not the fault of the Canadian banking system but rather the abuse of it in the hands of unscrupulous men. There was not a real banker in the whole outfit who was behind the wrecking of this institution and, as recent disclosures have shown, bankers alone are not responsible. We have had legislation against murder for years, providing penalties of the most drastic kind, and yet we still have this crime on the calendar, and it must be remembered that as long as human nature is the poor, weak thing that it is in many cases to-day, disagreeable and disgusting disclosures of the nature of the Home Bank wrecking and in the nature of political and social scandals will always be with us. It is not fair to assume, as one public man did recently, that because there was disgraceful management of the Home Bank, that all banks are of the same calibre. There was a Judas even among the apostles, and, with few exceptions, the men at the head of the banking profession in Canada have always been those of the very highest integrity.

Government Inspection.

I have endeavoured, briefly, to show you that the banking system of Canada has creditably withstood the unprecedented hardships of the last five years. I have also dealt very briefly with some of the proposed remedies to it. I have, however, left what I consider the best of these until the last, and that is the proposal of outside Government inspection. Banking in Canada is an evolutionary process, and it is only when mistakes in policy or operation develop we can see any faults, and while, as I stoutly maintain, our system is one of the best in the world, unfortunately the question of the human element always requires supervision and control. A certain amount of provision for Government inspection was made in the 1913 amendments to the Bank Act, but subsequent developments, such as the Merchants Bank fiasco, proved that these were insufficient, so further preventative measures were made in the 1923 amendments, and I would point out that these measures forced the absorption of the Banque Nationale and the failure of the Home Bank. Had the 1923 amendments been in force ten years ago, it is very doubtful if either of these banks would have gone so far on the road to ruin without having been thoroughly checked up long since and a great deal of the damage stopped, in fact, it would have been impossible under the system of Government inspection such as to-day exists. The amendments made in 1923 are of such importance that I record briefly the main changes:

1. Under former Act one auditor, not necessarily a chartered accountant, could carry on shareholders' audit.

2. Now it requires two qualified auditors, not members of the same firm, and they must report, in writing, to each director individually any loans in excess of 1% of the bank's paid up capital that looks risky.

. One of the auditors must be changed each two years.

. An auditor cannot undertake other work coming through the bank he audits, or any of its officers.

In the 1924 session of Parliament a still further measure of Government inspection was put into effect in the appointment of an inspector-general of banks with authority to inspect head offices and with very wide powers.

With these precautions in operation and conscientiously administered, I do not think in the future we need to have any fear of future repetition of, say, the Home Bank disgrace.

Conclusion.

In conclusion, I would say, in the matters of such grave importance to a country's industrial life as banking, "It pays to make haste slowly." In the course of some publicity work in Western Canada during the last year, I saw what I considered distinct trace of an attempt to upset Canada's financial system. Attempts which, I am confident, were fostered by Soviet influence and money. We can well realize how easy social revolution would follow financial revolution, and the world generally is in a state of unrest and upheaval at the present time; so much so, that some authorities have gone so far as to predict the passing of our present civilization. It therefore behooves that every man who has the country's good at heart should carefully weigh the facts before considering the abandonment of tried truths and standards in any industry or line of thought.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

By M. B. LECVICK.

Occasionally the young man would cross the room in the Lexington Avenue basement, to stand in the light of the window, turning over a small object in his fingers. When it was a fine one he sometimes chuckled, and when it was a very fine one his eyes narrowed with the excitement of appreciation. The little objects were precious stones—diamonds, perhaps, and often pearls.

He would look up from a pearl to the street above the basement window. Looking straight ahead he saw only the lower half of mankind—the plaid trousers of men with straps running under the boots, the bustles and flounced skirts of women; tassels bobbing on high shoes which were laced tight about the ankles, and beyond the sidewalk the red wheels of a brougham or the dusty wheels of a hack. At the edge of the sidewalk he saw the trunks of trees whose unseen foliage cooled the red brick and brownstone houses, and across the way a vine bloomed on the iron lacework of an old-fashioned entrance porch.

At whatever hour he chanced to look up there were the passersby to remind him that he was in the New World now, in New York, a city of a million people. He would think of New York's wealth and look at his pearls, and then all those who passed became symbols not of opportunity but of opposition.

For pearls were his passion. He knew them, loved them, would keep them from dying; he cared for them as for live things. His head was full of their lore, picked from the market place and from old tales, so that prices and technicalities were mixed with such poems as that from the Persian which says that pearls are born when drops of Spring rain fall upon mother of pearl. And all these people who passed, and the others like them, all the millions in New York and those beyond through all America, would have none of his pearls, because in their minds there lurked some ancient superstition. Pearls, they said, were omens of bad luck.

The young man had entered upon a battle for the sake of his pearls. Kings would buy pearls, but there were no kings in Lexington Avenue in the 1870s. He must fight, and his enemy was nothing tangible. It was a myth, a pagan belief as old as fairy tales, thwarting him here in the new city, where there were modern horse cars and where steam trains had begun to run on stilts in the streets.

He must fight cleverly and unflaggingly. There were his pearls and his ambition. There were also little Michael and the girls. The young man remembered that his father had lived to 90 and his grandfather to 107. Well, he had time then, for his fight against the superstition and for his plans to make little Michael a great man some day—little Michael then playing in pinafores.

Without noting how time has passed, the young man found little Michael a lad of 17, his head crammed with knowledge of pearls and with determination to war till there was no superstition to keep pearls from coming into their own.

"He knows more than the rest of them already," said the young man, now no longer so young, as he watched his son Michael. "He knows almost as much as his mother."

The mother took Michael on her trip to Europe that year. He saw the great gem houses in London and Amsterdam and Paris, and learned anew how the pearls came through these places to his father from blue bays where naked brown men dived with stones in their hands. In business houses on the Continent men with names that were known to young Michael showed deference to his mother and spoke with respect of his father, Jacob. The firm was to be "& Son" some day.

Michael was proud of his father—as proud as of his mother, too. She had worked in the Lexington Avenue basement under their home before the business grew, and in the laundry of the home upstairs had set about becoming a diamond cutter, because the cutters who worked for hire sometimes substituted poor stones. She, too, had fought the superstition that pearls meant bad luck. And so had her daughters. Father, mother, children, all made the struggle together, bending every energy and sacrificing every needless thing to the mon cause—the cause of the pearls.

No longer did a young man stand by a basement window, an old man watched a newer scene—upper Fifth Avenue, where he had his home, and the Fifth Avenue of the shops, where the firm name he had dreamed of so long ago stood in discreet letters at the corner of a stone building—his building, one of his many buildings.

The fight had been won. New York, six million people now, no longer obeyed the fear of pearls. Brown men still dived for him, and other men turned over the treasures of the world for him Where he had chuckled as he looked at a single pearl, now he looked with the expert's eye on a string of pearls such an only an Indian prince might possess, fifty pearls, worth a million dollars.

Michael was now head of the firm. The old man who had warred on a myth saw his son buy the church which New York knew as Rockefeller's, and saw him negotiate for the country estate of a Vanderbilt. He sat with the son amid King's treasures—bronzes, royal rugs, tapestries, paintings, etchings, all of them his belongings and not mere goods for sale. They would stand before the portrait of Eleanor of Austria and her consort, or togethe they would admire the panel of a triptych of which the other panels were given by a Queen to a cathedral in Spain before the New World was discovered. Millions, all from the legend of fear that they killed together.

Jacob remembered the ages of his father and his grandfather. A long-lived family. At 72 he had years ahead. He thought of Michael as still almost a lad. Fortune was with them; they had killed the foolish tale of bad luck. When he looked from a window now every second woman he saw wore pearls, real or imitation.

In mid-career Michael, the son, died with little warning. Within nineteen days Jacob followed him, for something had been plucked from his heart.

This is the story of Jacob Dreicer, founder of Dreicer & Co., as told in affidavits filed by mother and daughter a few days ago in connection with the appraisal of the estate. Michael Dreicer left his $500,000 art collection to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

DIAMONDS HELP

Steel settings for diamonds are quite the thing in some circles. They are the overalls of that toiling branch of a family that for the most part lolls idly in platinium attire. These steel-set workers are becoming more numerous and important every year.

"For the building of the Peekskill Bridge, the Queensborough Bridge, the Williamsburg Bridge and the Equitable Building, diamonds were used," said Maurice S. Dessau, a diamond merchant of Maiden Lane. "But that is only the beginning. There are your pearl buttons, the machinery that launders your clothes, your telephone, your fountain pen, your eyeglasses, your automobile cylinders—almost anything you might name had a diamond working on it somewhere some time. Even in your electric meter diamonds are stored away and diamonds are used in the press rooms that print what you read."

The dependence of industry upon diamonds has grown apace in the last generation. Seventy-five years ago, according to Mr. Dessau, steel set diamonds were unheard of and the machinery that now depends upon diamond tools had not come into use. He traced the history of the industrial diamond back to a dentist's shop where a handful of diamonds came one day from South America. The dentist, experimenting with them, found them useful for drilling holes through porcelain teeth. It was later discovered that they could likewise bore through solid rock.

Where big bridges and buildings are planned the diamond drill first feels the way and determines the solidity of the natural foundation. The drill tool is set with six or more black diamonds placed on the rim of a hollow cylinder. They look like cinders, but cost about $130 a carat. A tiny tool may be worth $1,000. These diamonds are rare, since they are not found in mines, but in the bottoms of rivers and streams.

When black diamonds have tested the building site, white diamonds enter into construction. These great saws that have replaced the mallet and chisel of the pyramid builders bear diamonds in their teeth, sometimes as many as six to a tooth. The edge looks dull and blunt, but it cleaves stone blocks as if they were wood. Diamonds that do this work sparkle in the hand, but most of them are too hard to be cut for the jewellery trade. They are lumps in the diamond strata, corresponding to the knots of a board. These stones, in varying sizes, according to the heaviness of the work to be done, are set singly at the tips of steel rods. When held against any grinding wheel the diamond will keep it true, guaranteeing work of almost perfect accuracy.

Diamond tools are used mostly on the machinery that turns out articles of common use, but sometimes they work on the article itself, cutting rubber, paper, cotton rolls and many other materials of hard and gritty nature. Tiny holes in eyeglasses are bored with diamonds; and when the new radio sets come out with glass fronts for the benefit of those curious to see the wheels go round the diamond will have added another to its list of jobs.

"Steel tools might be used for some of these purposes," said Mr. Dessau, "but a steel tool would keep its edge just about half-an-hour. A diamond tool will last from three to six months, and when the cutting point is worn the stone may be reset. With care it will last indefinitely."

The shape of the stone is important, since it is desirable that it should have enough cutting points to permit repeated resetting. A hold is gouged out in the steel and perhaps a bit of copper is inserted. Then the diamond is put in and the steel pulled close and tight around it. From these settings, in spite of much wear and tear, stones are seldom lost.

Sometimes diamonds prove even too hard for industrial use as such. They are then reduced to powder used to polish gems. The ornamental diamond, the jeweller points out, will take a polish only from its kindred in industry.

Croup at Night No Longer Feared by Canadian Mothers

Direct Treatment with Vaporizing Salve Immediately Reaches Congested Air Passages.

Many Canadian mothers, who in the past have worried over croup and children's cold, are delighted with the "external" remedy for colds, Vicks VapoRub.

You just rub Vicks over throat and chest for croup, children's colds, bronchitis or deep chest colds. When so applied the body heat releases the ingredients as vapors which are inhaled directly into the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and reducing the inflammation.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed and stimulates the skin like a liniment or plaster and thus aids the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion. Croup is usually relieved in 15 minutes.

There is no dosing in using Vicks. Nothing to upset the delicate stomachs of small children. You just "rub it on".

Just Natural — HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

Every school-day morn it's hard to get the kiddies dressed. Funny how they like to lie in bed and get their rest. Covers up around their necks; you have to dig them out. Sleepy minds don't seem to know just what it's all about.

When the breakfast's cooking at the starting of the day, Mom will call and call them while the minutes fly away. After while they slowly rise and sit upon the bed. Elbows on their knees are propped while hands hold up their head.

Mother peeks and pesters till they're putting on their clothes. Why it is so hard to dress—well, goodness only knows. Parents have to help them, at the finish, as a rule. Every youngster's just like this on days they go to school.

Then along comes Saturday and what a change takes place. Getting dressed, instead of slow, turns out to be a race. Can't you guess just why it is that youngsters are this way? Shucks, we're all responsive when the call's the call of play.

GREAT DIAMOND JOINS LIST OF FAMOUS GEMS

Recent Discovery in South Africa Recalls Stones That Have Figured in History—The Cullinan and Koh-i-noor Among England's Crown Jewels.

Another large diamond has been unearthed near Kimberley, South Africa. At a place known as Gong-Gong a diamond digger has found a stone weighing 110 carats, and although this weight has been surpassed by that of other large diamonds it is a size sufficiently rare to make the new stone an object of great value and curiosity. Another odd fact connected with its discovery is that only two weeks before he found it the same digger unearthed another large stone, which he sold for the respectable sum of $4,500.

South Africa has completely displaced India and Brazil as the chief diamond digging centre of the world. But notwithstanding the extent of the South African diamond industry, as far as sheer perfection of stones go, none of the African diamonds, always excepting the Cullinan, has rivaled in size or perfection those from the old Indian mines in Golconda. Nor, indeed, is the quality of African diamonds superior to that of the Brazilian stones.

Ever since the early days of history the diamond has excited the interest, enthusiasm, greed and esthetic sense of men and women, white and dusky, Eastern and Western, all over the world. It is the gem of the ancients and moderns alike. And this beautiful gem, with its clear white depths and dazzling fire, has always been a centre of drama for wherever there has been a beautiful diamond of exceptional perfections there also has been fraud and jealousy, hatred and intrigue.

Price of Diamonds Stabilised.

This passion for the diamond is not difficult to explain. It must be remembered that, apart from all esthetic considerations and the delight of possessing any object so supremely beautiful as a perfect diamond, the man or woman who buys one obtains something that can nearly always be sold at par, should selling be necessary, and, as often as not, sold at a price greater than that paid for it. In recent years a large number of diamonds have been sold by Russian refugees (Russia was one of the chief diamond-owning countries before the revolution), and in many cases sold at so much less than their commercial value that, combined with the quantities suddenly put on the market by those whose sole remaining capital these gems represented, something of a crisis was created in the diamond industry.

Merchants and mine owners, however, are more than careful to guard against any drastic lowering of the price of diamonds. Those who complain of the high price of the gems should bear in mind that this condition has the advantage of enabling owners to regard their diamonds as an investment on which they cannot lose money. The men who control the industry therefore do not hesitate to guard against a lower scale of prices by restricting the output at the mines or even closing them down temporarily. A policy of this kind, if applied to the necessities of life, would, of course, be widely criticized but as diamonds are a luxury there is perhaps little cause for complaint on the part of the general public.

Dealers assert that the most sensational diamond is the Cullinan, which was discovered on June 25, 1905, and weighed 3,034 carats in its rough state. (A carat weighs 3.174 grains troy and 151½ carats equal one English ounce.) Its finder was Frederick Wells, surface manager of the Cullinan Mine in South Africa, who was presented by his company with $10,000 in recognition of his discovery. Two years later the gem was presented to King Edward VII. as a gift from the Government of the Union of South Africa. In the rough it looked like a piece of ice and weighed three-quarters of a pound.

Cut Into Four Pieces.

Naturally, little use as an adornment could be made of a gem of this size, and it was decided to entrust the firm of Asscher of Amsterdam with the dividing, cutting and polishing of the stone. Special tools were made with which to cut and polish this stone, which experts pronounced to be almost flawless and of the coveted blue-white tint. The stone was cut into four pieces by Asscher himself with a perfection that left nothing to be desired. The largest piece was set in King Edward's sceptre and the second in his crown, while the two smaller pieces were set in the Queen's crown.

But the Cullinan diamond is not yet old enough to have acquired the glamor of romance. For drama, history and romance one must turn to other diamonds. Witness the famous Koh-i-noor, which adorns the crown of the Queen of England. Its early history is somewhat obscure, but it is thought by many experts to be that diamond of which first mention is made in 1526 in the "Memoirs of Sultan Baber." This potentate, describing a war between two Indian nations, spoke of a diamond that one obtained as booty from the other and picturesquely declared that it was worth "half of the daily expenses of the whole world."

For more than two centuries the diamond was lost sight of, and then it was said to be in the possession of one Nadir, Shah of Persia, who had probably obtained it as loot from India. Nadir Shah was murdered and an Afghan named Ahmed Shah obtained possession of the stone and fled from Persia. This man founded a kingdom at Cabul. Ahmed died in 1773 and the gem was inherited by his son, who died in 1793, and then by Shah Zemain, his grandson. Shah Zemain was driven from his throne and fled to India, carrying the precious diamond with him. Taken prisoner by the potentate with whom he had sought refuge, he hid the diamond in the wall of his room and was deprived of his sight in an effort to make him reveal its whereabouts.

After endless adventures he finally regained his throne and the diamond was taken from its hiding place. Then the Koh-i-noor (if it was the same stone) found its way to England in the '50s of the last century. The shape was poor and was decided to recut it, and 83¾ carats were actually sacrificed in order to give the stone a good form. The process of recutting took thirty-eight days. "The Mountain of Light," to give it the English translation of its Eastern name, may now be seen with the crown jewels in the Tower of London

Russia Has Orloff Diamond.

The next diamond in size after the Cullinan is the beautiful Orloff diamond, which formed part of the Russian imperial regalia, having been set in the Czar's sceptre. The stone is now in possession of the Soviet Government, with all the other imperial jewels, and some time ago photographs of the whole collection were published in order to convince the world that the Bolshevists had not, as their enemies asserted, sold the imperial jewels in order to raise funds for their government.

The early history of this gem is obscure. It is supposed by many experts to have at one time formed one of the eyes of a huge idol in a Hindu temple at Seringham. A French soldier, so the tale runs, realizing the enormous value of the idol's diamond eyes, determined to obtain possession of them. He is said to have adopted the native religion and to have ingratiated himself to such an extent with the priests that at length he was allowed to enter the idol by night and act as guard.

Then the soldier, according to the story, stole one of the diamonds, escaped to Madras and sold the stone for £2,000 to an English sea captain, who took it to London and sold it to a Jewish merchant for £10,000. The history of the gem at this point becomes confused. Apparently it was offered for sale in Amsterdam, where it was bought by Prince Orloff, the favorite of the Empress Catherine II., and presented to his royal patron. The sum paid by Orloff for the gem was £90,000 in cash and an annuity of £4,000.

After the Cullinan, some experts consider the most beautiful diamond in the world to be the famous Regent, also known as the Pitt diamond. It weighs 136¾ carats and has a beautiful blue tinge. Its diameter at what is called the "girdle" is one and a quarter inches. Thomas Pitt, grandfather of the famous William Pitt, bought the stone in Malacca from a native merchant for about $72,000. He brought it to England, where its tremendous value caused it to be a constant source of anxiety to him. He sold it, and later it found its way to France, where it was bought by Louis XV. for $675,000. During the French Revolution a commission of French jewellers valued the stone at not less than 12,000,000 francs. At one time it adorned the great Napoleon's sword, and to-day is still among the royal jewels of France.

Hope Diamond in Washington.

The famous Hope diamond is now in the possession of Mrs. Edward McLean of Washington. Little is known of its early history. In 1830 it was acquired by an English banker named Henry Thomas Hope for $87,000. His daughter became the Duchess of Newcastle and received the diamond as a gift. She, in turn, presented it to her son, Lord Francis Hope, who married an American actress, May Yohe. The couple were divorced in 1901 and the stone was then sold by Lord Francis for $168,000 to Simon Frankel, and later it was bought by Selim Habib for $400,000. It was afterwards sold to a jeweller named Roseman, who owned it as late as 1909.

The diamond is of a most beautiful sapphire blue color, and Streeter, a famous English jeweller of a generation ago, believed it to have been identical with a blue diamond that was in the possession of Louis XIV. of France. He believed that the stone had been split into three parts, one being the Hope, the second the Brunswick diamond and the third Streeter's own property.

It seems extraordinary that a commodity so valuable as a really famous diamond could pass out of sight for long periods of time, but such is the fact. What, for instance, has become of the Great Mogul diamond, one of the most beautiful diamonds ever known and for which no satisfactory answer has ever been forthcoming. Many experts believe the Great Mogul and the Koh-i-noor to be one and the same diamond. Others favor the view that the Great Mogul is none other than the Russian Orloff stone. The mystery that surrounds the whereabouts of the Great Mogul serves to make it one of the most interesting of all diamonds. It was first heard of in Europe nearly 400 years ago, and extraordinary stories were circulated regarding its astonishing beauty, size and fire.

Last Heard of in Persia.

In the middle of the seventeenth century Jean Baptiste Tavernier, a famous French traveller and gem expert, saw the diamond in India. It was then the property of the Great Mogul, weighed 279 9-16 carats, and was shaped like the half of a hen's egg. It was a produce of one of the famous Golconda mines. It remained in possession of the Mogul until 1739, when the Persian Nadir Shah, the possessor of the Koh-i-noor, descended on India, seized the Mogul's diamond and took it home with him. After this nothing definite is known of it, and while many believe it to be the Koh-i-noor itself, discrepancies between the weight of the Great Mogul as given by Tavernier and that of the stone in the English Queen's crown before recutting have led many to reject this explanation.

Other famous diamonds included the Sancy, of a beautiful blue color; the Maxmilian, which was owned by the late Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria; the Etoile du Sud, found in Brazil in 1853, weighing 254½ carats and absolutely without blemish; the Excelsior, weighing 971 carats in the rough, found June 30, 1893, in a mine in the Orange River Colony by a native who received $750, a horse and a saddle for it, and later broken up by Asscher Brothers, no sale being found for it as a single stone; and also the Polar Star, the Nassak, the Pigott, the Tuscany, the Dresden and the Star of South Africa.

The last is of particular interest, as it was owing to the discovery of this beautiful stone that the diamond industry of South Africa received its first impetus. When found it was about the size of a walnut and weighed 83½ carats, this weight being reduced to 46½ carats by cutting. Dresden and the Star of South Africa. In 1869 it was the property of a Boer, named Schalk van Niekirk, who had obtained it from a Kaffir "sorcerer." It was exhibited at Port Elizabeth and Cape Town and sold by Van Niekirk for £11,000. Shipped to England, it was sold to a firm of Bond Street jewellers by Lord Dudley and was first known as the Dudley diamond, its name later being changed to Star of South Africa.

TORONTO, April 4. — Total payments in benefits of $6,122,820, was given as the record of the Workmen's Compensation Board for the past year in the annual report which was tabled yesterday in the Legislature.

Members of Parliament Talk Too Much Says One.

OTTAWA, April 4. — Members of Parliament should say less and get less pay, in the opinion of A. J. Benoit, the Liberal member for St. John's and Iberville, Que. He has given notice of his intention to move in the House this resolution:

"Whereas the work of the session could be more expeditiously done by shortening the time allowed for debates;

"And whereas in thus practising economy in speeches the length of each could be shortened by 25 per cent.;

"Therefore in the opinion of this House it would be expedient to consider the reduction of the Parliamentary indemnity in the same ratio of 25 per cent."

Pains in Her Back Have Vanished

QUEBEC LADY TELLS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Madame Ed. Prezeau is now in perfect health.

Notre Dame du Pont Main, Que., April 3.—(Special).—"Your Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me much good," so states Madame E. Prezeau in an interview.

"It was a trouble for me to work and I always had bad kidneys. Since I have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills the pains in my back have all gone, and I am in perfect health and well satisfied."

Ninety per cent. of the ills from which women suffer come from weak or diseased kidneys. They are the organs that strain all the impurities out of the blood. If they fail to do their work, the impurities remain in the blood and are deposited all over the body.

Weak kidneys are not confined to grown people. They are too often found in children, sowing the seeds of future ills unless the kidneys are strengthened and put in condition to do their full work.

"SERVICE DE LUXE"

Imagine Golfe being cryit doun!

Wapinshawingis Halden in Scotland to Put a Stop to the Game. It Flourishes the World Over Now. Canada Has Made Some Golf History.

The first Canadian "hole-in-one" for 1925 was recorded several weeks ago. Mr. S. Rainford, a member, playing over the Shaughnessy Heights course, Vancouver, accomplished the feat at the third hole. Lady Fame offers few greater awards to the enthusiast than that. The baseball player who knocks the pill for a homer with the bags loaded, is an "also ran" in comparison.

While Victoria, Vancouver and British Columbia generally are to be envied, golfers in Chatham, Ontario, enjoyed a game early in February. Still there are not wanting Canadians who pan the climate of the Dominion from the first snowfall of winter until the day they can swing into action in the open air and warble "fore" so musically as to strike the real birds dumb with jealousy. There is no season so trying to the Canadian golfer, young and old, as that wherein his activity in the game is restricted to the indoor school, or the study of books by more or less famous players.

Within the memory of comparatively young people, golf has conquered the Dominion. It is as universal as any game ever played in Canada; it adds to its devotees so rapidly that the figures of one month are no criterion for the next. It is as democratic as politics, far healthier and more satisfying. Municipalities that have tried to dodge its advances have been converted to its advantages and its joys. Everywhere municipal golf courses are supplementing those of the privately established clubs. Other sports and games have periodical spasms of success and depression. Golf goes marching on to new and greater triumphs. What is the secret of its conquering power? A thousand writers have tried to tell it and failed. Perhaps there are a thousand reasons; one of them may be hidden in this:—

Doctors declared that he would die,
He didn't have a chance;
But doggedly he did the course
And asked "How is my stance?"
He threw his medicines away,
And did a hole in one,
Then in a gladsome voice he cried,
"My life has just begun."

Who played the first game of golf and where? It would be dangerous sacrilege in some quarters to attempt to take that honor from Scotland. Certainly it has been played there for centuries. But beyond that questioners are bunkered. The Encyclopedia throws some light on the derivation of the name. It says, "Golf (in its older form Goff, Couff, or Gowff, the last of which gives the genuine old pronounciation), a game which probably derives its name from the German Kolbe, a club,—in Dutch Kolf—which last is nearly in sound identical and might suggest a Dutch origin, which many pictures and other witnesses further support." Wouldn't that stymie you?

In the fourteenth century its popularity in Scotland was such as to cause the military men of that land serious alarm. It interfered so much with the practise of archery that in March of 1457, Parliament took cognizance of it. That august body "decreted and ordained that wapinshawingis be halden be the lordis and baronis spirituale and temporale, four times in zeir; and that the fute-ball and golfe be utterly cryit doun, and nache usit; and that the bowemerkis be maid at ilk paroche kirk a pair of buttis, and schuttin be usit ilk Sunday."

Bold spirits defied all the powers of Scotland and played both "golfe" and "fute-ball," to the grief of their more sober minded brethren. Therefore in 1491 another warning, with dire punishments threatened therein, was issued. "Fute-ball and Golfe Forbidden," was its heading, and it proceeded, "It is statut and ordainit that in na place of the realme there be usit fute-ball, golfe, or other sik unprofitabill sportis."

It was all in vain; Scotsman were determined that the game should flourish until the ends of the earth had succumbed to its spell, though to many the earth meant their own country. Well, it has conquered the world, and now it is defying nature. Games have been played at night under artificial light, with fair enjoyment. In Montreal some enthusiasts have played the game on the ice and snow, during several winters. Poland Springs and Lake Placid, N.Y., have gone them one better, golf on skiis having taken a firm hold. According to those who have watched it the players put up a creditable exhibition, and ski-golf has come to stay.

"Royal and Ancient"

There came a time in Scotland when all the "cryits," "statuts," "wapinshawingis" and all the rest, were relegated to the limbo of hopelessly broken clubs and lost balls. Playing during church service time was forbidden for a while, but even that restriction disappeared. The game attracted the attention of monarchs, but there is no record to show when it was first called "the Royal and Ancient game." James IV., it is said, was the first King to formally figure in the golfing records; thereafter royalty lent its favor, and in 1834 William IV. became patron of the St. Andrew's Golf Club, then, as now, the most famous seat of the game. That monarch approved of it being called "the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews." England, however, looked upon the game, with some suspicion, and late in the eighteenth century there was no warm regard for it there. A different story is told in the newspapers every day in the present.

Canada has made history in golf. That may be news to some who are apt to look across the southern boundary line and imagine that the United States is the leader. The first inter-club golf match in America was played at Quebec in 1876, with a victory for the golf club of that city over that of Montreal, by twelve holes. The course was on the historic Cove Fields where, somewhat over a century before, Wolfe and Montcalm had met in the combat that was to decide possession of Canada. The Quebec Golf Club is the second oldest on the continent, the distinction of being the first going to the Royal Montreal Golf Club which, in 1923, celebrated its jubilee. There are now some 400 odd clubs in the country, every province having its quota.

A Big Industry

Some of the older folk who are devoted to it to-day can hardly recall the time of their first game without a blush. Few of them entered seriously upon its enjoyments, and most were regarded by the general public as being loose in the upper story. At this moment golf has not only attained the status of a world-wide game; it has built with its own development industries such as the making of clubs, balls, golf costumes, etc., that add immensely to the aggregate trade of nations. It has added to the professions golf architecture and golf instruction, and helped the building and furnishing industries. A United States statician has estimated that the golfers of that country spent $400,000,000 on the game last year, of which $30,000,000 was for balls, $25,000,000 for construction of club houses and courses, and not less than $5,000,000 for grass seeds.

A feature of Canada's 1924 season was the amazing growth of what is sometimes known as "Public Golf," but more often as "Municipal Golf." The reference is to courses laid out wholly or partly at the expense of the municipality, and for which the playing fee is small. In some cases there is a nominal membership fee, and an organization which under the auspices of the municipality, controls the course. Methods differ in various sections, but a most important point is that municipal golf invariably pays its own way. Edmonton and Calgary have the oldest municipal courses in Canada and 1924 was a record season on both. The same was true of Medicine Hat and Moose Jaw. Winnipeg had to open a second one. Hamilton's public course was all to the good; London had a whopping year; so did the municipal courses in Montreal and Toronto. Brantford is reported ready to open one this year and many other municipalities are going to or will soon be compelled to do the same. There are others but it would not be possible to deal with all in this article.

All this, is in addition to the increase in the number of private clubs and the steady additions to their membership. The tale in this regard is the same all across the continent. St. John never had keener interest in golf than now. Halifax tells the same story. Promise of an earlier spring fills the hearts of Maritime enthusiasts with joy. Incidentally, Prince Edward Island grows a grass which the Dominion Government Seeds branch finds is particularly suited to putting greens, and it can be sent into the rest of Canada at a much smaller cost than imported varieties. The mention of this is an illustration of the importance that golf is assuming, when a branch of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, thinks the matter of grass seed for the links, well deserving its attention. From the Maritimes to Victoria and Vancouver is a long stretch but it is linked by golf clubs and golf players who find a bond of union in the game, and the fine qualities it develops. Saskatoon isn't very old, as history goes, but it has golf clubs and courses that would delight the man who lives for golf alone.

In Ontario there are many places where the game is played amid historic surroundings. Belleville and Kingston are two that might be instanced. Peterborough, Ottawa and Windsor are among the places where golfers are at home.

The world over golfers are interested in the doings of golfers elsewhere, and the things that pertain to the game. The controversy as to the size of the ball was a matter that stirred their hearts. In Canada as in South Africa, they are generally mighty well pleased over the understanding that in Britain and the United States, there will be no change for one and perhaps for two years, while here it will also be a case of "mark time." That the standarized ball will finally be slightly larger and a little lighter, there seems to be no doubt; and when Britain and the United States come to an agreement on the actual size the rest of the world will follow.

Women Are Keen Players

Women have taken to the game with tremendous zest. It has as many fascinations for them as for the so-called sterner sex, and there are many men who could not hold their own against women players of their acquaintance. But the ladies face a difficulty in the fact that golf clubs, like the earth used to be, are men ruled institutions. Generally they are not allowed to play on Saturdays or Sundays because too many men are on the links then, and in other ways they are restricted. Toronto women are settling that in their own way. They have organized a ladies golf and tennis club, and they have 300 members already with a course and a club house that many older institutions might envy. The grounds will be in fine shape for play this season, and the success of the venture, the first of its kind in Canada, seems to be absolutely assured.

The winter of discontent for most of Canada's actual and prospective golfers is almost at an end. For some it is already ended; they are in the throes of desperate efforts to beat their own records and those of others if they can. For those playing for the first time there is no fear of wapinshawingis or anything that sounds nearly so forbidding. Its a great game for those who have got to the stage where they realize that it is not the "tip-cat" sissified sport some people used to think it.

Already there is speculation as to the Canadian championships. The Canadian amateur event takes place at the Royal Ottawa Golf Club, Ottawa, June 29-July 4, and the Canadian open championships at the Lambton Golf and Country Club, Toronto, July 30-Aug. 1. The sharps are discussing pros and cons and trying to pick winners just like the politicians do months before an election.

MARBLE RULES For 1925

Some important changes in marble rules have been made this year and are being observed throughout the country.

Ringer has become the standardized universal marble game. The rules are compiled by the newspapers of the country with the support of school and athletic authorities.

In the first place, the common playing marble is standardized at one-half inch, with allowance for manufacturing faults.

Shooters are reduced in size. They must not be less than one-half inch nor more than five-eights. This is to encourage "lofting" or shooting in an arch through the air and discourage "bowling" or "rolling" at a large shooter on the ground.

Steelies and shooters made of any metal are absolutely forbidden. "Lofting" into the marbles with an "English" twist on the shooter so it will stick is encouraged.

The danger of being put out of the game is reduced this year. If a player's shooter is knocked out of the ring he forfeits all the marbles he has won. But if he has not yet scored any marbles he is "killed" out of the game.

Here is another important change. If a player's shooter passes out of the ring he loses his turn—this, whether he scored on the shot or not. But if he did score he does not lose the marbles knocked out.

The rules this year have been divided into sections for easy reference. They are:

RULES FOR RINGER

(Play is for Fair—Return the Marbles—No "Keeps")

Ringer is played in a ring ten (10) feet in diameter, with thirteen (13) marbles arranged in the centre on a cross. The object is to shoot these marbles out of the ring, the player shooting the largest number of marbles out of the ring in any game being the winner of that game. No less than two and no more than six may play in one game in ringer except that in championship matches two only play. In preliminary eliminations as many as six may play in one game. All tournament play is for fair, and the marbles must be returned to the owners after each game.

Rule 1: Equipment.

Sec. 1. The playing surface shall be a smooth level area of ground, hard clay or other suitable substance. The ring is inscribed upon this area ten feet in diameter, and all play is within this ring. (Note: The outline of this ring shall not be so deep or so wide as to check the roll of a marble.)

Sec. 2. With the centre of the ring as a point of intersection mark two lines at right angles to each other to form a cross, which shall be a guide for placing the playing marbles. Play one marble at the centre, and three each on the four branches of the cross, each marble 3 inches away from the next one.

Sec. 3 The lag line is a straight line drawn tangent to the ring, and touching it at one point. The pitch line is a straight line drawn tangent to the ring, directly opposite and parallel to the lag line.

Sec. 4. Playing marbles shall be round and made of clay, about ONE-HALF INCH in diameter, with a slight allowance over and under this size for manufacturing faults.

Sec. 5. Shooters shall be round, and made of any substance, except steel or any other metal, and shall be not less than ONE-HALF INCH nor more than FIVE-EIGHTHS INCH in diameter, by exact measurement.

Rule II. Plan of Play:

Sec. 1. The lag is the first operation in ringer. To lag, the players stand toeing the pitch line, or knuckling down upon it, and toss or shoot their shooters to the lag line across the ring. The player whose shooter comes nearest the lag line on either side, wins the lag.

Sec. 2. The player who wins the lag shoots first in the first game and the others follow in order as their shooters were next nearest the lag line. In the second game the player whose shooter was second nearest the lag line shoots first, the others following in the order established, except that the player who shot first in the first game becomes last. In group play this rotation continues through as many games as it is necessary to choose the group winner, and one lag only is used. In match play when two only are engaged they alternate as above except that: In case they tie on the first two games they lay again to decide who leads off in the odd game. The same shooter must be used in the lag as is used throughout the games following that lag, and a shooter may be changed only at the time of lagging, when it must be used in subsequent game or games.

Sec. 3. On all shots, except the lag a player shall knuckle down so that at least one knuckle is in contact with the ground and he shall maintain this position until the shooter has left his hand. Knuckling down is permitted but not required, in lagging.

Sec. 4. Starting the game, each player in turn shall knuckle down just outside the ring line, at any point he chooses, and shoot into the ring to knock one or more marbles out of the ring or to hit or knock out of the ring the shooter of an opposing player, or players, if any remain inside the ring.

Sec. 5. If a player knocks one or more marbles out of the ring or hits the shooter of an opponent, or knocks an opponent's shooter out of the ring, he continues to shoot provided his shooter remains inside the ring. In the event a player's shooter passes outside the ring WHETHER OR NOT HE HAS SCORED ON THE SHOT, he shall cease to shoot, but he shall be credited with the marbles he has scored.

Sec. 6. If, after a miss, a player's shooter remains inside the ring, he must leave it there, and his opponents are permitted to shoot at it. If the shooter rolls outside the ring, whether he misses or scores, he picks it up until his next turn, and then he is permitted to take roundsters and shoot from any point of the ring line.

Rule III. Playing Regulations:

Sec. 1. Marbles knocked out of the ring shall be picked up by the player who knocks them out.

Sec. 2. Whenever a marble or a shooter comes to rest on the ring line, if its centre is outside the ring, or exactly on the ring lie; it shall be considered out of the ring; if its centre is inside the ring, it shall be considered inside the ring.

Sec. 3. A player hitting an opponent's shooter inside the ring, but not knocking it out, shall pick up any marble he chooses and shall proceed to shoot if his own shooter remains within the ring. However, he shall not hit the same opponent's shooter until after he hits another shooter or knocks a marble out of the ring, or he comes around to his next turn to shoot.

Sec. 4. A player knocking an opponent's shooter out of the ring shall be entitled to all the marbles won by that opponent, but the opponent whose shooter has been knocked out CONTINUES IN THE GAME, except that: If the opponent who was knocked out of the ring had not scored any marbles then he is out of the game, or "killed," but the player who knocked him out then shall not be entitled to pick up a marble for the shot.

Sec. 5. If a shooter knocks out two or more marbles or hits an opponent's shooter, or hits two opponents' shooters, or completes any other combination play, he shall be entitled to all the points scored on the shot.

Sec. 6. When a shooter slips from a player's hand, if the referee is convinced it is a slip, and if the shooter did not travel more than 10 inches, or if it did not hit another shooter or marble, the referee may order "no play" and permit the player to shoot again. The referee's decision is final.

Sec. 7. The game shall end when the last marble is shot out, no matter whether the shooter of the player knocking it out remains inside the ring or not.

Rule IV. Scoring:

Sec. 1. For each marble knocked out by a player, he shall be credited with the score of one.

Sec. 2. For each time a player hits the shooter of an opponent, and does not knock it out of the ring he shall be credited with the score of one.

Sec. 3. For each time a player knocks an opponent's shooter out of the ring he shall be credited with all the marbles previously scored by the hit opponent.

Sec. 4. The player having credited to him the largest number of marbles at the completion of a game shall be the winner of that game.

Sec. 5. In games where more than two players are engaged, if two or more players lead with the same score, those in the tie shall play a new game to break the tie.

Sec. 6. A player refusing to continue a game, once it is started shall be disqualified, and if only two players are engaged the game shall be forfeited to the offending player.

Sec. 7. The score of a forfeited game shall be 13-0.

Rule V. Officials.

Sec. 1. The officials shall be a referee and a scorer, if a scorer is available, otherwise the referee shall also keep score.

Sec. 2. The referee shall have complete charge of the play. He shall interpret these rules and have power to make decisions on any points not specifically covered by these rules. He shall have authority to disqualify players for unsportsmanlike conduct. He shall have authority to order from the playing field, or its vicinity, the coach or other representative of any player who conducts himself improperly.

Sec. 3. The scorer shall keep a record of the game, marking score of each player, shot by shot, and at the termination of each game, shall notify the referee of the score, and the referee shall announce the winner. The scorer may assist the referee in enforcing the rule against coaching, and may call to the attention of the referee any infraction of the rules.

Rule VI. Penalties.

A player shall not—

Sec. 1. Lift his knuckle off the ground until the shooter has left his hand. This violation is known as "histing."

Sec. 2. Move his hand forward until the shooter has left his hand. This violation is known as "hunching."

Sec. 3. Smooth or otherwise rearrange the ground, or remove any obstacles. He may request the referee to clear obstructions.

Penalty: If any marbles were knocked out or dislocated on the shot, they shall be restored to their place, and the player shall lose his shot.

Sec. 4. Change shooters during the course of any game, except that he may choose a new shooter on each lag, provided he uses that shooter in the subsequent game.

Sec. 5. Communicate in any way with his coach during the course of the game.

Penalty: Forfeiture of all marbles he has knocked out of the ring, said marbles to be returned to the game, and placed on the cross.

Sec. 6. A coach shall not give instructions to either his own or any other player engaged in the game.

Penalty: Coach shall be ordered from the playing field, if, after being warned once, he continues his violation.

A match may be decided in one, three or five games. It is not the total high score, but the games won, that determine the winner of each match.

GIANTS PICKED AS WINNERS OF NATIONAL RACE

Everything Points to Fifth Straight Win at Polo Grounds.

BY BILLY EVANS

Tact and Personality of John McGraw Figure in Chances.

(By Billy Evans)

In figuring the chances of the eight clubs in the National League, it is simply impossible to get away from the New York Giants as first choice.

All angles point to the winning of a fifth consecutive pennant by that club. Last season the Giants won a fourth straight flag, setting a new major league record.

In figuring the chances of the Giants, the tact and personality of Manager John McGraw stands out. He gets results. It seems a club managed by McGraw must of necessity be a pennant contender.

While McGraw has perhaps managed greater teams than his present club, yet a man for man comparison of the Giants of 1925 makes it rate the class of the league by a comfortable margin.

McGraw Infield Has Strength

In figuring the strength of the Giants and their ability to win a fifth consecutive pennant, the infield is the one feature of play that impresses. Pennants are seldom won by clubs with a weak inner defense. The Giants' infield is the best in the National if not the majors.

The brilliant Frisch, the dependable Groh, the flashy Jackson and the versatile Kelly make a combination hard to beat. Close up is Lindstrom, the hero of the 1924 world series.

No doubt McGraw would welcome more battery strength. I know that he is hopeful that several of his young pitchers will help him this year. Yet it seems that regardless of pitching, the offensive and defensive strength and a fighting spirit typical of its leader, usually carries McGraw's teams to victory.

I feel safe in venturing the opinion that the team that beats New York will win the National League pennant.

The Brooklyn club, runnerup last season, is not an impressive team as you give it the once over, yet it has great hidden power.

Superlative pitching, plus an offensive punch, made the Dodgers a contender last season rather than a strong or flashy defense. In doping Brooklyn to press New York, it must continue to get the fine pitching that featured the club's play last year.

Pittsburg and Chicago are the two question marks of the National League. Last winter these two clubs put over the biggest deal of the off-season. On the showing of the players in that swap will determine the placing of the clubs.

I am inclined to the opinion that Chicago got the better of the deal. While realizing that Owner Dreyfuss had his reasons for breaking up his great infield by including First Baseman Grimm and Second Baseman Maranville in the deal, I am positive these two players will help Chicago far more than any men the Pirates secured in return. The injury to Maranville will, however, be felt during the early part of the chase.

It looks to me as if the deal just about made the Chicago club a contender, providing Maranville returns okay, and possibly took from the Pirates a certain something that will keep that team from being dangerous as a pennant chaser.

Reds an Uncertain Outfit

Cincinnati is an uncertainty. The club was picked to run one-two-three last year and proved a bust. This year it gets a second division rating from the experts. Manager Hendricks doesn't think so. He wants to finish fourth. His great pitching staff gives him such a chance.

The St. Louis Cardinals, featuring the great Rogers Hornsby, don't look like a pennant possibility to me from any angle. The top of the second division is about all Manager Rickey can hope for, and then his dream may not come through.

It looks like a battle to the very end between Philadelphia and Boston to escape the ignominy of finishing in last place. The teams appear so evenly matched for that position that I refuse to venture an opinion on the outcome.

JOHNNIE M'GRAW IS LOOKING FOR HIS FIFTH BIG PENNANT

JOHN McGRAW, NEW YORK—I am desirous of winning my fifth consecutive pennant and feel that my team will be able to turn the trick. On the whole the club is stronger than last season. Several of my young pitchers are about ready to come through.

WILBERT ROBINSON, BROOKLYN—New York only beat my club one and one-half games last season and I hope to again make the going as hard. If my pitchers deliver for me as they did last season, Brooklyn will force the Giants to step their fastest to win.

BILL KILLEFER, CHICAGO—I am positive the trade with Pittsburg last winter plugged up the weak spots on my club and supplied a pennant punch. Maranville and Grimm will make my infield and Cooper is still a great pitcher, at his best in a pinch. Maranville's injury will, of course, hurt us during the early weeks of the season, but I am hoping he'll return okay.

BILL McKECHNIE, PITTSBURG—The Pirates have been knocking at the pennant door for years and may open it this summer. I realize the experts feel I was worsted in the Chicago trade, but I am willing to stand pat and let the summer's showing decide the issue.

JACK HENDRICKS, CINCINNATI—I feel that the Reds are going to jolt the critics who have already consigned my club to a place in the second division. The Reds have the strength to win a place in the first division. Our pitching alone should do that.

BRANCH RICKEY, ST. LOUIS—For several years the Cardinals have not lived up to my pre-season predictions, so this year I am going to play it safe and merely say that we are shooting at the first division and hope to finish there. My club is much the same as last year.

DAVE BANCROFT, BOSTON—I am hopeful that my reconstructed infield will supply a defensive strength that was lacking last season. While I realize it will be rather inexperienced, yet I am positive it will be more canable. I don't want to finish last.

ART FLETCHER, PHILADELPHIA—My chief thought at present is not where my team will finish, but what success I will have in developing players who measure up to the major league standards. It is a slow job to make over a big league club, as Connie Mack can testify.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The "little drag" of the clubhead at the beginning of the back swing is one of the big things in golf. The wrists, when they return the clubhead to the ball, pick up this slack instinctively, and that puts some added punch into the blow.

By initiating the start of your swing with a pull outward with the right hip you may be able to get away to a better, and less complicated, start. I have found that this method accomplishes a "little drag" of the clubhead much more easily for some of my pupils. It also gets the weight over at the beginning. It aids the player to sense, too, the idea of the hip going straight out, and helps him see just how the left hip, when the ball is hit, goes straight out into the shot. This "straight line" principle for the hips has greatly simplified the swing for many players. The whole idea in the swing is to simplify—make it with the fewest possible bodily movements and the minimum of physical exertion. A good golfer never labors at all with his shots.

DANDURAND SHOWS SOCCER INTEREST

Sport Promoter May Back Montreal Team.

MONTREAL, April 4.—(Canadian Press).—The Montreal Daily Star yesterday said:

"It is understood, that at the suggestion of Len Peto, managing director of the Car - Steel soccer team, the Interprovincial League, has agreed to keep a place open for a month for another Montreal team.

"It has also been intimated, that Leo Dandurand, the managing director of the Canadian hockey club, part owner of the Dorval, Delorimier Park and Kempton race courses and some in the United States, and baseball enthusiast, might take an active interest in soccer this year.

"This idea is backed up to a certain extent by the enthusiastic reports he gave the Star of the soccer matches he had enjoyed on the Pacific Coast.

"It is announced that if another Montreal club came in arrangements would be made for their accommodation at Thornton Park."

PALM SUNDAY HUNCH.

French Bettors Drew Record Odds of 215 to 1.

PARIS, April 4—Les Rameaux, a three-year-old maiden colt, yesterday won the second race at the Maisons Lafitte track at the record odds of 215 to 1 in the grandstand and paddock pari-mutuels.

Small bettors in the field staged a war dance and jeered the more prosperous race goers for having completely overlooked the "good thing." Les Rameaux is French for "the palms," and followers of "hunches" realizing that the day after tomorrow is Palm Sunday, scattered enough five franc notes on the horse's chance to win to bring down his price in the cheaper ring to 80 to 1. And many of them there were who cashed tickets.

The official prices in the grandstand pari-mutuels was 2,101 francs for 10 and in the infield 407 for five.

KNUCKLING DOWN IS MARBLE ART

BALTIMORE, Md., April 4—It's an art—knuckling down correctly.

Strict rules require that at least one knuckle shall be in contact with the ground until after the shooter has left the hand.

This is the best way to do it—the authority being none other than George Lennox, Baltimore, Md., present world's champion.

Resting the last three knuckles on the ground gives a firm shooting base. The golfer would call it a good "stance." Pressing too hard, however, will develop corns which, while not generally impairing accuracy, are sometimes painful.

If only one or two of the knuckles rest on the ground the hand usually is cramped into a position that can not be depended upon.

In gripping the shooter with the thumb, do not hold it so tightly that a blood blister will develop, is one of the tips Lennox passes out.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

ORLANDO, April 4 — One thing I have already observed in making the rounds of the training camps, is the different systems used by the managers in prepping their teams for the long grind.

Most of the managers favor a single practice session. Jack Hendricks of the Cincinnati Reds and John McGraw of the New York Giants are two of the exceptions.

In most cases 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. is the favored time. If one of the veterans feels that he has had enough before that period has expired he has the privilege of quitting.

As a matter of fact, the majority of the managers put it up to the veterans to be the sole judge of their condition and to take the amount of work they believe best.

McGraw and Hendricks, however, are firm believers in making hay while the sun shines. In other words they aim to condition the players to best posible advantage while the weather is propitious.

There are two practice sessions daily in the camps of the Reds and Giants. Usually limbering up stunts comprise the morning workout, while in the afternoon a game is played between Regulars and Yanigans.

GET IN SHAPE

"I have tried both systems," says Manager Hendricks of the Cincinniti club, "and believe two sessions daily far the better method.

"In favoring such a plan I have explained to my players that we are not going to get Florida weather on the way north or after the opening of the season. That's reason number one.

"After starting our exhibition games I do not intend that the players shall do any work but the playing of the game. For that reason, I have impressed upon them the importance of the two daily workouts.

"There are many others. If a player is through his spring training at lunch time each day, there is the afternoon and evening to kill. That is often dangerous.

"Two sessions daily make a big day of it, helps pass the time, and when evening comes around the athletes are tired, ready to hit the hay early."

There is much logic to what Hendricks says. Like McGraw, he works on theory that the athletes come south to train—not for a vacation.

TINKER SAYS

Joe Tinker, one of the greatest shortstops the game has ever produced, now one of Orlando's wealthiest citizens, listened in while I discussed spring training with Hendricks.

"I second everthing that Hendricks has said on the subject," said Tinker, "too many clubs today treat spring training too lightly.

"In the old days when Frank Chance was winning pennants with the Chicago Cubs, he was always keen for getting away to a good start. He liked to step out in front and stay there.

"Chance figured it was impossible to draw a team too fine in the spring work, contending that the bad weather in April and May in the north made such a happening practically impossible.

"It was his theory that the best conditioned team when it hit a siege of bad weather was better prepared to bear up under the handicap."

If hard work, earnest effort and perfect weather make for good physical condition, the Reds will sure come north perfectly fit.

Golf is not barred in the Detroit camp during spring practice. Early morning play is taboo but no objection is offered to a round late in the afternoon after the athletes have had their baseball.

Manager Cobb, however, isn't very strong for golf during the season, except on off days or for some other reason that prevents the playing of the game.

Detroit is working on the theory that the club has a great chance to win, that games won in April count as much as victories in September.

With that thought in mind there is an earnestness to the efforts of the players at practice that is rather unusual for spring training.

While Manager Cobb admits that the Augusta weather may not be as uniformly hot as his rivals are getting in Florida, he insits his team will be more hardened to the tough brand that always bobs up in April and often May.

HAD BOILS ALL OVER HIM

There is only one way to get rid of boils and that is by going right to the seat of the trouble—the blood—as the bad blood must be made pure before the boils will disappear.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

cleanses the system and removes all the foul matter from the blood in a way that few medicines will do.

Mrs. Chas. Rankin, Bulyea, Sask., writes:—"A few years ago my husband had a terrible time with boils. On one arm he had 16 between his elbow and wrist; five on the back of his neck, and several more on different parts of his body. He tried everything he could think of, but got no relief until he took Burdock Blood Bitters, and to his surprise it completely relieved him of his boils in a very short time."

Tygers Lost First 13 In The Season Of 1920

About the worst start a major league team ever got was that made by the Detroit Tygers back in 1920, in Hughie Jennings' last season as the manager.

In its first 13 games that campaign, Detroit finished on the short end of the score. Somehow or other the team couldn't get going, despite the fact that it was considered to be in pretty good shape after the spring training trip.

Surely it was a disastrous beginning and put the club so far behind right off the bat that the Tygers remained with the trailing outfits all season.

Got a Homer In Opener Then Broke The Record

In the opening game of the 1923 season Rogers Hornsby, sensational St. Louis Cardinals' star, clouted a home run off the offerings of Wilbur Cooper of the Pirates.

It was an auspicious start for Hornsby, too. For from then on he proceeded to smash circuit blows at various intervals until at the end of the chase he had established a new record for the National League.

Hornsby garnered 42 four-ply punches that year, beating the former record which had stood for years, by 15 crashes.

Three records were broken in the Ladies' League at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday when the Reds took the odd game from the Whites in three good games, the Reds rolling three nice games for a good total of 2260. Miss Clara Adams then proceeded to break two other records by rolling a high single of 257, and this, coupled with two other nice singles of 203 and 162, made a record total of 623. AT THE GRAND

THE ORIGINALS.

The Originals, those incorrigibly gay and festive spirits who have warmed the hearts of Peterboro theatre-goers for the past several seasons, will be in town again Good Friday and Saturday, April 10 and 11 at the Grand Theatre with the finest aggregation of talent since they first started on tour immediately after the war. "Stepping Out," the cast of which includes many Original Dumbells, is the tempest of laughter, song and verve, and it includes everything from a scene in a war-time Estaminet to the drawing-room of the beautiful Duchess of Dishwater (Leonard Young), with a great number of sparkling songs and a thousand funny situations thrown in for good measure.

The first act in "Stepping Out," directed by Leonard Young, centres around the matrimonial troubles of John Willie Shufflebottom, played by Bob Anderson, the company's sensational Lancashire comedian. There is a heap of clever fun and buffoonery and a number of lilting song hits in which the excellent voices show to advantage, not to mention the unfortunate bridegroom who was found in the river "With his toes Turned Up," one of Bob Anderson's big hits of the show and which he has recorded with the Apex records. There are hundreds of funny situations right here; Norman A. Blume is the aristocratic Colonel Soake, while the incomparable quartette with Bertram Langley, Jerry Brayford, Thomas Dunn and Gus. McKinnon, offer some unexcelled numbers, including "Jog Along Jasper" and "Rolling Down to Rio"; Mr. Anderson, who appears at different times as a care-free man about town, a gay widow whose husband had "treated her more like a friend," the butt of the battalion's jokes, and the perfectly attired butler in yellow breeches and red coat in the home of the Duchess of Dishwater, the final setting of the show, wherein every member of the company appears as a grand opera star.

We have yet to hear of a female impersonator who can sing, as well as act, the role of a great diva such as Gene Pearson, the company's "Male Galli Curci." His amazing soprano voice carries above the male chorus of ten men and his song favorites include "Love Will Come Back," "The Dancing Lesson," "The Love Trail" and "Mighty Like a Rose." One of Mr. Pearson's new gowns is called "The Dust of the Stars," and is a brilliant myriad of white Rhinestones. He has it insured for a large sum of money.

Alan Murray, the popular dancer, does some lovely terpsichorean "stunts," first with Jerry Brayford, and again with Thomas Dunn, when they also sing "I'll take you back to Italy"; Lionel Broadway, the much heralded new juvenile, sings a new hit called "In the Night Time," and is a distinct hit. His magnetic personality and real voice have already made him extremely popular; Thomas Dunn renders the prologue from "I Pagliacci," in a spirited manner, which is one of the popular features of the show.

All the scenes in "Stepping Out" are carried out with superb color and lighting effects and the whole show is produced in that quick snappy style which keeps the audience delighted from curtain to curtain. When Bob Anderson, as the inimitable butler, enters the dress rehearsal in the Duchess' drawing-room, garbed in ridiculous looking clothes, yellow knee breeches, and looking every inch a butler, the audience simply rocks with laughter at the way he upsets everything — and this isn't the half of it.

The seat sale opens Wednesday morning.

AT THE REGENT

IS YOUR IMAGINATION GOOD? COULD YOU CREATE A FILM? FROM "DANTE'S INFERNO"

Suppose, gentle devotee of motion pictures, instead of watching film dramas from a comfortable seat where you can squeeze your best girl's hand during the most thrilling moments, you were confronted with the fact that it was up to you to write a scenario for or direct a picture based on Dante's great poetical allegory, "Inferno." Could you do it?

That's not a fair proposition you will say, because it is taken for granted that anyone who received such an assignment naturally would be experienced in the motion picture business; would have all the tricks of the game at his fingers' ends, would know the posibilities as well as the limitations of the camera; in short, would know just what he wanted to do, and how to go about it.

And yet it must be remembered that in these days of constant endeavor to get new effects and novel twists in motion pictures, each new picture presents itself as something different from anything that has gone before. So after all, a technichal knowledge of how the camera works and how people in the casts enact their parts to get over the ideas, is about all that any person, writer or director, in the picture business, has to start with. He merely has a confidence in the knowledge that very likely nobody else knows any more about what should be done than he himself.

Day by day, people who pay to watch pictures are gaining greater knowledge oh how they are made, but instead of the information that they possess detracting from their interest in pictures, it seems to increase their enjoyment of them. It is human nature to enjoy picking flaws in other people's work and to try to pick out mistakes the other fellow has made.

But getting back to our first idea: imagine what must have been the thoughts of Henry Otto, the man who directed for William Fox, Dante's Inferno," which comes to the Regent Theatre Monday, for 3 days' run, when he first was apprised that directing a picture from this great allegory was the task just ahead.

AT THE ROYAL

ROYAL GETS SOME BIG ONES

In glancing over a list of pictures booked for the Royal, it is only fair to say that Peterboro patrons have some real movie treats in store for them.

The booking at the Royal is done with care. The story is the thing more so than the star. It is a proven fact that within the last few months two prominent stars are on the wane due to the fact that they have had three bad stories in a row.

In booking films for the Royal, first the story is read, the cast noted and wherever possible the picture is screened before contracts are signed.

For Monday next "Roaring Rails" is considered the best railroad melodrama turned out of any studio in the past year. It features Harry Carey, Edith Roberts and Frankie Darro, one of the screens cleverest children. It contains more real thrills than is generally found in one production, with a climax of a forest fire with Carey driving an engine through it that never has been equalled.

For Thursday, Good Friday and Saturday, Lillian Gish in "The White Sister" has been booked. We consider this diplomatic booking. What picture could be more appropriate for Good Friday than "The White Sister."

Other big ones in the near future include Katherine Norris' famed novel, "Butterfly," with Laura La Plante, Norman Kelley, Kenneth Harlan.

Constance Talmadge in "The Gold FiFsh" with Za Su Pitts, Jack Mulhall, etc., the comedy catch of the year. Hoot Gibson in "Let 'Er Buck" staged at the Pendleton round-up. The greatest exhibition of frontier days every produced. Baree, Son of Kazan, by James Oliver Curwood. This story is now running in the Examiner. Colleen Moore in "Flirting with Love" has been listed as one of the best ten made in 1924. Other real movie hits that Royal patrons can look forward to include: Richard Dix in "Too Many Kisses"; Reginald Denny in "Oh, Doctor"; Bebe Daniels in "Little Miss Blue Beard"; "Wildfire," a racing drama. Mary Philbin in "Fifth Avenue Models," etc.

The Royal has the pictures.

BRITAIN'S KING AND QUEEN SPEND THEIR FIRST EVENING AT A PICTURE SHOW

The King and Queen just spent their first evening in a picture palace recently. For several years past the Royal Family h interested itself in the movies, and command performances have been given at Balmoral and elsewhere in private rooms specially fitted up for the occasion with a small screen, a portable projector and an orchestra composed of a piano and a few strings. The Prince of Wales has sponsored the British cinema as patron, star and spectator in one. The King and Queen have played their parts in a hundred capitals.

But for the first time their Majesties attended a public performance in a picture-house and sat amongst the audience in a box cunningly constructed with ante-room and connecting passages from the back rows of the stalls.

A film reproduction of the attack on Zeebrugge in 1918, made with great care and vigor by a British company, and fully approved by the Admiralty, was the core of the entertainment, and there followed an animated cartoon of Bonzo, the study dog, and a number of scenes of the arrival of the King and Queen at the theatre just one hour and thirty minutes earlier.

The best seats, according to the custom of the movies, being placed as far as possible from the screen, their Majesties enjoyed for at least one evening of their lives an undisturbed view of the Englishman's back registering pleasure in seats which cost a guinea apiece and which could have been sold a dozen times over before the performance began.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

Not being connected with any religious organization for some twenty one years, anything written under the above heading, with my signature, I am alone responsible for. In expressing myself in the interests of truth, the reader will please excuse my crude way of doing so. Seeing no one through the columns of the Examiner undertakes to dispel error and spread abroad truth, I am compelled to do so. I recognize the value of a small space in our city 'daily' seeing what is written reaches a large number of people. Look soon for some extracts from the pen of a Rev. on "The Old-Time Religion." This writer does not live many miles from the Peterboro market place. 1d81-10038 M. T. BUTCHER.

The pictures for boys at the "Y" to-night will be "The Story of Old Quebec." These pictures are shown each Saturday evening by Mr. F. G. McNeely and his club of boys.

The young men's supper club met last evening for supper. The meeting was a business one, and the future of the club was discussed. It was decided to discontinue the weekly suppers until the fall opening next October. Plans are under way for an outdoor meal sometime in June.

U. S. MEN QUICK IN EXPLORTING ONTARIO'S BEER

START SALOONS

Corner Properties in Windsor Under U. S. Options in Anticipation.

DETROIT, April 4 — (Canadian Press)—Beer with a 4.4 per cent alcoholic content that can be retailed at five cents a glass, now regarded by Detroiters as virtually assured in Ontario, has created a swift boom in realty across the Detroit River in Windsor, Walkerville, Sandwich and adjacent resort territory. Windsor real estate men said today. Ferries plying between Detroit and Windsor yesterday bore many United States citizens who sought summer cottages along the Detroit River, Lake St. Clair, or Lake Erie.

Others sought business property in Windsor suitable for operation of saloons as soon as Ontario's 4.4 per cent beer bill becomes a law.

For several months a number of valuable corner propertes in down town Windsor have been under option to men on this side of the line.

SOCIETY

The cast and those that helped to make the P. C. I. play, "Come Out of the Kitchen," the success it was, were entertained by the Literay Society to a supper and a little dance in the Assembly Hall, last evening. Mr. L. J. Petitt, Mr. C. S. Browne and Mr. F. J. A. Morris spoke giving varying side-lights on the play.

The music was supplied by Charlie Sedgewick and two players from the P. C. I. Orchestra, William Cormack and Douglas Widdess.

The many friends of Miss May Perry, who has been ill for six weeks and is still confined to her bed, will be glad to hear that she is improving nicely.

About thirty-five guests were on hand, and an enjoyable evening was spent in dancing and parlor amusements. The music was furnished by Nichols' orchestra. An unexpected presentation of two handsome silver cups was made by Manager Lundy, Melville McNeeley receiving one, awarded him as the most effective player on his team. Danny White was presented with the other cup, emblematic of the player scoring the most goals in the season now finished. Mrs. Naish served a nice luncheon to her guests, which was appreciated by all. The Falcons Hockey Club are also thankful to her for the use of her home and the efforts she took to make everybody happy.

SYRUP 65 CENTS.

Ex-Alderman Stocker had his first Saturday morning session on the farmers market this morning as new market clerk. Downstairs, on the open market, W. J. Hancock, the auctioneer, mentioned in the list of possible aspirants for the late alderman's seat in the council, and a runner-up in the last municipal election, was busily engaged in selling various goods that included a two-seated motor of a certain popular make, disposed of for the sum of $100, and a buggy in good condition for $49.

Maple syrup and fresh salmon trout from Lake Ontario had the centre of the stage off the open section this morning. Syrup was selling at 65 and 70 cents a gallon. Fresh trout with greenish silver backs were 25 cents a pound. The aristocratic Bourbon alias "mudcat" were four pounds for fifty cents. Apples were 45 and 50 and 60 cents a peck for varying grades of Starks, and Cranberry Pippins were 40 cents a peck. An animated discussion between two market habitues was being waged on the prospective merits of a new idea in apples being promoted by a district grower, in grafting Kings and Spys and McIntosh Reds on Tolman Sweet trees.

Potatoes sold at 70 and 75 cents a bag generally, with 85 cents asked for Irish Cobblers.

Canadian artichokes, white and knobby, were 5 cents a quart. Two dollars apiece was the price asked for big White Pekin ducks.

Upstairs, in the basket section, supplies were cleaned out at an early hour. Butter went from 38 to 35 cents a pound. Eggs generally were priced at 28 cents a dozen, with a downstairs dealer asked 25 cents for his basketful. Chickens were 30 cents a pound.

Sulphur beans were 25 cents for two quarts, and butter beans and onions for seeding were priced respectively at 15 and 10 cents a quart.

Permanent waving adds tremendously to the attractions of nine women out of ten. ONE THOUSAND CARS A DAY

One thousand cars a day— the biggest six-cylinder business in the automobile industry—are now being built in the Hudson-Essex factories in Detroit, according to word received by C. E. Brewer, Hudson Essex distributor.

Ninety per cent. of this immense business is in the popular Hudson-Essex coaches, it was declared. The coach type of body was originated by the Hudson organization three years ago, and this concern now has had the experience of building nearly a quarter of a million of them.

"This great volume of business, which has brought Hudson-Essex into an indisputable six cylinder leadership for the whole industry," said Mr. Brewer, "has been a steady growth over the period in which the coach has been built. There probably has never been a single body type in the whole history of the business which has had such a phenomenal success.

"Now the popularity has become such that Hudson-Essex is the biggest builder of six cylinder cars in the world. When you consider that some automobile men tried to ridicule the coach when it was first introduced, the success of Hudson-Essex must be considered a most remarkable one. This spring there will undoubtedly be a shortage of these popular cars, because our winter business has been so consistently good that we have been unable to build up a reserve supply of them. It is fortunate indeed that the Hudson-Essex factory has been able to reach this high mark of production, or the shortage would be even more drastic.

"The thinking motor car buyer must ask himself, what is behind this success. My opinion is that Hudson-Essex do not emphasize any one feature of their cars, but make every attempt to build in all-around value. The public asks for reliable transportation at the righ standard of prices. Month after month it is this type of buying which has kept Hudson-Essex in a position of uninterrupted sales leadership and public demand.

"April will be the largest month we ever have known. The last few days have shown a sharp upward trend in demand—the first sign of the spring rush. The greatest number of inquiries is for coaches—and this is true, I understand, with all lines of cars. But for along time to come the man who thinks of coaches will think of Hudson and Essex."

HERRIOTT SEEKS LEVY ON RICH

Substantial enough to Relieve Present Condition and Prevent Recurrence.

READJUST FINANCE.

PARIS, April 4 (Canadian Press)—Premier Herriot this morning continued his consultations with political leaders regarding the proposed capital levy. It is generally understood that this proposition is the key to the plan of the radicals by which the government hopes to put French finances on a solid basis.

While details of the call to be made on the fortunes in France should this scheme be carried through remains to be worked out, it is said by high authorities at the foreign office that it will be substantial enough to give real relief for exising difficulties and afford ample assurance against a recurrence of the present crisis.

ELECTION OF MILLERAND TO THE FRENCH SENATE IS HERRIOT LOSS

Former President Received Triple the Votes of Next Candidate—Was Attacked by Government Press—Joins Poincare Group.

MILLERAND ATTACKED CAPITAL LEVY

PARIS, April 6—Former President Millerand yesterday was elected Senator for the department of the Seine to succeed the late Senator Magny. M. Millerande received 520 votes, and M. Autrand, his chief opponent, 175.

M. Millerand as soon as it was definitely known that he had been chosen as Senator for the Seine, announced that he would become a member of the Republican Union group, of which another former president of the Republic, M. Poincare, is a member.

The vote received by M. Millerand was almost triple that of the next candidate. There were 1,014 votes cast, making 508 an absolute majority, the figure required for election on the first ballot. M. Osmin, Unified Socialist, ran third to M. Millerand, and M. Autrand, with 158 votes. Osmin was followed by M. Bachlet, Independent Communist, with 86 votes. M. Camelinat, the veteran Communist who participated in the Communist outbreak in Paris in 1871, was given 71 votes, and Jacques Dahr, three, and M. Didelot, one.

Millerand Vindicated.

Millerand thus scored over those who, by means of which some political observers considered was a straining of the constitution, forced him to resign and leave France's White House before his term as president was nearly over, under charges that he had violated and had expressed a determination further to violate the same constitution.

When the vacancy in the Senate for the department of the Seine, which means Paris and its suburbs, occurred through the death of Senator Magny, M. Millerand was the first to announce his candidacy.

The government press made a strong campaign against M. Millerand, making particular play of extracts from his speeches and writings when, at the beginning of his career, he was an advanced Socialist.

COOLIDGE COMMENDED FOR ECONOMY IN HATS

London Papers Urge Similar Saving There.

LONDON, April 6. — President Coolidge's action in sending his hat to be reblocked for Easter has been commended by the British press, which since high taxes hit the British public has persistently clamored for personal as well as Government economy.

It is recalled that one of the famous Dukes of Devonshire invariably attended the smartest English race meetings in the same hat year after year. The Duke's explanation was that the particular hat was particularly comfortable, fitting the shape of his head exactly, and he hated the idea of giving it up. But finally twenty-four of the Duke's women friends decided that the old hat was a scandal and agreed to send twenty-four new hats of an accepted type to Devonshire House on the same day.

The Duke accepted all the gifts with many thanks, but never wore any of them.

PRISONERS RAID LIQUOR STOCKS IN SARNIA JAIL

Forty-two Bottles of Gin, Whiskey and Beer Were Emptied.

Storeroom Reached Through Ceiling —Ingenuity Required in the Descent.

SARNIA, Ont., April 6.—(Canadian Press).—The disclosure of the theft of a quantity of liquor from the seized stocks held in the County Jail, pending disposition of the O.T.A. cases came Saturday with the arraignment in the city police court of Henry Quinn, Shamrock Street, on a charge of stealing a quantity of liquor at the County Jail. J. R. Donohue, counsel for Quinn, reserved plea and election, and requested an enlargement.

The court acceded and fixed next Thursday as the date for trial.

Bail was accepted. The story disclosed by the charge against Quinn is to the effect that during the last month or so about 42 bottles of gin, two bottles of whiskey and numerous bottles of beer had been extracted from the cartons, the contents consumed and the empty bottles restored to the cases.

Entrance to the cell block where the liquor was stored was gained through the ceiling, it was stated, and considerable ingenuity was evidenced in the process. Boards were removed from the ceiling and subceiling sufficient to allow a man to descend and after the journey into the liquor den the boards were placed back and held in position by door buttons which had apparently been picked up by one of the prisoners who had been working in the yard of the jail premises. Efforts had even been made to replace the dust. Quinn was not the only one concerned in the theft, it is said, and a close check up is being made by jail officials and Provincial police in an effort to ascertain just how many prisoners were concerned in the theft. The information against Quinn set out that the offence occurred between March 1 and 31, but the discovery was not made till Saturday.

FRENCH FREE MASONRY FAVORS CAPITAL LEVY

Approve Drastic Action Expected of Herriot.

PARIS, April 6. — (Canadian Press).—The Federal Council of the Grand Lodge of French Free Masonry pronounced itself in favor of a capital levy in a resolution adopted Sunday to affirm its sympathy with the Democratic Government "in its struggle to realize a real Republic, despite all reactionary efforts."

The resolution protested against the State having any official relations with any church and said the lodge's motto was the same as that of the Republic—"liberty, fraternity and equality."

"In fiscal matters," said the resolution, "equality consists of asking citizens to contribute in accordance with their means."

Free Masonry in France is dissimilar to that in the United States and Great Britain. In France it is largely a political organization.

BRITISH WATCH FRENCH TANGLE OVER FINANCES

Payments on Debt to Britain Would Help Relieve the British Taxpayer.

SEEMS PROSPEROUS

French People Dislike Paying Taxes—Direct Taxation or Levy Inevitable?

LONDON, April 6. — (Canadian Press).—The political and financial situation in France, which has had the effect of temporarily suspending the conversations of the two Governments over the debt settlement question, is being watched here with intense interest. This interest arises not only over concern at the possibility of a further serious fall in the value of the francs, but from the possible effect the funding of the French debt to Great Britain would have on British taxation.

Winston Spencer Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is preparing his budget statement and is generally credited with the intention to make some reduction in the income tax, although national accounts do not seem to show a promising field for alleviation of the burdens of the taxpayer. If, however, there were prospects of some annual payments from France to offset the British debt repayments to the United States these, together with expectations from the operation of the Dawes plan might, in the opinion of Mr. Churchill, justify some tax reduction.

According to Paris despatches to English newspapers, M. Herriot, the French Premier, contemplates some exceedingly bold and courageous plan to rehabilitate the franc, which would include a settlement of the debt question with the United States and England. The despatches say the Premier would be taking his political life in his hands, forseeing a defeat in Parliament, but that he would put his trust in the country to be re-elected.

"Camouflage" Scheme.

Harold Cox, in a Sunday Times article discussing the French financial crisis, says the trouble is that the French Government has difficulty in meeting its immediate financial obligations and at the same time is hampered by previous pledges that on no account would the currency be further inflated. To meet this awkward position the Treasury had designed a compromise, which might perhaps more accurately be called "camouflage."

The new series of notes, Mr. Cox goes on, is designed solely to meet the commercial needs of the country, and he continues:

"A shortage of currency when so many million pieces of paper money have been printed seems paradoxical. But paradox constantly recurs whenever a government starts on the dangerous road of inflation. The plentifulness of paper money lowers the value of paper and consequently sends up prices as measured in paper. More paper is then required to do the work of buying and selling and the public cry out that there is a shortage of currency. The Government responds by printing more paper; prices rise higher still; again there is a demand for more currency, and so the game goes on."

Other causes Mr. Cox assigns for the shortage is the French habit of hoarding, and he mentions on the

MARX NOMINEE OF DEMOCRATS

COALITION EFFORT

BERLIN, April 6—With approval voted him at Sunday's session of the national committee of the German Democratic party, Dr. Wilhelm Marx was formally ratified as the official candidate of the so-called Weimar Coalition, comprising Socialists, Center and Democratic parties.

The caucus of the Democratic party yesterday was largely attended by out of town delegates, and, although a strong minority was opposed to formal action by the party, it was finally resolved that in view of the equivocating and anti-Republican attitude of the National-Conservative bourgeois bloc, no choice was left for the Democrats but to join the Center and Socialist parties in a determined effort to carry the election on April 26 for Dr. Marx and the Weimar constitution.

With the former Chancellor thus ratified the die is cast so far as the three Republican parties are concerned. That Dr. Marx in many respects is not the most formidable candidate at the disposal of the Weimar parties is plainly reflected in the scruples entertained by prominent Democratic leaders, who do not attempt to conceal their disgust at the manner in which their party was forced into becoming a partner in the past negotiated between the Socialists and Centrists.

UNION REVIVES LOVE OF CHURCH

NOT CHRISTIANITY.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 6.— Rev. S. J. Chown, D.D., LLD., of Toronto, General Superintendent of the Methodist church in Canada, speaking here Sunday in Robie street Methodist church, declared, "the opponents of the Church Union have such an inflated prejudice they have lost the glory of it altogether, they are defending "churchianity," not christianity. Love of church which we thought dead fifty years ago has been revived."

Speaking of the part the Methodist church was playing in the union, he said: "Out of this tribulation we are getting strength to go forward into a high conception of Christian duty and life, and we shall go forward in the name of the Lord, shouting victory."

Dr. Chown urged the revival of the strongest evangelistic spirit within the Methodist body, and for that spirit to be carried into the new church, remarking that otherwise they would be entering the union under false pretences, as both the Presbyterian and Congregational bodies were expecting the contribution of evangelism from the Methodist church. "There is something more important than church union," added Dr. Chown and that, spirituality. "If we are not ready for it spiritually, perhaps union would do more harm than good," he remarked.

GAMBIA GREETS PRINCE ON HIS FIRST LANDING

Enthusiastic Welcome by Natives, Who Pledge Loyalty to the Crown.

COLORFUL SCENE

Garden Party at Bathurst, West Africa—Town Bathed in Sunlight.

BATHURST, Gambia, West Africa, April 6—The battle cruiser Repulse, with the Prince of Wales on board, left here for Sierra Leone at 8.30 o'clock Saturday evening.

The Prince finished his day at Bathurst with a garden party and a triumphal tour through the streets of the town. He went on foot the last 100 yards on his way to the dock, passing through throngs of cheering natives.

So great was the enthusiasm and the crowding of the natives that the Prince and his staff became separated from the other members of the Royal party, who had difficulty in making their way to the point of embarkation. When the visitors boarded the yacht which was to take them out to the Repulse there was great cheering by the people on the quay.

It was a great day for Bathurst.

Natives in Color

It was the first landing of the heir to the throne since the Repulse left England, March 28, on the long voyage to Africa and South America. When the Prince came ashore in the morning the town was bathed in sunlight and lavishly decorated; the natives were in brilliant flowing robes, the predominant colors being blue and red. The great crowds included innumerable children and there was much handclapping, shouting and leaping in a kind of ecstasy. The waving of voluminous head coverings added to the novelty of the spectacle.

As the Prince's car approached, the women in the crowds made sweeping movements, indicating their desire to clear the way for the Royal visitor.

Visit Cenotaph

One car moved in the direction of the cenotaph; this was the car that carried the Prince, and those assembled along the way broke through the guards, quite oblivious of the fact that other cars were following in the wake of the Prince's, and their drivers had to perform wondrous feats of skill, dodging amongst the jostling, shouting throng of demonstrators.

The trip to the cenotaph was highly amusing because of the smiling natives, whose constant chatter sounded like machine gun fire, and the Prince was evidently pleased and amused at the native enthusiasm. Dignity and perfect silence, however, characterized the ceremony at the cenotaph.

The Prince placed a wreath on the cenotaph, after which he received officially the addresses from the Government, the Chamber of Commerce, the French colony of the town, the chiefs of the protectorate and the Moslem inhabitants.

In a warm address of welcome the Governor, Captain Cecil H. Armitage, recalled that this is the first visit the Prince of Wales has made to West Africa, but English adventurers of the Elizabethan era made Gambia their base before the days of the Armada.

Pledge Loyalty

The Gambian native chiefs presented the Prince with a quaintly worded address breathing loyalty in every line.

"We are black, we cannot read or write English, but we are English," their tribute to the royal visitor concluded.

The Moslem community presented a similar address to the Prince. In replying, the British heir regretted the shortness of his stay in Bathurst, but said that Gambia's welcome was a happy augury for the remainder of his long tour through South Africa and South America.

While the majority of immigrants were from the British Isles, the party included a delegation of nearly 20 families from Holland who will go on farms in Western Ontario.

PRICE OF LANCASHIRE GOODS TOO HIGH HERE

British Manufacturer Surprised at Canadian Industry.

LONDON, April 6 — Canadian Press Cable)—Sir Arthur Meyrick Hollins ,of Preston, a leader in the cotton industry of Britain, who has returned home from a tour of the British Dominions, in discussing business prospects declared that the high price of Lancashire goods was the greatest factor against them everywhere and especially in Canada and the United States.

He was surprised to find the progress being made by Canada in the manufacture of goods similar to those turned out by the Lancashire plants, and the making of practically all the sheeting required, with mills working day and night. With freight rates, insurance and the tariff as added cost Sir Arthur stated that Lancashire goods started out to compete on the Canadian market with a handicap of roughly 27½ per cent. The British goods were as much appreciated as ever, but he could not see the prospect of a recovery in the trade with the Dominion until prices were brought to a lower level.

LABOR WINS SEATS IN ULSTER CONTEST

First Count of Ballots Shows That Government Members Reduced.

BELFAST, April 6 (Canadian Press).—At noon today the standing of the parties in the elections for the new Ulster Parliament were: Unionist, 24; Nationalist, 6; Independent, 4; Labor, 2; and Republican, 2.

BELFAST, Ireland, April 6 (Canadian Press)—With the first count of the balloting in the recent elections for the new Ulster Parliament it is possible to give an approximate idea of its constitution. The last parliament included 39 government members, one independent unionist and 12 nationalists and sinn feiners. The new parliament is likely to be composed of: Government members, 33; Independent Unionists, 4; Labor 2; Nationalists 9; Republicans 3; Tenants 1.

For the first time Ulster labor was successful in a parliamentary contest.

Government Men Defeated.

The defeat of six, and possibly seven, Government candidates in Friday's balloting for seats in the Ulster Parliament, is still the sole subject of discussion. In no division of Belfast did an official nominee top the list, and only two had reached the quota on the first count, whereas in 1921, their return was like a triumphant procession.

The defeat is accentuated because the chief issue was the boundary question. It is attributed in many quarters to the unimpressive character of the candidates, bad electioneering, and charges by Government candidates' opponents that the Ministry is guilty of despotism in filling Government posts. With a solid block of county votes behind him, Premier Craig's majority is secure, but for the first time he will have to face vigorous unfriendly criticism.

HOPE TO SETTLE RAILWAY QUESTION

T. and N. O. Can Build Sooner Than Others Into Rouyn District.

TORONTO, April 6—Still hoping for an amicable adjustment of the difficulties which are holding up construction on the T. and N. O. extension into the Rouyn Mining fields, Premier Ferguson was disinclined last night to make any comments which he feared might aggravate the situation.

"I am still confident," he said, "that difficulties will be satisfactorily straightened out."

Premier Ferguson was quite confident that the attitude of Quebec wouldn't result in abandonment of the proposed extension. "We have a thousand tons of supplies on the job," he said, "and we can build a year before the other people."

BOMBAY, India, Apr. 6 (Canadian Press)—All nine of men charged with attempting last January to abduct the Nautch Girl Mumtaz Bagum, former favorite of the Maharajah of Indore, were committed by the magistrate today at the conclusion of the preliminary hearing for trial in Bombay High Court.

It is understood the defence is circulating a petition to be submitted to he Viceroy asking that the case be transferred to another jurisdiction on the ground that it would be impossible to obtain a fair hearing before a Bombay jury.

SOVIET TO DECIDE FATE OF TWO POLES

Were to be Exchanged for Russians Murdered in Poland.

WARSAW, Poland, April 6. — The Polish Foreign Office has been advised of monster anti-Polish demonstrations in Russian towns where there are Polish diplomatic or consular agents. At Leningrad the demonstrators numbered some 400,000.

These demonstrations were brought on by the assassination recently of two Communist agitators, Baginski and Wierzorkiewecz, by a Polish police sergeant, while they were being taken to the Russian border to be exchanged for two Poles held prisoners by the Soviets. The Soviets have notified Poland that in view of the assassination, the fate of Father Ussak and Laszkiewicz, who were to have been handed over to the Poles in excahnge for Traginski and Wierzorkiewicz now is solely in the hands of the Soviets. The whereabouts of Laszkiewicz is unknown, but Father Ussak is in prison in Leningrad, awaiting an early trial.

APOLOGIZES TO SOVIET.

MOSCOW, April 6. — The Polish Minister has presented a note to the Soviet Foreign Commissariat in which regret is expressed for the murder of Baginski and Wierzorkiewicz.

These two Communist agitators were fired at by a Polish police sergeant while they were being taken to the Russian border, where they were to have been exchanged for two Poles held by the Soviets.

REDUCE LEGISLATORS.

Commercial Travellers Would Dispense With Half of Them.

LONDON, Ont., April 6 — The members of the Ontario Commercial Travellers Association at their quarterly meeting on Saturday adopted a resolution urging the reduction of the personnel of the House of Commons and Legislature by fifty per cent. as one way to reduce the burden of taxation. During the discussion it was claimed that the various government departments were over-staffed.

TWO COAL SEAMS FOUND.

AMHERST, N.S., April 6.—Two parallel coal seams, one nearly four feet in thickness and the other three feet, have been discovered by the Maritime Coal, Railway and Power Company near the Maple Leaf mine at Riviere Hebert. It is stated that a slope will be sunk immediately for the working of the four-foot seam, and that work will be furnished for several hundred men.

JAIL AND LASH FOR ED. GATES

Uncle of Girl Who, With Mother, Committed Suicide Near Bancroft.

THIRTEEN LASHES.

BELLEVILLE, April 6.—Edward Isaac Gates, 27 years, was sentenced by His Honor Judge Wills, in the County Court Saturday, to a term of not less than six months and not more than two years less one day in the Provincial Reformatory, and thirteen lashes to be applied in four months for carnal knowledge of a girl under the age of fourteen, Shirley Wilson, his niece, recently a suicide.

The maximum penalty is life for this offence.

Women in Audience.

Gates pleaded guilty when the charge was read. He was represented by Mr. C. A. Payne. Over one hundred sepctators, among them a number of women, were in the court when the case began. It lasted just fifteen minutes.

The date alleged in the charge was September 12th, 1924, and the place the Township of Carlow.

After citing the medical testimony in the case, Mr. Donnan, the Crown attorney, said: "Therefore it is established in his favor that he could not have been responsible for the condition of the girl," adding that that state existed at the time of the offence charged. While this did not lessen his guilt, it should be a point in his favor.

"This does not merit the extreme penalty which is life imprisonment. Had he been guilty of an offence against an incompetent child I should not have thought the extreme penalty too severe, but under these circumstances," said the crown, "a much less penalty would suffice."

Prisoner's counsel, Mr. C. A. Payne declared that the only evidence was that of the accused. He had volunteered statements without compulsion and made a clean breast of the whole affair. Mr. Payne pointed out that if the girl had been fourteen instead of about thirteen at the time, Gates could not have been convicted on account of the evidence as to the girl's character adduced at the inquest. Mr. Payne referred to the evidence of her having been "forward."

"Everyone regrets," remarks Mr. Payne, "the lamentable deaths of the girl and her mother. But the accused is not responsible for that. The father had informed me that he thinks the accused has been punished sufficiently already."

Judge Wills noted the fact that Gates had served his country in war, but said he had erred on this occasion. "You did so when the uncle of that child, the one among many men, who should protect an innocent child, innocent at least to you. You should have told your sister."

"Society must be protected and children taken care of especially by those expected to take care of them.

"I know you feel your position keenly. You have been manly in regard to these proceedings here and are willing to undergo punishment. As a punishment to you and a warning to others I sentence you to the provincial prison for a term of not less than six months and not more than two years less one day.

"I think that through you it must be impressed upon the people that this must be stopped. Sympathy must not be carried too far. Therefore I direct thirteen lashes of whipping to be applied to you in four months."

STRUCK BY TRAIN.

Mrs. Zeba Austin, 71, Injured When on Way to Meeting.

KINGSTON, April 6 (Special to The Examiner).—While on her way to attend a prayer meeting at Lansdowne, Mrs. Ziba Austin, was struck by a freight train at the crossing of the C.N.R. and is now in the General Hospital here, suffering from serious injuries. Mrs. Austin is 71 years of age and did not notice the train approaching.

DIRECT APPEAL TO PETERBORO'

Mayor of Glace Bay Asks Citizens to Supply Flour.

COMMITTEE BUSY.

After Mr. Duff, M.P., had delivered his sensational speech in the House of Commons the other day, in which he declared that there was no need of sending relief to the families at the Cape Breton mines, the local committee which was arranging for the shipment of a car load of provisions sent the following wire to Glace Bay:

The Mayor,
Glace Bay, N.S.

Citizens at Peterboro are considering sending you a car load of provisions for relief of miners. If needed, answer.

In reply, the following wire has been received from Mayor Morrison and Rev. M. A. MacAdam, chairman of the Glace Bay Relief Committee:

"We suggest you ship flour, our heaviest item. Free transportation given us."

In view of this request, the local committee, consisting of Messrs. Walter Oke, R. Denne, R. H. Turner and Charles Richor would ask that any citizens who want to donate flour should communicate with them at once, while those not able to give flour may perhaps like to make a cash donation. It is desired to get the car away as soon as possible.

150 CHILDREN DIE.

Toll of Infantile Paralysis in New Zealand.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, April 6.— (Canadian Press Cable Via Reuter's).—The epidemic of infantile paralysis, which has taken a toll of about 150 lives since the outbreak in December last, is dying out and the schools which were closed at Christmas will re-open on April 15, but attendance will not be compulsory for some time yet. The restrictions which were placed on the travelling of children and gatherings of young folk have been relaxed.

There were about 1,000 children affected by the disease.

AMERICANS ASK STRANGE THINGS

"Are There Any Stores in Peterborough?" Asked by Intending Tourist.

MANY ARE SIMILAR.

A picture of Peterboro, as the average American supposes it to be, shows a village of about two houses and a pump on a lonely backwoods road. There are no trains, and no telegraphs. If there happens to be a store, it is only an ordinary village store, and handles nothing that its chief customers, the hardy backwoodsmen, would regard as useless luxuries. Supposedly the inhabitants use a piece of string and a pin, with a pole cut in the bush, as fishing tackle, and the streams are frozen solid till June.

This impression is compiled from some of the questions asked by intending tourists who write to Leon Frazer, secretary of the Peterboro branch of the Ontario Motor League.

"Are there any stores in Peterboro?"; "Can be buy fishing tackle there"; "If we motor in can we go back by train?"; "Could we send wires from Peterboro?"; "Please send me the name of the general storekeeper so I can write him to arrange for supplies." These are a few of the many queer questions asked. At the New York Motor Boat Show Mr. Frazer was asked, "When does navigation open up on the Trent Canal?" When he said "In May," the inquirer said, "Why, I thought the rivers were frozen over until June!"

KINGSTON HEARING WAS SECRET TO-DAY

CAMPBELLFORD MERCHANTS MAY REFER HOLIDAY TO THE COUNCIL

Disagreement Last Year Resulted in Some Stores Remaining Open All Week.

COUNCIL'S POWER

Woollen Mill Re-opens After Week's Cessation for Stock-taking.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 6. — Another infallible sign that Spring is here is the fact that the business men are beginning to discuss the question of a half-holiday every week, beginning May 1, and continuing during the Summer months. For some years the day most generally observed here has been Friday, but last Summer there was a lack of harmony on the subject, some merchants preferring Thursday, and the result was that several places of business were kept open every working day in the week.

May Go To Council

Some of the merchants are now in favor of having the matter placed in the hands of the Council, so that all dealers would be compelled to observe the half holiday under penalty of a fine. The authority of the Council to deal with it is clearly established by an amendment to the Factory Act which was passed in the Spring of 1921.

This amendment provides that when three-fourths of any particular class of merchants join in a petition asking the Council to designate a weekly half holiday, then the Council has no alternative but to pass a by-law designating such holiday, the particular day being a matter for the town representatives to decide.

Signing the Petition.

Every class of merchants would be required to join in separate petitions or at least to sign a general petition in groups. If a merchant carries a stock of groceries and dry-goods, or handles any other two lines of commodities, he is required to sign a petition on behalf of the branch from which he derives the greater returns. In a small town it is a comparatively easy matter to check up accurately the number of names on the petition and to compare these with the number actually engaged in each particular business.

What Is a Shop?

In the amendment, the word "store" is not mentioned, all places of business to which the law can be applied, being included in the term "shop." The Factory Act defines a "shop" as a building or part of a building where goods are displayed for sale on counters or shelves. Special reference, however, is made of barber shops, many of which would not meet this condition, so that they are included in the list of business places that may be closed by the process outlined above. Exceptions are made of drug stores, ice cream parlors and restaurants.

Extends Council's Power.

Under the Factory Act, Councils in towns and cities had the right, previous to the passing of this amendment, to close any line of shops between the hours from 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. in the next day, provided a majority of those engaged in that line petitioned as above. All that the amendment really does is to extend the closing hour backward from 7 to 12.30 p.m.

The Enforcement.

The Chief of Police is required to see that the by-law is observed and to proceed against any offender just as he would in the case of violation of the Factory Act. There are not penalties mentioned in the amendment; those provided in the Factory Act to continue in force.

One By-law Sufficient.

The Council can meet, if so disposed, and pass a weekly half-holiday by-law the same night a petition in due form is received. On the other hand it is mandatory that the by-law be passed within 30 days of the receipt of the request.

Campbellford's town solicitor says that a separate by-law for each line of business would not be required, but that one would cover the entire ground.

Farm Not Sold.

J. R. Battisby offered for sale by auction at the St. Lawrence Hotel Saturday afternoon, 100 acres of improved farm land belonging to D. J. Dunlay, and situated about five miles from Campbellford. The property was not sold as the highest bid received was $300 below the owner's reserve price. The place will be offered for sale again next Wednesday.

Mill Resumes Work.

The Campbellford Cloth Company's mill, that was closed down last week for stock-taking, resumed operations as usual Monday morning and a small army of employees are again at work.

SENTENCE OFFICERS SHOWCARD SCHOOL

Toronto Man Gets Year and Fine—Used Mails to Defraud.

DETROIT, Mich., April 3—Denying motion for staying judgment against officials of the Detroit Show Card School, Judge Simons in Federal Court sentenced three of the defendants who had been found guilty of using the mails to defraud.

Peter F. Griffin, 23 years old, of Toronto, head of the "school," drew a sentence of one year in Federal Penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth and was fined $12,000, of which $5,000 was on a conspiracy charge and $1000 each on seven other counts.

Six months in the House of Correction and a fine of $8000, was meted out to Wm. Littlefair, 31 years old, general manager of the "school." F. W. Sherbert, aged 23, office manager, whom Simons referred to as the "scapegoat," was fined $500 and sentenced to the House of Correction for three months.

Griffin said after the sentence he had no money, having given it all to his father in Toronto, who had refused to come to his assistance.

TWO NONOGENARIANS

COBOURG, April 6—It is seldom that a circumstances occurs of two citizens who have passed the 90th milestone being borne to their last resting place on the same day, and yet that occurred here on Friday.

Thomas McMahon, who was buried here on Friday morning, and whose age is given as 95, is believed to have been nearer the century mark than that. His familiar figure was to be seen daily on the streets up to the day before his death. He helped to build the old Cobourg and Peterborough Railroad, that novel undertaking that was intended to link up Cobourg and Peterborough, and also the Grand Trunk Railway through this district. In his early years he engaged in fishing and could spin may a true yarn of adventure regarding that industry once largely carried on here. Of late he had been employed by the town.

Mrs. James Sidney

Mrs. James Sidney, widow of the late James Sidney and before her marriage, Mary Ann Edgcombe, was buried Friday afternoon having attained the great age of 90 years. She was born in Cornwall, England, in 1835, and came with her parents and their family to Cobourg in 1852. She, too, has seen many changes in the town during her residence here. Mrs. Sidney had been poorly in the last five years. She was a faithful member of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Sidney is survived by one daughter, Miss Mary and by three sons, James A. of Oakland, Cal., Thomas K., professor in the University of Washington at Seattle, and Joseph H. of Herrington, Kansas. Interment was in Cobourg Union Cemetery.

SPRING WORK ON AT EAST EMILY

Roadmaking Has Already Commenced— Maple Sugar Season Is Over.

EAST EMILY, April 6. — The maple syrup season is nearing the end in this district and the run of sap is getting very small.

Some of the men in this district are busy working in the fields, and the people are thinking the time won't be very long until spring seeding will be the order of the day.

W. Moncrief, county road overseer, has started work on the fourth line again, and hopes to make a big improvement to the road in the near future.

A New Cottage.

Messrs. E. Storey and M. Sherin are building a cottage near Lancaster bridge. The building is being constructed of logs, bungalow style, and it is expected when summer comes there will be a great many wanting to spend their vacation in the cottage at Lancaster.

The trapping season is now on, and there are a great many traps set along the shores of Mud Lake and Pigeon River, and the trappers report the season very good.

The people in this locality think Spring is here for sure as the frogs have been heard in the nearby ponds the past few nights, and nearly all the Spring birds are back and are receiving a warm welcome.

The funeral of the late Mr. Robt. Boate which took place from his family residence on Wednesday afternoon was attended by a large number of people.

It being an Orange funeral the different lodges from this district attended and the bearers were Orange brothers with whom he attended lodge for a number of years. They were as follows: Gabriel Switzer, Thomas Atwell, John J. Doube, Richard Howden, Wm. Harrison, and John McCarrel.

WILL PAY DEBT ON CAVAN HALL

Community Effort Being Made to Clear Useful Building From Mortgage.

HOLD BIG BAZAAR.

MILLBROOK, April 6.—The Cavan Community Hall, formally opened two years ago last February, has proved its usefulness and value on so many occasions since that time, the citizens have frequently been led to wonder how they ever did without so necessary a convenience.

The initial cost of $8,000 lacks less than $1,500 of being entirely paid off, and some funds are on hand to meet this obligation. The ladies of the community, in a commendable effort to assist in liquidating the whole remaining debt, are preparing for a monster bazaar, to be held in the near future. Tea will be served,

"The Devil Told Me To Do It," Says Mother Slayer

MRS. MARTHA WISE

MEDINA, O., April 3.—Militant influence exercised by parents over their grown children is being blamed for a triple arsenic plot which resulted in the deaths of three people and serious illness of 17 others.

Martha Wise, 42, known as the poison widow of Hardscrabble, is now facing a first degree murder charge because, as folks say, she was affection-starved.

She has confessed that she killed her mother, her uncle and aunt, by putting arsenic in the water pails.

All her life Martha wanted to be loved. She married and four children came to her home to bring happiness.

But her husband died, leaving her alone to support the children. Hard knocks came to her aplenty. Farm work. Heavy man's work. A 50-acre farm to pay for.

And the nights—long, cold, gray nights, with no one to love or cheer her. Then she met Walker Jones—she liked him—folks say she intended marrying him.

But her mother objected. Walker must halt his attentions or the mother would disown her.

Parents in Hardscrabble are supreme until death. To be disowned was something that couldn't possibly be.

Mother and daughter quarreled. Soon after the mother died. Then an aunt and uncle died and numerous relatives and friends became ill. Then authorities investigated.

Soon after Mrs. Wise told her story—she had poisoned all of them by placing arsenic in the water. "The devil told me to do it," she says.

And this affection-starved woman faces a murder charge on which she will be tried early in April.

and a play, "Aaron Slick, of Punkin' Crick," by local talent will be given in the evening.

The entire community, practically, is enlisted in the work in some form; generous donations are being made, and doubtless united effort will be crowned with well-deserved success.

The series of sermons on "Peter," which Rev. F. H. Howard has been preaching in the Methodist Church on Sunday mornings for the past months, grows in interest and power, as is evidenced by the increasing congregations each week.

"Peter's Denial," was taken up at the morning service on Sunday, and proved very heart-searching as the message was pressed home. There are none but must acknowledge, to their shame, they they have denied their Lord, because, like Peter, "we have been boastful and self-confident failed to watch and pray, and sat warming outselves at the world's fire with the enemies of our Master."

Hope lies in this—not to lost faith, like Judas, and go out to self-destruction and eternal loss, but rather like Peter to cling to faith, deeply repent our sinful failure, confess our wrong-doing, and be trusted with a greater task than ever in the work of the Kingdom.

"Repentance without confession is like an abscess which has been opened but not emptied. A first, and seemingly fatal, mistake in life may be remedied by the grace of God. We have not yet learned how gracious the Lord is, nor realized that they who trust Him shall not want any good thing."

The series will be continued after the interruption of the special Easter services next Sunday.

F. N. Alcorn took the solo part in the anthem on Sunday morning, "The Lord Our Shepherd," being the title. The choir is preparing a special Easter song service for next Sunday evening.

The first letter stamped "By Air Mail," to be received at the local post office, arrived on the five o'clock mail on Wednesday, April 1. It was despatched from Denver, Colorada, on Monday, March 30, arriving here within two days on its way to its destination in South Monaghan.

The horizontal stripes of red and blue across the centre of the envelope are probably the "hall mark" of the air route.

The Cosmos Club, Dr. C. A. Richards, president, is providing a treat for local music lovers on Wednesday evening, when the Symphony Orchestra of Peterborough, will give an entertainment in the Armories, under its auspices. A full house greeted this musical organization on its initial appearance here two years ago, and it is likely there will be few vacant seats on Wednesday evening.

The pupils of the Millbrook Continuation School are holding at "At Home" at the school on Thursday evening, for which a large number of invitations have been sent out. This is the first event of the kind held by the Continuation School here. Byam's four-piece orchestra will be in attendance.

The number of cars which lined the streets every fine afternoon last week ,and particularly on Saturday, gives evidence that the roads in this vicinity are ready for motor traffic earlier than usual this season. The five miles east of the village between here and the provincial highway, thanks to the excellent road work done last fall, was never in better condition the usual soft, springy spots in the stretch through the swamp being conspicuous by their absence this year.

The Men's Brotherhood, which includes members from practically all denominations in the vicinity, has discontinued its regular Friday night meetings until Fall, but will combine with the local ministerial associaton on Thursday, April 16, when Rev. Mr. McKinnon, of Knox Church, Peterborough, will give an address on the recent world's conference of missions, held at Washington, D.C. The gathering will be at 8 p.m. in the Methodist Church, and the general public is invited to attend.

A. J. Fallis, M.P.P., was home from Toronto over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Strong, of Peterborough, motored to this village on Saturday, and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brown, and Miss Jennie Brock.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church is holding its annual meeting in the church parlors on Tuesday, April 7, at 3 p.m. The year's business will be wound up and officers elected for the current year. This will be the final annual meeting of the Aid before the United Church comes into being on June 10.

Mrs. Hugh Blair, and baby girl, Colleen, of Peterborough, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. McIvor.

Mrs. M. McDowell was the holder of the lucky number, 23, at Lambert's Bakery and Confectionery, on Saturday, winning the prize, a box of bon-bons valued at $3.50. Tickets were given with every purchase exceeding fifty cents; Councillor Stinson making the draw which decided to whom the chocolates should go.

A somewhat similar contest, a few weeks ago, resulted in Mr. Jas. Peel getting the loaf of bread which contained a five dollar gold piece.

THEATRE GUTTED BY FIRE IN NORTH BAY

Royal Theatre Interior Was Completely Ruined—Loss Was $25,000.

NORTH BAY, April 6. — Fire originating from causes yet unknown completely gutted the interior of the Royal Theatre, the leading playhouse of the town, yesterday afternoon, doing damage around $25,000.

Fire Chief Brady and his men did good work in checking the flames, just as they had gained a grip on the roof.

Every seat in the balcony was consumed while the flames roared up the gridiron, destroying a new set of scenery. The moving picture machines were an almost total loss.

ILLNESS AT HASTINGS.

Many People Suffering From More or Less Serious Ailments.

HASTINGS, April 6.—Miss Kathleen Lambert is in the hospital at Havelock, after an operation for appendicitis. Although still in a very serious condition, her physician holds out hope for her recovery.

Earl Lambert was called from Toronto owing to his sister's illness.

Mrs. H. Lambert is staying at her daughter's bedside.

The croaking of the frog is another reminder that spring has come to stay.

A number from town attended the funeral of the late Geo. Hogg on Wednesday. Interment was made in Westwood Cemetery.

Miss Eva Barrie is confined to her home through illness.

HASTINGS STREET PAVING PROGRAM MAKING PROGRESS

Province May Pay Half Cost Instead of 40 Per Cent on Highway.

NEW BRIDGE FLOOR.

(By a Staff Reporter)

HASTINGS, April 6—Ed. James, member of a well known firm of engineers in Toronto, who made the survey and estimate of cost of the street paving which the Council has planned, writes Reeve Hess that everything in progressing favorably. Owing to its position relative to the county provincial highway, Hastings is entitled to a grant of 40 per cent of the total expended on paving. Engineer James believes that this grant is to be increased to 50 per cent at the present session and if this is done Hasting will receive the benefit.

Reflooring the Bridge

The flooring of the bridge over the Trent is worn out after four years' service and the Council has already arranged for doing the work all over again. Different material than the ordinary wooden flooring which gives out so quickly under the strain of traffic, will be used. Plank that has been subjected to the creosote treatment has been purchased and this is guaranteed to last for from 35 to 40 years. If treated to a coat of larvia when laid down and once a year thereafter the flooring will be practicaly indestructible. The increase in the initial cost will not exceed, it is estimated, $350, which is considered low when the difference in the life of the new and that of the old flooring is taken into account. The stringers of the bridge being of steel it was impossible to nail ordinary plank to them so that these were laid without fastening of any kind The result was a rough roadbed. The new flooring will be solid as well as durable.

The work of re-flooring will be done by day labor instead of by contract, so as to give employment to as many men as possible.

The Constable's Salary

Newspaper readers should not run away with the idea that Constable Trinkwon's' only income from this town is $20 a month . That is all he receives for his police duties alone but he is given preference in corporation jobs and in this way earns living wages.

An attempt was made to circulate a petition asking for the officer's discharge but so few signatures were secured that the move was abandoned.

Tried To Repeat Miracle Party of Fifty Drowned

LONDON, April 6. — An attempt by a party of Christian Zulus to repeat the miracle of the Red Sea, has resulted in the drowning of fifty Zulu men, the Cape Town correspondent of the Sunday Express cables.

Floods have turned Zululand into a swamp, destroying roads and also blocking the railways.

A party returning from a tribal gathering reached a wide drift which had become a raging torrent. Determined to ford it they knelt and prayed. Then the leader struck the waters with an iron rod, commanding the waters to roll back and let them pass. The party advanced, and all were swept away, according to the cable.

HINDENBURG TO ENJOY LAURELS

Prefers Not to Enter Turbulent Political Field—Jarres to Lead.

WAR HERO.

(By Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, April 6—Former Field Marshal Von Hindenburg prefers to restore his laurel as a world war hero of Germany instead of entering the uncertain turbulence of politics as a candidate for the Presidency of the Republic.

The General, hailed as a national saviour for halting the Russian invasion at Tannenburg in the early days of the war, is disinclined to accept the nomination which parties of the right wing would offer him.

This information was conveyed to the leaders of the so-called "Empire bloc" today, although it did not come in the form of a definite refusal from Hindenburg. An emissary is expected from Hanover with positive information as to the former Field Marshal's attitude but politicians of the right have little hope that the sturdy warrior will step into te breech. Re newed nomination of arres, who led to the first poll is anticipated.

DIED OF INJURIES.

HAMILTON, April 6 (Canadian Press) — Geraldine Devlin, aged 7 ....., died in the General Hospital yesterday as the result of injuries sustained on Saturday night when knocked down by an auto driven by Dr. Cornett.

THOSE EXTRA INDEMNITIES.

Premier Ferguson's bill increasing salaries of Ontario Cabinet Ministers from $6,000 to $8,000 a year, and advancing sessional indemnities from $1,400 to $2,000, will be resented by the public, says the Ottawa Journal. Reason may possibly exist for an increase in the salaries of Cabinet Ministers, whose duties compel them to live in Toronto and to give their full time to the service of the Province. But it is absurd to suggest that $1,400 does not adequately indemnify members of the Legislature who are called to Toronto for not more than three months of the year, and who, in the majority of cases, are able to return home for week-ends and are by no means divorced from their businesses.

This country is going mad with its overhead of government. With about nine million people it is paying out something like $3,000,000 a year in salaries and indemnities to Cabinet Ministers, members of Parliament, Senators, members of Legislatures and Legislative Councillors. Our Maritime Provinces alone, always turbulent about their wrongs, have more legislators than the great State of New York, with 11 million people and a budget almost as great as the Dominion of Canada. And every year, in every Province, the case is getting worse. We are creating more representation, and paying the representation more money.

THOSE GERMAN RIFLES.

Some time ago the Examiner, pointing out that their flimsy construction made them a public menace, urged that the importation of cheap German firearms into Canada should be prohibited.

It is interesting to note that General Victor A. S. Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police, in his annual report has made the same recommendation.

A large number of these German weapons have been brought into Canada, and they have already been the cause of a number of fatal accidents.

Some of the firearms imported have been most carelessly put together, and it has been shown that they can be discharged by the mere jolting of the butt on the ground.

A rifle of the best construction, unless carefully handled, is a source of danger to those in its neighborhood.

It will be readily recognized, then, that a firearm so flimsily made that it can be discharged without touching the trigger is a direct invitation to disaster.

The cheap price of these German rifles appeals to many people, who know little or nothing about firearms, and if the importation continues the result may be an increase in the number of accidental shootings.

General Williams' recommendation should not be lost sight of by the Federal authorities.

ADVERTISING A CITY.

It has long been realized that no business can hope for any considerable volume of success without judicious and well-planned advertising.

The same principle applies to municipalities.

A city that desires to go ahead must keep in the limelight in every legitimate way that is possible.

It must see that the advantages it possesses, its manufacturing possibilities, its attractions as a residential centre, its transportation facilities and every other asset that it has are kept before the world.

The city of Hamilton, for example is at the present time having its various City Hall departments, including the fire brigade and police force, pose for the movies, and the Industrial Commissioner intends to see that the films are extensively circulated.

That is one modern form of advertising that promises to give results.

There are many others that earn wide publicity.

Peterboro's hockey team during the past winter, by winning the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association Trophy and making a fine showing in the Senior O. H. A. race, was one of the best advertising mediums this city has ever produced.

The Symphony Orchestra and the Male Voice Choir, by their exploits in the Ontario Musical Competition last year, brought Peterboro prominently to the front as a musical centre.

These organizations and others that might be mentioned play a big part in gaining publicity for their home city, and it all counts in keeping Peterboro on the map.

Nowadays it is the municipality that refuses to hide its light under a bushel that attracts visitors and home-seekers.

TOO MANY ACCIDENTS.

If there was any argument needed to prove that attention to safety first methods is good business it is supplied by the annual report of the Workmen's Compensation Board, which has just been issued.

The system has been in force in Ontario for ten years, and during the decade nearly $46,000,000 has been paid to injured workmen and their dependents in compensation and medical aid.

In that time over 440,000 accidents in the Ontario industries that come under the Act have been dealt with by the board.

How many of those 440,000 accidents were the result of carelessness?

How much of that $46,000,000 could have been saved if it were not for the same factor?

It is impossible to answer either of these questions even approximately, but at least it may be taken for granted that a large percentage of the cases were due either to a lack of proper protection, or more often to the failure on the part of workmen to exercise ordinary care.

With nearly half a million accidents in Ontario's industries in ten years it is no wonder we have a Safety League that devotes its time to trying to preach the doctrine of being careful at all times.

So far as safety appliances go these can be laid down by law, and proper inspection will ensure that the safeguards called for are provided.

But the human element still remains.

All the protection in the world will not suffice to prevent accidents if the workers themselves are negligent and careless.

There is no reason why thousands of the mishaps reported each year could not be eliminated if the men and women employed in our factories did their part by exercising a constant vigilance against the perils that beset their path.

THE McGEE CENTENARY.

The 100th anniversary of the birth of Thomas D'Arcy McGee is to be fittingly celebrated on April 13th, and an outstanding feature of the affair is the list of men of Irish birth or decent, prominent in every field of Canadian activity, who have consented to serve on the Honourary National Committee.

The anniversary arrangements are in charge of Hon. Charles Murphy, Postmaster General, who has organized the celebration on lines as broad as was the Canadianism of D'Arcy McGee.

Canadians of Irish decent or birth, Protestant or Catholic alike, are to unite in honouring the memory of a statesman who was one of the first to visualize the Canada of today, and who played a great part in bringing about the Dominion as we have it.

Here is the vision of the future Canada as D'Arcy McGee saw it when he first came to Montreal in 1857:

"I see in the not remote distance one great nationality, bound like the shield of Achilles, by the blue rim of ocean. I see it quartered into many communities, each disposing of its internal affairs, but all bound together by free institutions, free intercourse and free commerce. I see within the round of that shield the peaks of the western mountains and the crests of the eastern waves, the winding Assiniboine; the five-fold lakes, the St. Lawrence, the Ottawa, the Saguenay, the St. John and the Basin of the Minas. By all these flowing waters, in the valleys they fertilize, in all the cities they visit in their courses, I see a generation of industrious, contented, moral men, free in name and, in fact, men capable of maintaining in peace and in war a constitution worthy of such a country."

D'Arcy McGee was a great Canadian and a great statesman, and looking back over the history of this country, we can realize just what he and his associates had to contend with in bringing about Confederation.

We read with a sense of wonder that this far-seeing Irish-Canadian, not many years after he had to flee from Ireland because of his part in the Smith-O'Brien insurrection, in pressing for Confederation urged as a most important reason "that it will strengthen, rather than weaken, the connection with the Empire so essential to these rising Provinces."

His adopted country does well to pay a tribute to the memory of a man who did much for Canada, and the celebration of the centenary of one of the founders of Canada should be a memorable occasion.

THE "FRIENDLY ENEMIES" OF IMMIGRATION.

Among the other dangerous elements from which immigration must be rescued are its friends on both sides of the Atlantic.

This was startlingly illustrated in the debate in the British Parliament yesterday when Sir Victor Warrender, obviously a "friend," calmly proposed that Canada should practically hand over to the British authorities "large tracts of partially reclaimed land" upon which they "would then be able to settle men of the kind they desired to settle overseas because there would be less rigid control by the Dominion authorities."

What he meant exactly by this cryptic remark was revealed by his next sentence: "So long as the Dominions are so strict in their demands for the qualifications of settlers, there will be little chance of making any substantial advance in emigration."

That is Great Britain has certain classes of people whom she desires to settle overseas. The Overseas Dominions have learned by experience that they are no better abroad than at home, and so have set up regulations which will bar them out. But Sir Victor Warrender proposes to siphon them over these bars by getting the Dominions to allot him a sort of No Man's Land, where the British Government can comfortably spare but whom the Dominions feel a doubt about being able to digest.

Of course, there are no such Alsatia in Canada. We do not want anybody here who cannot become a good Canadian. And we must remain the final judges of the raw material which is offered to this end.

* * * *

But all "the friendly enemies" of a healthy immigration policy are not to be found in the Mother Country. There are far too many of them in Canada—and some of them are in office at Ottawa.

Among them are precisely those who hang up the "picture of blue skies and gold and fields of waving corn"—metaphorically—of which Sir Victor complains that are not borne out by the facts. The immigration agency which presents an alluring but false picture of Canada as a paradise for the home-seeker, does this land far more mischief than the open rival or critic who frankly belittles our advantages and magnifies our drawbacks. This is quite as true if the false impression is created solely by the suppression of the truth.

It is surely useless to bring to Canada men who do not even think they can succeed after they have been told the whole truth. If the real facts of the case will turn them away, then actual contact with these facts is very sure to defeat them. This is especially damaging in the case of Canada, which offers the discouraged so wide and open a way of retreat into the United States. An immigrant who finds that the reality does not reach the promise in Australia or New Zealand, may be able to do nothing else but "stick it" with British doggedness until he has conquered his difficulties. But only the quota stands between the disheartened Canadian immigrant and a second chance farther South.

* * * *

Another "enemy" of immigration is the official or friend, who does not realize that the landing of a stranger in Canada is no more than half the job. The cold North Atlantic is by no means the most chilling barrier between the adventuring son of Great Britain and a cosy fireside in Canada. Stand some grey day at a shipside and watch the anxious and worried immigrants disembark. Imagine yourself in their places—if you can conceive yourself as having that much courage. And try to conjecture what they must think as they look out on our unaccustomed surroundings, listen to a language they hardly recognize as their own, see already that they have entered a quite different world and shrink from the plunge they are about to take.—Montreal Star.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 4. — Aggressive buying in which a world famous speculator appeared to have taken the lead brought about a sudden reversal today from the downward course of grain values. Wheat prices ran up 5 1-2 cents a bushel as compared with yesterdays finish, and corn jumped to above $1.00 a bushel again. The close in the wheat market was strong, 2 3-4 cents to 5 cents higher; May $1.43 to $1.43 1-4, and July $1.33 to $1.33 1-4; with corn at 2 3-4 cents to 4 cents advance; oats 1 1-2 to 1 7-8 cents up, and provisions showing a rise varying from 15 to 30 cents.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Apl. 5—The export business in Canadian grain here on Saturday was reported quiet on account of the sharp advance in prices. In sympathy with the renewed strength in the Winnpeg market for oats, the local cash situation was stronger and dealers marked up prices 2 cents per bushel for all grades.

The feature of the past week in the flour market was the net decline in prices of 85 cents per barrel for Spring wheat grades which brought them to the lowest level for the year to date. There was a much better feeling in the market on Saturday owing to the renewed strength in wheat at Winnipeg, and if maintained tomorrow, millers announced they may mark up prices of flour. The condition of the Winter wheat flour market was unchanged, but the feeling was improved on account of the improvement in wheat values.

The market for millfeed was without any new feature to note, prices for all lines being steady with a small trade passing for local and country account. While the tone of the market for standard grades of rolled oats was steady at the recent decline noted, the volume of business was very small.

Egg Receipts Heavy.

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 3,415 cases, as against 2,888 cases for the same day last week and 3,732 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending April 4, 1925, were 16,284 cases, as compared with 12,937 cases for the previous week, and 19,543 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May 1, 1924, to date were 489,714 cases, as against 623,268 cases for the same period of 1923-24. The receipts last week showed an increase of 3,547 cases, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 3,259 cases with the same week last year, and the total receipts from May first to date have been 133,554 cases below a year ago.

At the opening of the week a weaker feeling developed in the local market for eggs and prices were reduced 1 to 2 cents per dozen, but they have shown no further change since. The weather throughout the country has been more favorable for the production and in consequence supplies were more liberal and ample to meet all requirements of the trade, therefore few if any eggs have been imported from the United States. Up to the present time there has been no storing of eggs here for the future. The general feeling here is that the present level of the market is too high for storing, but as this is the month when the quality is the best of the season, dealers might be tempted to commence operations in the near future. The consumptive demand during the week was good and an active trade was done in a wholesale jobbing way.

Dairy Products.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending April 4, 1925, were 1,693 packages which show a decrease of 914 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 1,161 packages with the same week last year, while the total arrivals from May 1, 1924, to date have been 164,233 packages in excess of the corresponding period for 1923-24.

The feature of the trade was the stronger feeling that prevailed in the market and prices closed with a net gain of 1 1-2 to 2 cents per pound for the week. This was attributed to the marked reduction in the stock of creamery butter on spot during the month of March and the improved demand from domestic and outside buyers for supplies to meet their immediate wants. On the whole a very fair volume of business was transacted and the market was moderately active. Some small lots of fresh made fodder creamery butter have arrived on the market and receipts of such will more than likely increase from now on.

The receipts of cheese for the week ending April 4, 1925, were 17,048 boxes which show an increase of 5,792 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 15,589 boxes with the same week last year, and the total receipts from May 1, 1924, to date have been 188,366 boxes larger than the same period of 1923-24. The large arrivals of cheese at this period of the year is due to the fact that farther lots have been imported from New Zealand and the United States for manufacturing purposes.

A weaker feeling has prevailed in the local market for fodder made cheese since this day week and prices show a decline of 1-2 to 1 cent per pound with latest sales of Western No. 1 white and colored at 22 cents per pound, No. 2 grades at 21 cents and Quebec 20-pound cheese at 21 cents per pound.

Beans were unchanged at $2.70 a bushel.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

Their experience with the wolves broke down the last bit of uncertainty that might have existed between the man and the dog. For days after that, as they travelled slowly north and west, Carvel nursed B ree as he might have cared for a sick child. Because of the dog's hurts, he made only a few miles a day. Baree understood, and in him there grew stronger and stronger a great love for the man whose hands were as gentle as the Willow's and whose voice warmed him with the thrill of an immeasurable comradeship. He no longer fe red him or had a suspicion of him. And Carvel, on his part, was observing things. The vast emptiness of the world about them, and their aloneness, gave him the opportunity of pondering over unimportant details, and he found himself each day watching Baree a little more closely. He made at last a discovery which interested him deeply. Always, when they halted on the trail, B ree would turn his face to the south; when they were in camp it was from the south that he nosed the wind most frequently. This was quite natural, Carvel thought, for his old hunting-grounds were back there. But as the days passed he began to notice other things. Now and then, looking off into the far country from which they had come Baree would whine softly and on that day he would be filled with a great restlessness. He gave no evidence of wanting to leave Carvel but more and more Carvel came to understand that some mysterious call was coming to him from out of the south.

"With the big automatic before his eyes he plunged out into the darkness, and from his lips there issued a wild yelling that could have been heard a mile away."

It was the wanderer's intention to swing over into the country of the Great Slave a good eight hundred miles to the north and west before the mush-snows came. From there when the waters opened in springtime he planned to travel by canoe westward to the Mackenzie and ultimately to the mountains of British Columbia. These plans were changed in February. They were caught in a great storm in the Wholdaia Lake country and when their fortunes looked darkest Carvel stumbled on a cabin in the heart of a deep spruce forest and in this cabin there was a dead man. He had been dead for many days an frozen stiff. Carvel chopped a hole in the earth and buried him.

The cabin was a treasure trove to Carvel and Baree and especially to the man. It evidently possessed no other owner than the one who had died it was comfortable and stocked with provisions and more than that its owner had made a splendid catch of fur before the frost bit his lungs and he died. Carvel went over them carefully and joyously. They were worth a thousand dollars at any post and he could see no reason why they did not belong to him now. Within a week he had blazed out the dead man's snow-covered trap-line and was trapping on his own account.

This was two hundred miles north and west of the Grey Loon and soon Carvel observed that Baree did not face directly south in those moments when the strange call came to him but south and east. And now with each day that passed the sun rose higher in the sky it grew warmer the snow softened underfoot and in the air was the tremulous and growing throb of spring. With these things came the old yearning to Baree the heart-thrilling call of the lonely graves back on Gray Loon of the burned cabin the abandoned tepee beyond the pool—and of Nepeese. In his sleep he saw visions of things. He heard again the low, sweet voice of the Willow, felt the touch of her hand, was at play with her once more in the dark shades of the forest—and Carvel would sit and watch him as he dreamed, trying to read the meaning of what he saw and heard.

In April, Carvel shouldered his furs up to the Hudson's Bay Company's post at Lac la Biche, which was still farther north. Baree accompanied him halfway, and then—at sundown Carvel returned to the cabin and found him there. He was so overjoyed that he caught the dog's head in his arms and hugged it. They lived in the cabin until May. The buds were swelling then, and the smell of growing things had begun to rise up out of the earth.

That night he packed up.

"It's time to travel," he announced to Baree. "And I've sort of changed my mind. We're going back—there."

And he pointed south.

CHAPTER XXX.

A strange humor possessed Carvel as he began the southward journey. He did not believe in omens, good or bad. Superstition had played a small part in his life, but he possessed both curiosity and a love for adventure, and his years of lone y wandering had developed in him a wonderfully clear mental vision of things, which in other words might be called singularly active imagination. He knew that some irresistible force was drawing Baree back into the south—that it was pulling him not only along a given line of the compass, but to an exact point in that line. For no reason in particular the situation began to interest him more and more, and as his time was valueless and he had no fixed destination in view, he began to exper ment. For the first two days he marked the dog's course by compass. It was due south-east. On the third morning Carvel purposely struck a course straight west. He noted quickly the change in Baree —his restlessness at first, and after that the dejected manner n wh ch he followed at his heels. Toward noon Carvel swung sharply to the south and east again, and almost immediately Baree regained his old eagerness, and ran ahead of his master.

A week later Baree answered Carvel's question by swinging westward to give wide berth to Post Lac Bain. It was wid-afternoon when they crossed the trail along which Bush McTaggart's traps and deadfalls had been set. Baree did not even pause. He headed due south, travelling so fast that at times he was lost to Carvel's sight. A suppressed but intense excitement possessed him, and he whined whenever Carvel stopped to rest—always with his nose sniffing the wind out of the south. Springtime, the flowers, earth turning green, the singing of birds, and the sweet breaths in the air were bringing him back to that great Yesterday when he had belonged to Nepeese. In his unreasoning mind there existed no longer a winter. The long months of cold and hunger were gone in the new visionings that filled his brain they were forgotten. The birds and flowers and the blue skies had come back, and with them the Willow must surely have returned, and she was waiting for him now, just over there beyond that rim of green forest.

Something greater than mere curiosity began to take possession of Carvel. A whimsical humor became a fixed and deeper thought, an unreasoning anticipation that was accompanied by a certain thrill of subdued excitement By the time they reached the old beaver-pond the mystery of the strange adventure had a firm hold on him. From Beaver-tooth's colony Baree led him to the creek along which Wakayoo, the black bear, had fished, and thence straight to the Gray Loon.

HERRIOT WARNS HIS OPPONENTS

READY FOR BATTLE.

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, April 6—Premier Herriot spoke Sunday at a luncheon at which two thousand covers were laid, and declared that he was ready to make every sacrifice for his country. He gave warning to his adversaries that the battle was on and that the forces which were victorious at the elections on May 11 last would never capitulate before those then vanquished.

The mayor of the town described the sympathy felt by the people of that section toward Herriot, and, in return, the Premier greeted nine mothers of large families, to whom he presented medals.

In the course of a long speech M. Herriot claimed credit for his foreign policy of peace with dignity and reiterated his faith in the Geneva protocol, which, he said, was for people what the declaration of rights was for individuals.

The Premier contended that it was audacious to blame the present Government for the country's financial difficulties; these were due to its predecessors, who had resorted to borrowing and other expedients to balance the budgets, thus deluding the public and leaving the task of finding a settlement to their successors.

When he took office, he went on, the long term, or perpetual, debt amounted to more than 149,000,000,000 francs, the short term debt to 37,000,000,000,000 and the floating debt to 91,000,000,000, a total of nearly 278,000,000,000.

HUMAN SLAVERY STILL FOUND IN MANY PARTS OF THE EAST

Kingdom of Nepal Frees Its Serfs—League of Nations Attacks Evil.

RED SEA TRAFFIC.

By SAVEL ZIMAND.

Slavery still exists in the world. A reminder of that fact is the recent proclamation of the Maharajahiraja of Nepal, emancipating the slaves in his country. There are still countries where men are the property of other men. The investigations of the League of Nations show that the abolition of slavery in the Kingdom of Nepal does not put an end to human bondage.

Dr. Nansen, reporting a few years ago at a plenary meeting of the third Assembly of the League of Nations, said: "I am sure that the Assembly and the world have been astonished to learn that slavery is still going on in some parts of the world. * * * It is very appropriate that the League should deal with such a question. It is unanimously agreed that something ought to be done in order to stop slavery. I may point out, however, that when the subject was put on the agenda we unanimously decided in the committee to avoid any mention of any particular part of the world in which slavery was going on." But since then some reports have been made public.

The exact extent of the slave trade is not known. But from the information so far available to the League of Nations it is still in existence in one form or another in Abyssinia, the Hedjaz, Gambia and Nigeria, the Portuguese colonies, Liberia, the late Colony of German East Africa, a few small areas of British India and among the tribes of Belgian Congo. The slave trade is still carried on in the Red Sea. I son of these countries slavery has been officially abolished, but the law runs ahead of the custom.

While only few spots are left in the world where slavery, in name or in its old barbarous forms, exists today, new and respectable names have been invented for the evil, and under these names slavery remains throughout vast areas of Africa. The inquiry carried on for the last four years by the League of Nations yields sufficient proof that the slavery business is still one of the important problems of the Dark Continent.

Serfdom in Nepal.

Viewed on the map of India, the Kingdom of Nepal is a narrow country extending for about 520 miles along the southern slope of the central axis of the Himalayas. It has an area of about 54,000 square miles, with a population of about 5,000,000, chiefly Hindus. Until a few weeks ago slavery formed part of the native social system. According to Indian reports it was not slavery in the strict sense, but rather "domestic slavery," which is somewhat analogous to serfdom. This kind of slavery includes control or "possession" of concubines and their offspring, and control or "possession" of menservants and dependents.

Every Nepalige of means has several slaves in his household, and the wealthy have usually a large number of both sexes. It is reported that there are 51,419 slaves, owned by 15,710 persons. Most of these slaves have been born in servitude, but free men and women, with their families, could until lately be sold into slavery as punishment for certain crimes and for offenses against caste. The female slaves in a few of the wealthier households were not allowed to leave the house, though it is said that in most domestic establishments they enjoyed a great deal of freedom. They were employed in housework, woodcutting, grass-cutting and similar labor.

In time this domestic slavery led to abuses. The appeals made by the slaves to the sovereign show that to domestic slavery were later added the horrors of the slave trade. Husbands were separated from wives, mothers from children. One of the painful instances cited by the ruler of Nepal in his declaration of emancipation was that of a slave mother of seven children, whose master disposed of one of her daughters and four of her sons by sale. Not satisfied with this, "to her dismay, the hard-hearted master arranged to take away the baby slave that still was at her breast."

The Nepal Government has proposed an early date for the liberation and expects to pay the owners of slaves about $1,340,000 as compensation.

It is recalled that the English slave trade had its beginnings with the celebrated voyage of Captain Sir John Hawkins, the Captain having captured 300 negroes on the Guinea coast. In 1631 a chartered company undertook to carry on slave trade. In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries slaves became the strength of the Western world, and the lack of them the "grand obstruction." It has been estimated that in the second half of the eighteenth century English ships carried away from Africa 50,000 slaves a year. The humanitarians of England and France, especially the Quakers, helped to rouse popular opinion against traffic in human beings. Systematic propaganda was conducted to cc .npel Parliament to prohibit the trade.

Nations Oppose Slave Trade.

The agitation had a certain effect. In 1875 the allied powers at Vienna signed a pronouncement for the gradual abolishing of slavery. In 1822, and again in 1843, there were other formal declarations. In 1833 the evangelicals of the older English school succeeded in having passed the first great act, the emancipation of slaves in British colonies. But slavery was abolished in Britain's West Indian colonies only in 1838 and in India in 1843.

A landmark in the history of the subject is the Berlin Conference of 1844-184 . This conference set forth principles and began concentrated action; it was the start of a new policy as to the slave trade on land and at sea. The powers agreed to watch over the preserving of the native tribes and to care for their moral and material well-being, and to help in suppressing slavery and the slave traffic.

In 1888 the Archbishop of Algiers began a campaign in the Brussels Cathedral against slavery. That year the Marquis of Salisbury proposed that King Leopold should invite all the powers to confer on the suppressing of the African slave trade. As a result, a conference met in 1889 at Brussels, and the plenipotentiaries of the great powers, after thirty-two sittings, drew up, "in the name of Almighty God," a series of articles and decrees for united effort toward abolition. By the Brussels Anti-Slavery act of 1890, which came into force in 1892, the powers exercising sovereignty of official protection in Africa bound themselves to pursue gradually, as circumstances permitted, the suppression of slavery. Posts were to be established to intercept convoys and liberate slaves. But today, twenty-five years after this convention, slavery has not yet been abolished.

The old-style slavery seems still to be pursued in Abyssinia, the Hedjaz and the Red Sea. Abyssinia is the only remaining independent native State in Africa. Its religion is imbued with Mosaic tradition. The people of the country came into contact, at the beginning of their conquest of Ethiopia, with races which they asserted were descended from Ham, upon whom Noah had bestowed a curse, condemning hi n to be the slave of his brothers.

Slaves by Thousands.

In 1919 two British officers, Major Athill and Major Dailey, traversed Abyssinia. An account of their journey tells that "in the commercial centre of Jimma children were sold publicly in the market, and slave trading seemed to be the chief business of the district." Gangs of slaves, the men chained together, were encountered on the march, and "the whole country was desolute. For nineteen days between Jimma and Maji, formerly the richest part of Abyssinia, we marched through a district in which the date of each raid could be estimated by the height of the bush in what were formerly cultivated fields. A population of at least a million had ceased to exist.

"Between Maji and the north end of Lake Rudo'ph the precipitous hillsides are all most beautifully terraced from top to bottom for cultivation. The terraces, built of boulders running like walls for miles, must have occupied a large population for several generations. There was not a soul. We crossed into our so-called British territory. For sixteen days we never saw a soul or a sign of one. This country formerly had been occupied by a rich stock-owning people. Eventually we ran into a few unfortunate natives hiding from a gang of 100 Abyssinian riflemen engaged in collecting slaves and ivory. This was in British territory."

In June, 1922, a decree was passed abolishing slavery, yet reports indicate that in Adis Abeda, the capital of Abyssinia, there are still as many slaves as free men. The ruler of Abyssinia appears to wish to put an end to the evil, but the reactionary forces prevent the enforcing of the law. What for many centuries has been sanctioned alike by law and by religion cannot be abolished by a mere decree.

Red Sea Traffic.

In the Hedjaz slavery seems to have bee established again by the Arabs after the departure of the Turks. Caravans and pilgrimages are a means of introducing slaves. A missionary of Bahrein, Arabia, tells, in the "Moslem World" of April, 1924, that "half the population, namely the women, are utterly degraded. They can be divorced at will and married in quantity. Many of them are legally slaves and can be bought and sold. In practice, they are without legal rights, except as brothers and husbands may protect them."

The Red Sea is still a favorite haunt of the slave traders. The powers with territorial resposibility in Africa have stationed fast boats in the Red Sea and special service vessels in the Persian Gulf to put down the traffic.

A French official report relates that when the French first settled on the Red Sea coast they discovered the existence of a caravan track utilized by slave convoys en route for Arabi a. It was quite out of the question to maintain detachments in the Dankal's desert to intercept these convoys; nor was it thought that a system of patrols would prove effective.

Slavery is prevalent in the Portuguese territories of Angola, in West Africa and in the islands of San Thome and Principe. The purpose of this slavery is sugar manufacture in Angola and the production of cocoa in the islands. Only a few years ago the highways and byways of West Africa were strewn with countless thousands of dead men's bones. They were the skeletons of slaves who had been unable to keep up with the march and so were murdered or left to die. Today the conditions have improved considerably. The old system of slave-trading has disappeared. But even now more abuses than in any other part of Africa are found on these two cocoa islands and in the Angola sugar industry.

Bad Conditions in Africa.

The Portuguese Government, in its answer of September 27, 1924, to the League of Nations inquiry, admits that the state of domestic slavery still exists in Mozambique and Angola. In the Portuguese colonies "the administrators have the right to requisition from native chiefs the laborers required to execute works of public utility within the territory of these chiefs."

In British Cameroons, according to the report to the League, strong measures have been taken against the slave traffic, which was active until a few years ago. The status of women there is peculiar. Owing to the tendency of the pagan polygamist to invest his money in women laborers, they are often his only tangible assets, and when he is called on to satisfy a debt he tries to find another man who is willing to marry one of his wives for a cash consideration. It is therefore hard for the administration to differentiate between a marriage and a slave-sale.

It will be seen that while the old-fashioned export of human beings as an industry is restricted to a few places, it has continued elsewhere under other names, as "indentured labor," or "contract labor," or "compulsory labor," all of which in black Africa mean slavery of one kind or another. Meanwhile the Council of the League of Nations is awaiting a complete report in order to be able to suggest measures for stamping out slavery completely.

of Government expenditure.

"The fact that the bank has them will make it possible for the Government to borrow more easily and already it is announced the Government does propose to borrow to meet immediate obligations. All that happens is that the Government instead of issuing notes to meet obligations directly lets the Bank of France issue them and then borrows the money. Obviously there is not much gain to a nation in this circuitous process."

Mr. Cox asks what is the ultimate cause of the French financial troubles. From many points of view France is extremely prosperous. Practically all the people are employed and the pleasure resorts are full, foreigners spending lavishly. He continues:

"Why should the French Government have any difficulty in making the budget balance meeting liabilities? The prosaic explanation is that French people dislike paying taxes. So also do English people; but the English complain and pay and the Frenchman whether he complains or not abstains from paying."

Mr. Cox estimates that whereas the British income tax and supertax last year brought in £336,000,000 the French income tax produced £15,000,000.

"It must, of course," he says, "be borne in mind that the income tax is only one, and a small one, of the instruments of revenue employed in France. The fact that it is a new tax adds to the difficulty of raising revenue from it. But though these consideration help to explain the low yield of direct taxation in France, they do not remove the financial difficulty. Indirect taxation has an automatic limitation, for beyond a certain point increase in tax destroys revenue. Faced with serious financial difficulties, no country can long escape the necessity for direct taxation. France is still trying to escape that necessity."

Defeated Poincare.

Mr. Cox also remarks on the lavish expenditure of the French Government, particularly the high cost of its bureaucracy, despite their low salaries. He goes on:

"As the last French elections proved, any serious proposal to compel the French taxpayer to make a really adequate contribution to the needs of his country entails political disaster. M. Poincare owed his defeat not to any popular dislike of his foreign policy, but to a determined resolution on the part of the French farmer not to have his pocket picked by the tax collector.

"It is not easy to see any way of escape. Democracy and hot air do not fit in with the hard facts of finance. The peasants' determination not to pay direct taxes equally blocks the way to the capital levy M. Herriot is said now to be contemplating in order to win the applause of his Socialist supporters. The French peasant will certainly fight like grim death rather than surrender any of his carefully hoarded capital.

"Doubtless the Socialist will try to meet his opposition by limiting the levy to large capitalists. But as an instrument of revenue that would be futile unless there were first an exhaustive investigation into private possessions to discover who are large capitalists, and while the investigation was in progress much of the capital would take wings to other countries. France would thus lose a probable part of her industrial capital while the Government would obtain very little new revenue. The budget will still remain unbalanced."

LADIES' MEETINGS AROUND NORHAM

Several Soceities Hold Busy Sessions— Scarlet Fever Epidemic Under Control.

NORHAM, April 6.—The Ladies Aid held a successful social evening and birthday party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gummer on Thursday evening. After the usual business items were dispensed with the remainder of the evening was spent in contests, games and singing. Mrs. Lewis Denike provided a cake in honor of those who had birthdays in March or April. Lunch was served at the close.

The Castleton Women's Institute are planning to hold an open meeting on Thursday, April 9th, at the home of Mrs. Floyd Harden. A paper on "Making the Commonplace Life Interesting", will be given by Mrs. Frank Isaac.

Carnation
Has the Taste of Purity

Why is Carnation the purest and safest milk you can buy? Because it is hermetically sealed, then sterilized.

And that accounts for that distinctive taste—the taste of purity.

This characteristic taste is not evident in your cooked foods, but you will find a greatly improved flavor in all dishes in which this wholesome milk is used. It adds a creamy smoothness and improves texture, because Carnation is pure, fresh milk evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization.

Sold by grocers everywhere at moderate prices—order several tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

Money AT WORK

A retailer who opens up, runs for a while and finally fails has lost not only his own money but the money of his competitors as well.

Retailers are in business to serve you. In return for such service they are entitled to fair salaries, a return on the money invested and something in the way of profit which is a return for the risk involved in the business.

Competition in the retail field is healthful inasmuch as it forces the owner to greater efficiencies in operation. The sort of competition which is unintelligent is harmful. Often a person without knowledge of retailing opens up a business and struggles along for a while, but is unable to manage the store properly and fails.

The experimenter has lost his own money, but worse than that, he has taken trade away from an established store thereby reducing the profit to which it is justly entitled.

THE PRICE OF COAL—GRIEF! MISERY! DESPAIR! WANT!

By BOB DORMAN.

BARRACKSVILLE, W. Va., April 6 .—Grief! Misery! Despair! Want!

This is the price some pay for coal.

For two days I watched the relentless Shylock of the bituminous belt demanding his price of human flesh and suffering.

Here, close by the mouth of a mine, a rope is stretched.

The rope sags in broken curves under the weight of human bodies pressed against it. For a moment it seems that this must be some terrible tableau upon which a curtain soon will fall. The illusion continues: a curtain of grey-blue rain is falling against the backdrop of leaden skies.

The whimpering of children; the suppressed sob of a woman; moments of grief-broken conversation —these are all very real.

Tight against the rope presses a line of women. They are the wives, mothers, sisters of 35 entombed men.

About their feet creep their children, too young to understand what it is all about. The mothers for once do not notice what the children do. Their eyes are fixed upon the mouth of the mine as though hypnotized by the great black eye.

Thus they stand, hour upon hour, in the drizzling rain. After a time the strain becomes too great. They wedge their way silently through the little crowd and go back to their homes, which for days have been neglected.

From somewhere comes a childish voice: "Is daddy in the mine?"

"Yes, dear."

"My daddy's in the mine," boasts one tiny innocent.

"So's mine," chirps another, not to be outdone.

On the outskirts of the group stands Dorothy Alstead, 7, with a protecting arm about her twin brother.

"Now we have no daddy," she says. "He's gone to join mother who went away last year."

And here is Mrs. Thomas Day with her five children. She faces both present and future with dread.

"Sure, we will get the workmen's compensation," she says. "What is that? A friend of mine has four kids. Her man was lost in the Ida May mine disaster last year. She had to let her children go out to homes. I have five, but I won't give them up, come what may."

Her case is typical. All around are other women with other children.

Theirs is the price some pay for coal.

Waiting in the rain for news from the tomb.

The five fatherless Day children.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

IF YOU ARE AGAINST DAYLIGHT SAVING, ATTEND THE COUNCIL MEETING TO-NIGHT AND SAY SO.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Since my letter appeared in your publication of March 28th, I have been congratulated on the stand I took and have continually been asked to write again as opposed to Daylight Saving time.

As far as the petitions go that have been circulated it seems a very ill way to arrive at a conclusion, that daylight saving time has the majority. We take a walk down town and meet Bill and say, "Bill, how is work?" "Are many laid off at your shop." The answer is, "We are sorry to say there are departments closed down entirely and some working only two or three days a week. Now, sir, these same factories show, it seems, a vote out of proportion to the number daily employed.

A few years ago there was a man, B. Jones, No. —, Pinnacle St., Belleville and he made a boast that he never lost a bet. Well, said a fellow workman, I'll bet you will ask some one to hang you inside of a month, so the aforesaid gentleman bet $50.00 he would not. There was a petition put on paper reading as follows: We, the following ratepayers of the City of Belleville, request that the Mayor and Council of our city take B. Jones of No. — Pinnacle street, of the city of Belleville, to the county jail and hang him by the neck until he is dead, and the story goes that B. Jones, not reading what he signed because a friend said, "Jones, You never refuse a friend anything, sign this to the City Council and Jones signed to have himself hanged and paid $50.00 for the privilege. Was there any B. Jones on the petition this time? If you get the rope of daylight saving on your neck you will not get it off very soon.

Two men were trying to out-do the other in tales of cleverness. When one had finished a remarkable story the other said: "Why that's nothing, I knew a stone mason who had one arm." "Nonsense," said the other, "how does he work?" "Oh, he holds the chisel between his teeth and hits himself on the back of the head with his hammer." We must be as sincere as the stone mason, hit hard. Now say, we can be clever and let the Mayor and Aldermen know the anti-daylight saving people are in earnest and do not give up yet.

A tipsy man approached a policeman and asked: "Would you kindly tell me which is the other side of the street." "Why over there, of course," said the policeman. "That's funny," muttered the tipsy one, "I've just been over there and they told me it was on this side." Now sir, there are two sides to every question and the opponents of daylight saving know which side they are on, and we do not expect the Council to pass daylight saving without another properly conducted vote at the polls. Surely they are not such a rational body to do so.

Thank you, Mr. Editor,
Yours truly,
Maurice E. Ketcheson.

THREATENED BY SERIOUS FIRE

Keene Had a Narrow Escape When Grass Was Ignited by Ashes.

DRY SHINGLES NEAR.

KEENE, April 6. — Noticing smoke rising from the rear of the residence of Melville Wood of Keene, neighbors found that the long grass all over the garden was on fire. Mrs. Wood had put some ashes on the garden and it is supposed that there were some live coals which ignited the grass. Mr. Wood had just finished shingling his residence and all the old shingles which were very dry were piled alongside of the woodshed. The fire had got to within a few feet of the shingles, and if they had caught fire nothing could have saved Mr. Wood's residence and those adjoining. Prompt action, however, by neighbors prevented any damage being done, but it is a warning, to others to be careful that no live coals are placed where they will ignite anything and cause damage.

Trappers are reporting good catches of muskrats this year, some of them getting as many as five hundred pelts. Buyers have been in the vicinity during the past few days and have succeeded in purchasing the majority of the pelts.

The regular Women's Missionary Society meeting will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison.

Special Easter music will be given next Sunday at the Sunday School session.

Sam Montgomery is busy moving into the house owned by William Bishop, Junior.

While getting ready for church Sunday evening, the horse belonging to Mr. Harry Stewart broke away and headed for church without the occupants. However, with the aid of a few oats the animal was caught before any damage was done.

Events In Ontario Legislature Seen Through Party Spectacles

The Government Side

TORONTO, April 6.—At a single sitting, extending a half-hour past midnight, Thursday, the Legislature passed the Temperance Act amendments through committee stage. Some nine changes were proposed by W. E. Raney, Karl Homuth and others, but with only limited support, and the bill now stands for third reading, having suffered no amendments in committee except a few of minor character offered by Hon. Mr. Nickle himself. Two sections added to the Temperance Act, at the Attorney-General's suggestion, permit advertising of 4.4 beer and protect from penalties those who unwittingly offend by using prescriptions which are not exactly in technical form. Pressed by W. E. N. Sinclair for information about the regulations which are left to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, Mr. Nickle told the House that permits for sale of the new beverage would be granted to persons of suitable character operating hotels, well-conducted restaurants, and, for consumption off the premises, grocery stores which serve the public. General sale on Sundays will not be permitted, and some such closing hour as 11 o'clock on week-days will be laid down. Grocery stores will be expected to observe reasonable business hours. As to date of the Act going into effect, it was decided to leave this to proclamation, after the Royal assent, so that regulations might be completed and permits prepared and due notice given.

Hon. James Lyons made a noteworthy speech in the House on Wednesday in support of his bill granting a further $5,000,000 for Northern Ontario development. He mentioned the need for roads at Fort Frances, Batchewana, Horne Payne, Killarney and Sioux Lookout, and the work already been done between the head of the lake and Kenora to the Manitoba boundary.

"All parts of Northern Ontario have been treated on an equal basis," said the Minister. "We have had due regard to the needs for roads, and spent money as we thought required. As far as this Government is concerned, 'political roads' are gone for ever. We are not going to stand for members representing districts coming into the Department with a tomahawk on their shoulders and demanding this or that done for personal reasons. We propose to deal with every case on its merits, and I want to refer particularly to statements made by the member for Kenora (Mr. Heenan) because I think perhaps he is the greatest sinner in that regard in the House. I hold in my hand an advertisement of a meeting at the head of the lakes to be addressed by 'Fighting Peter Heenan.' It may be that after a few more battles we shall see advertisements of 'One-eyed Fighting Peter Heenan,' or 'One-thumbed Fighting Peter Heenan.' If there is to be public misrepresentation and abuse and knifing of public officials behind their backs and accusing members of what they should not be accused, this member certainly carries off the championship."

Philanthropist Guardians May Have To Refund Money

LONDON, April 6. — (Canadian Press).—After a series of differing judgments in ascending appeal courts, law orders now rule that Poplar Guardians were rightly surcharged five thousand pounds because of wages the borough paid to certain employees, notably the minimum wage of four pounds a week for every adult worker, regardless of what work he was performing.

Lord Atkinson remarked that the indulgence of philanthropic enthusiasm at the expense of other people was entirely different from indulgence at the expense of philanthropists thmselves.

Among the Guardians expected to refund money are George Lonsbury, Labor member of Parliament for Bow and Bromley, and his son, Edgar Lansbury.

The Liberal Side

(From the Liberal Headquarters.)

TORONTO, April 6.—Four-four beer, bond sale investigations, church union and discussion on gasoline and beverage taxes helped greatly to fill in a busy week at the Legislature, and during the debates several matters have been aired which are of much interest to people everywhere.

The tax on gasoline and the tax on beverages, including soft drinks, are wide enough in their application to reach pretty nearly all citizens, and there was much pressing of Government members by Liberal front benchers as to just how these taxes were to be collected. The answer by the Government was that for the present it did not know, that it was studying this phase of the problem and would reach a conclusion in time to embody this conclusion in the regulations governing the collection of the tax.

According to the Canadian constitution the provinces are not permitted to levy an indirect tax, that is a tax like the tariff, for instance. How then is it going to collect its gasoline tax? That is what Liberal Leader Sinclair and his followers kept asking the Government, and also how was it going to collect its soft drink tax?

The sale of a Government loan in the last days of the Hearst Government in 1919, and the movement of large sums of "legals" from the Home Bank of Canada, still occupy the attention and thoughts of many people. When Liberal Leader Sinclair early this session declared that full investigation still had to be made into this matter, there likely were many throughout the province agreed with him. He has kept pressing this matter on the attention of the House, and when the Public Accounts Committee met, moved for the appearance of Peter Smith, Charles A. Matthews, Jr., and former directors of the Home Bank. After holding over the motion for several days the committee decided to assent to it, and Mr. Sinclair's persistence in requesting a probe is to be rewarded.

The beer bill debate in committee was spectacular for a time, but died away near the finish. Various amendments were presented which were regularly voted down, but some valuable information as to regulations as to sale—such as no sale on Sunday and after 11 o'clock at night —were given by the Attorney-General in reply to pressing inquiries from the Liberal Leader and Opposition members.

CHURCH BURNED.

St. John's, One of Oldest in Canada, Destroyed on Saturday.

KINGSTON, April 6. — St. John's Anglican church at the Village of Bath, one of the oldest church in Canada, having been erected in 1793, was totally destroyed by fire which broke out on Saturday afternoon.

Men were engaged in burning grass on the property close by the church, and the fire spread to the edifice. The church was visited by a very large number of tourists passing through this part of the country.

YOUR GARDEN

CHOOSING YOUR GARDEN TOOLS.

At this time of the year it pays to take an inventory of one's garden tools and see what, besides the necessary renewals, can be added by way of labor-saving devices.

For those who have comparatively large gardens, undoubtedly a wheel hoe is essential. These can be obtained in many sizes to suit varying purses from around eight dollars to twenty-one dollars or more; also to suit many garden requirements, from the plain wheelhoe, to the combined wheel-hoe and seeder. They may be used in a variety of ways, such as plowing out a furrow for seeding or planting, hilling up plants and straight cultivating of the various crops.

The home owner whose area is more limited or who may have only shrubbery and flower borders to look after, will find a "Buco" hand cultivator indispensable. For the first cultivation in spring and when the weeds are kept under thoroughly or not growing rapidly, it will do very fast and efficient work. The speedier work and consequently more frequent cultivations, should throughout most of the season, thoroughly keep down the weeds. Should the weeds be allowed, however, to get a start, hoeing will be necessary. Under average border and garden conditions, a good Dutch hoe will do a more even and neater job than the draw hoe. The draw hoe must, of course, be resorted to under certain circumstances. Choose a Dutch or flat hoe of solid construction and not the rather flimsily welded variety. The cutting blades of the latter are too thin and will not hold a sufficiently sharp edge to do good work.

If one has many walks, paths or borders to edge an edging machine will do much faster work than the edging tool or half moon. The machine is built with handles like a wheel-hoe and consists of a cutting wheel and a share to pierce below the sod and hold the wheel to its course. Its accompanying tool is a small edition of the lawn mower; a very efficient tool for cutting along the edges and saving undue exertion with the hand mower.

Last, but not least, a good garden line on a spindle and with a pin to hold that end in the ground, is a great aid in straight planting and efficiency.

Dress Up for Easter

Such Is the World!

WHEN some of us were young and before some others of us had left our downy clouds, Easter was the day on which we appeared at church resplendent in shining new shoes, a light coat no matter the weather, and, of course, our Easter bonnet. This old tradition still rules the day, and Easter is the greatest dress-up day of the year. Costumes in which you may do justice to the occasion are here in a fine asosrtment, from a smart crepe hat, to a complete ensemble in a fashionable cashmere fabric.

The Smarter the Coat the Better

If you lean rather toward tailored clothes your Easter morning Coat will be a mannish double-breasted tweed, with a notched collar and a smart inverted pleat in the back. Dress Coats, too, have this same simplicity, due especially to their unadorned neckline, but to make them feminine and flattering, a band of long haired, light fur is often added around the hem. How much you will enjoy the Easter promenade in one of these very Coats!

$25.00 to $59.00

Sturdy and Staunch It Stands

The Two-Piece Suit is not daunted in the least by the popularity of the ensemble, because it has its place and always will so long as it continues to present itself in such smart annual versions. The 1925 model with its severely tailored seven-eighths length jacket and matching wrap-around skirt is very smart in English tweeds and mixtures. Vying with it for popularity is the Short Box Jacket Suit, boyishly simple with its eight-button, double-breasted closing after the manner of British naval uniforms and the deep front plait in the skirt.

$32.00 to $55.00

Momentous Occasions

Of all the fascinating purchases which must be made before Easter, choosing a Hat is one of the most fascinating. It is such an Eastery sort of thing to do anyway, and it will be particularly interesting this year because there is such a variety of lovely straws, satins and felts with such bright sprightly trimming. It would be wise to choose early while selections are largest.

Large Dress Hats of Crepe $14.00
Smart Crepes and Straws, ribbon trimmed $10.00
Tailored Milans and Bangkoks $7.50

Pert Frocks with a Lightsome Air

Easter is almost here, and before it have come smart little Printed Frocks with their floral and confetti patterns, and side by side with these stand smooth sparkling Satin Frocks with a cleverly placed fullness and bewitching bows.

Easter Music of a Perfect Ensemble

"The united performance of all instruments in rendering a piece of music" is the dictionary definition of an Ensemble—and how well the Ensemble we know best fits that definition! For where is the woman not intrigued by the very accomodating wrap and frock costume? Twills and printed silks keep smart costume company for Easter. Reasonably priced.

MIRA, THE WONDER STAR GIVES UP ITS SECRETS TO SCIENCE

Red Hot Body is 300 Times Larger Than the Sun.

A VARIABLE STAR.

By ROBERT G. AITKEN,
Astronomer of Lick Observatory.

Imagine a sun with a diameter of 270,000,000 miles, 300 times the diameter of our own sun; a globe large enough to fill the entire space from the centre of our sun out to and well beyond the orbit of the earth. Let the sun be fiery red in color and let it rapidly get brighter until at the end of about four months it is 600 times its original brightness and 100 times as bright as our sun. Then for seven months let it more slowly fade until it returns to its former state, and let this process continue regularly in a cycle of eleven months.

Surely the adjectives "giant" and "wonderful" would be appropriate in the description of such a sun, if it really exists. As to that, many readers will doubtless exclaim, like the old lady when she first saw a giraffe, "There ain't no such animal"; but, like the old lady, they will be mistaken. There is precisely such a sun and the measurement of its diameter by Francis G. Pease at Mount Wilson Observatory is one of the latest triumphs of astronomy.

Distance Unknown Before.

This sun is the star Omicron in the constellation Cetus, also known as Mira, the wonderful star. It is low in the western sky these spring evenings, setting just after sunset. As seen from the earth, it is a red star, sometimes as bright as Polaris, our North Star, and at others too faint to be visible without a telescope. The fact of its variation in brightness was demonstrated almost 300 years ago, and the name Mira, the wonderful, was given to it then because no other star was at that time known to behave in this strange manner.

Ever since then astronomers have watched the star carefully and have found that the light changes repeat themselves without fail every 332 days, on the average. Sometimes, too, its light at maximum is not so great as at others, and at some epochs of minimum it does not become so faint as at others. As time went on other stars were found in the sky that behave essentially as Mira does, and we now know several hundred of such long-period variable stars, as they are called by astronomers.

A few of them complete the cycle of light change in 100 days or less, a very few require more than 600 days; but the great majority of them pass from minimum light to maximum and back again in periods of from 200 to 400 days. The average is about 335. Until quite recent times that was about all that we knew about these stars. We did not know their true brightness, because we did not know how far away they were and no one could do more than guess at their real size or at the causes of these enormous changes in brightness.

Instruments That Aided.

But progress in knowledge in astronomy in the last decade or two has been extremely rapid. While there are still many problems to solve, many secrets that are withheld from us, our great modern telescopes and their powerful accessories—the spectrograph that analyzes the quality of light and measures the velocity of approach or recession of a star, the photometer that measures its brightness and change in brightness, the interferometer that measures its diameter—these instruments and the researches made in physical laboratories have given us some idea at least of the gigantic forces at work in these enormous globes of red-hot gas which we call long-period variable stars, and of which Mira Ceti stands as the type.

Light 160 Years Getting Here.

The result has been the verification of our earlier knowledge and its great extension. The spectrographic observations show that Mira Ceti is moving away from the earth and sun with a uniform velocity of about 40 miles a second or about 1,300 million miles a year. At first thought it would seem that this enormous increase in distance would make the star grow progressively fainter from year to year.

But the fact is that the star is already so far away that light from it, travelling six millions of millions of miles a year takes 160 years to cross the gulf of space dividing it from the earth. Its motion in the course of a year increases this distance by a fraction so insignificant that thousands of years must elapse before our most sensitive photometer can detect its effect upon the brightness of the star.

The spectograph shows that the qualits of the light as well as its quantity changes periodically. This is found to be true of the long period variable stars in general, but the change in Mira Ceit is extraordinary; so great, in fact, that no one comparing the spectrum of the star at maximum could possibly suspect them of belonging to the same object, without other means of identification. This mystery has now been completely explained.

Dr. Joy, more than two years ago, noted that certain of the spectral lines were shifted in position at time of minimum brightness in such a manner as to indicate that the star had some kind of a winglike appendage on one side or else that a companion star was present. He wrote to me about it in October, 1923, and, on examination with the great Lick refractor, an instrument especially adapted to such observations, I discovered that there was in fact a companion star. Mira is a double star system, a system of two suns which revolve about a common centre of gravity and the companion star emits light, presumably steadily and without variation, of a quality entirely different from that of Mira.

When Mira is at its minimum brightness, it is not so bright photographically as its companion, and the spectrograph then records chiefly the quality of the light of the latter. At maximum the com panion is entirely lost in the light of the brilliant variable, and the spectrum of the red star is then recorded. However, we must still attribute some of the changes in quality observed as the variable slowly fades toward minimum to actual changes in Mira itself changes which are undoubtedly associated with the causes which produce the enormous variations in its brightness.

Determining Temperatsure.

What are the forces that produce these variations? That is the question of chief interest to us in our study of these variable stars.

Before we consider it, however, let u note some further facts we have discovered about them. In the first place they are always strongly colored stars, varying from orange to deep red and there is a definite relation between the depth of color and the period of light change; the longer it takes a star to complete one cycle of variations, the deeper red its color. There are, it is true, variable stars that are yellow or white, but they belong to an entirely different class, a class so different that confusion between them is quite out of the question.

Now, redness is an indication of relatively low temperature, and we actually find that the long period variable stars have spectral characteristics that can only exist in light of comparatively low temperatures. In Mira, for instance, the bands of titanium oxide are prominent and such chemical compounds cannot exist at temperatures much above 4,000 degrees Centigrade.

Direct measures of stellar temperatures in recent years have brought confirmation. The red stars show effective temperatures of from 3,000 degrees to 4,000 degrees Centigrade. Yellow stars like our sun, have temperatures of 6,000 degrees Centigrade. The blue-white stars are intensely hot, with temperatures varying from 10,000 degrees to 15,000 degrees.

Pease's Brilliant Achievement.

This fact and our knowledge of the apparent brightness of Mira and of its distance from us give us some indication of its size. Being only red hot, so to speak, its surface, area for area, is less than 1-100th as bright as the surface of our sun, but its total light at maximum is fully one hundred times that of the sun. From such data as these it was inferred that the diameter of Mira was probably from two hundred to three hundred times the diameter of our sun—large enough to suggest the possibility of measuring its diameter with the interferometer, as Pease has now done.

To appreciate the brilliance of this achievement it is necessary to have some understanding of the difficulties involved.

The diameter of a star cannot be measured directly with a telescope, even one so gigantic as the 100-inch reflector, in the way we measure, for example, the diameter of Mars. From the very nature of light and the laws governing the formation of a star's image in a telescope, the minute true disk formed is covered by a spurious disk and a system of dark and bright rings known as a diffraction pattern. The interferometer avoids this difficulty and at the same time in effect greatly increases the aperture of the telescope. The principle of interference of light waves which has been developed especially by professor Michelson is applied in this instrument.

Getting at the Diameter.

This is not the place to go into technical details, so it must suffice to say that the instrument, as used at Mount Wilson, consists of a steel bar 20 feet long fixed rigidly across the upper end of the telescope tube. On this four mirrors are mounted at an angle of 45 degrees to the beam. The two inner ones are fixed in positions so that they reflect the light falling on them down the tube to points on the great reflector as far apart as possible. The two outer mirrors can be moved symmetrically in or out along the beam and thus brought closed together or further apart at will.

Light from a star—Mira in this instance—falls on each of the outer mirrors, is reflected to the inner ones and thence down the tube, thus forming two images of the star at the focus of the telescope. Each image will be a system of alternately bright and dark bands known as fringes. They are superposed so that in general the two sets of bright bands fall nearly together; also the two sets of dark bands. But when the two mirrors are gradually separated there comes a time when the bright bands of one image fall exactly upon the dark bands of the other and the fringe system disappears.

Now, there is a definite relation between the distance part of the outer mirror at this time and the effective wave length of the light of the star and the star's diameter.

Diameter Reckoned—270,000,000 Miles.

In a star like Mira the fringes are faint at best and it takes great skill to decide the precise point of separation of the mirrors at which they disappear. When that has been determined, and the wave length of the light of the star measured, as it can be by the spectrograph, we can calculate the angular diameter of the star.

In the case of Mira the result is six-hundredths of a second of arc. To convert this into miles we must know the star's parallax or distance. That has been determined by independent methods to be about 160 light years, the distance light would traverse in 160 years. Using this value the diameter of Mira is found to be 270 millions of miles, 300 times the diameter of the sun.

Mira then has a volume 27,000,000 times as great as that of the sun. But from the other lines of investigation, which do not come into the scope of this article, we are satisfied that its mass is less than 100 times the sun's mass.

Mira A Youngster.

The density of the matter of which it is composed must therefore be extremely low. This fact, and its enormous volume and its low temperature lead to the conclusion that Mira is in the very early stages of its life history as a star. In fact, we have every reason to suppose that the giant red stars, practically all of which vary in their light, are the youngest stars in the sky.

Now, let us assume that such a star as Mira as it radiates heat and light into space and very slowly contracts in size, cools at the surface sufficiently to form what we may call clouds. These clouds would retard the escape of the radiation from the heated interior and would therefore diminish the brightness of the star. The effect would be progressive until the confined radiation accumulated sufficiently to dissipate the clouds. Then it would escape with the result of an enormous increase in the star's brilliancy.

Such processes might repeat themselves in a rhythmic way and if so it is not difficult to believe that in a mass of heated gases so enormous as this the period of the shythm might continue essentially unchanged for many centuries or even many thousands of years.

This, in crude outline, is the tentative theory suggested by Dr. Merrill, and while it leaves many difficulties untouched it has many merits and may well serve as a working hypothesis to guide further investigations. In time, no doubt, if this theory is correct, the forces of radiation will achieve a permanent victory; the star's light will cease to vary and the star itself slowly progress in its evolution to middle age and final decreptitude.

But that is another story. It is sufficient here to point out that Pease's observation has confirmed our theories as to the dimensions of the long period variable stars and as to some of the conditions existing within them. It makes the solution of the remaining problems more hopeful.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

PROHIBITIONISTS MISUNDERSTAND

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir.—There seems to be a serious misunderstanding of the O.T.A. by prohibitionists in this vicinity. They seem to think that all intoxicating liquors are barred by the O.T.A., and that even home-brew has to have a license to enable the guide-wife to lay by a stock of it. Now, what is the truth about the O.T.A.

Alcoholic beverages over 2½ per cent. are barred by the act, except native wines made from native Canadian grapes, and these wines may be of any strength. As a matter of fact, these native wines, manufactured chiefly in the Niagara district, run from 18 to 28 per cent. alcoholic content, but being made from native grapes are specially exempted by the O.T.A. Home-made native wines made from native grapes usually run from 12 to 15 per cent. and are exempted by the O.T.A.

There is no license of any kind needed to make these wines. How ridiculous it is, therefore, to call the O.T.A. a prohibition measure. There are, as the Attorney-General shows, almost two millions of gallons of these fine but strong wines in stock at the present moment in process of maturing. There are, find, no less than fifty thousand votes connected with these manufactured wines and the grape-growers, not to speak of probably half a million votes connected with these wines when made at home. All these votes were in favor of the O.T.A., no doubt for good reasons as we see. That was why, beyond doubt, no effort worth the name was made by prohibitionist leaders to have the exemption of native wines struck out. Your readers will ask why this exemption was left in to begin with.

You see the reason, don't you? Being opposed to coercive reform of any kind as a grave danger to the progress of a free people, I for two years and more tried to get prohibitionist leaders to protest against native wines in the interests of honesty. But not till I made it too hot for them the other day did I get them to come out in the open and acknowledge that these wines must be struck out.

This will mean the defeat of prohibition next time by hundreds of thousands of boters and will any one say that such a blasting hypocrisy as the present O.T.A. should not be wiped out? Getting licences from the Dominion Government is wholly unnecessary and but a small proportion of the people get them, yet there were issued no less than 33,000 in Ontario last year. The fact is that prohibition in Ontario is a humbug, and has been saddled upon us by a common political dodge or trick unworthy of the men and women who profess such sanctity but who now have been forced into the open concerning it. Whiskey is barred and beer is barred, but not all alcoholic liquors. Five million bottles of these highly-intoxicating beverages were sold yast year, and thousands of them right here in Peterborough, all legally and properly and by express permission of the O.T.A. and of our exceptionally moral friends, the prohibitionist leaders, who have allowed it all these years.

J. H. BURNHAM.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your issue of March 27, re daylight saving, you state that men in all walks of life approve of the system. I fail to see the names of any labor men on that list. I am surprised at one man, who has quite a few men under his control, and I would think that he would stand up for them, as they have to get up at five o'clock now, but I never see him around at six o'clock or seven either. I see that there are some women who are not in favor of it, and especially the women with large families. Let those gentlemen that want to get up an hour earlier do so, as I don't think that any person will object.—Yours, etc.,

CANADIAN ART SUBJECT TALK

Stereopticon Lecture Well Attended on Saturday—Painting on Exhibit.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

A meeting of the Women's Art Association was held in the studio at the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon, with a good attendance. A stereopticon lecture on Canadian Art, with views of pictures from the National Gallery at Ottawa, was accompanied by a paper on "Canadian Art and Artists," prepared by Eric Brown, curator of the National Gallery, and read by Mrs. T. Cruikshank. A number of paintings by local and other artists also made a small and interesting exhibit on the walls of the studio. During the afternoon, Miss Florence Scott contributed several well-received soprano solos, with accompaniment by Mrs. W. H. Young. At the conclusion of the lecture, tea was served from a table centered with a large bowl of pussy willows. Tea hostesses were Mrs. C. H. Amys and Mrs. Hodgins, assisted by Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, Mrs. B. L. Barns, and the Misses Helen Morphet, G. Glover and G. Mulholland.

Mr. Brown, in the preface of his paper, said: "The history of art is one of the most fascinating studies in the world. The art of any country is so interwoven into its national character, aims and ideals that the development or decay of the national conscience can be traced in the rise or fall of art movements and schools. Art thereby becomes a thing easily understood, an inseparable part of a nation's growth, and the mystery disappears which tries to make it into a sideshow of life, only to be approached by the highly-educated or aesthetically endowed members of the community."

Greek culture and nationalism in its greatest period was also the period of her greatest art, the Italian States when striving for good government and freedom of thought, produced the greatest artistic renaissance the western world has ever seen. Spain's only period of great art was when she was trying, however badly, to colonize the western world; the Holland of Rembrandt, Frans Hals, Vermeer and others was the Holland that had just achieved nationalism and independence, by the destruction of the dominance of Spain, and England's great renaissance came in the 18th Century, all the way from Hogarth through the great portrait painters, Reynolds, Gainsborough, Romney, Lawrence and the landscape painters, Wilson, Crome, Constable and Turner, when she was laying the foundation of the greatest Empire the world has ever seen.

"As for the history of Canadian art, it is neither complicated nor long." Paul Kane, born about 1820, was the first Canadian landscape painter. A large and excellent collection of his pictures, chiefly centred about the life of the Indian in the Great Northwest, hang in the Royal Ontaria Museum in Toronto.

A little later, Cornelius Krighoff, born at Dusseldorf, became established as the first painter of the French-Canadian habitant, and Otto Jacobi, born at Konigsburg, excelled in small sketches in water color, of the passing season.

Pioneer landscape painters also were Cresswell, Edson, Sandham, Fraser, Fowler, O'Brien, Perre, Matthews, Cruikshank, F. M. Bell-Smith (who recently passed away), and T. Mower Martin, still living in Toronto.

For a long time after the passing of the first painters, the young Canadian artist of sufficient ability and means went to Europe for his training and on his return, naturally continued painting very much according to European standards, although these were not applicable to the brilliant sunshine and fierce coloring of his native land. "Canadians of a generation or more ago did not want pictures of the country of their adoption so much as those of "Home" and if they were to have pictures of Canada, let it look as much like home as possible. Even today, it is the collector's indifference to the art of his own country and his preference for the usually inferior European product that hinders the progress of Canadian art."

Of the men who painted Canada, gradually freeing themselves from European influence, William Brymner of Montreal is one of the foremost, and Homer Watson, with style founded upon the revolutionary traditions of the Barbizon painters, has won wide recognition with his pictures of woodland Ontario.

Others mentioned were Franklin Brownell, Wyley Grier, Curtis Williamson, George Reid, Suzor-Cote, Maurice Cullen, Charles Simpson, F. S. Coburn, Paul Peel, Blair Bruce. Of those who have gone to the United States, are Horatio Walker, Ernest Lawson, Arthur Crisp, the latter a mural decorator of great distinction: Henrietta Shore, David B. Milne, Emile Walters, Mrs. Stanhope Forbes, Mary Bell Eastlake, J. W. Morrice, John Russell and Mr. and Mrs. Armington.

Among the intermediate painters, between the older and news schools, in Canada, outstanding are C. W. Jefferys and J. W. Beatty, both of Toronto, Clarence Gagnon and Ozias Leduc of Quebec.

The Group of Seven in Toronto and an unorganized group in Montreal are modernists, who believe that they have made discoveries in the rendering of Canadian nature. Tom Thomson and A. Y. Jackson are foremost in the former group, also Alexander Jackson, who was recently signally honored by the purchase of his picture, "Halifax Harbour," for the British National Gallery, from the Canadian art section at Wembley, becoming the only living Canadian artist to be so represented. Lawren Harris and F. H. Varley are other members of this group, with Arthur Lismer and J. E. H. MacDonald.

The Montreal group concerns itself more with figure painting. R. S. Hewton, Albert Robinson, Mabel May, Lilias Newton, Regina Seiden, Sarah Robertson, Annie Savage, Edwin Holgate, and a number of others, are all doing interesting and individual work in expression of the same movement.

"There are many signs that this movement in Canadian art will be the development of the future. Practically every young artist the world over today seems dominated with the idea of expressing himself by means of simple forms and patterns decoratively arranged in the place of the older manner of copying nature more or less faithfully and exactly and Canada so rich in color and tremendous in outline seems especially adapted for the working out of the ideal. The conflict of the two ideals is somewhat acute at present but art, whenever there are no acute differences and developments, is practically speaking, dead, and art in Canada is very much alive. The reception of Canadian art by the critics at the British Empire Exhibition has been too favorable and too unanimous to leave any doubts of its success or uncertainty in the minds of Canadians that they possess a native art which they have every reason to be proud of and which, if publicly supported, becomes one the country's greatest assets, both economically and artistically."

Mr. Drown touched briefly on Canada's brilliant group of sculptors and print makers, speaking of Walter Alward, Florence Wyle, Frances Loring, Emanuel Hahn of Toronto, Alfred Laliberte, J. W. Hall and Henri Herbert of Montreal, and Dr. R. Tait MacKenzie and Phimister Proctor, both Ontario born, now resident in the United States.

In the rapidly growing school of wood and copper engravers in both color and black and white, among the best known are J. W. Phillips, Fred Haines, Clarence Gagnon, Dorothy Stevens, Ivan Neilson and T. G. Greene.

Army experts found that the best gas mask could be made out of the charcoal resulting from burned cocoanut shells. This substance absorbed more gas than any other found.

Hero Of Hospital Fire Was a 15 Year Old Boy

ENGLEWOOD, N.J., April 6. — (United Press).—Although nurses, policemen, firemen and wealthy New Yorkers who live here, aided in saving 20 babies and thirty other patients from the Englewood Hospital yesterday, the outstanding hero was John Macris, fifteen-year-old office boy.

While the blaze was doing $50,000 damage in destroying a portion of one wing of the hospital, young Macris stuck to a telephone switchboard and notified all the nurses to prepare to remove their patients. Then the boy called fire apparatus from half a dozen nearby towns. Holding to his task efficiently while the smoke ever thickened, John finally slumped to the floor. A fireman saw him and attempted to drag him out.

"Lemme go," John shouted, "I'm just down here for a minute to get out of the darn smoke."

FRENCH FINANCES BEING ADJUSTED

Increase Bank Note Circulation Capital to Contribute 10 Per Cent.

PARIS, April 6. — (Canadian Press.)—Bills providing for an inounting to four billion francs and for a voluntary ten per cent. contribution by captial were presented to the cabinet this morning by M. DeMonzie, new finance minister. The cabinet will meet again tonight to finish a discussion of these measures which, when whipped into final form, will be presented to the chamber of deputies to-morrow.

The sort of capital levy provided for in the bills will, technically, be a loan to the state, bearing four per cent. interest. It will be payable in cash or French government securities at slightly above market quotations, and will be devoted to the amortization of the debt.

M. DeMonzie is determined to resort to a straight capital levy plan only if the proposed measures prove unacceptable.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Owing to the reading of the Long Gospel which forms part of the annual observance of Palm Sunday in Roman Catholic churches, the sermon at St. Peter's Cathedral morning services was very brief.

Rev. P. Costello compared the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem and the sufferings which the same acclaiming Jews heaped upon Him later with the attitude of men and women in modern times towards their creator. "The crown of thorns, the nails in His sacred hands, the stripes with which he was tortured, are our sins. When we turn away from Him, we renew the sufferings he endured on His way to Calvary."

In the observances of Holy Week, the Church asks its children to rejoice in God our King, to sanctify our lives and to turn to Him.

The usual Holy Week services will be observed, including the morning Masses, the special Mass on Holy Thursday, commemorating the institution of the Blessed Sacrament by Jesus Christ, the Mass of the Pre-Santified on Good Friday morning, with special sermon on Good Friday evening by Rev. J. McAuley of Ennismore, the blessing of the new fire, the oils and the holy water on Saturday, and the Masses on Easter Sunday, to be celebrated at seven, eight, nine-fifteen and ten-thirty o'clock.

ST. JAMES' ANNIVERSARY.

Rev. Professor A. J. Johnson of Victoria College, Toronto, was the special preacher at the seventeenth anniversary services at St. James' church yesterday. At the evening service he spoke from the text: "And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.'"

This verse and the next, he said, had been the subject of much controversy, and indifferent interpretations are put on it by different churches. Some interpret the answer, "Thou art Peter and on this rock will I build my church," as authority for the Apostolic succession. Others say that the rock refers to Christ, and still others interpret the rock as Peter's confession. All the fall down, said the speaker, and none of them gives the reasonable explanation. When the Master said this it was not just a chance expression. He was dealing with fundamentals.

He went on to give a history of the events. It was at the turning point in the life of Christ. Up to this time the multitudes had followed Him and the common people heard Him gladly. Now the Pharisees and the Sadducees had agreed to work together against Him and the shadow of the cross lay across the path. He had taken the disciples into a retreat in one of the most beautiful parts of Palestine, the foothills of Lebanon. The first question He asked them was a very simple one, "Who do men say that I am?" and the answers were many. All the answers compared Him to some of the great prophets and did not show Him as an effeminate type as some artists have painted Him. When He asked who they thought He was Simon Peter answered for them all. They had never been told this as Christ had wanted it to come to them. Now He could go up to Jerusalem as there was someone who would tell of Him and proclaim the message. He had now a basis of rock on which to build His church.

Professor Johnston then went on to give an interpretation of this passage. Such a man as Peter who had such faith was the basis of every church or congregation. All the Christian Gospel came from such men. The Gospels are not cold-blooded history. They were written by men who felt these things. Missionary effort comes from such faith. The missionaries do not go out to do human work; they go out to do the Lord's work. Christ builds His church on Christian believers, not on confessions of faith or on a priesthood. Such men loose fetters and the faithful courageous witness opens heaven. The real apostolic succession, said he, is from heart to lip, from lip to ear, from ear to heart, and from heart to lip around the circle again and again. The disciples carried out the programme. They went out to bear witness and keep their trust. The work waits for witness bearers. It is not done directly. The question the speaker asked his hearers in closing was "Are we trustworthy? Could He build on us?"

Albert Greenlaw of Detroit sang several numbers in pleasing voice. Among them were some of the negro spirituals.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: I note in a recent editorial in the Examiner your preference for daylight saving. Now, would you please prove to the public what benefits have been derived from this so-called daylight saving. It wasn't any good in Peterboro the summer we had it before, and would not be any good if it was inaugurated again. We put it out by vote before, and will do it again if given the opportunity. If any one wants to get up an hour earlier in the morning, I am sure there is no one that will try to stop them, but if municipal legislation has to be enacted to instil that ambitious desire in them, they are just as well in bed, for it would not make very much difference whether they were in bed or out of it.

"Daylight Saving" is not feasible in Peterboro, and I will try and point out why it is not.

In the first place the railroads are running on Standard time, and what does that mean,

That all railway employees in the city have to work on Standard time. The Express companies for the same reason have to do the same. The Post Office has to run on Standard time, because of the railways carrying the mail, and therefore all the postmen, mail carriers, and all the office staff will have to work by Standard time. The hotels that cater to the commercial trade will, for the same reason have to be run by the same time, and imagine the business man going home to his dinner at 11 o'clock without his Toronto morning paper to read after he has partaken of the mid-day meal.

The factories that have shipments by express will of necessity have to keep a staff of employees at work to attend to the express shipments, if they adopt and run their factories on "Daylight Saving Time," which I do not think they will do.

Now look at the turmoil and confusion this change, if inaugurated, will make, and for what purpose? Just to satisfy the whims of a few who haven't the ambition to get up an hour earlier, if they want to, and enjoy the good morning air, but expect municipal legislation to be enacted to force them to get up, stamps them (to use words in your paper written by some one on April 1st in the column headed "Arguments are aired on Plan to Save Light") the concluding sentence "stamps them immediately as below par in intelligence and not worth arguing with."

You speak of so-called benefits of cities that have tried out the scheme of "Daylight Saving" for a number of years, but I venture to say that there isn't any of them could tell you whether it is a benefit or not. Toronto voiced a big objection to it last year, and petitioned their council against it, and if my memory serves me corectly the scheme was turned down in the first instance, and the working people and the mothers of children were very much opposed to it.

Now what has been the experience of the smaller centres that tried the scheme a few years ago, when it was general all over the province, and the railroads were running on daylight saving time? The very next year when the railroads reverted to Standard time, they thought they would try it again, but what was the result? It did not last a week; there was so much confusion, and they had to revert to Standard time, as trying to do business was not practicable under those conditions. Cobourg, Port Hope, Belleville and many other towns and cities that I could name, were places that tried it.

In the article in your paper, reference to which I made before in this letter, the writer goes on to say, "Morning is the time for work," and I quite agree with him, or any one else who wants to get up early to work, but if the ambition to do this has to be legislated into him, he wouldn't do very much. He then goes on to say "Work an hour longer in the morning and an hour less in the afternoon....."and you don't feel like working anyway after consuming a heavy mid-day meal." Did you ever hear of any argument that hour earlier to work that you would almost infer that by getting up an hour earlies to work that you would not have to work in the afternoon at all! Such weak arguments as those stamps them immediately as below par in intelligence, and not worth arguing with."

Now, I hope I have not transgressed too far on the amount of space that this will take in your paper. There is a great deal more that I could say along this line but I will forbear at this time, so trusting you will find space for this, I am, yours for STANDARD TIME.

TAKE A FARM COURSE.

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—If those who favor daylight saving are anxious to get back to Nature (real Nature), I might say that cannot be found any place to equal the farm; and I will venture to say that if those pleasure seekers would take a six months course there that they will not be found among the advocates for daylight saving next year.

If those who want this change in time, would follow the example of our worthy Mayor, and go to work when they know that it is best suited for their business—never mind the other fellow who can come to work a couple of hours later without hurting his business (or thinks he can—then we would not have so much of this compulsory stuff, nor yet interfering with others rights.

No doubt we are behind New York (as regards sunshine), but we are also behind her in our criminal records—and who wants to catch up?

This is where a lot of our difficulty comes from to-day—trying to keep pace with the other fellow places more people with the down and outs than anything else that I know of.

Why not have a petition sent to the Council to have the sun rise the same time here as in New York? Just about as sensible. Thanking you for this valuable space in your paper. Yours truly.

COMMON SENSE.

Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Although it is evident, from figures in your paper, that the bulk of the people employed in the local industries are in favour of Daylight Saving, the letter writing has been done chiefly by those opposed to the scheme. Because fifteen or twenty correspondents, no doubt some of them chronic letter writers who oppose everything on principle, have condemned daylight saving, the mistake should not be made of thinking that these anti-daylight saving opponents represent the opinion of the community.

That can be best judged by the action of such organizations as the Kiwanis Club, the G.W.V.A., the Horticultural Society and the Life Underwriters' Association in endorsing daylight saving, and by the result of the vote taken in the factories of the city, which shows a percentage of more than 2 to 1 in favour.

Not a factory in Peterboro has turned in a majority against daylight saving, not a community organization has passed a resolution opposing it.

To offset the opposition of a dozen or more letter writers, there is the voice of the organizations I have named and the verdict of the workers of the manufacturing plants of the city.

That the bulk of the people want daylight saving cannot be denied in the face of these facts, and I believe that this expression of public opinion is sufficiently strong to justify the Council in adopting the plan to Peterboro during the summer months.

It is not possible to please everybody, but, as representatives of the people, it is the duty of the Council to carry out the wishes of the majority, and, in the present issue, there does not seem to be the least doubt as to how the majority stands.

Daylight saving leads by a city block. Let us have it, and those who are up in the air about it now can get out into the air with the rest of us, and in the enjoyment they get will forget all about the fact that they once opposed the scheme.

If it is good enough for Britain, France and Belgium, and the big cities of the United States and Canada, there is no use in Peterboro staying miles behind the procession and denying ourselves the benefits of daylight saving because a few people have written letters opposing the idea.

Our summers are short enough; let us grab an extra hour of sunlight every day for three or four months and we'll add a whole week to the enjoyment of summer; carve a little off our light bills and a lot off our doctor's bill, have a lot more fun, and be in better shape to face the grind next fall.

PROGRESS.

MOTHER OF FIVE

Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—What is the sense of forcing daylight saving on the whole city, because a few men working in some factory want to get up an hour early to work in the garden. Why not let them do it alone?

Children are not deaf and dumb "although we wish they were sometimes." You can't expect them to sleep with others working around in the morning and all the other out of door noises you hear in the long summer evening. Many of them sleep after lunch and play in the evening when it is cool. Be fair; give the mother a chance.

Off Again, On Again, Say Divorced Lovers United

MOUNT VERNON, Ills., Apr. 6.—(United Press).—After all it is the first love that is lasting and those who doubt it are referred to Bart Baimbridge and his wife, Dora, for first-hand testimony.

They were married twelve years ago, but differences arose and they were divorced.

Each found another mate, but the new marital bonds in each case became irksome, and they again sought relief in the divorce courts. Both happened to visit the village of Cambria, the scene of their early love, and the old flame sprang up with great vigor. As a result, they came to this city and were re-married on Saturday. They are now enjoying their second honeymoon together, and their third in all.

A BAD COLD DEVELOPED INTO BRONCHITIS

Mrs. Levi Ogden, Amherst Shore, N.S., writes:—"My baby girl had a very bad cold which turned to bronchitis, and she could not sleep at night for the coughing. I gave her everything I could think of to relieve her, but nothing seemed to do her any good, and she was not getting any better. I was advised, by a friend, to try

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

I did so, and after giving her a few doses I saw good effects so I kept on with it. I gave her two bottles, and her cough soon left her, and now she is as well as can be. I cannot praise 'Dr. Wood's' enough; it is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Concrete Highway on Dundas Mountain, near Dundas, Ontario

"It's the little they cost to maintain that makes Concrete Pavements economical."

Road building programmes must keep pace with traffic growth

This is admittedly a motor age. Our roads are filled with every type of motor vehicle and the number is increasing every day. The mileage of permanent highways capable of sustaining this traffic is totally inadequate.

Paving has become an economic necessity. We could not stop the growth of motor traffic if we would. We must therefore bring our roads up to a standard that will carry it with comfort, safety and economy.

Careful choice of paving material is imperative if we are to keep our road building programmes from becoming a financial burden. Concrete roads are usually the wisest selection.

They are permanent, withstanding the shocks of heavy loads that would speedily demolish a less durable material. They need very little upkeep. They protect the taxpayer's pocketbook.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

NEW DISCOVERY ABOUT VITAMINS

Scientists Told of Effect of Foods on Longevity and Productivity.

BY E. A. SLOSSON.

How can maternal affection be altered into aversion?

What power can make a fond and patient mother irritable and neglectful of her offspring?

The answer is lack of vitamin.

That is, at least, what I infer after listening to the enthusiastic account of his experiments which Prof. Barnett Sure, of the University of Arkansas, gave to the American association for the advancement of science. He has worked only with white rats, but rats have an uncanny likeness to human beings in their constitution and characteristics so they have become the favorite laboratory material for dietary experiments.

Prof. Sure started his investigations five years ago to find out whether rats could live on pure food; pure being taken in the chemical sense of a synthetic diet composed of highly refined compounds of definite composition. That is, he supplied them with all the food constituents then regarded as essential for an adequate diet, proteins, carbohydrates, salts and all the known vitamins.

Single Seed Makes Change

The rats grew and thrived on this artificial diet, but failed to reproduce. If, however, he added a single seed of some sort the rat race was continued to a second and third generation.

Evidently the seed contained some substance, hitherto undiscovered, that was necessary for fertility, and this substance Dr. Sure has now obtained in the form of an oil extracted from wheat germ, yellow corn or hempseed. Adding 5 per cent. of this to an otherwise inadequate diet enables the rat mother to bring forth and nurse a litter of young. But without it she fails to produce or properly nourish a second generation.

As long as her food contains a minimum of vitamin the mother rat shows all the signs of maternal solicitude and love. She watches over her young, protects them and keeps them warm and well fed. But if her diet is deprived of this vitamin, although remaining otherwise abundant and nutritious, her milk supply runs short and she becomes nervous, irritable and cross to the children. She neglects them and finally pushes them out of the case to die of cold and starvation or else she eats them up.

So lack of vitamin may lead to cannibalism. And what the old phrenologists used to call "philoprogenitiveness" and ascribe to a bump on the cranium may be dependent on the diet.

Prof. Sure finds that there is a great difference in the quality of various fatty foods, linseed, cocanut and sesame oil do not even produce fertility. Olive, peanut, soy bean and peach kernel oils produce fertility but fail in lactation.

Fertility Factor "Vitamin"

Cotton seed oil is a little better, but the best for both fertility and lactation are those from wheat germ, corn and hemp. Drs. Evans and Bishop, who have been working on this problem in the University of California, have reached similar results, only they call the fertility factor "vitamin," following the example of Roentgen, who called the rays he discovered "X"; their nature was unknown. They find "vitamin X" abundant in lettuce, alfalfa, egg yolk and fresh meat.

New light was thrown upon the other side of this important question at the same session of the association to-day by Prof. H. A. Mattill and Miss M. M. Clayton of the University of Rochester. They have found that male rats reared to maturity on a diet devoid of this vitamin fail to become fathers. A deficiency does not make so much difference after they reach maturity.

Baby as Old as He Acts

A woman is as old as she looks, a man as old as he feels, but a baby, according to Dr. Arnold Gesell, of Yale University, is as old as he acts.

Every mother can weigh the baby and determine its physical growth. There is no such accurate method of weighing its mental growth. But this may soon be possible.

The one-year-old child behaves in a different way from the two-year-old, and the month-old infant from the two-month infant. By carefully determining the way babies behave at different ages, Dr. Gesell asserts, a conception of the rate of mental growth can be obtained. Standards for children of school age have long been determined, but norms of children of pres-school age are equally important, if not more so, for clinical studies of special cases have shown that a month of retardation in the first year of life may be as serious as a whole year or more in later school life.

Twice as many boys as girls are feeble-minded, according to Dr. Clara Schmitt, of the bureau of child study in Chicago, who told of surveys made among school children in Chicago and elsewhere.

That this difference between sexes is greater in the United States than in England was indicated by a comparison made there by the royal commission and which reported the proportion of feeble-minded boys to girls 6 to 5.

Auto Branded Disease Spreader

The automobile and airplane may bring a return of yellow fever epidemics in the United States, Dr. Frederick Fuller Russell, general director of the international health board, warned members of the association. The outbreak in Salvador this year, after this disease was thought to have been stamped out in that region, and the fact that it was recently carried into the French Sudan from West Africa by automobile, were held to indicate the menace which modern transportation may prove in the dissemination of this former scourge.

To get a good stand of red clover it must be sown on well drained land of good texture that has been properly limed. If the land is poor, manure it well in preparing the seed bed and plant only good seed.

Tribute To Canadian Beef.

A tribute to the excellence of Canadian cattle that are shipped to Great Britain appears in a recent issue of the "Review of the River Plate," published in the Argentine Republic. The Canadian cattle, the writer states, are finished on grain and their flesh is of better flavor than Argentine alfalfa or grass fed cattle. The Argentine's beef, he points out, has a splendid appearance, but it does not equal in thickness or flavor the Canadian grain fed bullocks.

CAREER BEGAN WHEN LAID OFF

Young Immigrant is Now Rising Member of Parliament from West.

FARMER LET HIM GO.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 6. — "Then the farmer let him go and the young man drifted back to the city."

The above was one of the most significant statements in the story of the rise of a present member of the Dominion Parliament from the west, who, after coming to this country from Scotland as a mere youth, found his first situation on an Ontario farm, a story that went the rounds of all the leading city papers. The young fellow was inexperienced in farm work, it was admitted, and for that reason—which, by the way was not admitted, his wages were small. He worked one summer. "And then the farmer let him go and the young man drifted back to the city."

Taken by itself the above quotation appears harmless and natural enough, but when read in connection with the context of that story the words have a reproachful implication. The impression is subtlely conveyed that the action of the farmer was selfish and that when he had finished with the services of the young immigrant he should have kept him on at board wages or on other easy terms until work opened up again in the Spring or until the youth was able to find another job.

The hero of this story was so disappointed over the result of his first taste of bucolic life that he turned his back on farming and farmers forever. He worked as a laborer in the cities and gradually rose from one job to a better until he heard and answered the call of the west. Once in the prairie provinces everything broke just right until he attained what must for the present be regarded as the summit of his career a seat in the Dominion Parliament.

Farmers are no more altruistic or charitable than are the generality of mankind though they are by no means deficient in either virtues. When a man is hired he is kept until the stipulated time is up or longer if there is any more work to do. When he is no longer needed he is paid off and allowed to go where he will.

The manufacturer or other employer of labor in the city follows exactly the same policy. When orders fail to come in the manufacturer rather than operate even temporarily at a loss closes his plant turns his staff adrift. He would never think of keeping them on their payroll even at reduced rates to tide them over until the busy season returns. It is the same way in seasonal occupations in the urban centres, work during the summer for the employees and enforced idleness in the winter time. If any calling is entitled to be regarded as seasonal it is farming in Canada to-day.

The army of unemployed that tax the charitable resources of the cities almost every winter is not recruited entirely from the farms of the province when the hired men are turned off in the Fall. Where there is one farm laborer in the bread line or in the soup kitchen, there are fifty or more workmen whose misfortune it is that they follow callings that are carried on during the summer only.

Winter unemployment will always remain a problem in Canada, at least until the social reformers and the economists who spend so much time in discussing it without apparently getting anywhere, can devise some plan by which the climate of the country can be so tempered as to permit of the carrying on of farming and other outdoor work at a profit the year round.

Improvement In School Grounds Is As Important As In Buildings

(By Jeanette Leader, for Ontario Horticultural Association.)

A great improvement has become marked in new school buildings. No expense has been spared to make many of them beautiful in appearance and thorough in equipment. But what about the grounds? Not a tree, not a shrub, not a window box even is visible in the bare, barren grounds of most of our schools. Rural schools are usually absolutely devoid of trees and shrubs. Surely in these days of higher education, the study of flowers should not be overlooked. And how could they be taught better than to lay out the school grounds with trees and shrubs and develop in the children a love for the beautiful in nature. Children taught in a school which boasts a garden of bright flowers will never forget the imprint of tha picture in the impressionable age, but will learn to love flowers so that they will feel the need of them in later years, and their homes will be bowers of beauty. In almost everyone there is a love of the beautiful and the time to encourage it and develop it is in the early years. School schildren may study botany but it will not teach them to love flowers nor give them a desire to beautify their homes in later years, as the remembrance of the picture in their minds of a school grounds well laid out with trees and shrubs and flowers will do.

Children brought up in touch with the soul of a garden with its bees sipping honey, its gay butterflies flitting here and there, with its birds and bright flowers, seem to grow up a little different from children deprived of such interest. John Burroughs did not learn to love nature study in school. He learned the secrets of birds and squirrels by watching thier habits. He would sit by the hour watching them build their nests. Most children know that the camel can go for weeks without water but how many know that the garden toad doesn't drink at all, that he absorbs moisture through his body. So it is with flowers to know them one must be with them, watch them, smell, them touch them, and love them. And there are splendid opportunities for doing this by transforming the bare, uncared for school grounds into places of interest and beauty. It is said that among the criminals in our prisons that there are few who have learned to love flowers. Perhaps they would not have been there if they had been taught when young to see the beautiful in God's handiwork.

Look Her Over

The dairy herd at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, includes a new record holder among junior two-year-olds for that state. She's Illini Homestead Piebe Bonheur, shown above, a purebreda Holstein with a production record of 20,509.4 pounds of milk and 712.32 pounds of butterfat in a year.

ANY NOTHIN'

When wee little tots have a deviltry streak, the things they can do are a fright. You never can tell by a face that looks meek what is brewing from morning till night.

I know of a youngster who's cute as can be, and as darling a tot as they make 'em. But whatever rules of the house there may be, she's surely the one who can break 'em.

A pencil, perhaps, is left lying around, and soon, from the kitchen to hall, a casual look and it's readily found that she's written all over the wall.

The jam's hidden high, but a chair stands nearby and the little one drags it in place. Then Mom will appear, sister registers fear, 'cause there's something all over her face.

It's funny the daring-like look that breaks out, when she's caught in her deviltry play. "Why, I didn't do any nuthin'," she'll shout, in her typical, innocent way.

Farmer Makes Success After His Eyes Fail

O. H. DOERSCHLAG (CENTRE) AND HIS CON. JURI. (AT RIGHT) WITH A FRIEND HOLDING AN EAR OF CORN GROWN ON THE DOERSCHLAG FARM.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 6.—There is no giving up in O. H. Doerschlag, who operates a 240-acre farm one mile west of here.

Several years ago his wife became an invalid and had to be cared for in a sanitarium. Then a daughter became a cripple. Four years ago Doerschlag himself became blind.

Friends wanted him to give up and live as long as possible on his savings and then depend upon public charity.

"No," he replied. "I am going to work and care for my children and my farm."

Now he is one of the most successful farmers in Kansas.

Part of the credit is due to Juri, a 14-year-old son. He has become his father's eyes.

During the four years since the Kansan became blind he has put a concrete floor in his barn and has increased his herd of Holstein milk cows to 14. These he milks twice a day, getting an average of fifty gallons of milk a day. This brings an income of about $55 a week.

Rows of elms have been planted along driveways and have added to the value of the farm home.

Fields of alfalfa and sweet clover have been set and they furnish most of the feed for the cows.

Twenty-five acres of corn on the farm produced seventy-five bushels an acre last year.

INSECT PESTS MENACE WORLD

Age Old Battle Between Bugs and Men Continues.

INSECTS GAINING

By DALE VAN EVERY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(United Press).—The most serious warfare ever waged by man, one in which the very existence of the race depends, is being fought to-day with every backyard a battlefield and every farm a major front.

It is the struggle between the human race and the insects to determine which will flourish on the earth. The city dweller so far is oblivious to this conflict, which he feels only in the increased cost of food and clothing. The farmer feels it keenly in that crop wastage caused by insects costs him dollars and cents.

But the experts of the United States Department of Agriculture, who are making man's organized efforts to conquer the insect enemies, looking beyond the present cost in money, wasted labor, and destroyed crops, regard the future of the struggle as potentially the greatest crisis ever to confront the race.

Insect Pests Gaining.

Despite greatly accelerated resistant measures being taken by the department, destructive insect pests are constantly gaining. The most the department has been able to do in many cases is to retard the spread of insect blights. Insect depredations among American crops cost hundreds of millions of dollars annually and each year cost more than the last. If the increase in insect destruction continues at its present rate the time will come when what the insect takes will amount to so much there will not be enough left to satisfy man's needs.

The new insect menace appeared within the last generation. Conditions brought into effect by civilization gave the insect its great opportunity. Originally, under natural conditions, for every insect there was a natural enemy. Parasites infested them. Birds ate them. Other carnivorous insects ate them. One species of insect lived on the eggs of another species. This natural balance restrained dangerous kinds of insects from becoming too numerous.

Nature's balance was distorted by civilization. Man denuded vast stretches of country of its natural forest. Bird life was restricted. With natural conditions destroyed, various species of insects found a sudden opportunity to expand.

International commerce spread insects in strange parts of the world where, freed from their natural enemies, they could expand unhampered. Plants brought from Asia to America might carry two or three specimens of an insect, which innocuous in its homeland, found in its new environment a chance to flourish untroubled by its natural enemies. Immediately the strange insect multiplies and becomes a menace.

The Cotton Boll Weevil.

The cotton boll weevil, most noted of insect pests, was originally a little-known and unimportant bug which lived on wild cotton in the mountains of Mexico. Its food supply was strictly limited. Introduced by chance in the fringe of the cotton belt in southern Texas, it suddenly found in the endless fields of cultivated cotton a limitless food supply.

With a birth rate which it has been estimated produces over 12,000,000 offspring to a single pair of weevils in one season, the pest spread like wildfire through the cotton fields of the south. It lodged in Texas in 1892. Despite all efforts to resist the plague, it spread as far as North Carolina in the succeeding 30 years. The bug which was of no importance in its natural wild state has been given an opportunity by the unnatural conditions brought about by civilization to become a menace to one or the staple crops of the country, costing annually losses of from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000.

The history of the boll weevil illustrates the general insect menace. Pests which in their natural state faced so serious a fight for existence they barely were able to get along at all have suddenly been presented with an all bounding food supply, been freed of their hereditary enemies, and as a result have multiplied with speed and vigor.

I had an enemy who wished me all of ill,
I had a wondrous friend I loved as mine own soul:
My friend would have me treading pleasure's pathway still,
Mine enemy it was who spurred me to my goal.

GOOD SUGAR SEASON AROUND STIRLING

Farmers Report Success — Plowing Has Started Since Frost Went Out.

STIRLING, April 6. — Farmers who have been making maple syrup report a good season for the business. The price is from $2.00 to $2.50 a gallon.

The recent rains have taken the frost out and a few farmers have done some ploughing. Fall grain is looking well and has assumed a green look already.

Mr. Crowe, of Southern Manitoba, is in this vicinity buying several hundred yearling heifers to place on his ranch there. Messrs. Chas. Van Allen and son Harold are assisting him in the work of purchasing the animals. The animals are kept and fed at Mr. Thos. Matthews' farm, about two miles out the ridge road and will be shipped to the west about April 20th.

Those members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church who voted for union, held a meeting in the basement of the church last Thursday night and decided to retain their connection with St. Andrew's until June 10th.

A carload of coal oil and gasoline was unloaded on Monday last by the farmers of this section. Mr. Thos. A. McMullen had charge of it.

Epidemic Over.

The epidemic of measles which was quite prevalent in and around Stirling, is subsiding and the tickets are being removed from the houses.

Eleven ladies of St. Andrew's W. M.S. who were non-concurring Presbyterians, attended a meeting of non-concurring members of the Presbytreial W.M.S. held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Belleville, on Wednesday. A very helpful address was given by Mrs. H. R. Horne, of Toronto, which was greatly appreciated by the large gathering present. Southern Pine Beetle.

The southern pine beetle is smaller than a grain of rice and yet its attacks ruins millions of the finest southern pine trees every year. Its larvae burrow under the bark, feeding on the tender inner surface of the bark, eventually killing the tree. Depredations of this beetle have caused far greater loss than forest fires in the south. The one practical method of control recommended by the department is felling infected trees and burning the bark to kill the hibernating beetles.

BUY COLBORNE HOLSTEINS FOR WESTERN FARMS

Three Carloads of Cattle Already Purchased in Surrounding District.

GUARANTEED WELL.

Veterinary Inspects All Animals, So Western Dairyman is Protected.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

COLBORNE, April 6.—A big business has been carried on in this district during the past winter, and is still in progress, in the purchase of dairy cattle, males and females, for the western market. Already a sufficient number of cattle to fill three cars has been secured, but the business will be kept up while there is a single available head of stock left on the market.

A large company of capitalists at Winnipeg is behind the movement. F. R. Crane, an American, who is rated as a millionaire, has been here during the winter directing the operations, and his purchasing agent is Dr. J. E. Alyea, a local veterinary surgeon—at least he followed that profession until the auto reduced the number and value of horses—and who is an expert judge of live stock of all classes. During the past few months Dr. Alyea has combed the surrounding country for suitable animals to fill his order, leaving home frequently Monday morning and not returning until Saturday night.

Holsteins the Favorites.

The only breed of cattle wanted by this company is the Holsteins, the western men being of the opinion that the white and blacks will put on more beef and command a better price from the butchers after their value as dairy cattle has vanished. With other dealers in the west, however, the Ayrshire alone finds favor as cattle of that breed are said to be of a hardy type and so better able than any other class to withstand the rigors of the winters on the prairie provinces.

Bonanza For the West.

The better types of grasses, as well as pure breds, are being purchased by Dr. Alyea so that the benefits enjoyed by the owners of Holsteins are general. A large sum of money has been, and more will yet be distributed among the farmers of Northumberland and surrounding counties. Stock breeders in Seymour Township have disposed of dairy animals to Dr. Alyea, these to be delivered at Colborne when the trainload is complete. The purchases include many young heifers which on reaching Manitoba will be given the run of the company's thousands of acres of ranch land until they retain the desired stage of growth.

No Come Back Possible.

The plan adopted by this company of securing cattle for the west is regarded as the ideal one. Each animal is guaranteed by Dr. Alyea as free from disease, so that when the cattle are sold to the western dairymen the latter have the assurance that they are all right. If a farmer in the west orders cattle from Ontario by mail, what he gets is not always as represented.

The field man of the Ayrshire breeders of Ontario issued a warning when he addressed a gathering of cattlemen near Campbellford last summer. He told them that the western men were tired of going it blind in this business, that too many scrubs had been foisted upon them and unless something were done to improve the methods employed Ontario was likely to lose the western market, which was becoming—or at least should become—more valuable every year.

The speaker intimated that the Progressives in Parliament representing the prairie provinces, were likely to make an attempt to have removed, or at least reduced, the duty on dairy cattle from the United States so that the westerners would be able to make their purchases in that country. He recommended that all cattle sent to the west should be subject to Government inspection so that when a prairie farmer invested he would have the assurance that he was getting what he paid for.

The plan of purchase and shipment adopted by the company operating here seems at least an approach to the method suggested by the field man referred to. Dr. Alyea may not be a Government official but his reputation as a professional expert is at stake and the farmers with whom he does business are always sure of receiving a square deal.

Almost a Canadian.

F. R. Crane, head of this company, received his business training from a Canadian who left his native land to enter business in the United States. That was the late James J. Hill, the railway king, with whom Mr. Crane was associated for years, during which time he laid the foundation for the fortune which he now possesses and which he has increased by extensive business operations in Western Canada.

Another Market in Sight.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, speaking at Warkworth last week, told the farmers, nearly all of whom were prominent in the stock business, that the Dominion Government had opened a market for pure bred Canadian Holsteins in the British Isles and that this would soon be in operation.

Farmers who have looked into this matter believe that with reduced ocean freight rates cattle can be shipped to England for less than it costs to send them by rail to the west.

NURMI, RITOLA AND CO. SHOW SPEED AT INDOOR MONTREAL MEET

Finnish Runners Fulfil Advance Notices by Winning Their Races.

WALKING RECORD

Phil Granville of Hamilton Closely Pressed Frigerio, the Olympic Champion.

MONTREAL, April 6.—Paavo Nurmi, premier Finnish racing star, and holder of some 30-odd world's records, made his Montreal debut on Saturday night in the mile and three-quarters special, the feature event of the provincial indoor championships, held here.

Nurmi ran all his opposition into the boards. He circled his opponents so often and so speedily that the spectators, standing at their chair, forgot about Jimmy Connolly, the sturdy Georgetown University star, or the two local stars, Hughes and Mould, and watched in wonderment as the marvel of the track skimmed with effortless grace lap after lap.

Nurmi's time for the distance, 8.09 1-5, was 18 seconds off the world mark, but it was a smart performance considering the lack of opposition and the nature of the track—a 12-lap to the mile circuit.

Ritola and Frigerio.

Willie Ritola, who was the second half of the Finnish Olympic team with Nurmi last Summer at Paris, won the three mile special event. He gave four local runners a three-lap advantage and then in full stride, set out in consistent style to overhaul his two most likely rivals, Edouard Fabre, veteran Marathoner, and Gus Ladriere. The latter made a game fight, but was run into the boards by the well-timed race of the Finnish athlete.

The five-mile walking race, in which Ugo Frigerio, of Italy, Olympic champion, and Phil Granville, of the Canadian Olympic team last year, staged a gruelling battle of 60 laps around the track, which had as its climax in a terrific-last-lap sprint by Granville, which cut down a 30-yard lead held by Frigerio resulted in the Italian winning by a hair's breadth. It was a sensational spurt by the Hamilton walker and the crowd stood up and roared as he made his terrific effort, which culminated when Granville fell heavily to the floor after crossing the line in close to a dead heat with Frigerio, utterly exhausted from the grind.

New Canadian Record.

A win for either would have been popular. It was a thrilling battle and Frigerio was loudly acclaimed, especially after it was announced that the time of 35.52 4-5 shattered completely the Canadian record, though there was some question as to whether or not it set a world's mark for an indoor meet.

Another stirring finish came in the running of the three-quarter mile special. Jimmy Connolly, Georgetown runner, gave varying handicaps to local runners, of whom the most formidable was Rubin, of McGill University, the Intercollegiate mile champion. Rubin had a half-lap handicap and would have headed the sturdy little Washington runner to the tape had he not looked around twice in the final sprint and thrown the victory. Connolly ran a beautifully timed race, trailing Rubin till the last lap and then opening with a dash that just got him to the front in a finish that had the crowd roaring with delight.

JOCKEY FLIES TO RACE.

Steve Donoghue Hopped to London and Paris.

LONDON, April 6. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—Reaching the station on Saturday in time to see his train pulling out for Derby where he had a racing engagement Steve Donoghue found it impossible to make the journey by motor car in time, so he rang up Rendon and chartered an areoplane. He went in a taxi-cab from Piccadilly to the aerodrome where he found several planes with their propellors revolving ready for a trip. Steve leaped into one of the machines which took off immediately amid shouts from a crowd of "good old Steve." He landed on the course inside an hour and rode Blarney-Stone, third in the first race. After his racing engagements he jumped into the aeroplane once more and flew to Paris, where he rode to-day.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Some two years ago, through a discussion with "Chick" Evans of the mechanics of his remarkable golf swing, I developed as a part of my teaching system, a movement that I called the "pull down." One of the leading London golf publications has since complimented this "pull down" as "very near the last word among golf simplifying aids for the average player."

This "pull down" has a two fold fold purpose. It enables the golfer to rid his swing of the disastrous body bush, with which nearly every businessman playing is afflicted and it makes the forward swing automatically rhythmic—or has a tendency to. Rhythm usually is lost in the forward swing because of the player's jerk of the club from the top of the back swing. The "pull down" enables the player to initiate this take-off without the jerk. In subsequent articles this week I shall describe the "pull down" so that the ordinary golfer can apply it to his own game.

SHEFFIELD WON WHILE CARDIFF PLAYED A DRAW

Blades Looked the Better of the Cup Finalists in Saturday Soccer.

LEAGUE GAMES

Leicester City and Derby County Contenders for the Second Division Title.

LONDON, April 6 (Canadian Press Cable).—Simultaneously with the approaching end of the soccer season the interest in league football has grown intense and there is a noticeable decrease in the number of goals scored. Saturday's performance repeated that of a week ago in the meagre total of counters. Despite the generally good weather, attendances dropped below normal.

There were several interesting encounters in both the First and Second Divisions. West Bromwich, who lead the senior string, travelled to Newcastle and defeated the Northumbrians on their own ground. The Cup finalists, Sheffield United id Cardiff City each played a metropolitan team, and while the Welshmen drew with Arsenal at Highbury, Sheffield United defeated the Spurs at Bramhall Lane.

In the Second Division the features of the day were the defeat of Leicester City at Blackpool and the victory of Derby County over Manchester United.

West Bromwich were without the services of their International halfback, Magee, at Newcastle, but the locals were similarly weakened by the absence of Spencer and Seymour from their team, both of whom are travelling to Australia with the All-England team. The Northerners had the better of the opening exchanges, but the Albion gradually asserted themselves and enjoyed the advantage until the interval. The winning counter came in the second half when Carter shot in a goal. Newcastle tried desperately to equalize but their efforts were unsuccessful.

Huddersfield Defense Good.

Huddersfield Town did not have matters entirely their own way against Everton, although they emerged with a two-goal victory. The Lancashire club did a great deal of attacking, particularly in the second period, but the Yorkshire backs had their measure all the time, and presented a defence that could not be dented. Charlie Wilson obtained both of the Town's tallies.

Bury's game with Burnley was one of the most thrilling of the season. They scored their orphan goal about five minutes before the interval. The inability of Burnley's forwards to force a division of the points was due to the soundness of the home club's defence.

The games of the leaders on Saturday did not affect the standings, and the fans were quick to note that while Cardiff City gave a very mediocre exhibition, Sheffield United were in the true Cup-final form and had the 'Spurs eating out of their hand. Cardiff travelled to London and tried out the experiment of rearranging their attack. It was not impressive and could make little headway against the Arsenal's bustling defence. The Welshmen were frequently in distress, and it was the Londoners who drew the first blood. The City soon drew level and ended the first half on even terms.

The second period saw play rule fast and furious and on the run of the game, the Arsenal were unlucky not to score again. Cardiff City did not appeal to the fans as Cup winners, and their stock dropped rather low in the Metropolis on Saturday night.

Blades Aggressive.

With Sheffield the situation was different. They were aggressive and resourceful throughout. The 'Spurs played with a weakened side, which perhaps served to show the Blades to better advantage, but the metropolitan sadly lacked finishing power and Sheffield won entirely as they should.

Manchester United, having been defeated by Derby County on Saturday, the battle for the title of the Second Divison has been narrowed down to a couple of teams, Leicester City and Derby County. Both are locked in the order named, with the City enjoying a much-larger goal average. Each team is running exactly equal with 36 games played, 22 won, 7 drawn and 7 lost, but while Leicester has a proportion of 84 goals for to 31 against, the County have 68 for to 31 against. The great battle of the leagues comes next Saturday, when these two teams meet at Leicester.

Chelsea dropped out of sight as far as any hopes of the league were concerned, when they allowed Bradford City to down them by two goals to one. The Pensioners were running fairly well up to about two weeks ago, when they collapsed.

Scottish League.

In the First Division of the Scottish League, play was interrupted by the International Game at Hampden Park, where Scotland won a well-merited victory over England, and incidentally clinched the championship. Seven games only were played, with Queen's Park and Partick Thistle being the only Glasgow clubs engaged. The feature of the play was the defeat of the Hibernians by Dundee. The Cup finalists were in great form, but the Hibernians were weakened by the absence of their veteran goalkeeper, Harper. The defeat cost the Easter Road club their second place in the league, the Rangers jumping ahead of them.

Harry Kiddern, chief operator at the U.S. naval radio station in the Philippines, reports he picked up 42 amateur stations in one hour recently. Among them were several American stations.

MACFARLANE OF HARRISTON NEW HEAD OF O.B.A.A.

Elected at Annual Meeting of Ontario Association on Saturday.

NEW REGULATIONS

Affiliation With the A. A. U. of Canada is Retained.

—TORONTO, April 6.—The seventh annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association opened Saturday at the Carls-Rite Hotel. Sixty delegates representing every league in the province were in attendance. Good progress in the Ontario association was reported by the secretary. An increase of thirteen leagues was made during the year, making the number operating under the O.B.A.A. 48. The following amendments to the constitution were dealt with:

That if any player previously playing under the O.B.A.A. should change his place of residence after August 1st of the playing year, he must notify the secretary of the O.B.A. before the 15th of February of the following year and state his reasons for doing so. Carried.

Where different teams are operated by the same club, a junior certificate may be used in an intermediate or senior, or an intermediate certificate in a senior game, provided that the date and occasion of such is written across the face of the certificate of the player by the umpire. Four such uses shall cancel the certificate for which it has been issued. Carried.

No player after playing three games in any league can be released and signed by another team in the same league. Any player who has not been played by his club in three or four consecutive games has the right to appeal to the executive should his club refuse to release him. Carried.

All teams must furnish O.B.A.A. with a signed statement containing the names of the players of their championship team, who are eligible to compete in the O.B.A.A. championship play-offs and the league represented must take the responsibility for the accuracy.

Teams competing in the O.B.A.A. semi-finals and final games, must play two games a week so as to make sure the season being finished in time.

Representatives of the O.B.A.A. and the visiting team will have the power to check the attendance and receipts.

Conveners will be appointed in different sections of the province to assist in the play-offs and organization.

The semi-annual meeting shall be held on the third Saturday in November.

Spirited Discussion.

Amendment that National League rules, with the exception that catcher's box be ten feet from screen, and that coachers box be ten feet from the foul line. This brought out spirited discussion, but was lost. The amendment was aimed at eliminating the Toronto small fields, which caused so much trouble last year.

Another amendment to have all fields barred that did not measure up to National League requirements was overwhemingly defeated.

Charlie Paddock, one of the veterans of amateur ball, was an interested spectator at the meeting.

An amendment that a stated amount be inserted as to expenses was defeated.

An amendment abolishing the rule requiring a player to sign before July 15th and to have competed in three games to be eligible for championship was lost.

An amendment changing the percentage of receipts to the association and teams was defeated.

In case a senior or intermediate game is postponed on account of rain or a tie game the home team must pay the visiting team half the mileage. In the case of minor teams the home team must pay the visitors half of the actual expenses.

Warming Up Practice.

To eliminate the usual argument heard before the start of many of the games the delegates adopted the following amendment:

In all association championship games the periods for batting and fielding practice shall be: home club batting practice up to thirty-five minutes before advertised time of game; visiting club batting practice for next ten minutes: home club fielding practice for next ten minutes and visiting club fielding practice for ten minutes following. Where game is played on neutral grounds, practice periods shall be equally divided between the two competing teams. The home club shall be required to provide bell to notify teams of the termination of their allotted time for the various practices and it shall be the duty of the manager of the team at practice to order his team to vacate the diamond immediately.

An amendment to allow the two teams to agree on umpires was defeated.

O.B.A.A. Pay Umpires

One of the most spirited discussions of the meeting resulted over an amendment to have the O.B.A.A. pay the fees of the umpires in the minor play offs. It was stated that the O.B.A.A. have a bank account in the neighborhood of $5,000, and some of the delegates thought this money should be spent in missionary work amongst the minors. Few of the minor teams can pay their way. The delegates adopted an amendment to have the O.B.A.A. appoint and pay neutral umpires for all minor games.

Some of the teams complained of minor teams having to play with the baseballs that were not official. To overcome this an amendment stating that a Reach and Spalding junior ball must be used, was carried.

Check Up Minors.

To prevent minors over age competing in series where they are not eligible, the league or association must forward to the O.B.A.A. a list of qualified players signed by the secretary of the said league or Association accompanied by the players' age certificates and playing certificates, and players' signature. The O.B.A.A. after checking same shall send to said league or association a list of qualified players with dates of births and signed by the secretary of the O.B.A.A., and this list must be produced at each game.

Protest Rule.

To fully cover the protest rule the following was adopted:

"That all protests arising out of semi-final or final games must be filed with the secretary of the association within forty-eight hours of the advertised time of the game protested, and must be accompanied by a deposit of $25, which sum shall be forfeited to the association should the executive, whose decision shall be final, disallow the protest. All protests and evidence in support thereof, must be in duplicate, and signed by the president or secretary of the protesting club. A copy of said protest and evidence must be served upon the protested club within forty-eight hours after the said game. The club protested shall be allowed thirty-six hours to file a defense and evidence with the secretary of the association, which must be accompanied by a deposit of $25 to be forfeited to the association should the executive allow the protest. A copy of the defense must also be sent to the protesting club. A reply to the said defense may be entered by the protesting club, provided a copy thereof is served upon the protested club at least twelve hours before the time fixed by the executive for hearing the protest. Personal service of any of the recognized officers of a club or service by registered post on either the president or secretary of a club, to be sufficient service in any case, and the protest is to be considered if it is shown that the evidence has been sent by registered post within the time limit fixed by he rule. Each of the clubs intercsted may be represented at the hearing of the protest.

Watch Exhibtion Games.

To eliminate any trouble such as that which arose over the Galt-Bauer game last year, the following was adopted:

All players or clubs intending to take part in exhibition games outside of their own leagues must secure the consent of the executive of the leagues to which such clubs or players are affiliated with the O.B.A.A. Where the club or players with whom it is intended to compete are not affiliated with the O.B.A.A. then a special permit must be obtained from the O.B.A.A. executive. A violation of this clause will render such clubs or players liable to suspension.

Teams and players competing in Sunday baseball shall be liable to suspension.

Players in uniform must refrain from smoking during all games, and umpires must enforce this rule.

To assist the minors finance their way the delegates decided to grant $800 instead of $500 to help defray expenses. This will be divided in ration to the number of games played.

What was supposed to be the fireworks of the meeting, the withdrawing of the O.B.A.A. from the A.A.U. of C, proved to be a "dud." No seconder could be found and the proposed amendment was automatically dropped.

Honararіums of $500 to the secretary and $100 to the acting treasurer were made.

In recognition of his work in forming the O.B.A.A., W. J. Smith of Toronto was made an honorary life member.

The following officers were elected:

President — D. C. MacFarlane Harriston.

First vice-president—W. N. Farrell, Sudbury.

Second vice-president—G. S. Martin, London.

Secretary—A. J. Walsh, Toronto.

Treasurer—C. K. Jutten, Hamilton.

A.A.U. of C. governor—P. M. Kennedy, Toronto.

Executive—W Wiley, Ottawa; J. G. Nott, Oshawa; A. Hillmer, Oakville; H. C. Maguire, St. Catharines.

PLAYING FIELDS FOR BRITISH YOUTH URGED

Appeal to Government to Assist Municipalities.

LONDON, April 6 — (Canadian Press Cable)—Rudyard Kipling's famous lines about "the flannelled fool at the wicket and the mudded oafs at the goal" will doubtless be recalled following a striking appeal which has been made for more playing fields for the people of Britain. The appeal is signed by folk with a varied outlook on life and include the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, David Lloyd George, Ramsay MacDonald, Lady Astor, Miss Margaret Bondfield, Earl Haig, Right Rev. Arthur Winnington-Ingram, Bishop of London, Lord Plumar, Lord Cheylesmore, Lord Cadogan, Lord Lonsdale and several ex-cabinet ministers, and reads as follows:

"Our young people are continually being told to play and not to look on. There is real irony in this when we think of the tens of thousands of young people who have no grounds to play on. We do not for an instant suggest that there should be a Ministry of Sport, but we very strongly urge the Ministry of Health to give much closer attention to this matter. We also suggest the formation of a national organization which, without usurping in any way the functions of the local authorities, shall co-ordinate their efforts to provide adequate recreation grounds."

TWO TITLES IN FOOTBALL MAKE SCOTS SUPREME

BEAT ENGLAND 2-0

Scots Forwards Played Brilliantly and With Decided Advantage—100,000 Crowd.

GLASGOW, April 6. — Scotland added a second championship in football to her honors on Saturday afternoon when before a crowd of well over 100,000 fans, the international eleven defeated England at Hampden Park here by a score of two goals to nothnig.

Coupled with the International title in Rugby football, which was won two weeks ago at Edinburgh, the triumph over England at Soccer Saturday places this country in a supreme position in the realm of King Football.

From the Scottish point of view, the game was well and truly played, and the victory was worth while. The Scotsmen won on their merits, and served up the highest class of Soccer, turning in a game that was delightful to watch. Their forward line played smoothly and combined to the fullest advantage, while their intermediate department were able to take care of the English five, McMullen in particular marking the redoubtable Tunstall.

The hundred thousand enthusiasts that packed Hampden Park were drawn from all over the Kingdom, the spacious stands presented a wonderful spectacle, with their great sea of faces. The usual scenes of jubiliation and excitement were enacted.

Score in First Half.

From the start the Scottish eleven had the wind in their favor, during the first half and immediately following the kick-off. Cairns and Morton, the Rangers' international left wing, initiated a raid which kept Graham and Wadsworth busy.

The Scottis' first goal came after 35 minutes of magnificent play when Cairns centred to Gallagher, and the Airdrieonians' key-man thoroughly deferted Pym.

There was no further scoring in the initial period, in which the game had been fairly even, but with the margin slightly in favor of the Scots

The English had made several incursions into Scottish territory but the veteran Harper was a stonewall in the goal, while both McStay and McLoy offered a stubborn and clever defence. McLoy was substituted for Mutton of Aberdeen at the last minute, thus bringing in a representative from Ayr United.

Play throughout the second frame was keenly contested, with England having the advantage of the wind, which had now become boisterous, but even with this the Southerners were unable to penetrate the Scothis defence, while the Caledonian forwards established a firm mastery over the ball.

The Scotsmen's second counter came about five minutes from the end of the play and was obtained again by Gallagher. Jackson of Aberdeen had taken the ball well into England's ground, furnishing a delightful piece of play, and he rounded it off by centering to Gallagher. The latter made sure of his score by sending both ball and Pym into the nets.

Pym was Brilliant.

With the exception of Walker, the English forwards were a failure. They worked unevenly and their play was spasmodic. Tunstall was somewhat disappointing, although their were odd times when he showed some flashes of his well known work. Against the fine defence of McLoy and McStay, however, the Englishmen could not do a great deal The best players for England, were, Pym in goal and Ashurst, Wadsworth and Townrow. It was no fault of Pym's that England was defeated, his work between the posts being brilliant. He was called upon to make many saves, and he responded cleverly. Ashurst and Wadsworth were in good form at right and left back respectively, and they displayed flashes of real genius in warding off the determined play of the Scottish forward line. They were poorly supported, however, by Magee and Graham in the half-back positions, although Townrow at centre kept Gallagher well in check.

The great strength of the Scottish eleven lay in their forwards, all of whom played magnificent football. On the intermediate line, however, both Meiklejohn of the Rangers and McMullen of Partick, showed up to excellent advantage.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

OLD MAN JINX

Old Man Jinx seems to be on the trail of the Chicago Cubs. One setback after another, apparently.

And what is more, the bugaboo remains on the job despite efforts to throw it off.

In the last couple of seasons Killefer's club has been badly hit. First came the illness of Charley Hollocher, one of the greatest shortstops the National League ever turned out. Hollocher returned last year but was anything but his former self and played in but 71 games. He isn't even with the team this spring.

Then Ray Grimes fell victim to the old hoodoo, being only able to get in 50 tilts in 1924. On top of this Grover Alexander was laid up for two months of the last campaign just when he was most needed.

This year Manager Killefer had high hopes that he had left the jinx behind. But hardly had the spring training grind got under way than "Rabbit" Maranville broke his ankle in an exhibition game out on the coast.

Maranville will probably be out for two months or so and it is doubtful if he will be abe to put up his stellar article of pastiming even then, if at all.

GRIGSBY NEXT VICTIM.

Following Maranville's injury, came one to Denver Grigsby, one of the most promising outfielders on the club. Grigsby fractured his collarbone the other day. He had been counted upon to fill one of the garden positions.

So, out of the seven regular posts, Killefer, ere the training season is terminated finds two players out of the reckoning for the present at least.

The injury to Maranville was an exceedingly tough blow The Cubs acquired the "Rabbit" from Pittsburg last winter along with Grimes and Cooper for Aldridge, Neihaus and Grantham.

Maranville has been figured as the hub of the inner defense.

WORST OF ALL.

Perhaps the loss of no other member of the team could hurt the cary season chance of the Killefer entourage as much as will that of Maranville. A veteran of 13 seasons of big league experience, the ex-Pirate had been counted upon strongly to bolster the club on the defense.

Killefer will be forced to experiment with a youngster at the short field job during the first few weeks of the chase at least. And even the most promising recruit isn't very apt to fill the shoes of Maranville to any great degree of acceptability.

No greater blow could hardly come to a ball club than to lose its star shotstop. For it's one of the most important position on a team

No doubt Bill Killefer, after such a series of setbacks, hopes that the injury-illness jinx has departed for once and all.

BUCKEYES HAVE REAL PAIR OR HURDLERS

IN KINGSTON TO TAKE EVIDENCE

Public Accounts Sub-Committee Examining Peter Smith and Charles Matthews.

PRESS EXCLUDED.

KINGSTON, April 6 —(Canadian Press)—The sub committee of the Public Accounts Committee, of which W. Finlayson, member for Simcoe, is chairman, arrived in Kingston during last night and drove out to the Portsmouth Penitentiary his morning where the examination of Peter Smith, ex-Provincial Treasurer, and Charles Matthews, Jr., ex-assistant to the treasurer, in connection with the alleged "Toll Gate," commenced at 9.30 a.m. Representatives of the press were excluded from the proceedings. The sub-committee, with the exception of the Hon. W. E. Raney, who arrived by himself and put up at an hotel, travelled in a private car upon which they breakfasted this morning, and where the chairman was interviewed regarding the activities of his sub-committee, Mr. Finlayson stating that he had absolutely nothing to give out for publication.

"It is no use newspapermen worrying what we are doing," said Mr. Finlayson. "We have nothing to give out now and I do not propose to give out any statement when the sittings are over."

ANOTHER GERM CARRIER.

Milk Man Carried Germs to Hundreds of People.

Mrs. Mann related another story of a typhoid fever carried.

A farmer in Wisconsin had typhoid fever in 1864. He recovered, and moved to Camden, N.J., where he set up in the milk business.

In 1878 his daughter had typhoid. In 1886 his son-in-law had typhoid. In 1893 another daughter had it, and in 1897 another daughter, and in 1903 and 1909 two hired hands had it.

Meanwhile Camden, N.J., became notorious for its high rate of typhoid fever, and three-quarters of the cases were of persons using the farmer's milk.

Finally in 1909 some of the farmer's milk was sent to New York and caused an epidemic of 380 cases.

This was enough, and too much. So an investigation was started, and the man was found to be a typhoid fever carrier.

"Well, did they stop the man from selling milg?" Mr. Mann asked when his wife had completed her story. "I should think they would have been doing some checking up long before he invaded New York."

AT THE GRAND

THE ORIGINALS IN "STEPPING OUT."

The Originals still have many of the Original Dumbell favorites with them as well as several new soldier artists of prominence. These talented funmakers will present their latest laugh riot, "Stepping Out," at the Grand Opera House next Friday matinee and Friday and Saturday evenings. From Bob Anderson's first appearance in the comedy number, "Turned Up," the gales of merriment commence, and on through the show until the final with Leonard Young as the aristocratic and dignified "Duchess," hilarity reigns supreme.

Gene Pearson is probably the finest and most talked of feminine impersonator on the stage. His lovely girlish appearance and magnificent soprano voice has no equal anywhere. Gene's latest song hits are indeed a joy, especially "Love Will Come Back" and "The Love Trail." Both of these numbers have been specially written for Mr. Pearson and are not to be heard on the stage anywhere else apart from The Originals.

The magnificent quartette is indeed "Stepping Out." Two of their best offerings are "Rolling Down to Rio" and "Come Sing to Me," in which the harmony effects are artistically obtained. Bertram Langley, Jerry Brayford, Thomas Dunn and Gus McKinnon comprise this latter four; Norman Blume, another newcomer, is delightfully funny, and his characterization of the frolicsome curate is particularly rich. While the producers of the new show are fortunate in having secured such excellent talent for "Stepping Out," which is different from all the rest of the Soldier Revues.

The box office opens Wednesday morning.

AT THE ROYAL

"ROARING RAILS," THRILLER OF RAILROAD LIFE AT ROYAL.

When it comes to real thrills and romance the screen can offer nothing better than a good railroad drama, and "Roaring Rails" is said to be the best one released to date.

Harry Carey, Edith Roberts, Frankie Darro and a competent cast have turned out a thriller that will satisfy everybody who sees it.

Our story starts in France at the Battle of Chateau-Thierry where Bill Benson Carey saves a little boys life and adopts him—then to America, where the fun, and thrills, start. The climax in which Carey drives a locomotive through a forest fire is exceptionally realistic and well handled.

BIG LILLIAN GISH FILM, "THE WHITE SISTER," COMING.

Special Inspiration-Metro Production has been acclaimed by Critics Triumph for Star—Favorite of Many Big Successes said to Reach New Heights—Was Filmed in Italy—Scenes taken on Exact Locales of F. Marion Crawford Story.

"The White Sister," the greatest triumph of Lilian Gish's career, will have its premiere at the Royal Theatre on Thursday.

"The White Sister," which is an Inspiration production released by Metro has been acclaimed one of the most significant films ever made. The story was taken from the famous novel by F. Marion Crawford, and screened entirely in Italy and northern Africa.

Rome, Naples, Sorrento, Tivoli and even Mount Vesuvius were some of the 'locations' used, and the result according to critics in the larger cities where the picture has played as a two dollar attraction is the most beautiful production yet made.

Besides Miss Gish to interpret the thrilling story, the cast includes Ronald Colman, a newcomer to the screen, who has scored a sensational success; J. Barney Sherry, a motion picture pioneer; Gail Kane, heroine of many Broadway successes, and a thousand others drawn from the ranks of European players.

"The White Sister" tells the story of Angela Chiarmonte, daughter of an Italian prince, who is made penniless because of an intrigue of her older sister. The only thing left to sustain her is her love for Captain Giovanni Severi of the Italian army.

For a time she is happy but he is called to Africa on a military expedition and Angela is left to take up the life of a governess. Then she receives word that he has been killed by the Arabs. Stunned by the blow, Angela is driven frantic, and in order to find some peace of mind and a definite place in life she takes the vows as a nun.

Shortly after this Giovanni, who has merely been held prisoner by the Arabs, escapes and returns to Rome. How Sister Angela solves the problem of choosing between her great earthly love and her heavenly vows, supplies the dramatic situation that leads up to the powerful climax.

"The White Sister" has been called the artistic triumph of the present film season. Miss Gish has never appeared to better advantage, and her strained conception of the difficult role of Sister Angela stands at the top of her many famous characterizations. Those who recall her "In The Birth of a Nation," "Way Down East," "Hearts of the World," and "Orphans of the Storm," will it is promised, be delighted still further by her versatility and the depth of her playing in her latest effort.

The picture was directed by Henry King, who achieved distinction as the director of Richard Barthelmess in that star's greatest successes, including "Tol'able David," which won the 1921 photoplay medal as the best picture of the season.

"The White Sister," a Henry King production, is a Metro release made by Inspiration Pictures, of which Charles H. Duell, Jr., is president.

AT THE REGENT

FOX PICTURE "DANTES INFERNO" CAUSES RUN ON LIBRARIES

Everybody Anxious to "Brush Up" or Read Famous Allegory Before Film Comes.

Since the announcement by the Regent Theatre that the Fox production of "Dante's Inferno" has been booked for a run beginning today, greatest interest has been aroused here abouts in the celebrated allegory with which his name is associated in the minds of everyone who has a knowledge of classic literature. The public library reports that the book is in constant demand by people wishing to refresh their memories upon the famous poem, or to read it for the first time, before seeing the picture.

The poem "Inferno" is one of three which form what is known as the Divine Comedy. The other two poems, "Purgatory" and "Paradise," are not concerned in the Fox picture.

"Inferno" narrates an imaginary journey made by Dante through hell. At the outset he finds himself lost within a fearful forest, where he encounters three wild beasts. Fearing the monsters will devour him, he looks about for help, and before him appears the spirit of the ancient Roman poet Virgil who has been summoned from punishment in Purgatroy by Beatrice to lead Dante on his perilous way through the terrors of the nether regions. Beatrice has taken this means to prevent the man who had loved her in youth from straying from the path of righteousness.

After crossing the black river, Acheron, ferried over by the aged boatman, Charon, the two poets find themselves at the door of Hell, over the door of which is the inscription, "All Hope abandon, ye who enter here."

Here the journey begins, and Dante recounts in thrilling detail his awesome trip through all the circles of the nether world, where he encounters men whom he has known in life or who were familiar in history, and describes their punishment and for what sins they were suffering eternal torment.

Naturally it was impossible to bring to the screen every scene in the "Inefrno," but a wise selection was made of those which lend themselves best to the art of the motion camera. The picture is said to be most pleasing to those patrons of pictures who resent seeing their favorite pieces of literature mutilated in transition from type to screen. A modern story cleverly interwoven with the Inferno picturization gives the entire production just the right balance, it is said. The modern story was written by Cyrus Woods and the adaptation of the whole is the work of Edmund Goulding.

"ZEEBRUGGE" EXACTLY AS PRESENTED TO THE KING AND QUEEN

All heroes—"Zeebrugge" is, simply and in three words, a great film. The producers have splendidly refused to introduce drama; yet it is intensely inherently dramatic.

There is no handsome "naval officer" striking heroic attitudes; no round-eyed heroine. There is no sob-stuff—except a sob of pride in the glory of it all.

The printed page can never give complete comprehension of what the bottling up of Zeebrugge meant. The all-seeing eye of the moving picture camera explains it all, reveals it all.

The glorious "mutiny"—First there are scenes of the havoc wrought by the German submarine pirates (actual films of the events captured during the war from a German submarine).

I should have heard the excited burst of applause on the first night at the Marble Arch Pavilion when the British destroyers dash to the scene of a torpedoing.

Then we see the planning and preparing of the attempt to bottle the pirates in their lair, the assembling of the ships, the setting out, that glorious "Mutiny," the disappearance of the surplus crews when the time came for them to return and "Miss

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

Some extracts from the pen of a writer on "The Old-Time Religion". "It is good to believe in the old-time religion, provided you go far enough back."

"For some benighted souls the phrase, 'Old-Time Religion' embraces the idea of the old-time hell. They listen to the fervid evangelist as he proclaims his own loyalty to the ancient landmark. He has not departed from the letter of Scripture. The critics are wolves in sheep's clothing. They are destroying the ancient faith. Then, with great fervour, he tells his spell-bound audience that he still believes in the old-time hell.

"One has seen the smug, complacent satisfaction on the faces of the 'Unco Guid,' the self-righteous, as they rolled this sweet morsel under their tongue. It made them feel good. They repeated their 'amens' with smiling faces. It was so easy to consign millions, just as good as themselves, to endless torture, men and women they are meeting every day."

And these same people try to persuade themselves that this gruesome doctrine of endless torture can be reconciled with the truth that "God is love." But verily you cannot reconcile good and evil, darkness and light, hate and love. Deity is either a monster taking pleasure in tormenting his creature or else "God is love." But you cannot have both in one.

One wonders how such a blasphemous doctrine ever became current in the world. It is a venerable lie: though it once passed for truth.

One said that one of the joys of the blessed was to watch the torments of the damned. Such a burlesque of truth puts God on a lower level than the gods of the heathen. With almighty power, He is supposed to torture millions of creatures (for whose being He is responsible) to all eternity. Infinite strength is used not to save, but to destroy the puny creature of a day, helpless and powerless to defend themselves. It is a monstrous slander on the character of God."

The above is from the pen of a Rev. who lives not many miles from our city. We rejoice that some of his class are not only seeing truth, but are brave enough to tell it out. —M. T. Butcher. 1d-82-10080

PROPOSED TAX ON SOFT DRINKS IS PROTESTED

Large Deputation Waited on Attorney General to Lodge Protest.

FROM MANY CITIES.

150 Manufacturers Represented, But No Relief Can Be Promised.

TORONTO, April 6 (Canadian Press). — Protesting vigorously against the Government's proposed imposition of a beverage tax on carbonated drinks, some 150 manufacturers, headed by J. M. Macintosh, secretary of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, waited on Hon. W. F. Nickle this morning in the absence of Col. W. H. Price who is in Kingston. The deputation was representative of manufacturers in Toronto, Guelph, Hamilton, Owen Sound, Parry Sound, Port Hope, Orillia, North Bay, Niagara Falls and Oshawa.

H. C. Wilson, of Toronto, in protesing against the tax pointed out that the beverages named in the bill did not come, in his opinion, within the luxury taxes. They were often prescribed by doctors in cases of illness and had a high food value. He expressed the fear that the sale of 4.4 beer would cut a wide swath into the soft drink business and that condition, added to which would be the tax, would make it impossible to carry on business.

Mr. Nickle, in reply, said that the province could not keep going on as it had during the past few years, but must balance its budget. "Revenue must come from somewhere, so that we can balance our budget," he said. He did not agree that everything could be taxed equally. He said that he would be pleased to place the representations of the deputation before the Provincial Treasurer.

FINE ADDRESS TO ROTARIANS COMPENSATION

R. B. Morley, General Manager of Industrial Accident Prevention Association, the Speaker.

REDUCE ACCIDENTS.

Act Has Been a Blessing to Hundreds of People in Ontario.

A most interesting expositon of the Workmen's Compensation Act and an eloquent plea for greater interest in the question of accident prevention was given at to-day's luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club to-day by Rotarian R. B. Morley, of Toronto, the general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

The speaker, who was introduced by Rotarian John Crane, said that there are still men who declare that the Workmen's Compensation Act was a mistake, that it is paternalistic and that it encourages malingering. But on the other hand there are hundreds of thousands who have felt the benefit of compensation and whose affliction has been alleviated by the Act.

Mr. Morley's address was so full of information and interest both to the employer and the employee that The Examiner will publish it in full to-morrow, believing it to be of great public importance.

The thanks of Rotary was extended to the speaker, on motion of Rotarian Geo. C. MacDonald, who expressed the appreciation of the members to Rotarian Morley for his pithy and informative address.

At to-day's meeting Rotarian V. J. McElderry, on behalf of the club, presented Past President J. W. McDermid with a Rotary pin, referring appreciatively to the services rendered by the recipient.

In expressing his thanks, Past President McDermid asked that the thanks of Rotary be extended to Rotarian J. M. McHardie for his good work as secretary during the past two years.

PRIVY COUNCIL TO SETTLE WILL CASE

Relatives Protest Leaving of $400,000 to Servants and Charity.

TORONTO, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—The first appelate Divisional Court has reversed the decison of Mr. Justice Orde in an action brought in connection with the will of William Henry Hill, an aged and wealthy Toronto man, who died on January 30, 1923, leaving an estate of the estimated value of $400,000.

His Lordship found the signature to the document was a forgery, but the higher court in its judgment, handed down to-day, sustained the will which bequeathes $50,000 to Ross Ormerod, the testator's solicitor; $10,000 to his chauffeur, Joseph E. Hunter; $100,000 towards the establishment of a hospital in the east end of the city; the residue of his estate, valued at nearly $200,000, being left to his physician, Dr. Kenneth Campbell. Relatives of the deceased, who were beneficiaries under alleged former wills, attacked the last will on grounds of undue influence and lack of testamentary capacity and that the signature was a forgery.

Wm. Douglas, counsel for one of the protesting parties, intimated that the case would be carried to the Privy Council.

NOBODY INJURED.

The open season for automobile accidents has commenced. Over the week end there were three accidents. Last night at 8.15 two cars were going the same direction on Hunter street and one tried to pass the other. A car going the opposite direction came along and all three cars were smashed. This morning at 8.30 Louis Florence was coming east on Charlotte street past the clinic when Doctor Cameron was turning out to go east and the two cars collided. At 9.30 J. P. Francis of R.R. No. 6, Cobourg, was driving east on Charlotte steet near Rubidge street with Eric Kimball, of Harwood, when a bicyclist riding about three feet ahead of them turned out suddenly. The car struck the front wheel of the bicycle and demolished it. As far as is known the rider was unhurt.

THREE-WAY SPLIT IN COUNCIL LOST DAYLIGHT SAVING PLANS IN FACE OF PETITION BY 2,700

KILLED OUTRIGHT

Gallery of Sixty Attracted by Anticipated Battle on Measure.

Daylight Saving was sunk without a trace at 12.30 this morning, after a five-hour session of the City Council, and the Aldermen congratulated themselves on their homeward ways by commenting that under Summer time would would then be 1.30 instead of only half an hour past midnight. Council divided itself into three distinct groups on the measure—three members voting for Daylight Saving, three against, and three to refer it to committee.

If the three who voted for Daylight Saving had supported the amendment to send it to committee they would have been nearer their aim than now. The vote was:

For Daylight Saving—Aldermen Green, Phelan, and Turner.
To refer it to committee—Aldermen Denne, McIntyre and Jones.
Against Daylight Saving.—Aldermen Fife, Meyers and Crowe.

If Alderman Greene, Phelan, and Turner had voted for the amendment, they would have rescued the measure from extinction, and would have had an opportunity to use their persuasive powers on the three uncertain ones and obtain more representation to add to the 2,700 names appended to petitions presented from the factories.

If the proposal did no other service it at least popularized the Council Chamber for the evening, over sixty spectators occupying the gallery for the greater part of the session. The audience gradually dwindled until at the close there were only eight enthusiasts on one side or the other.

Deputation Present.

Dr. A. W. McPherson introduced the deputation urging Daylight Saving, composed of the following:

Dr. A. W. McPherson, Chairman. R. E. Layfield, representing Canadian General Electric Company, Limited. G. A. MacDonald, representing Quaker Oats Company; J. H. Vernor, representing Westclox; R. Abbott, representing Raybestos. R. Carmen, representing Ontario Marble Company. W. Oke, representing Merchants. Mrs. A. Stevenson, representing Women in Favor. Mrs. F. D. Kerr, representing Women's Canadian Club. J. I. Allen, representing Insurance Underwriters and Kiwanis. R. Dobbin, representing Rotarian in Favor. S. W. Whatley, representing G.W.V.A. H. McFadden and G. Matthews, representing Baseball. G. R. Langley, representing Cricket. F. Bowness, representing Tennis. H. A. Cranfield and P. Manning.

BELFAST PARADE FLIES RED FLAGS

Socialists Celebrate Election of All Three of Their Candidates.

BELFAST, April 7 — With red flags flying, a triumphal procession which until recently would have caused a riot, swept through the heart of the city Monday celebrating the victory of three Socialist candidates for the Ulster Parliament. Only three Socialist candidates were put forward, and all were elected. With only Tyrone to be heard from the new Ulster House will consist of 32 Unionists, 10 Nationalists, two Republicans, four Independents, three Labor and one member from the Tenent party.

Seven official Unionists failed for re-election in Belfast. Robert Megan, Parliamentary secretary of the Ulster Home Ministry, and Harry Burn, the Government's junior whip, were defeated. The Red flag procession was for William McMullen, who was elected from West Belfast. One Nationalist nominee, John Nugent, failed in Armagh. Of the six Republicans, Eamon de Valera, advocate of the Irish Republic, and Eamon Donnelly, were elected.

The almost completed Ulster returns show that Premier Craig will have the county votes solidly behind him but for the first time he will have to face vigorous, unfriendly criticism from the Socialists, and from the Irish Republicans, who will take their seats in the Ulster Parliament for the first time.

HANCOCK TAKES CHAIR VACATED BY W. STOCKER

Appointment Made by City Council Last Night—Willing to Accept.

A NEW TAX

Alderman Fife Would Charge for Gasoline Station Privilege on Street.

W. J. Hancock was last night appointed Alderman to succeed Walter Stocker who resigned to accept the position of market clerk. The by-law was introduced by Alderman Denne and the nomination of Mr. Hancock was seconded by Alderman Meyers, the former assuring the Council that Mr. Hancock is willing to accept the position. The by-law passed unanimously.

Alderman Stocker's resignation had previously been accepted on motion of Aldermen Denne and Jones, and a motion proposed later by Aldermen Turner and Phelan conveyed the thanks of the City Council to the retiring member for the manner in which he had discharged his duties as Alderman of the city.

No Common Lights

F. T. Tuggey asked for attention to Waterford Street section in the matter of lighting, in view of building going on. "I'm prepared to spend my money and put houses there that will be a credit to the city. We don't want common lights; give us something good."

His Worship assured Mr. Tuggey his request would be attended to.

Futile Objection

Alderman Crowe won the approval of some of the spectators by leading an attack on the proposal to reinstate the Judge's honorarium of $300. There was no seconder to his objection.

ROBINS LAY ON GAME PRESERVE

Jack Miner Finds Four Nests with Eggs in Them.

A RECORD DATE.

KINGSVILLE, Ont., April 7 (By Canadian Press).—Jack Miner last week found four robins nests on his bird Sanctuary each with eggs. This according to the Naturalists statement was three weeks earlier than other record set in this way on the Miner game preserve. Besides the four nests which were found several other robins were seen making their nests. He says the robins starting to nest so early is a sure indication these "early birds" will raise three families this year. Several morning doves nests were found but this is not unusual for this species of bird, as young doves were found last April 14th.

Along the lake shore in front of Kingsville the flock of whistling Swans are continually increased in number. During the week, the flock has increased from 8, to 2,000 by actual count. Several bird lovers and authorities from New York City Boston and Pittsburg are visiting the towns these days to see the swans and geese which are in countless numbers on the bird Sanctuary.

MARRIES CHORUS GIRL IN UNDERTAKING SHOP

"Kid Boots" Chorus Enlivened Midnight Nuptials.

BOSTON, April 7.—When Harlan A. Wallace of New York left a train at the South Station he was immediately surrounded by the chorus of the "Kid Boots" company, among whom was his financee, Miss Carolyn Smith.

To the accompaniment of shrieks of laughter all boarded a fleet of taxicabs and were driven to Cambridge, where, as the clock was striking the midnight hour Monday, the couple were married in his undertaking rooms by Joseph Andrews, a Justice of the Peace.

Five days ago, accompanied by his fiancee, Wallace went to Boston City Hall seeking marriage. He asked that the law requiring that five days shall elapse after a marriage license has been issued before the ceremony takes place be waived. His request was refused and Miss Smith told Wallace waiting five days would mean waiting forever.

Friday, however, she changed her mind and wired him her consent. Wallace decided to take no further chances.

HAIG'S ARRIVAL SUNDAY, JUNE 28

Will Preside at Convention of British Empire Service League.

DATE ADVANCED

OTTAWA, April 7. — (Canadian Press).—A change in the date of the visit to Canada of Field Marshal Haig is proposed in a cablegram received Monday by the Dominion Command of the G.W.V.A. from the London headquarters of the British Empire Service League. With the previous arrangements it was found that the Governor-General, Lord Byng could not be at Ottawa for the official welcome, so it is now proposed to advance the date of Haig's arrival to Sunday, June 28th, instead of July 19th, so that His Excellency may be present.

Under the new arrangement the conference of the British Empire Service League will open in Ottawa on June 29th, continuing for three days, after which the Field Marshal and Countess Haig, their danghter, Lady Alexandria, and party will make a brief tour of Canada, going west to Winnipeg. On the return journey they will stop at Lake-of-Bays, Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, re-embarking for England after a few days in Montreal. The visit in Canada will require about three weeks.

Another reason for the change of date is that many of the delegates representing veterans' organizations in all parts of the Empire have asked for the earlier meeting of the League conference. Field Marshal Haig is Grand President of the British Empire Service League.

The League conference is to be preceded by a Dominion convention of the G.W.V.A., the delegates from all parts of Canada participating in the welcome to the former Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in France and to the Empire delegates.

TWO MURDERED IN DRUG STORE IN BELLEVILLE

Clayton McWilliams and John McGie Were Killed Instantly By Shots.

SLAYER WAS VET.

Arthur Moon Fired Three Times, Two Bullets Taking Effect.

BELLEVILLE, April 7 (Canadian Press)—Clayton McWilliams, a drug store clerk, aged 26 years, and his friend, John McGie, 23 years, both of Belleville, were shot dead at ten o'clock last night in the drug store of Wm. Lattimer, 234 Front St., and Arthur Moon, 35 years, was taken into custody later by the police charged with the shooting. McWilliams was on duty and the other young man was talking to him at the time of the shooting. Both were shot through the left breast and died almost instantly. The only other person in the store was Miss Barlow, a girl of about 18, who is clerk at the refreshment counter.

Moon, when taken into custody, was in his apartments above a bank a short distance away upon the opposite side of the street. He is a married man with two children but it is alleged he had been separated from is wife since February. He is a returned soldier. No motive for the crime could be learned. Clayton McWilliams is a son of Norman McWilliams. John McGie was the son of Arthur McGie, a tailor, and was employed in the Wilson Foundry as clerk. Both families are well known and highly regarded in Belleville. Moon was seen by a number of citizens to cross the street toward the drug store. On entering, Moon fired three shots, two taking deadly effect. He then walked out and calmly returned to his apartment. He made no attempt at resistance when arrested and was lodged in the local jail.

Moon has been a resident of Belleville since boyhood apart from his military service overseas. He has been employed by the local Merchants Bank as messenger. It is stated that Moon had not shown any signs of mental derangement although he was known to have brooded over his estrangement from his wife.

The inquest was opened late last night by Coroner Dr. Boyce.

Still a Mystery.

The motive which prompted the shooting to death of Clayton McWilliams and John Cameron McGie is still somewhat of a mystery.

Local police officials state that evidence will be brought out later which will make clear the reason for the shooting and the events which preceded the tragedy. Moon opened his attack on McWilliams and it is believed McGie was an innocent victim of the shooting. After McWilliams fell, McGie advanced in an attempt to disarm the assailant, and was immediately shot down.

Moon was formally arraigned in police court this morning on two separate charges of murder and was remanded for a week. He made no plea. The inquest opened last night and has been adjourned until Monday.

FISH SWIMS ON BACK.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Only one known species of fish can swim on its back. It is called the globe fish and is found in tropical waters. The skin on the underside is loose and can be filled with air at will, thus causing it to turn over while swimming.

FRENCH CRISIS OVER FINANCES MAY COME SOON

Herriot Cabinet Divided on Question of Methods to be Applied.

LEVY OR LOAN

The Premier May Dissolve the Chamber to Control Consequent Elections.

PARIS, April 7. — (Canadian Press).—A French Cabinet crisis cannot be avoided more than a week longer, political observers predicted last night, because of the conflict raging within the Herriot Cabinet over methods for a general overhauling of French finances.

Semi-official information is that the new Minister of Finance, M. De Monzie, with the approval of the Government, intends to ask the Chamber of Deputies to authorize the issue of four billion francs more paper money. Besides the issue of increasing circulation, the Ministers are declared to be divided as to whether the Government should decide upon a straight capital levy or a forced loan.

While the Cabinet yesterday tried to settle the clash between M. De Monzie and Premier Herriot on the formula by which it is proposed to ask the French people to hand over ten per cent. of their fortunes to the State, Parliamentary prophets were busy picking out future Ministers to succeed the present Government. De Monzie's courageous attitude in locking horns with Premier Herriot at the outset of his career as Finance Minister has made him a conspicuous candidate for the Premiership in these forecasts. Senator Henry De Jouvenel and Senator De Kerguezec are mentioned as being sure of portfolios in the new combination.

May Force Election.

In the Chamber lobbies, however, there are insistent reports that the Herriot Government will force a dissolution of the Chamber while it is still in power, and that the aspirants for Minister honors, therefore, will have to wait for the results of a new election. The Herriot Coalition, according to most of the predictions, sees the dissolution coming and prefers that the election be presided over by the present Government, if the balloting must be done this year.

The idea of dissolution of the Chamber is not popular in France because the only time it ever was resorted to under the third Republic was when President MacMahon attempted to keep the monarchist Government in power after a popular election had sent a Republican majority to Parliament. Rather than give in to the Chamber, which refused to have anything to do with the Royalist Government, President MacMahon, acting with the Senate, dissolved the Lower House and issued a decree for a new election.

The exeriment proved disastrous to the President, whose resignation followed soon after the new elections. Consequently no one since has been tempted to resort to the extremity of dissolution. Prosects of the Senate and the Chamber agreeing on the vital questions now before the Parliament are regarded as very small though, and dissolution is the only remedy for the deadlock that has been proposed thus far.

May Be Forced Loan.

Forecasts of the form the capital levy will take differ. Some say that after voluntary contributions are received the levy will be applied forcibly to those who have not subscribed. Others assert that if the voluntary system is found not to yield a

BEAUTY PARLOR IS NOT DEEMED BARBER SHOP

Judge Rejects Suit of Saskatoon "Tonsorial Artists."

SASKATOON, Sask., April — A beauty parlor is not a barber shop, Magistrate F. M. Brown, decided in a verdict handed down on Monday in an action brought by the Master Barbers' Association against one of its members, and a woman hairdresser who kept their beauty parlor open after 6 p.m. for the treatment of women who wanted their hair bobbed.

The association claimed this was in contravention of a city bylaw defining the hours at which barber shops must close, but was not sustained.

TRADE UNIONS WANT SOVIETS

British Initiative Seeks to Affiliate Russians With International Federation.

LABOR APPROVES

LONDON, April 7. — The Russian trade union delegation headed by M. Tomsky, which arrived in England late in March, yesterday began a conference with delegates of British trades unions in an endeavor to devise means for affiliation with the Amsterdam international federation of trade unions.

The initiative in the conference emanated from the British side, the council of the British trades unions acting in a mediatory capacity with a view to finding a road to international unity.

The council of the Amsterdam international federation last February decided if the Russian unions were anxious for unity they must apply for affiliation to Amsterdam. This they refused to do, because they declared that it would involve their secession from the Russian Red International and the abandonment of Communist principles. The action of the British unions in thus trying to reconcile the conflicting interests is viewed here with great suspicion and antagonism by all the newspapers except the labor press.

Monday's meeting was purely preliminary. M. Tomsky outlined his views which did not seem from the tenor of his remarks to promise much success to the conference, which continued to-day.

SPRING REVEALED TRAGEDY OF WINTER

Prospector's Body Found With Rifle Beside It on Trail.

PARRY SOUND, April 7 — The body of Chas. Burns, prospector, of Key Junction, who has been missing since December tenth was found Sunday by Wade Mason, section man at Naiscoot. The remains were found lying on what is known as the old Parry Sound road now only a trail about one half mile from the C.P.R. track between the Feldspar mine, which Burns was opening up last fall, and his shack. Mason immediatey notified the provincial police here and constables Knight and Purvis, accompanied by two sons of the deceased, Mr. White, mining promoter and D. Logan left at midnight for Naiscoot. They returned Monday morning bringing the body to Parry Sound where it was viewed by Coroner Limbert who decided that an inquest was unnecessary. It is evident that deceased came to his death by the accidental discharge of his shot gun which was found lying by his side. The efforts of his relatives and also of a search party under the direction of the provincial police in January had proved futile on account of the deep snow.

No Division on Second Reading, Although Some Opposition Was Expressed.

RAISED TO $2,000

Drugless Healers Are Denied the Right to Use Title of Doctor.

TORONTO, April 7.—(Canadian Press). — Members of Ontario's Legislature Monday afternoon gave second reading to a bill providing a $600 increase in salary for themselves and $2,000 increase in the salary of Cabinet Ministers. There was some opposition from the Progressives, but they did not divide the House on the question. Second reading was also given a bill to provide for township boards of education instead of sectional boards. This bill will be withdrawn as the Premier intends that the country should have a chance to discuss the matter. If there is a popular demand it will come up at some future session as a permanent piece of legislation.

Second reading was also given the bill to amend the Medical Act, where by drugless healers come under a board for regulation, and providing that physicians and surgeons are the only ones entitled to the term "Doctor." The Premier stated just before the opening of the House that it was not yet time to make any announcement on the extension of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway into the Rouyn and the misunderstanding with the Province of Quebec.

In moving second reading of the bill to increase the salaries of Cabinet Ministers from $6,000 to $8,000, the Premier said salaries were paid as follows in the other provinces: Alberta, $6,000; Manitoba, $5,400; Quebec, $6,000; Nova Scotia, $5,000. The work of an Ontario Minister, he said, was much more difficult than of the work of the Cabinets in other provinces. He said that announcement that salaries were to be increased had been received with a minimum of criticism. He pointed out that a Minister must give his whole time to the public work and all were making a sacrifice in their personal professions or businesses.

Right Thing at Wrong Time.

Manning Doherty (Progressive) said he believed that here was a case where the Government was doing the right thing at the wrong time. He thought that the present, when money was scarce and there was business depression and much unemployment, was no time to increase governmental salaries. "I believe that it is unwise at the present time, although it can be justified in argument," said Mr. Doherty.

Peter Heenan (Labor) said he would support the bill and would move in committee that the Prime Minister also be given an increase.

Sam. Clark (Liberal) said he had no doubt that the move would appeal to some people as a steal or a raid on the treasury. "If a man is worth being in this Legislature at all he is worth $2,000 a year," said Mr. Clark. "There should be no politics played with this matter and every member of the House should be above it. If anybody votes against the increase and then takes it he is a coward. I think it is a good investment. There is no mem-

NO PROTECTION FOR EAST CITY FROM GASOLINE AND OIL TANKS DECIDED AFTER WORDY WARFARE

Bylaw Introduced by Alderman Phelan Defeated by Big Majority.

LONG DISCUSSION

Council Refuses to Pass Law Limiting Amount of Gasoline.

Another attempt to meet the wishes of East City residents by preventing the erecion in their midst of large capacity gasoline and oil tanks was voted down by the City Council last night after a lengthy and at times heated discussion. The question was raised by Alderman Nagle Phelan, who sprung a surprise in the form of a by-law designed to limit the storage of gasoline in the fire limits or in the section which the British American Oil Company proposes to use as a storage base.

The bounds of this section just touches the property of the Canadian Oil Company, without including it, and the legislation proposed was frowned upon by Mayor Turner and others as discriminatory. The bylaw was voted down in committee by seven to two.

Alderman Phelan presented a list of 51 gasoline tanks which had exploded, putting forward the danger as a pressing reason for the exclusion of the proposed East City tanks from a residential district. His by-law provided that no tank shall be built to hold more than 500 gallons of gasoline within an area of 100 feet of a residence within the fire limits of the city, and also within the area on which the new tanks are in process of construction.

The Mayor thought that this was a spite bylaw to shut out the British American Company and permit the Canadian Oil Company to continue in business just over the line.

Alderman Phelan said that, to be candid, the idea was to shut out the British American Oil Co., and he wanted to protect the people of East City.

He characterized the stand of the company as arbitrary, and said that they had not stopped work to permit of an investigation.

Mayor Turner said the council had the responsibility and it could not be shifted to the oil company.

"I don't think it's proper legislation or fair legislation," the Mayor said.

Alderman Denne asked "for the information of East Peterboro," who passed on the site?

Mayor Turner said he had inspected the site and saw that something advantageous to the appearance of the place was proposed. There was no drawback from the City Engineer's standpoint or the Underwriters. The motion was regularly proposed and seconded.

"There was no use in saying the company was arbitrary. We might as well shoulder the responsibility."

Bylaw Opposed.

Alderman Denne opposed the by-law, as did Alderman Greene, saying the measure should not be passed in its form as presented. The latter said that it appears absurd that this is the only location suitable for the company. He submitted that if the location had not been there the company would have found another site. He had noticed that the City Solicitor had said he had not given the bylaw much thought, and he did not think the council should be asked to vote on it.

Alderman Greene was wiling to stand by the council's previous decision although he did not think East Peterboro residents were being treated as members of the council would like to be treated.

Alderman McIntyre thought it nothing but right to pass the bylaw, because the company did not think of the council when it "got it into a hole."

Alderman Denne: "You tendered on it, didn't you?"

Alderman McIntyre: "Yes; but I didn't get the contract. I made sure I wouldn't get it after I learned the feeling of the people of East City."

Alderman Crowe said that he had not paid much attention to the application when it went through. "I'm committed to stand by the city's resolution because I voted for it. I made a mistake, and I admit it. But if you're going to give it to one give it to all, and that means figuring out

BANK FORESEES BETTER TIMES

April Letter of Royal Bank Prophesys Favorable Development.

WEST BRIGHT SPOT.

TORONTO, April 7, (Canadian Press). — That there are "better times ahead" is the opinion expressed in the April letter of the Royal Bank of Canada. "In those sections of Canada where unemployment is at its height, where trade is poor, and where prospects seem none too good, this statement would not readily be accepted," the letter says. Yet there have been favorable developments which give hint of better business in 1925.

"The brightest spot in the whole situation lies in the west. Statistics of western wheat deliveries indicate that some upward revision of the 1924 wheat crop estimate will be necessary, a favorable development. The farmers of British Columbia were also fortunate in regard to the prices obtained for crops and fruit, so that the buying power of Canadian Farmers has been measurably improved. The farmers of the Maritime Provinces, however, are confronted by low prices for their apples and potatoes."

"There can be no recovery in the east from the effects of the coal strike for some time, even if the strike is settled in the near future," the letter remarks, "While it is undoubtedly true that there is wide spread unemployment in other parts of the country, recent reports indicate that with the coming of Spring the situation is becoming less acute The coming of Spring is expected to produce sufficient demand for

PROSPEROUS FARMER DROWNED HIMSELF AFTER MURDEROUS ATTACK ON HIS WIFE

Slashed Her Throat With Penknife—Doctor Hopes For Recovery.

IN POOR HEALTH.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 7. — Edward Parker, aged 50, a prosperous farmer at Hillsvale, ten miles from Mount Uniacke, about thirty miles from here, slashed his wife's throat with a pen knife yesterday morning, severing the external jugular vein, and then committed suicide by drowning himself in the Meander River, several hundred yards distant. Mrs. Parker may live.

Parker who has been in poor health for several years, got up at about six o'clock in the morning, apparently in his normal condition, went to his wife's room, and while smoking his pipe, seized his knife, made a dash for Mrs. Parker, and slashed her throat with the knife:

A brief struggle ensued. The other members of the house came to the bed room, only to see Parker escaping by the front door and shouting—

"I have killed my wife. I did it because I loved her so."

The demented man ran across the fields to the Meander River where he jumped in and was drowned. The body was recovered almost immediately.

Dr. James W. Reid, M.P.P., coroner for Hants, after hearing facts of the case, declared an inquest unnecessary. Mrs. Parker is 36 years of age.

The family consists of ten children, the eldest 17 and the youngest an infant of several months.

Independence Petition By Rehoboth Tribesmen

GENEVA, April 7.—(Canadian Press).—The Rehoboth tribesmen, residents of former German Southwest Africa and who recently revolted, have petitioned the League of Nations to make their country a free and independent State. The district is under the mandate of the Union of South Africa, which forwarded the petition of the natives to Geneva.

The petition will be considered at the next meeting of the permanent mandate commission. The Rehoboth tribesmen immigrated into the district under the mandate from points further south and have found difficulty in fulfilling the mandate conditions imposed by the Union of South Africa.

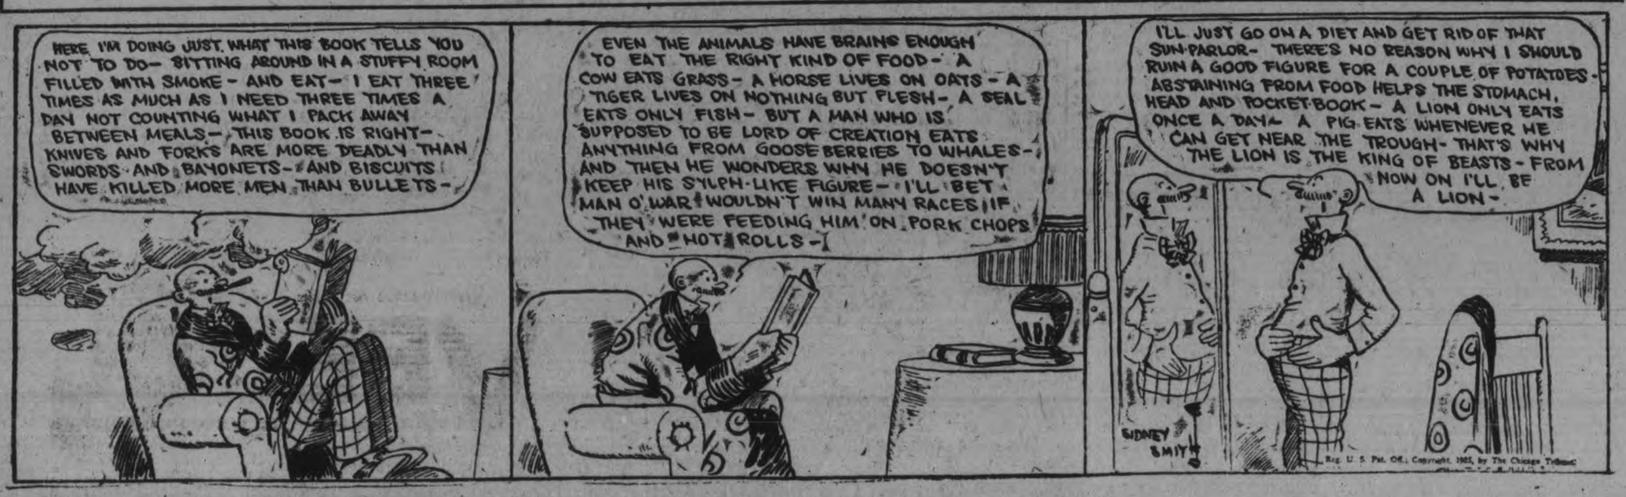
THE GUMPS—WE WHO ARE ABOUT TO DIET SALUTE YOU



CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL WILL CONSIDER APPOINTING A NEW CONSTABLE TO ASSIST CHIEF

Chief Claims to be on Duty Day and Night and Wants Help.

SPUR LINE TO GO.

C.N.R. Will Tear Up Track and Sell Property to the Town.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 7. — John Brown, formerly of the Peterboro police force, who has been chief of police here since the beginning of the year, appeared before the Town Council last night and asked for the appointment of an assistant, to do duty at night, so as to enable the Chief to devote all his time to day work. The Chief stated that it was under present circumstances impossible for him to give the necessary attention to the numerous complaints that came in from citizens. Strangers came into town, did business and got away, without contributing anything to the town's revenue. Communications are frequently received from the police of other towns and villages asking him to keep a lookout for persons who are wanted. Motor traffic is increasing, and that is something that must be looked after. In half jocular vein the Chief opined that when the new 4.4 beer is put on sale the duties of the police will likely be increased. Very often the Chief, who now goes off duty at 6 a.m. is no sooner asleep, than he is aroused to listen to some complaint.

Campbellford, the Chief said, is about the only town of its size in Ontario with only one police officer. Cobourg, somewhat larger, perhaps, has three assistant constables, one provincial officer, and two license inspectors.

"If you were given a night man," asked Reeve Davidson, "would you be willing to take over new duties, such as the collection of dog tax and the poll tax?"

The Chief replied that he would, these duties being now discharged by a special officer who also enforces the sanitary bylaws.

Councillor Moore thought that while there was too much work for one man there was scarcely enough for two, but the Chief replied that he could convince him on that point, if he would go around with him for a time.

As this is a question which it was felt should be settled before the next regular meeting, the police committee, with Councillor Moore added, was instructed to look into the matter after which a special meeting of the council will be called, probably this week.

The Spur Line.

The C.N.R. has finally been heard from with regard to the disposition of the spur line over which no trains have run for years and which has proved anything but an ornament to the town. The company offers to give the town a quit claim deed of the market square and to tear up the spur track. The property which the company owns between Margaret St. and the river is offered for sale to the municipality.

It was decided to write the C.N.R. officials asking the price of this property and also inquiring as to how much of the spur line is to be torn up.

No Oiling Machinery Wanted.

Two years ago council had the streets oiled by modern machinery, but the experiment did not prove satisfactory, being much more expensive than the old method. An offer to try the machine system again was tabled on motion of Reeve Davidson and Councillor Abernethy and the same fate was meted out to an offer to sell the town a new road surface material, Councillors Moore and Southworth making the motion.

Milk By-Law Improved.

The milk by-law discussed at the last meeting has since been approved by the Minister of Agriculture, and last night it was put through its third reading. A number of copies will be printed and circulated for the information of the public.

Celebration May 25th.

It was decided to have the official celebration of Victoria Day held on Monday, May 25, the day selected by the Seymour Agricultural Society. Capt. Fisher of the Salvation Army was given permission to hold a tag day on that date.

More Lights Needed.

S. J. Dolman asked that Rear Street, between Bridge and River Streets, be lighted. The thoroughfare is now so dark, he said, the women are afraid to walk on it after dark.

Councillor Moore said a light was needed at the corner of Front and Second, and Joseph Poulton claimed as much for the vicinity of St. Mary's Church sheds.

Engineer Scott of the Water and Light Commission will be asked to report on these matters.

Wants Sidewalks Extended.

Henry Redden, ex-councilor, has recently completed, in different parts of the town, two new houses. One is 200 and the other about 150 feet beyond the sidewalk, and he asked that the walks be extended to his properties. He offered to put these down himself, guaranteeing a satisfactory job, for 20 cents a foot, and to lay water pipes and sewers if the Council would furnish the required pipe.

These questions will be disposed of by the Roads and Bridges Committee.

Mr. Bidgood's Lumber.

Mayor Meyers, Councillors Cole and Moore will look into the claim of W. Bidgood for $50 for lumber which, he asserts, was taken without his consent by the street workmen engaged in sewer building. The claim was presented at the March meeting, but last night Chairman Cole of the Roads and Bridges Committee reported against it. Mr. Bidgood, however, put up so vigorous a plea that it was decided to give him another chance.

Road Roller Discussion.

The Sawyers-Massey offered to supply the town with a road roller, stone crusher and scarifier at a cost of $9,600. A local tender, that of F. C. Birmingham, for rebuilt machines of these types, was received, Mr. Birmingham's figure being $4,600.

There was considerable discussion on this subject, and neither offer was accepted. Reeve Davidson thought it would not be good policy to invest in such machinery if the town intends to do any paving. However, he added, there would in any event be plenty of unpaved streets upon which it could be used.

The Roads and Bridges Committee will submit an estimate of how much crushed stone they are likely to use this year before any new machinery is purchased. The town can rent the stone crusher owned by the Seymour Council for $25 a day, and there was some question as to whether this would be better than buying a crusher outright.

Mr. Redden, who owns a crusher, offered to do all this class of work required by the town for $1.30 a yard, furnishing the stone and delivering it to any part of the Corporation. This offer will be considered.

Auditors Paid Off.

The auditors' report for 1924 was reported correct by the Finance Committee and the salaries of these officials were paid. The report shows that the town's total indebtedness is $243,970, but for just how much of this the municipality is really responsible the committee was not prepared to say.

Weekly Half-Holiday.

Has any one spoken to you of having the Council set a weekly half-holiday? asked Reeve Davidson of Mayor Meyers. "Last year some closed on one day, some on another, while a few kept open all the time."

The Mayor said that so far no one had spoken to him, but he had read in Monday's Examiner a highly explanatory article of the law in the case.

All of the members of Council were present last night, with the exception of Deputy Reeve Palliser and Councillor Wiggins.

WHAT COUNCIL DID

Instructed the Police Committee to look into the matter of appointing a night constable to assist Chief Brown.

Decided to celebrate Victoria Day on Monday, May 25th.

Gave Salvation Army permission to hold a Tag Day on that date.

Received two tenders for road roller, stone crusher and scarifier but deferred action until roads and bridges committee makes report.

Took under consideration ex-Councillor Redden's offer to crush and deliver anywhere in the corporation, all the crushed stone required for $1.30 a yard.

Formally engaged William Pearson as band master to succeed, and on the same terms as R. T. Cowell, resigned.

Accepted auditors' report for 1924 and paid salaries of officials.

Received communication from C.N.R., stating that spur track would be torn up and offering to sell town lots now owned by railway company.

Laid on table offer to oil streets by modern machine method.

A. R. M'MASTER WILL VOTE FOR PARTY'S BUDGET

Independent Liberal Not Enthusiastic, But Unwilling to See Government Defeat.

TALKS FREE TRADE.

Progressive Says Farmers of West Are Working To-day at Loss.

OTTAWA, April 7 (Canadian Press).—A. R. McMaster, Liberal member for Brome, announced his intention in the House of Commons Monday to vote for the Budget although not very enthusiastic about it. He realized, he said, that for him to vote against the Budget might mean the defeat of the Government and he did not wish to see the Government defeated.

He further intimated that there were some features of the Budget against which he would probably vote when the resolutions were in committee stage.

Mr. McMaster traced the history of Free Trade in Great Britain and also referred to the application of this policy in other European countries, maintaining that the great trading countries of the world had become such, because they did not adhere to a Protective system. The Conservatives had been calling for Protection. "They are like the Bourbons of old ;they forget nothing, and they learn nothing." Farmers as a whole could not be helped by a Protective tariff. Mr. McMaster quoted statistics and statements in support of his contention that Protection had not benefited the United States' farmers. If this were true in the United States, it was all the more so in Canada.

One who preached the doctrine of Free Trade was sometimes referred to as a theorist, but it was the Protectionist that was the theorist, and not the Free Trader.

A Protectionist argument was that if you could shut out foreign goods, the wage earner would be more prosperous. That was a fallacy. It might help single industries, but never industry as a whole.

Limit Tariff Board.

Coming to what he termed his "practical suggestions," Mr. McMaster said that the tariff board might be useful in getting information, but it should not be allowed to determine policy, that was for the epresentatives of the people. First, it must be determined, whether the country was to have a tariff for revenue, or for Protection. He hoped it would study how revenue could be raised from tariff with the minimum of dislocation to business. One member of any tariff board should be the Dominion statistician, who probably knew more about Canadion industrial conditions than anyone in the country.

One member of the cabinet should give his whole time to the work of immigration. He should realize that Canada was going to have hard times in the next few years unless the population was increased. Canada was still an empty land, waiting to be filled up.

Regarding the railway problem, the Minister of Railways should ask the two great companies to cease useless competition and duplication. Millions of dollars could be saved. Things simply could not be allowed to go along as they were, said Mr. McMaster.

"I am going to vote for this Budget not because I am particularly enthusiastic about it, but to vote against this Budget might mean the defeat of the Government." Mr. McMaster did not want to see the Government defeated. No other Government as this one, had "stuck up for the principle of Canadian nationality" as this one had.

The debate had shown above everything else, that the Conservatives did not appreciate the condition of the country. "They said two years ago that the Progressives were calamity howlers, but when they got in their stride, Alberta was left nowhere."

"Let the Government take courage in both hands, and march forward to reduced duties and it will find itself supported by the vast majority of people of this country."

Farmers Suffer Loss.

James Steedsman (Progressive, Souris) stated that wheat was being raised on the Prairies today at a loss. Some of the factors entering into this were distance from markets by rail and water, expensive system of handling, high interest rates, cost of living, etc. On the first point, that of transportation, Mr. Steedsman declared that the Western agriculturist stood solidly behind the Crow's Nest Pass grain rate, and any attempt to interfere with these rates would meet with strong opposition. He advised suspension of the coastal laws if there should be any discrimination against the Canadian shipper on the Great Lakes. He favored any scheme which would result in lower rates on the ocean without too great cost to the people of Great Britain. Under present conditions, Canadians could not market their cattle profitably in Great Britain.

Mr. Steedsman expressed disappointment in the Budget because it contained so few changes in the tariff. If no harm had been done to industries in Canada by the changes last session, why should there no be further reductions. He advocated reductions in the tariff on food, clothing, footwear, cooking utensils, and heating appliances.

Cut Motor Tariff.

He expressed the hope that the Government would accept the suggestion made some weeks ago in the House for a reduction of the duty on automobiles. This industry, in his opinion, did not require a 35 per cent. Protective duty.

Mr. Steedsman asked that the Government take action during the present session on the question of rural credits.

He was sorry that under the rules of debate, the Speaker was unable to accept the sub-amendment to the Budget of the Progressive leader, Robert Forke, as it expressed his opinion entirely.

Mr. Steedsman could see very little in the amendment of Sir Henry Drayton either for or against it; and announced his intention of voting against the Government.

CAVAN LADIES ASSIST MINERS

Decide to Send $50 at Once For Relief of Nova Scotia Miners.

CAVAN, April 6.—On Sunday evening at a special meeting of the Ladies' Aid, it was decided to at once send fifty dollars to the relief fund for the families of the miners who are on strike in Nova Scotia.

Roads in Good Shape.

The roads are in very good condition for this time of the year. The side roads where drags are not used have some deep ruts.

A few farmers are starting to plough a little, but the majority do not yet find their land fit to go on.

Mr. John Thompson spent a few days of last week in Toronto.

Mr. Fred Matchett went up to Toronto on Tuesday, en route for the West, after spending the past two months visitng his brother, R. Matchett, and other friends.

Messrs. Offa and Thomas Staples, Lifford, visited their brother, F. M. Staples, on Sunday.

The many friends of Mr. T. A. Kelly, who has been so well and favorably known in Cavan and Millbrook, will regret to learn that he has not been so well for the past two weeks.

Mr. Sidney Hutchison has been offered the position of section foreman at Norwood, and is now there trying the work for a month to see if it will prove satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Tinney motored to Cartwright on Saturday evening. Mrs. Tinney's mother, Mrs. Forter, had the misfortune to break her arm.

WOMEN RETAIN OLD OFFICERS

Mrs. E. W. Rowland, President of Omemee Methodist Women's Missionary Society

MISSION CONCERT.

OMEMEE, April 6.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Robert Williamson on Thursday afternoon, the President, Mrs. E. W. Rowland, presiding. The meeting opened with a rousing missionary hymn followed by prayer, after which the Scripture reading was taken by Rev. E. W. Rowland.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. The resignation of Miss Annie Doube, the first vice-president of the Mission Band, was read and after considerable discussion was accepted with regret.

The continuance of the birthday box, which for the past two years has been used as a flower fund, was discussed and it was finally decided to raise money for this fund in some other way such as a sale of home-made cooking, teas, etc.

The delegate for the branch meeting which is to be held in Oshawa on June 2nd, 3rd and 4th, was appointed in the person of Miss Eva Race with Mrs. T. A. MacPherson as alternate.

The annual election of officers was held resulting in the re-election of all old officers with the exception of Mrs. R. Wilson, who will assist the Mission Band president (Mrs. Rowland), as first vice-president, this election holding good until the Methodist church enters the United Church of Canada in June.

At this juncture of the meeting the president was called away and the meeting was continued with Mrs. E. Bradburn presiding. The Easter responsive reading, interspersed with several Easter hymns, was led by Mrs. Bradburn.

A splendid synopsis of a chapter from the study book given by one of the mmebers proved most interesting. A leaflet entitled, "How Can America Help China," was read by Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Margaret Stephenson read the devotional leaflet, 'Subject for Prayer.'

The Easter Sunday night service will be as usual, a combination, Easter and missionary service, when the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, will address the society, who will occupy the central front pews. The meeting was brought to a close by prayer from Mrs. R. Poast, after which the hostesses, Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. W. Connell and Mrs. J. Widdiss, served dainty refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Mission Band Meeting.

On Friday night the "Wide-Awake" Mission Band excelled themselves in a splendid programme in the Sunday school room. From the smallest six year old to the young grown-ups, each one had a part and every number of the lengthy programme was well received. Probably the heartiest applause was given to a group of five boys and five girls who contributed the "March Along" chorus, the boys being on the alert to march when the chorus commenced. The musical number by the "Live Wires" was also heartily applauded. Each boy played some sort of instrument, the "Kazoo," comb, drum, accordeon, radio tinker and other wind instruments being brought into practice. At the conclusion of the programme an autograph quilt was auctioned off by the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, the highest bidder being Miss Verna Williamson, who received the quilt for the sum of $5.

A vote of thanks was then tendered by the president, Mrs. Rowland and later endorsed by the pastor, to Mrs. Arthur Williamson, for her kindness in working some two hundred names in red boil proof cotton on the quilt, also for assistance in practising several numbers on the programme. The proceeds at the door were about $20.00.

The following was the programme rendered:

NO PROTECTION FOR EAST CITY

what compensation you will pay."

Installation Safe.

Alderman Crowe pointed out the safety of the installation as told by representatives of the company. He suggested that the citizens might bring an injustice against the company's building the tanks.

Alderman Phelan said it is not fair to ask the citizens to rectify a mistake made by the council.

"It just looks to me as if the majority of the council is passing up their own residents to keep an outside company from getting sore at them."

The Canadian Oil Company had been there for a long time, and the British American oil tanks make it doubly dangerous. "Will you (Ald. Crowe) support a bylaw to put both of them out?" he asked

City Solicitor Joseph Wearing said in answer to Alderman Turner, that the city would probably not be liable to pay compensation, but the basis of such a bylaw would be sufficient cause.

Alderman Turner would like to see all dangerous tansk swept out, but would not discriminate.

Alderman McIntyre: "They had hardly got started when they were aware of the council's feelings. They went right ahead, and I don't think we are taking advantage of them at all."

Alderman McIntyre resented a suggestion from Alderman Jones that there was too much talk on the matter, declaring it should be thoroughly discussed.

Alderman Greene censured the city solicitor for presenting a bylaw that he admitted is uncertain.

Alderman Phelan said Mr. Wearing had only a few hours to prepare the measure and could not be expected to give it full consideration under those circumstances. Two lawyers had approved the legal phase of the bylaw.

Alderman Fife pointed out that he had been calling for the question for half an hour. Everyone knew the facts in the case. The company had acted like gentlemen.

After humor had had its way for twenty minutes, Alderman Phelan asked that levity be set aside and the bylaw be voted on. Aldermen Phelan and McIntyre alone voted for the bylaw.

Some East City residents left the chamber at this point, banging the doors, probably in token of their displeasure.

NEW ST. JOHN'S HOTEL.

Will Cost $700,000 in Newfoundland Capital.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfd., April 7 — St. John's is to have a new hotel, costing about $700,000, an announcement being made Monday to the effect that the contract had been let to Frank Ahern and Theodore Roussesu, that work was to start on June 1, and that the hotel would be ready for occupancy by May, 1926. A prominent site has been secured in the east end of the city, in accordance with the new liquor act, wines and beer will be served with meals but there will be no bar.

FRENCH CRISIS

sufficient sum it will be made a forced loan from all.

The typical thrifty Frenchman has reached his own conclusion on the matter. He interprets the levy on capital as a levy on savings and bewails the coming of the day when he will be forced to hand over a percentage of his economies made by stern self-denial.

The differences between Premier Herriot and M. De Monzie were declared by members of the Cabinet last evening as not grave. The Finance Minister's proposals have been accepted in principle, but some of the Ministers would have the interest on a voluntary or forced loan two per cent., others advocating five per cent. instead of the suggested four per cent.

Paul Boncour, a leading member of the Unified Socialist party, says the reported intentions of the Government "are perfectly acceptable and of moderate form, corresponding to my group's desires."

The Chamber lobbies attach importance to the vote to-day, when M. Herriot will ask for urgency for the bill. If, as likely, he makes this demand a question of confidence, it is expected he will find strong opposition, as the members of the Opposition declare the question too important for hasty treatment and think they can get some support for this view from members of the Government majority.

Those who believe the Premier is prepared to seek dissolution quote a passage from Herriot's Fontainebleau speech of Sunday as follows: "The Government thinks the best course is to address itself to the country itself and make it reflect and judge for itself."

farm labor to care for the situation in the Prairie Provinces, and from British Columbia come reports that the excess unemployment due to the influx of outside labor will be taken care of by the first of April."

The excess number of ships the world over is commented upon. "Most ship owners would prefer to see shipbuilding brought to a complete standstill until the present shipping depression is over, since, according to their viewpoint, the construction of each additional ship accentuates the present over supply. They are pessimistic in regard to the future volume of world trade reactions that are encouranging home production, the reduced American immigrant business and the decreasing use of coal in shipping as factors that tend towards permanent reductions in the volume on international trade in Europe and United States, the prospect of increasing business in South America and Canada, the gradual stabilization of the foreign exchange and the return of international confidence all point toward a substantial business revival. Certainly two or three years, unless political events delay the growth of international trade."

ber ahead on his indemnity at the end of four years."

The Premier pointed out that the salary had been $1,400 since 1913, and that the purchasing power of $6,000 of 1913 was only $3,800 now.

Opposed It, but—

J. G. Lethbridge (Progressive, Middlesex) said he had opposed the bonuses given under the Drury Government. He opposed the measure, but said he would take the extra $600 if the House voted it. The Premier agreed that those who voted against it should not take the extra. He pointed out that members of Alberta, Quebec and British Columbia Houses got $2,000 a year. Mr. Doherty thought that if it passed the House members should obey the legislation as they obeyed other laws which passed even if they disapproved. Sam. Clark pointed out that no member would ever be brought to court for refusing to accept the extra $600. "I think there are some who will oppose it, knowing that it will pass the House," said Mr. Clark. "Then they can talk about opposing it, but they are taking it nevertheless." F. C. Biggs thought the increase should have been made permanent when bonuses were passed.

D. M. Ross (Progressive, North Oxford) said the Premier was out of touch with the public when he said there had been no criticism. Members, he said, might be making sacrifice but they should be willing to take a sacrifice for the honor of being members.

The Premier suggested jokingly that in committee the bill could be amended so that the Progressive members need not take the extra.

The bill was then passed without vote.

Township Boards.

In introducing his amendment to the Education Act, providing that township school boards take the place of many sectional boards, the Premier said the suggestion was that there should be a larger unit of rural education administration. In 177 schools in Ontario there were fewer than five pupils and the average cost was $250 per pupil per year. In 981 schools there were fewer than ten pupils at an average cost of $156 per pupil. He wanted the bill to get to the public so that it would receive consideration. Economy was the first thing he thought might be gained by creating township boards. It would reduce the number of schools and concentrate pupils. He thought that each school section might elect a trustee for the township board.

A. Belanger (Liberal, Russell) asked how the school rates could be arranged as they vary in different sections of a township at present.

The Premier replied that there might be a general school rate for the township. It would be possible, he declared, with fewer schools to carry higher education to the country. The bill was given second reading to be withdrawn later.

Defines Doctor.

Hon. W. F. Nickle explained the ameadments to the Medical Act contained in two bills which were given second reading without debate. The bills provide a board for the regulation of drugless healers and to determine their academic qualifications. The other defines whom shall be called doctor.

University Grants.

When the House went into Committee of Supply and considers an item of grants to universities, Premier Ferguson said that the people could not support three universities in Ontario and that Queen's (Kingston) and the Western (London) would have to put on intensive campaigns to interest their local people. "We have to relieve the concentration around the University of Toronto by other universities taking their share, but mostly by providing first and second year university work in the high schools and collegiates in the county towns," said the Premier. "I hope Queen's and the Western will make immediate efforts to reduce their deficits." He pointed out that it cost Ontario $500 for every university student and thought that the fees to those outside the province attending Ontario universities might well be increased to cover the extra cost. It was not fair that Ontario should pay for the education of students from other provinces.

DEAD MAN KNOWN HERE.

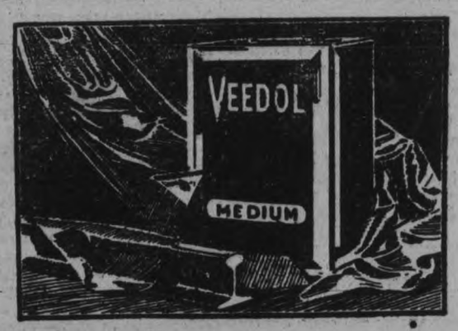
Harry Harrington Was Former Resident of Ennismore Township.

James H. Harrington, 20, of 48 Locust street was struck by a Monroe avenue trolley car near 217 Lake avenue late Saturday night, as he stood by his automobile fixing the side curtains. He died shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Mary's Hospital.

According to witnesses, Harrington drew his automobile up to the curb and was standing between it and the car tracks. It is believed that he did not realize how close he was to the oncoming trolley car. The accident was investigated by the police of the Lyell avenue station.

Harrington is survived by his parents, Joseph and Anna Harrington; three sisters, Frances C., Maidie A., and Agnes M. Harrington; six brothers, Bert A., John C., Joseph M., Thomas E., Patrick W. and Peter A. Harrington, all of Rochester.

James Harry Harrington was a former resident of Ennismore.



A new understanding of the job that a motor oil must do is now convincing car owners that all motor oils are not alike. They are learning to entrust the protection of expensive motors to the "film of protection" alone.

Thin as tissue, smooth as silk, tough as steel

the "film of protection" safeguards your motor

IN action, oil forms a film over the vital parts of a motor. This film must be tissue-thin to work its way between the whirling, sliding metal surfaces. It must be silk-smooth to speed flying pistons and revolving bearings. It must be steel-tough to withstand the menace of tearing, grinding friction—the lash of searing, scorching heat.

Ordinary oil may lubricate your motor under ideal conditions. But when you stop and start and creep along in traffic, labor up long, winding hills or overload your motor, ordinary oil can't stand the punishment.

The film breaks, curls up and burns. Destructive friction sets up. The results are often lost power, scored cylinders and burned out bearings. Over 75% of all engine troubles are caused by poor lubrication.

Tide Water engineers spent years studying the chemical and physical characteristics of oils and oil films. They perfected, in Veedol, an oil which offers the utmost resistance to deadly heat and friction—an oil which forms a "film of protection," thin as tissue, smooth as silk, tough as steel.

Wherever the orange and black Veedol sign is displayed, you will find The Veedol Motor Protection Guide. This is a chart that tells which Veedol oil your car requires. Have your crankcase drained and refilled with Veedol to-day.

WARNING THE CHILDREN.

The Ontario Safety League has announced its annual essay competition for the school children of the Province upon the subject of how motor accidents can best be avoided.

It is to be hoped that school staffs generally will co-operate in this meritorious propaganda by encouraging their pupils to take part in the contest, and by utilizing the competition to drive home to the youngsters under their charge the necessity of being careful.

The majority of the victims of the modern juggernaut—the motor car—are young children.

Newspapers in the larger cities carry daily stories of young lives being crushed out by automobiles.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon, too much attention cannot be drawn to the perils that beset youngsters on city streets under present traffic conditions, and the Ontario Safety League is wise in its use of the schools for the diffusion of impressive warnings among a class that most needs protection.

Conditions are not as bad in Peterboro, of course, as they are in larger centres, but they are bad enough to justify the teachers of the city in impressing upon their charges the need of being careful in crossing streets and the danger of using the roads as playgrounds.

MR. RANEY'S AMENDMENTS.

Mr. Raney's efforts to prevent the passing of the stronger beer clauses by the committee of the whole House may doubtless be explained by him in the assertion that the end justifies the means, but they have left the leader of the Progressives open to the charge of being illogical.

The former Attorney-General first tried to have all the 574 municipalities which up to September 1, 1919, had passed local option bylaws exempted from the sale of 4.4 beer.

When this attempt failed he moved to exempt all municipalities which in the plebiscite of last October voted to retain the O. T. A.

That proposal met with scant favour, the point being obvious that if municipalities which voted dry were to be kept dry the localities which voted wet were entitled to have their wishes complied with.

In effect, Mr. Raney's plan led logically to local option, and the creation of a system that would make the task of law enforcement extremely difficult.

And, finally, having condemned the Government in most vigorous language for having "broken faith with the people" by changing the strength of the beer when the election had voted against any change in the Act, Mr. Raney proceeded to move an amendment that would have substituted "2 per cent. proof spirits" for "2½ per cent. alcoholic contents by volume" in the beverage definition, thus going below the original O. T. A. definition.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS.

The Examiner yesterday referred to the large number of accidents in Ontario's industries, as revealed by the report of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The visit yesterday of Mr. R. B. Morley of Toronto, the General Manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, supplied additional information along the same line.

The complete report of his address on the subject as delivered to the local Rotary Club appears elsewhere in today's issue, and the Examiner commends it to its readers as full of important data upon a matter of great public interest.

His organization exists to cut down the number of accidents by adequate inspections that will result in the elimination so far as is possible of hazardous conditions and by the education of the workers along safety lines.

The industries of Ontario have paid $46,000,000 in ten years to compensate injured workmen and the dependents of workers who were fatally injured.

But that is not all the story.

In the past ten years an average of over one life a day has been snuffed out by industrial accidents in Ontario.

Every day for ten years some employee has been killed while at work.

The death rate is too high—the accident rate is too high.

It is time that every worker and every employee recognized the need of common effort in reducing the number of industrial accidents.

TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOARDS.

A bill of far-reaching importance was introduced before the Legislature last week by Premier Ferguson in his capacity as Minister of Education, and the head of the Government has taken the proper course in holding this measure over until the next session in order that its provisions shall be thoroughly circulated throughout the Province and a chance shall be given to sound public opinion.

Briefly, the Premier proposes to provide for the operation of rural public schools by township boards, instead of under the present school section scheme.

If the bill becomes law next session all the public schools in every township will be administered by a board of trustees to be known as a township board, the membership to consist of not fewer than three nor more than ten members to be elected from the school areas in the township.

If there is only one school section in a township, of course, that section will constitute the school area, and the township board will consist of three trustees elected by the electors in the area.

Similarly, in a township containing only two school sections each section will constitute a school area, and the township board will be composed of three trustees, one to be elected by the electors of each of the two areas and the third by the electors of the areas combined.

Where a township contains not fewer than three nor more than ten school sections, each section will constitute an area, and the township board will be made up of as many members as there are areas, each area electing a member.

The township boards will be given wide powers under the Act, their duties including the determination of the schools which the pupils must attend within the township.

Provision is also made for paying the trustees for their attendance at board and committee meetings on the same basis and at the same rates as the township councillors are paid.

The changes are approved by many educationists, but it is well that the people most affected should be given an opportunity to study the legislation before it is passed, and the holding over of the measure should enable the subject to be thoroughly discussed.

SOUTH AFRICA AND PREFERENCE.

The South Africa Budget will be brought down in Parliament Wednesday and Premier Herzog and his Cabinet must then declare for the abolition of the Imperial preference or for its retention. If the issue was merely economic it would not be a question into the discussion of which Canadians could with courtesy enter. This Dominion is justly jealous of its rights with regard to the dictation and absolute control of its own fiscal affairs, and it would be unbecoming of us to comment adversely on the proposed trade agreements of a brother in the Imperial family.

Moreover, there is a large body of opinion in Canada that believes that the British preference which has been given to certain goods entering the country from the Motherland for more than a quarter of a century should be abolished. They argue that such a preference works an injustice on Canadian manufacturers, and that the benefit which accrues to Britain and to the Empire at large either practically or sentimentally is negligible in comparison with its disadvantages.

Yet there is another aspect of the question quite apart from its economic side and of far more serious moment. There were grave misgivings when General Henzog ousted Jan Smuts from the Premiership and with the aid of Col. Cresswell, the Labor leader, established his Government. It was feared that the General might put into practice the Separatist views which he avowed with considerable freedom when in Opposition. Like other leaders, the responsibilities of office tempered these views, or at least raised grave doubts as to the expediency or the practicability of their enforcement at this time. Moreover, General Herzog during the election campaign pledged himself that if returned to office he would do nothing towards bringing about the separation of South Africa from the Motherland during his first Premiership, despite the fact that when the spoils of office seemed entirely out of reach he had advocated such a divorce. General Herzog is known in South Africa as a man of his word, and it is not conceivable that the pledge then solemnly given will be broken.

There is no disguising the fact, however, that there is a strong body of extreme opinion in South Africa today headed by Mr. Tielman Roos, the Minister of Justice, whose chief of staff is Mr. Grobler, who seem bent on undoing the great work which Louis Botha and Jan Smuts labored so patiently to accomplish. They belong to the irreconcilables of the old Afrikander party and they seem intent on badgering and irritating the British at every opportunity. Their opponent in the Cabinet is a man of their own race and an administrator of first rate repute—Mr. F. S. Malan, Minister of Railways. Mr. Roos showed his hand recently when he issued a circular requiring every civil servant, even to the drivers on the State railways, to know both the official languages of the country. Mr. Malan countered this by replying that South Africa was not asking of her artisans that they should be capable bi-lingualists, but that they should be good artisans, and the subsequent modification of the order would indicate that Mr. Malan won the day.

Yet the battle was joined on a most delicate subject between Mr. Malan's common sense and Mr. Roos' compulsion. Those who live in this Province know well how a clumsy handling of the highly contentious and inflammable subject of bi-lingualism can cause wounds that take years to heal. Mr. Roos might well learn from Quebec how to handle this question.

The fact that the Cabinet is divided on the question of the abolition of the Imperial preference and that the matter is being discussed with such bitterness in the press would indicate that the abolition is not being considered solely as an economic question. It will require most sympathetic and tactful handling and the introduction of racial prejudice is the surest invitation to danger.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

This may be "the last awful week" of the present session of the Legislature, especially if Col. J. A. Currie attempts to "talk out" the Church Union bill.

Evidently the Nova Scotia Legislature did not read Mr. Duff's speech. Twenty thousand dollars has been voted for the relief of the Cape Breton miners.

A member of the Quebec Legislature proposes the speeches and sessional indemnities of the members should both be cut by 25 per cent. The public is heartily in favour of both suggestions.

The end of the Budget debate in the Federal House, it is prophesied, will come next week. It depends a great deal upon the terminal facilities of the members who have yet to make speeches.

Mr. Belanger, M.P.P., wants French to be taught more generally in Ontario schools. And Judging from the language often overheard, it would not do any harm to have English taught more thoroughly.

The same old story is reported from Calgary that th eunemployed refuse to take jobs on the farm. They want work all right, but not that much.

Mr. Raney's speech on the sale of 4.4 beer, if sufficiently circulated across the border, should be of great assistance to the Ontario Tourists' Association in the campaign to bring more United States visitors into the Province.

Ex-Premier Drury prophesies that Hon. W. E. Raney will be the next Premier of Ontario. But the statesman of Crown Hill may not have any better luck as a prophet than he had in picking Cabinet Ministers.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 6.—There was a strong active market to-day. With a comparatively light run, totalling about 3,300 cattle, but including 571 billed through for export, trade opened good and brisk, especially for anything choice in the butcher class. Prices in this section for the best butchers were 15c to 25c higher. The whole butcher offering fair, medium, steady to firm.

A few fat butcher cows sold up to $6, but on the whole the market for fat cows is not so strong as a week or so ago, many good cows rated choice now going at $5.50.

With the three or four hundred steers bought in to-day's market, added to about 200 carried over from last week, and the five or six hundred billed through, including export bulls and store cattle, the bill for export cattle for this week's quota is about filled and few more cattle in this class will be required, except such as may be bought to carry over for next week.

There are plenty of calves coming in the not too good quality. Market a little easier, except for choice tops.

Sheep and lambs firm.

Hogs firm and 25c higher at $12.75 f.o.b., with $1.10 differential off cars.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—Grain made a spectacular advance in price to-day, especially corn. Upturns in the value of corn amounted to as much as five cents a bushel compared with Saturday's closing figures. It was contended that corn and oats had of late been depressed to below the cost of production. Corn finished buoyant at the day's top prices, May 99 3-4c to $1, and with all deliveries touching $1 a bushel or above. Wheat closed strong, 1 7-8 to 3¼c net higher, May 1.46¼ to 1.46¾, and July 1.36 to 1.36¼. Oats 1 1-8 to 1¼c up, and provisions ranging from 15c decline to 10c advance.

With some of the most conspicuous men in the grain trade outspokenly favoring higher prices and with shipping demand here for corn the best in many months, the corn market developed unusual strength as the day drew to a close. Offerings of corn were scarce, and in particular were at a minimum so far as country points could be heard from.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, April 6.—(Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here to-day as follows:

Sterling demand, $4.78 5-8.

Sterling cables, $4.79.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—There was a fairly good enquiry from the United Kingdom and the Continent for Canadian grain here to-day, but owing to the further strength in the Winnipeg market, the bulk of the firm bids received were out of line and little business of importance was accomplished. There was some demand on spot for sample oats and sales of a few odd loads were made at one cent per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal. In sympathy with the further strength in oats at Winnipeg, local prices were advanced another cent per bushel.

The feature of the local flour trade was the advance of 20 cents per barrel for spring wheat grades. This was attributed to the further strength that developed in the Canadian cash wheat situation. There was no improvement, however, in the volume of business in any direction. There was also a better feeling in the market for winter wheat grades and prices were advanced 10 cents per barrel.

There was no change in the condition of the millfeed market, prices being steady with a moderate amount of business reported. The market for rolled oats was inactive but the tendency was steady.

Egg Prices Weaker.

A weaker feeling developed in the egg market and wholesale jobbing prices for all grades were reduced one cent per dozen, which was due to the increased arrivals and the fact that supplies are now in excess of the daily requirements with the result that some houses have commenced storing operations owing to the fine quality of the goods now coming forward. The receipts were 2,339 cases, as compared with 1,939 for the same day last week, and 4,125 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter were 127 packages, as compared with 43 for the same day last week, and 956 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no actual change in the condition of the market, the undertone being firm with a steady trade passing for local and outside account. The demand from grocers and other dealers for small lots was fair and prices in a wholesale jobbing way were maintained with sales of finest creamery at 35c per lb. in solid packages, and at 36c per lb. in 1-lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 26,751 boxes, as against 449 for the same day last week, and 43 for the corresponding day a year ago. The reavy arrivals noted above was due to the fact that 26,469 boxes were received from New Zealand, 1,475 boxes from the United States, and 689 boxes from England. The trade on spot was reported quiet and the tone of the market was easy, with fodder-made Western No. 1 white and colored cheese quoted at 22c to 22¼c per lb., and No. 1 grades at 21c to 21¼c per lb.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

It was early afternoon of a wonderful day. It was so still that the rippling waters of spring, singing in a thousand rills and streamlets, filled the forests with a droning music. In the warm sun the crimson bakneesh glowed like blood. In the open spaces the air was scented with the perfume of Blue Flowers. In the trees and bushes mated birds were building their nests. After the long sleep of winter Nature was at work in all her glory. It was Unekepesim, the Mating Moon, the Home Building Moon—and Baree was going home. Not to matehood—but to Nepeese. He knew that she was there now, perhaps at the very edge of the chasm where he had seen her last. They would be playing together again soon, as they had played yesterday, and the day before, and the day before that, and in his joy he barked up into Carvel's face, and urged him to greater speed. Then they came to the clearing, and once, more Baree stood like a rock. Carvel saw the charred ruins of the burned cabin, and a moment later the two graves under the tall spruce. He began to understand as his eyes returned slowly to the waiting, listening dog. A great swelling rose in his throat, and after a moment or two, he said softly, and with an effort:

"Boy, I guess you're home."

Baree did not hear. With his head up and his nose tilted to the blue sky he was sniffing the air. What was it that came to him with the perfumes of the forest and the green meadow?

"Even then it seemed quite the most natural thing in the world that it should be Nepeese, and none other."

Why was it that he trembled now as he stood there? What was there in the air? Carvel asked himself, and his questing eyes tried to answer the questions. Nothing. There was death here—death and desertion, that was all. And then, all at once, there came from Baree a strange cry—almost a human cry—and he was gone like the wind.

Carvel had thrown off his pack. He dropped his rifle beside it now, and followed Baree. He ran swiftly, straight across the open, into the dwarf balsams and into a grass-grown path that had once been worn by the travel of feet. He ran until he was panting for breath, and then stopped and listened, and then stopped and listened. He could hear nothing of Baree. But that old worn trail led on under the forest trees, and he followed it.

Close to the deep, dark pool in which he and the Willow had disported so often, Baree, too, had stopped. He could hear the rippling of water, and his eyes shone with a gleaming fire as he quested for Nepeese. He expected to see her there, her slim white body shimmering in some dark shadow of overhanging spruce, or gleaming suddenly white as snow in one of the warm flashes of sunlight. His eyes sought out their old hiding places; the great split rock on the other side, the shelving banks under which they used to dive like otter, the spruce boughs that dipped down to the surface, and in the midst of which the Willow loved to screen her naked body while he searched the pool for her. And at last the realization was borne upon him that she was not there, that he had still farther to go.

He went to the tepee. The little open space in which they had built their hidden wigwam was flooded with sunshine that came through a break in the forest to the west. The tepee was still there. It did not seem very much changed to Baree. And rising from the ground in front of the tepee was what had come to him faintly on the still air—the smoke of a small fire. Over that fire was bending a person, and it did not strike Baree as amazing, or at all unexpected, that this person should have two great shining braids down her back. He whined, and at his whine the Person grew a little rigid, and turned slowly.

Even then it seemed quite the most natural thing in the world that it should be Nepeese, and none other. He had lost her yesterday. To-day he had found her. And in answer to his whine there came a sobbing cry straight out of the soul of the Willow.

Carvel found them there a few minutes later, the dog's head hugged close up against the Willow's breast, and the Willow was crying—crying like a little child, her face hidden from him on Baree's neck. He did not interrupt them, but waited; and as he waited something in the sobbing voice and the stillness of the forest seemed to whisper to him a bit of the story of the burned cabin and the two graves, and the meaning of the Call that had come to Baree from out of the south.

CHAPTER XXXI.

That night there was a new campfire in the open. It was not a small fire, built with the fear that other eyes might see it, but a fire that sent its flames high. In the glow of it stood Carvel. And as the fire had changed from that small smouldering heap over which the Willow had cooked her dinner, so Carvel, the officially dead outlaw, had changed. The beard was gone from his face; he had thrown off his caribou-skin coat; his sleeves were rolled up to the elbows, and there was a wild flush in his face that was not altogether the tanning of wind and sun and storm, and a glow in his eyes that had not been there for five years, perhaps never before. His eyes were on Nepeese.

"To-morrow or the next day I am going to Lac Bain," he said, a hard and bitter note back of the gentle worship in his voice. "I will not come back until I have—killed him."

The Willow looked straight into the fire. For a time there was a silence broken only by the crackling of the flames, and in that silence Carvel's fingers weaved in and out of the silken strands of the Willow's hair. His thoughts flashed back. What a chance he had missed that day on Bush McTaggart's trap-line—if he had only known! His jaws set hard as he saw in the red-hot heart of the fire the mental pictures of the day when the Factor from Lac Bain had killed Pierrot. She had told him the whole story. Her flight. Her plunge to what she thought was certain death in the icy torrent of the chasm. Her miraculous escape from the waters—and how she was discovered, nearly dead, by Tuboa, the toothless old Cree whom Pierrot out of pity had allowed to hunt in part of his domain.

He felt within himself the tragedy and the horror of the one terrible hour in which the sun had gone out of the world for the Willow, and in the flames he could see faithful old Tuboa as he called on his last strength to bear Nepeese over the long miles that lay between the chasm and his cabin; he caught shifting visions of the weeks that followed in that cabin, weeks of hunger and of intense cold in which the Willow's life hung by a single thread. And at last, when the snows were deepest, Tuboa had died. Carvel's fingers clenched in the strands of the Willow's braid. A deep breath rose out of his chest, and he said, staring deep into the fire:

"To-morrow I will go to Lac Bain."

For a moment Nepeese did not answer. She, too, was looking into the fire. Then she said:

Her Headaches Were So Bad She Couldn't Do Anything

Once the head starts to ache and pain you may rest assured that the cause comes from the stomach, liver or bowels, and the cause must be removed before permanent relief may be had.

There is no better remedy for headaches of every description than

as it removes the cause of the headaches in a way that no other remedy will do.

Mrs. Wm. Helpard, Lower Stewiacke, N. S., writes: "I suffered for a long time with my head. It would ache and ache until it made me so sick I could not do anything, but after taking four bottles of B.B.B. I feel that I cannot recommend it too highly to all those suffering from headaches of any kind."

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past 46 years and is recognized by all who have used it to be without an equal as a remedy for headaches; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THREE WAY SPLIT IN COUNCIL LOST

Dr. McPherson pointed to the good standing of the members of the deputation in the community. They urged the measure because they believed it would be for the welfare of the great majority of the people and all the organizations they represent.

Daylight Saving, Dr. McPherson said, will give everyone an extra hour of every day in the all-to short Summer. It will be a boon to those in athletics, the greatest producer of good health there is. Gardeners are benefitted by the extra daylight.

The cry of unsigned letters in The Examiner are not worthy of attention. Many of the writers, Dr. McPherson said, may have ulterior motives. Daylight Saving for mothers is a great boon, the speaker thinks. As representative citizens the deputation would stand behind the Council even in the face of criticism.

In the Factories.

R. E. Layfield, speaking for the manufacturers, said he had been asked to present to the Council the results of the petitions and voting in favor of a Daylight Saving system in the city.

As far as the factories are concerned, they have gone more than two to one in favor of such a system.

At the C.G.E. Company the vote was specially interesting. About two hundred employees composed of boys and girls under age, aliens or those not wishing to vote did not put in a ballot.

The results of this ballot was as follows:

For Daylight Saving	1550
Against Daylight Saving	763
Total vote	2313
Percentage in favor	67

This vote represents over two to one in favor of Daylight Saving.

Women in Favor.

It has been stated that while the men are in favor the women are not. This vote disproves that statement. The women's vote was almost two to one in favor, resulting as follows:

Men in favor	830
Women in favor	720
Men against	387
Women against	376

Arguments have been used that the Daylight Saving starts too early in the Spring and extends too late in the Fall. The vote would indicate that there is quite a number of people who prefer the months of June, July and August, the vote was as follows:

For May	1228
For June	1602
For July	1625
For August	1620
For September	1119

Personally, Mr. Layfield said, I am in favor of the act, but I would not recommend that the city should change to Daylight Saving if there was only a bare majority in its favor. There are too many laws now in force that are enacted with only a slight majority which results in the opposition against the law to be of such a nature that it is a burden and a nuisance to all the people. The votes that we have taken indicate that a very large majority are in favor of the opportunity to have our daylight at night after their day's work is completed.

Manufacturers have to look at this question from their employees' viewpoint. For instance, it must be in force all over the city and cannot be carried out by individual works due to the fact that the meal hours at the household or the boarding houses would be disrupted and consequently the greatest of confusion would take place. Therefore, gentlemen, this is not an expression of the employers, but an expression of the employees of the factories. This is not an expression of the so-called "white collared gentlemen" in the offices but otherwise, as it should be, the expression of officials and workmen. There are those who are opposed to Daylight Saving in the offices as well as the works.

A review of the ballots which are a petition and a ballot, and are handed in herewith, would indicate to you the facts as stated above.

It is to be regretted that one of our factories in the city took no interest in this matter. This, of course, is their right and privilege. It does not, however, indicate that they show any true feeling on this question.

Criticizes Commerce Chamber.

It is to be regretted that the Board of Commerce did not take this question up and pass some sort of resolution whether in favor or against. As a member of the Board of Commerce I am surprised at their stand on several occasions where matters affecting the whole community are let slide rather than take a definite stand.

The whole country today requires men of action, acceptance of responsibility by those in authority and the coming to prompt decision on problems that may arise. It happens altogether too freqeuntly the "passing of the buck" or fear, which is nothing but cowardice, of the loud clamour of a small minority.

Taking a vote of this nature sometime illustrates some very peculiar traits in human nature. The circumstance happened at the works in which a man and his wife are leaving shortly for an extended visit to the Old Country. As a matter of fact, they will be there all Summer, and before leaving they took the advantage and voted against Daylight Saving. They immediately go to the Old Country and enjoy all the privileges of Daylight Saving while on their visit.

A couple of the foremen in the shop opposed Daylight Saving and would not listen to any arguments in favor of it, and went around to their men, the consequence being that quite a number of the men in these departments voted against Daylight Saving. This did not represent the actual feeling of those men because in some cases their wives voted against them at home.

Peterboro is very well situated with its playgrounds, gardens, homes and beautiful surrounding district and a great number of these have been provided by yourselves or your predecessors, and we ask you now for the privilege of enjoying these an extra hour each day in the beautiful Summer months.

Suggest Three Months.

It was proposed by the delegation that June, July and August be put under Summer time.

Alderman Meyers contended that Peterborough is already 20 minutes faster than sun time.

His Worship asked if any present were opposed to the plan.

M. Ketcheson: I certainly am opposed to Daylight Saving.

If a vote was taken of the City tonight, I would not be afraid to bet $5 we would swamp them four to one.

Before the Council gets too hasty and passes on this, I would suggest that it be ascertained whether it is properly signed in every way. It is easy to get things signed, especially if it is presented by someone in authority."

Mayor Turner: The Council tries to deal with matters on evidence of the wishes of the people as presented to it.

Even his own supporters could scarce forbear to laugh when the opponent of Daylight Saving said only 2 out of 100 in the city would favor it.

"I haven't the least idea but that your honorable body intends to pass this," he said.

"That's not fair, His Worship interjected. "We are here to weigh the matter.'

Mr. Layfield assured the Council that the ballots presented were for and against. The petition was not all in favor—there were both sides presented and one side happened to be larger by two to one.

Take Public Vote.

F. T. Tuggey said the "plebiscite" taken in the factories is unfair. The public should be given the opportunty to vote on it. He, too, insinuated there might be "wire pulling." He thought Council should leaves the matter in abeyance for a month until the antis have an opportunity to say their pieces. Personally Mr. Tuggey favored Daylight Saving and ended his address with quite a stirring appeal for the plan.

Mrs. Stevenson said ladies who favored the Daylight Saving plan asked that it do not extend far into September.

D. E. Eason: "There is nothing sacred about standard time. It is only a compromise—the time that has been found to be best for our use. If we find that in Summer we can make better use of daylight by changing the calendar a little, let us do it."

Started at Midnight.

After reception of the petitions, Daylight Saving was broached in general business at five minutes past twelve this morning. The figures presented were summarized as follows:

Lose Country Trade.

Alderman Fife urged that discussion be snappy. He said personally he was "between the devil and the deep sea." There was a big petion for Daylight Saving and doubtless there would be as big a petition against it. In his opinion this question should be settled by popular vote. The city as a whole caters to the country trade, and will lose this if Daylight Saving passes.

Alderman Turner moved that Daylight Saving go into effect for June, July and August, and this was seconded by Alderman Greene. Alderman Phelan suggested that a vote be taken on the question on January 1 next.

Alderman Crowe supported this latter suggestion on the grounds that it will prove a drawing card at the municipal election. Personally, he did not approve Daylight Saving and would not vote for it. "We know what petitions mean," he said.

Council Had Lesson.

Alderman Fife moved as an amendment, that no action be taken, recalling that the Council had recently received a lesson through the East City debacle. "We're out of trouble; let us stay out of it," he urged.

Alderman Meyers personally opposed the measure, but would go with the majority.

Alderman McIntyre asked that notice be taken of the opponents of the scheme, and a delay granted.

Alderman Greene said the whole thing is settled by the petition.

Alderman Denne said Daylight Saving had not a fair chance before, running from May to November. The Daylight Saving plan this year would give a fair idea of public sentiment. "The farmer has a kick because he doesn't change his time. The milk rigs have trouble, but Mr. Gillespie is going to run his business so there will be no trouble." He suggested the matter be laid over, but pointed out the detriment to trade on George Street through loss of farmers' business for an hour every day. Many of the merchants are not now making enough to care for their overhead, he said; and in the state of industry money should not be allowed to go to mail order houses.

Alderman Jones' amendment, that the matter be left over for consideration by the committee of the whole was lost. The motion was also lost, only Aldermen Phelan, Turner and Greene voting in favor.

PRINCE OF WALES AT SIERRA LEONE

Presented Medals to Native Chiefs at Freetown.

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone, West Africa, April 7.— The Prince of Wales arrived at this port yesterday. H.M.S. Repulse, the British battle cruiser on which he is making his tour to Africa and South America, anchored in the early hours of a sultry morning in the harbor of Freetown. The main street of the town was elaborately beflagged, and patient crowds waited in serried ranks along the water front for weary hours gazing in wondering expectation at the cruiser with al lher colors flying.

The Prince welcomed the opportunity of this occasion to stay ashore one night as the guest of the Governor. His landing at 10 o'clock was the signal for similar ovations as greeted him at Bathurst. An address from the legislative council was presented to him, and he reviewed a gathering of dignified native chiefs attired in the picturesque costume of the country, and amid cries of "King pikkin!" (King's babe son!) he distributed to them the King's medal and read an address, which was promptly interpreted to the chiefs by a native messenger, whose services were warmly acknowledged by the Prince.

SIGHT HINDERS MUSIC.

BOLIVAR, Mo., April 7.—Amos Cady could play six instruments simultaneously while he was blind, but now that he has regained his sight he can play only one. He was blind 20 years. The six instruments he formerly played at one time were the harmonica, held in mouth by a yoke, the banjo, a bass drum, cymbals, a triangle and eight Swiss bells.

MOTOR NOTES

The automobile industry presents an anomaly in its development.

Alongside the increased production of small cars, and the development of the small car feature is a race among manufacturers of more costly cars for production of better "eights."

With his inauguration of a staight line eight to lead his list of products, a prominent manufacturer proclaims the day when the small car will be in the ascendency, when all of our touring will be done behind tiny engines in tiny bodies.

Now almost half a dozen automobile manufacturers produce eights, some V-type, others straight line. They argue greater flexibility, more power, greater dependability.

High-Class Sixes.

But side by side with these eights are sixes that compare favorably with them.

The progress of events, however, seems to be working against the development of the eight. Although only 10 per cent. of the highways today are improved, the motorists of the country are looking forward to the day when practically all roads will be easy to travel, when very little reserve power will be necessary to carry them up steep hills or through rough roads.

Then the small engine will be just as efficient as the larger, and it will be much more economical.

For Economy.

Again, gasoline production is reaching the breaking point, prices are expected to go higher as production decreases and the demand increases. And the effect will be a new demand for engines that will require a minimum amount of fuel for the most that can be gotten out of it.

This is why Europe leans more toward the small car. High fuel prices and high taxes. This, it is expected, will hasten the coming of the small engine and small car.

REGINA, Sask., April 7.—(Canadian Press).—For the first time in two weeks a passenger train ran along the Gravelbourg-Neidpath extension of the Canadian National Railways yesterday when the Regina-Gravelbourg train proceeded to Neidpath. This train re-establishes the regular train service disrupted by spring freshets. With this resumption all train services in Southern Saskatchewan have returned to normal.

MARMORA LEAGUE APRIL FOOL SOCIAL

Enjoyable Evening Spent With Addresses, Games and Music.

MARMORA, April 3.—The meeting of the Young People's League of the Methodist Church took the form of an "April Fool Social."

The president, Miss Nellie Williams, had charge of the meeting.

After the regular devotional exercises, Mr. Airhart gave a short address. He spoke of the value of the league, both to the church and to the community, also of the faithfulness of the president and vice-presidents who planned for and carried out the details which make any endeavor a success.

As the officers were all young ladies, he said it reminded him of Drummond's poem, "The Young Canadienne," which he recited with a true "habitant" accent.

Mr. H. Sabine, who was for many years editor of "The Marmora Herald," and who moved to Weston two years ago, was then called upon.

He spoke on the principles of Christianity. He said that while there were controversies in the present day and extreme fundamentalists and modernists, were found Christianity was still based on the life of Christ. His crucifixion and His ascension.

He spoke of the value of the Sunday school and league in the training of the young.

Years ago more stress was laid on the emotional side of religion and evangelistic meetings. Now, the stress was laid on decisions made through the Sunday schools and young people's work.

He closed by urging the value and need of decision for Christian service.

Good Programme.

The following programme was given: Duet, "Whispering Hope," Miss L. Bell and Mrs. F. Wells; humorous recitation, Miss L. Conner; solo, "Winter Comes But Spring Comes Too," Mr. Brock Leonard; violin solo, Miss Hart. Mr. Aunger then conducted a musical romance contest. This was followed by a peanut hunt, in which there were no nuts to get.

The prizes of the contest also carried out the April fool joke.

Candy was passed to those present, and a hearty vote of thanks was given to those assisting in the programme.

WORKMAN'S COMPENSATION AND ACCIDENT PREVENTION

At Monday's meeting of the Peterborough Rotary Club, Rotarian R. B. Morley, of Toronto, the general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, delivered the following address on "Workmen's Compensation and Accident Prevention":—

You have been good enough to ask me to come here to talk to you, and it is a pleasure to do so, as I am always glad to tell the story of "Workmen's Compensation and Accident Prevention" to an intelligent group of men.

It would be a queer world if everyone were of the same opinion, and while there were violent objections raised in some quarters to the Workmen's Compensation Act in this Province ten years ago, the Act was then not without its friends. To-day there are still men who say the Act was a mistake, that it is paternalistic and that it encourages malingering. But, on the other hand, there are hundreds of thousands, literally, who have felt the benefit of compensation and whose affliction has been alleviated by the Act.

Workmen's Compensation.

The idea of compensation is not new, although Workmen's Compensation Acts are in that category. In the twenty-first chapter of Exodus you may read this: "If men strive together and one smite another and he die not but keep his bed, if he rise again and walk abroad, then shall he that smote him be quit, only he shall pay for the loss of his time and shall cause him to be thoroughly healed." That is what the Compensation Act does in Ontario—the injured man is paid for the loss of his time, and every effort is made to heal his wounds. The Workmen's Compensation Act is just what its name implies—An Act to provide compensation to injured workers, and, under the Act, practically all workers except farm workers and those in domestic service are covered. The Act provides that an injured worker shall be paid 66 2-3% of his average weekly earnings up to a maximum of $2,000 per annum, provided the injury was responsible for his being away from work for seven days or more. The Act also provides for unlimited medical and hospital attendance and for pensions for permanent disability and death. Our Act in Ontario is the most liberal in the world in its benefits to injured workers and their dependents, and this is a matter of which we may reasonably be proud, particularly as the rates of assessment paid by employers are not high, but are lower in many cases than in other places.

It is a fact that a certain misgiving was felt when the Act was first drafted by the late Chief Justice of the Province, it being thought by many that the settlement of claims by a board instead of by the courts could not be satisfactory to either employer or employee. Ten years' experience, however, has shown that a Workmen's Compensation Act, administered by a competent board, such as we have in Ontario, has many advantages over the old system in effect prior to the passing of our Act. The Act came into effect in Ontario in 1915, and has saved industry of litigation in dealing with accidents to employees and has made for promptness and certainty of payment to injured workers without unduly burdening the employer.

Compensation Benefits.

Compensation is paid for accidents arising out of and in the course of employment, except only when the disability lasts less than seven days, or where the accident is attributable solely to the serious and wilful misconduct of the worker, and even this latter is not considered when the accident results in death or serious disablement. In death cases, the widow (if any) is entitled to a payment of $40 a month for life or until re-marriage, and there is an allowance of $10 per month for each child under 16, the total paid not to exceed two-thirds of the average earnings of the worker. In the event of there being neither widow nor children, the Board is authorized to make reasonable allowance to other dependents (if any).

In not-fatal cases, an injured worker is entitled, under the Act, to two-thirds of his average earnings, provided those earnings are not in excess of $2,000 a year, in which event the amount in excess of $2,000 is disregarded. If the injury is a permanent disability, compensation is paid in the form of a pension. The pension fund is frequently alluded to as the "reserve fund," and the claim is made that the Board has built up an unnecessary reserve of millions of dollars. This pension reserve fund is a fund to take care of pensions, that is to say, it is assumed to be of just sufficient size to pay for accidents that have happened and on which pensions have been awarded, and is in no sense a "reserve fund" in the commonly accepted use of that phrase.

The money to pay these accidents and medical aid costs is collected from the employers, the workers themselves not being permitted to make any contribution to the fund in Ontario.

Rates of Assessment.

Employers under compensation are divided into Schedules 1 and 2. Schedule 1 includes manufacturing of all kinds and lumbering, mining, construction, etc. Schedule 2 consists of the railways, steam and electric, the telegraph, telephone and express companies, navigation, school boards and municipalities.

The employers in Schedule 1 are divided into classes, there being twenty-four classes and nearly 23,000 employers in those classes. There are over 450,000 workers under compensation in Ontario in normal times. Each class is in effect a mutual insurance group, and pays its entire accident cost except for a special levy of one percent. which is credited to a Disaster Reserve Fund for use in cases such as the gas disaster in Toronto in February, 1923. There has, however, been no addition made to this Disaster Reserve Fund for the past two years. The accident costs are collected from employers as assessments, and are so many cents per hundred dollars of pay-roll, i.e., an employer with an annual pay-roll of $25,000 in a class paying 75c per hundred dollars of pay-roll would pay an assessment of $187.50 to the Workmen's Compensation Board. About 81% of all employers under compensation in Ontario pay an assessment of less than one hundred dollars a year. At the outset of each year, a provisional rate of assessment is established by the Board. If the accident experience of the class is good, this rate downwards at the beginning of the next year, and if the accident experience is bad, the rate is adjusted at a higher figure. That is to say, if accidents in a class are costly, the rate is high, and vice versa. Rates of assessment range from five cents to ten dollars per hundred dollars of pay-roll, and 96% of the money collected is spent for the injured worker or his dependents. The accidents reported and compensation awarded during 1924 was a little less than in 1923. The accident experience, generally, was good, the chief exceptions being lumbering, gold mining, quarrying, structural steel erection, and canal and harbor work. The provisional rates for 1924 have been reduced in 115 cases, increased in 82 and unchanged in 155.

Accident Prevention.

It is logical to suppose that compensation costs would focus attention on accident prevention from an economic standpoint, and our Ontario Act is designed to take care of safety work. Section 101 of the Act authorizes the creation of safety associations or accident prevention associations, and authorizes the Workmen's Compensation Board to make grants for the maintenance of these associations. In this way the cost of operating a safety association is divided fairly among the employers in that class.

There are operating in Ontario a number of accident prevention associations under the authority of the Workmen's Compensation Act. The employers in eighteen of the twenty-four classes of employment under compensation have organized for safety, and fifteen of those eighteen classes are federated for purposes of economy and better general direction of effort in the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations. The directors of the associations number just over one hundred and are elected yearly from among the employers in their various classes. We have been fortunate in having an excellent group of directors, men of experience and vision, who deserve the thanks of employers and employees for the services they render to industry in Ontario.

Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

The pay-roll represented by the employers included in the Industrial Accident Prevention Association is over $250,000,000, or a little in excess of two-thirds of the total pay-roll in Schedule 1 under compensation in this Province.

Our work is two-fold. We inspect plants for the purpose of correcting physical hazards and interesting employer and employee in accident prevention, and we carry on a general campaign of publicity against preventable accidents. The inspectors of the Associations are trained men and their work takes them into the plants of nearly every one of our seven thousand five hundred member companies every year. Their recommendations vary according to the needs of the situation, and based on the general rules and standards of the Associations. These general rules and standards have been approved by the Workmen's Compensation Board under Section 101 of the Act, and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and are, therefore, law and enforceable as such. It is a fact, however, that compulsion is very seldom used, it being better business to use persuasion to secure results.

Safety Propaganda.

The second feature of the campaign of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations is publicity—publicity for the safety idea. Safety is really largely a habit of mind. A man may have the habit of safety or he may not. If he has, he is less likely to have an accident or to cause an accident to his fellow workers. Our educational campaign is based on advertising principles—we advertise safety. Each month we issue a Monthly Memorandum for Employers and with this send out safety bulletins for shop posting, pamphlets, pay envelope slips, etc., etc. This literature is designed to interest employer and employee in this general question of safety and it is accomplishing that result, as the record of our classes will show. We also issue, once a year, a safety calendar that teaches twelve different lessons, one for each month. This is the largest single piece of safety propaganda issued in Canada, and its effect is enormous.

We receive each week from the Workmen's Compensation Board reports of all accidents, involving compensation payments, covering the plants included in our classes. This gives us most important information and enables us to check up firms who are having too many accidents. It also enables us to determine where and how accidents are happening, and in this way render valuable assistance to employers.

In addition to the distribution of safety literature and other services, we hold each month as many plant meetings as possible to interest employer and employee in accident prevention and all in all render a unique service to industry.

Safety Conventions.

The Safety Convention held in April last year at Toronto, was attended by over four hundred delegates from nearly fifty different towns and cities, and had a far-reaching effect. The Safety Convention for 1925 will be held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 12th and 13th of May. The arrangements for this convention are in the hands of a very strong committee of directors, and we are assured of a large attendance.

Accidents and Costs.

Employers have lately completed ten years under compensation in the Province of Ontario, and, in that time, there were 442,002 accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board, including 3,983 fatalities. In that same period of ten years, there were 3,653 days, so that you will see there was an average of over one death per day in industry in that time. During those same ten years the Workmen's Compensation Board has awarded $45,937,221.06 for injuries received in employment, and this has been done at a cost of slightly over two percent. for administration charges. In 1924 there were 58,675 accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board, including 402 fatalities.

Accidents are costing industry in Ontario over six million dollars a year, but that is only part of the cost. There is the loss of wages by injured workers and the loss of production, but more than that, there is the untold human suffering and misery. For instance, the average cost under compensation in Ontario, covering the loss of an arm, is $11,900, a leg at the thigh $13,600, a hand $6,400 and an eye $3,100, but who can say how much suffering that loss has cost. The average cost of the 402 fatal accidents last year was about $5,300, but you an I cannot, fortunately, fathom all the suffering bound up in those 402 funerals.

Accidents Can Be Prevented.

It is unfortunate that too many employers are not sufficiently conversant with the Workmen's Compensation Act. It is fair to say that the average employee knows more of the Act than the average employer, at least he knows what will be paid to him if injured, and that is all he really needs to know. On the other hand, the employer should know that the Act and the reports asked for by the Board are designed to bring out all the facts. Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the need for prompt and accurate reports by the employer. These reports should be signed by someone having an executive position as too often reports signed by a junior officer are sent to the Workmen's Compensation Board. The average employer in Ontario to-day is slowly realizing that he can do something about accidents, and is gradually incorporating the idea of safety in his plant discipline and plant management. Accidents do not "just happen," they are caused.

Speaking of accident prevention, plants can be made safe, workers can be protected, both against their own carelessness and the carelessness of others. In my office is the record of the foreman of a wire plant in Hamilton. He has worked for sixty years and has never had an accident to himself or anyone in his department. "How?" we asked him. He said, "By being careful."

The Steel Company of Canada Limited (Canada Works), Hamilton, employing between 500 and 600 men, operated from the 7th of August, 1924, to the 20th of February, 1925—over six months—without a single compensation case. This is rather unusual for a wire mill, which is hardly a drawing-room job, and was only achieved because the works manager began and carried right down the line through his staff a campaign against accidents.

In January I was in Chatham at a meeting of all of the employees of the International Harvester Company, Chatham Works; there were about 125 sat down to the dinner, and the average number of men employed during the year was about 110. This company performed the striking feat of going through the whole twelvemonth period of 924 without a single accident that involved any payment for compensation or medical attention. This "year of safety" is, I think, a record that is unique in the experience of what is practically a wood-working plant employing over 100 men in this Province, and is again very clear evidence of what can be done when there is the fullest co-operation between employer and employee.

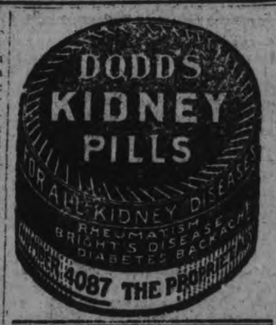
The Christie, Brown & Company, Limited, Toronto, have divided their employees into groups for accident prevention purposes. Group No. 3, handling one of the manufacturing processes and consisting of over one hundred employees, has lately completed one thousand working days without a single accident being recorded against that department.

Human Side of Safety.

Safety work has a most extraordinary human side and is worthy of all the best that can be given to it. It has been truly said "The safety movement is not a theory—it is a crusade." Safety work is vital; it does matter. Safety is common sense, and I appeal to each of you to do what you can to make your own particular sphere safer so that there may be less suffering in this world, and may I leave one more thought with you—safety is a non-controversial subject, and is at least one question on which employer and employee can agree with mutual satisfaction and benefit.

MONKEY SHINES

And that's just what "Chubuto" did, when he arrived in New York as the shining pet of Mrs. Henry M. Blake of Philadelphia. Mrs. Blake obtained her odd pet, who is a rare specimen of South American monkey, on a trip to South America.



ite scheme of decoration.

The ensemble idea is carried out in all types of clothes from sport to evening gowns. The most popular type is the figured silk dress with cloth coat lined with the silk of the dress.

For sport wear, one finds combinations of plain and striped or checked materials, and wool coats matching in color the silk sport frocks.

For afternoon wear, the ensemble is often of silk, of the ribbed variety such as faille, bengaline or Ottoman, with embroidery or beading repeated on dress and coat. The ensemble of chiffon or georgette crepe in delicate colors banded with fur at the hemline of the coat is most lovely. Taffeta coats or capes match the figured chiffon dance frocks with which they are worn. Fur, ostrich feathers, velvet flowers and fringe are favorite finishes for the hems of these creations.

Whereas the untrimmed dress, cut on elegant and somewhat intricate lines, continues to be exceedingly popular, there is a decided feeling for more embroidery and lace than there has been.

Shaded effects are very popular in millinery as well as dresses. Colors were never more brilliant or more gorgeous. All shades of red, henna and purple are used for daytime as well as evening, and at the same time all the pastel shades and delicate combinations are very smart. Black and white is developed in stunning combinations, and brilliant red is combined successfully with black and navy blue.

FEMININE TREND EASTER PARADE

Boyish Costume of Yesteryear Gives Way to Girlish Dress.

SKIRTS SHORTER

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

NEW YORK, April 7.—By Easter, spring fashions have become definitely crystalized, the general trends of fashion have been established and the grand orgy of buying has begun.

The boyish costume of last season has become the girlish one of this—that is the outstanding feature of this year's Easter fashion parade.

The narrow hemline has given way to one very much fuller with motion and ripple, produced by ruffles, godets, pleats and inserts, but otherwise the straight silhouette prevails. Without in the least suggesting tightness, clothes seem to be molded to the body.

Skirts Shorter.

Skirts are short and getting shorter. As they grow shorter they become fuller, and there is a tendency to concentrate the trimming on the skirt.

Sleeves are long. Only on sport dresses and those intended for evening wear do we find the sleeve omitted. Elbow length and three-quarter length sleeves are infrequently seen.

The neckline hugs the neck and in many cases there is a collar—not the old-fashioned sort that continued from the frock, but one worn separately with the bateau or oval line. Scarfs are tied closely about the throat, and usually a part of the costume carrying out a defin-

DISPUTE ABOUT INCOME TAX OF TEACHER ENDED

Miss Muir Paid Tax Claimed by Percy Township, With Interest.

TAX ROLL RETURNED.

Collector Has Only $60 Outstanding From Total of $41,000.

(By a Staff Reporter).

WARKWORTH, April 7.—When the Percy Township Council met Monday morning Reeve McCubbin read a communication which he had received from J. A. O'Brien, of Gordon and O'Brien, Peterboro, stating that Miss Shirley Muir had written the legal firm to the effect that she had sent to P. S. Ewing, clerk of the township, the sum of $51.66 in payment of her income tax. Of this amount, $2.40 was interest charged from the date the tax became due.

Miss Muir had taught school in Warkworth six months in 1923, and for the same time last year. She refused to pay her income tax, when the bill was sent her after her removal from the township, on the ground that she had not earned the amount on which the tax was based in the one year for which she was taxed. The Council threatened suit and Reeve McCubbin was authorized to secure legal advice.

The Reeve informed the Council yesterday that Mr. O'Brien had given an opinion to the effect that the levy was illegal. Judge Huycke last summer had decided a practically parallel case in favor of Seymour Township. Fortified with this decision, Reeve McCubbin, who had gone to Peterboro for advice remained to argue.

Thomas McMillan, tax collector for Percy Township, had asked the opinion of Alex. McColl of Campbellford on the same issue, and the latter attorney was of the same way of thinking as Mr. O'Brien. All danger of litigation fell through, however, when Miss Muir settled the bill, having probably learned from the report of the affair, published in The Examiner and reproduced in the Toronto papers, that the Council meant to push the matter. There are two other former teachers who have left the township and whose income tax has not been paid. Unless they settle at once summonses will be issued.

Almost a Clean Slate.

Collector McMillan turned in his roll Monday, and of a total of $41,000, only $60 remains to be collected, one of the best, if not the top record of the township. The amount allowed in rebates, on account of charity and otherwise, was only $110.

Grant For Roads.

Percy Township still adheres to the statute labor system, a majority of the taxpayers having voted for its retention at the last municipal election. Councillor George Poole, one of the stalwart champions of commutation, was the storm centre in the election, but managed to make the grade.

In 1924 Percy Township spent a total of $3,438.78 on the roads besides putting in 3,230 of statute labor, which, if commuted at the schedule rate, $2 a day, would have represented a cash outlay of $6,500. The commutation of statute labor would have added four mills to the tax rate, or about $4,000 for the entire township. The Government pays 30 per cent. of the money spent on highways by any municipality that commutes statute labor and 50 per cent. of the wages of a skilled road-builder to oversee construction.

Percy last year received a highway grant from the Government of $687.78 on a total outlay of over $9,000. If it had spent that much under the commutation plan its Government grant would have been $3,000. As some of the friends of commutation figure it, the difference between $687.78 and $3,000 represents what Percy is out by adhering to a system that is almost obsolete in the county.

Sheep Killed By Dogs.

R. Welsh, who lives near Hastings, reported that on Sunday night five of his sheep were killed by dogs. Richard Honey, valuator for that part of the township, was sent out to estimate Mr. Welsh's loss.

Grant For Library.

Miss Margaret Hasley, librarian, and Miss Minnie Gallagher, member of the board, asked and were granted the usual yearly grant of $35 for the Public Library.

Deputy-Reeve Nelson, who is chairman of the Counties Council Committee on Schools, goes to Toronto on Tuesday of next week as the counties' delegate to the annual meeting of the Trustees and Ratepayers Branch of the I.O.D.E.

The only absent member Monday was Councillor James Sykes, who was too ill to attend.

The Council spent over an hour in the afternoon watching a demonstration of a new type of road grader made in Indianapolis. A representative of the firm who had a small model, explained the working and mechanism of the machine.

BRIGHTON ACTIVE AS SPRING COMES

Fishermen Make Big Catches and Apple Growers Prune Trees.

BRIGHTON, April 6.—The local fishermen, now that the ice has left the bay, are able to increase the quantity of their catch. Large shipments to New York and Toronto are made regularly. About ,000 lbs. of mixed fish found its way to the New York market Friday.

The very favourable weather experienced lately has resulted in much work on the land, and many farmers have been ploughing for the past week. A prominent apple grower stated that pruning in his orchard has been going on for nearly a month.

Birth.—To Mr. and Mrs. Frank George, a daughter. March 8th, 1925.

Mr. O. L. May, of Smithfield, recently sold the remainder of his apples to a local dealer, who shipped a carload on Friday.

A number of men have lately been employed in dragging the muddy roads and the provincial highway west of Brighton.

Mr. Spence, of Cobourg, president of the Dominion Checker Association, wrote to Ben Ewing, who is champion checker player for men of eighty-five years of age, asking for the old gentleman's picture for publication purposes.

It is interesting to note that Archie Hatfield, stage driver between Campbellford and Brighton, who was represented as being a checker expert by people of Campbellford, has met his match twice already here. If there are any others in Campbellford, or elsewhere, who claim a knowledge of the game, it would be worth their while to meet with some of the local enthusiasts. It matters not whether the outsiders are old, middle-aged or young, as each class can readily be taken care of here. The cry is bring on your checker players!

PARENTAGE OF BOY ATTACKED

James A. Stillman Asks for New Trial in Litigation With Wife.

ANOTHER CHAPTER

ALBANY, N.Y., April 7 — The parentage of Guy D. Stillman was questioned before the Court of Appeals here Monday in an appeal brought by James A. Stillman, New York banker, from the report of Referee Daniel J. Gleason, who in a divorce suit instituted by Stillman, held the child was the legitimate offspring of the banker and his wife, Anna U. Stillman.

Former Governor Nathan L. Miller for Mr. Stillman, made no effort to set aside the findings of Referee Gleason that Stillman had been guilty of misconduct with Miss Florence H. Leeds and therefore was not entitled to a divorce from his wife, nor did he dispute the findings in favor of Mrs. Stillman in her answering suit of divorce, which was granted. The contention was that the findings as to the parentage of Guy Stillman should be reversed and a new trial granted.

Former Governor Miller based the appeal on the refusal of Referee Gleason to admit as evidence an alleged confession said to have been made by Mrs. Stillman to a Dr. Russell, an osteopath, that the child was not Mr. Stillmans', and a letter written by Mrs. Stillman to her husband in which she is alleged to have confessed her misconduct with Frederick K. Beauvais, half-breed Indian guide. It was contended also that John E. Mack, guardian ad litem of baby Guy Stillman, is entitled only to $2,000 in addition to tax costs of $250 as allowance for guardianship.

Began Five Years Ago

The appeal, which was heard by the entire bench, added still another chapter to the lengthy case which began five years ago in Westchester County. Sixteen volumes of testimony, each six inches thick, were brought to court Monday for reference.

Stillman brought action for divorce and hearings were held before Referee Gleason from December 1920 to May 1922. Stillman named Beauvais as co-respondent and charged that Guy was the Indian's child. Mrs. Stillman denied the charges and demanded a divorce in turn, holding that her husband had lived wit Miss Leeds as "Frederick Harold Leeds" and was the father of Miss Leeds' son. Stillman made no denial, and Refcree Gleason found him guilty of adultery and not entitled to a divorce from his wife. At the same time he held the charge against Mrs. Stillman had not been proved and that baby Guy was the legitimate son of James A. and Anne U. Stillman.

The appellate division, second department, modified the referee's findings by striking out as unnecessary and immaterial the references to Mrs. Stillmans' innocence, leaving the only question for appeal the parentage of baby Guy.

ROSENEATH PERSONALS.

ROSENEATH, April 4.—Mrs. Earl Braithwaite has been very ill for the past week.

Mr. Norman Sherwin has moved into Mr. Alex. Shearer's house, while Mr. Arthur Braithwaite has moved into Mr. I. Ingham's house vacated by Mr. Sherwin.

Mr. Herman Blodgett sold a fine gray horse to Mr. Ross McCracken.

Mr. Arthur Braithwaite is engaged at present moving a family from Hastings to Toronto with his truck.

The Orange Juvenile Lodge met in the Orange hall on Thursday night.

Funeral of W. Grigg.

Roseneath, April .—The funeral of the late Walter Grigg took place from his late residence, two miles east of Roseneath, on Thursday afternoon to Merrill's cemetery.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. N. Lovelace, Methodist minister, assisted by Rev. T. McLeod, pastor of Presbyterian church.

The late Mr. Grigg was in his eighty-second year, and was born in Hamilton Township, a son of the late Wm. Grigg, where he was married to Jane Brooks, daughter of the late Robert Brooks. Afterwards he moved to the farm near Robin's Landing, Rice Lake, now occupied by his son. Several years ago he retired from this large farm and purchased a small property where he lived the remainder of his life. For the past three years Mr. Grigg has been failing in health but it was not until about two weeks ago that he was confined to his bed. He passed away quietly on Monday evening at a little after six o'clock.

Mr. Grigg had served several terms on the council board of Alnwick township, both as councillor and reeve and also served as director on the local fair board. In religion he was a Methodist, and in politics always served the Conservative party. His death marked the passing of one of the oldest settlers of the community. He was widely known and made many friends as was evidenced by the large gathering at his funeral

Those who survive are his aged widow, one son, Charles, two daughters, Mrs. C. Thackeray of this township and Mrs. Roy Macklin of Saskatchewan; one brother, Thomas, of Port Hope; three sisters, Miss Mary Ann Grigg, Mrs. Ed. Cole of Baileboro, and Mrs. Lean of Apsley.

The pall-bearers were all neighbors of the deceased, James Mattress, James Grieves, Rupert Nichol, John Nichol, Frank Brisbin and Andrew Brown.

Those who attended the funeral from a distance were Mrs. A. McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. James Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Neil, of Gore's Landing; Mr. and Mrs. John Brooks, Mrs. T. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Eagleson, of Cold Springs; Mrs. E. Cole and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cole, of Baileboro; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Varcoe, of Bewdley, and Col. F. D. Boggs, of Cobourg.

LOCAL MARKETS SHOW ACTIVITY

Maple Syrup Generally Short, But Demand is Good in Peterboro.

MARKETING METHODS.

According to retailers generally, there is a very good demand for maple syrup this spring, but the season promises to be a little shorter than usual. Conditions this year have not been favorable to the production of a large quantity of maple syrup. The recipe for a real good syrup season is thaw by day and frost by night, with plenty of snow in the woods. However, a Spring that makes for much syrup has the contrary effect on wheat, it is said, and possibly the farmers will be willing to forego whatever profit they might make on the syrup, if they can realize well on their wheat, the idea being "what we lose on the peanut, we make on the banan'."

There are many and various ways ladling out the dark brown substance that, like honey, is one of the purest of essences. There is something poetic, by the way, about maple syrup. To look at the maple tree at any time is to see a thing of beauty, even in the winter, when its branches form a stark, etched outline against a grey sky. In the spring of the year, when its leaves are fresh and green, it is lovely, and in the autumn, a mass of crimsons, golds and russets, it is wonderful.

To think of the trunk that produces these gorgeous colorings sending forth also its sap to nourish the bodies and delight the palates of the Canadians whose emblem it is, is to see in the maple something more than a kinsman to the oak and the ash and the elm, purveyors as they are only to the heating and the housing of the Dominion.

"To return to our mutton," however, as the French put it in the famous story of the lost lamb, one may buy maple syrup in many ways. There is the cardboard container that may or may not leak on the way home; the Crown quart sealer, wine measure, that is filled for 65 cents; the Imperial quart that comes at 75 cents, and the Imperial gallon at $2.50 and $2.70 in different stores. This Imperial gallon has a Government standard weight of twelve pounds. The heavy syrup sometimes runs fourteen pounds to the gallon, and then again some of the tinned quality sold at $2.00 may only weigh ten pounds. One store quotes syrup by the pound, at two pounds for 70 cents, or ten pounds at $2.60, an appreciable difference.

In Oshawa, the price of syrup per gallon ranges from $1.89 to $2.75, while in Belleville the product brings $2 a gallon. Here, on the farmers' market on Saturday the lowest price per quart was 65 cents.

The idea of selling syrup by the pound would have seemed ridiculous some years ago, but the system is gradually gaining favor in many other commodities.

Merchants who are compelled to grade eggs very carefuly are agitating for governmental regulations to sell them by the pound, the age of an egg being quite a determining factor in its weight and vegetables and fruits of many varieties are also sold by the pound. A curious thing about bananas, for instance, is the fact that wholesale fruiterers invoice them to their customers by the pound, and the retailers sell them by the dozen. A few attempts to sell bananas by the pound are made at times, but the buying public seems to shy away from the idea.

In the fruit stores, oranges are fairly cheap. The prices of strawberries fluctuate. This week, the fruit frof Lousiana is 40 cents for a pint box, with one or two dealers selling at 35 cents. Malaga grapes are ascending gradually, having reached the 70 cents a pound mark by now, and luxurious pears, all the way from California, are 70 cents a dozen.

Rhubarb, the spring vegetable, sells at three bunches for a quarter. There are "fresh dug" parsnips at 40 cents a peck, and new cabbage at 10 cents a pound. Why onions and cabbage should retail quite peaceably by the pound, and the public require sister vegetables by the peck, remains unexplained. Asparagus is 15 cents a bunch, with huge parent bunches at $1.15.

In the dairy lines, prices are down slightly. Butter in the stores sells at 35 to 38 cents a pound for the creamery brand, and 28 to 33 cents for the dairy. "Fresh extras" in the egg line are 33 cents a dozen, "fresh firsts" 27 cents and the small pullet type 26 cents.

Out of style in the fish line are the little smelts and the plaice, pale and crushed looking. Oysters too, although April is an "R" month, are slowly departing, along with shrimps. The newest thing for Good Friday, along with the Hot Cross buns, is fresh cod, at 20 and 25 cents a pound.

Co-incident with the decline in wheat prices, flour has decreased slightly, the half barrel now being quoted at $5.25 to $5.35, with pastry flour in different stores ranging in price from $1.09 to $1.25 for the 24-pound bag, and the same quantity of bread flour at $1.25 to $1.35.

To the farmer, fall wheat at the present time would bring $1.18 a bushel, with spring wheat at $1.15. Oats and barley and buckwheat are down also, and a certain quantity of alsike purchased by a local grain merchant last week, went at a very low price.

Prices of hogs from a fortnight back quotations have dropped half a dollar on the live variety, the dressed animals going up by $1 on the hundredweight.

In wholesale circles, J. E. Adams reports a good volume of business during the past month, with trucks starting to come in from the neighboring districts for supplies. Collections remain fairly unsatisfactory.

Speaking of the sensational drop in wheat prices, Mr. Adams remarked on the prolonged recession which has taken place from the high-water mark of a few weeks ago, but thinks there should be a reasonable come-back later on.

The sugar market, which was steady during the opening months of the year, with slight weakness in March, declined 15 cents on the bag of refined last week.

Canned goods are in a very firm market, with the demand becoming active, and indications of shortages in several lines, notably in corn and beans. Canned salmons also are running high, with prospects of advanced prices next season, owing to increasing export demands. In some lines, dried fruits have advanced recently at the Coast. Apricots and prunes, the boarding house standby, are firm, with increases of seven cents a pound on some lines of the former and two to three cents a pound on the latter.

A slogan prominently displayed on a certain type of merchandise recently noted, the letters picked out in bright red against a patriotic blue and white background, adjures the buying public to "Ask For and Get Canadian Goods. Made in Canada by Canadian workmen who need the business."

FULL APOLOGY BY LADY ASTOR

No Implications Against Personal Character of Labor Members.

WITHDREW REMARK

LONDON, Apr. 7—"I had no intention of making any reference whatever to Mr. Hayday's personal character," said Lady Astor in the House of Commons Monday a she withdrew her remarks which had offended Mr. Hayday during last Friday's session of the Chamber and brought upon Lady Astor the reproof of the Speaker of the Chamber.

Lady Astor looked rather flushed and agitated when Mr. Hayday rose from his seat amid cheering on the part of the Labor members to complain that the statement made on Friday by Lady Astor conveyed implications against his personal character which he declared would seriously reflect upon him in his constituency. Moreover, Mr. Hayday declared, the remarks of the woman member offended the traditions and dignity of the House. The words of Lady Astor, said Mr. Hayday, called for no playtime phrases but for an unqualified withdrawal and apology.

Lady Astor remarked that she already had withdrawn the imputations in a letter to Mr. Hayday. Mr. Hayday, however, complained that the tone of the letter was worse than the original imputations. He said he wished emphatically to deny that he either was connected with the liquor trade or had received any payments from that trade.

Thereupon Lady Astor with a further explanation of her intentions said she desired to assure the House and Mr. Hayday that she entirely withdrew the words to which he took exceptions. "I am much obliged," Mr. Hayday quietly rejoined. and the matter was dropped.

LUNCHEON FOR LADY VISITORS

G. N. Gordon Entertained National Council of Women at Ottawa.

PREMIER PRESENT

"The real Government of Canada are the men and women who are strong enough to make an opinion prevail," said the Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Wednesday, at the charmingly arranged luncheon given by the Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, Mr. G. N. Gordon, when he entertained in honor of the visiting ladies of the executive of the National Council of Women. The event was held in one of the private rooms of the Parliamentary Restaurant and the decorations were attractively carried out with crimson carnations and ferns.

Mr. Gordon expressed great pleasure in being able to entertain the visitors and emphasized how much the representatives of the people understood and appreciated the efforts of this body of women in furthering reforms for the good of their fellow citizens. Mr. Gordon referred to the treaty by which the Government will prevent rum-running and the Public Health agreement to stop the narcotic traffic and to legislation to bring back deserting husbands from the United States. The National Council had been instrumental in effecting these reforms.

The Premier, who was introduced by Mr. Gordon, said that his real interest in politics grows out of an interest in his fellow men and that all legislation is based on public opinion and organized public opinion is what governs the state. Mr. King expressed the hope that next year he would have the pleasure of entertaining the national executive.

In the absence of Miss C. E. Carmichael, who had to leave early, Dr. Stowe Gullen replied very ably to the Prime Minister. Dr. Gullen was the first woman doctor to graduate in Canada. She urged the need of women being naturalized citizens and using their franchise and spoke of the equality in grounds for divorce for men and women. She hoped that marriage would be made more difficult and touched on the subject of war "War," said Dr. Gullen, "is the greatest crime civilization can meet."

At the conclusion of the luncheon, Mrs. Charles Thorburn presented each guest to the Prime Minister, many of whom were old friends.

Those present were Rt. Hon. W. L. Machenzie King, Miss C. E. Carmichael, New Glasgow, N.S.; Mrs. C. H. Thorburn, Ottawa; Dr. Stowe Gullen, Toronto; Dr. Ritchie England, Montreal; Mrs. Harry Carpenter, Hamilton; Mrs. R. G. READ IT KEEP IT GUARD IT

This Guarantee Protects You Against Moths in Your Chesterfield Suite

WHERE do you keep your insurance papers? You have a strong box or a special drawer in your desk for valuable documents, no doubt. That's where you should keep manufacturers' guarantees, so that when the time comes, if it ever does, you know exactly where to go, and exactly where to look for any particular one of them, by which you may require to hold the manufacturer responsible.

Many manufacturers issue guarantees with their goods. It is a good plan and there is no better assurance of good faith if the guarantee says what it means and means what it says. The manufacturer who issues a bona fide guarantee believes his goods are worthy and will live up to their reputation and the claims made for them. He is so sure of it that he guarantees them. Buying a so-called guaranteed article without a definite guarantee tag is worthless.

The trouble is that most people accept a guarantee as proof in itself that the goods are all right, but do not put the guarantee tag away in a safe place. In a few weeks it is nowhere to be found. It is as though insurance papers were lost. In this way the protection the guarantee was intended to provide is wasted and when occasion arises when the guarantee is needed, nobody knows where it is.

The guarantee accompanying Snyder's Sani-Bilt Living Room Furniture is worth preserving. It stands good for the life of the article. When you read it you will see it covers all the points you need to have guaranteed—immunity from moths, immunity from unsanitary fillings, immunity from lack of durability in construction due to faulty materials. We are sincere about it. Keep Sani-Bilt guarantee in your strong box among the documents of value. It means something. It is not a mere advertising noveity. It is a genuine insurance policy against definite possible troubles.

Ask your dealer to show you the genuine Snyder's Sani-Bilt.

Beautiful Designs To Choose From

No living room furniture in Canada shows the variety and the beauty to be found in the range of Snyder's Sani-Bilt Living Room Furniture. We cannot send you our catalogue—it is a big, thick book and is intended only for dealers. But if you go to a Sani-Bilt dealer he will show you a range of Sani-Bilt suites from which you may pick a beauty to suit you at whatever price you desire to pay. Our designs are distinctive, including the lighter types of Chesterfield that many people with rooms of but moderate size have come to prefer. Our coverings are the choice of the world's production—mohairs and silk and wool, embossed or shadow-printed, tapestries in harmonies of rich color, deep-piled velours, etc. Under the Cushions look for the Sani-Bilt trade mark.

Then with the Sani-Bilt guarantee you will be sure of a real Snyder Sani-Bilt Suite—a suite that will hold its position of dignity and usefulness in your home for years of service—a suite you will always be proud of—a suite which moths cannot deface nor destroy.

HASTINGS HAS A REFORM WAVE

New Constable Shows Zeal in Discharge of His Duties.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, April 6.—A wave of moral reform is sweeping over the village of Hastings. This place now has a Chief of Police who has plenty of professional zeal and 12 years of experience acquired in metropolitan circles, and is backed up, apparently, to a man by the members of the village Council. Not only is the moral atmosphere of the place to be purged, but it is to be submitted to a physical house-cleaning. The work of the Horticultural Society, in beautifying the village, is to be protected, the Department of Railways and Canals is to be asked to light the Trent Canal near the fountry, for the benefit of the American tourists who arrive by river and canal, and whose visits it is the aim of the municipality to encourage; weeds are to be cut, and in other ways Hastings is to be brought still closer to the front rank of the up-to-date smaller urban centres in Ontario.

It must not be inferred that Hastings has, either in a moral or physical sense, sunk to anything like a state of degeneracy. The young men have never been any wilder than those of other communities, where police restrictions have been somewhat lax. A village, where one clergyman has officiated for 42 consecutive years and another for nearly thirty, cannot be seriously delinquent, but the place has attained a position so near the summit that the watchword is still Excelsior.

The New Police Chief.

Thomas Trinkwon, the new constable, served seven years on the police force in Orillia and five in St. Catharines before coming to Hastings, after voluntarily retiring from active duty in search of change and rest. He was induced to take the position of constable by Reeve Hess and the Council, which this year contains three new members. The salary was only $20 a month, but this did not abate the official's professional zeal. He was out to perform his duty according to his instincts and training, regardless of the financial reward.

First Unpopular Move.

It soon became apparent that Constable Trinkwon had professional objection to young men indulging to excess, or otherwise, in bootleg liquor and acting in a disorderly manner in public. Soon after taking office he had a number of such offenders up in police court, where they were fined. Naturally, this made him unpopular with a certain class but he held on his way. He has enforced all the village by-laws, and the Council, so far as outward appearances go, have approved of his actions.

Another of the Chief's official acts was to break up the rendevous of a number of young men who gathered, Sunday evenings, in a building on Front Street.

Restrictions on Restaurant.

At the regular meeting of the Council, Friday night, William Bird asked for a renewal of his license to conduct a restaurant. He intends to sell out about the middle of May but had agreed with the future owner to secure and pay for a license for another year.

This renewal was granted, but with certain conditions attached. Reeve Hess made it clear that the place would have to be closed not later than 10 o'clock Sunday evening, that no gambling or other misconduct would be tolerated at any time, and that if there were any violations of law the license would be revoked at once and the place closed. The restaurant will open at 12 noon on Sundays, and Mr. Bird asked for a half-hour's extension of time on Sunday evenings, but the Council remained firm. The motion to grant a license on the above terms was fathered by Councillors McDonald and Doxsee, the new members.

To Save the Flowers.

On behalf of the Horticultural Society, that has done so much to beautify the village, Rev. D. A. Thomson and C. B. Plant asked for permission to build, at the expense of the organization, fences to to protect flower beds in park and around the triangular grass plot at Albert and Elizabeth Streets. This permission was granted. The suggestion of Mr. Plant that the Department of Railways and Canals be asked to light the portion of the canal near the foundry, will be considered by the Committee on Streets.

Mr. Thomson made a plea on behalf of a widow without income, that her taxes be remitted, but no action was taken.

There will be a celebration of the "Glorious Twelfth" here by lodges of the district, and the members of the Order were given permission to put up decorations in the streets at their own expense.

Election By Ballot.

Another evidence that Hastings is making an effort to attain more of a metropolitan status was a request from the School Board that in future the trustees be elected by ballot at the municipal elections, just as are the members of Council. As this was a new proposition with which the councillors were not prepared to deal offhand, it was laid on the table.

Gasoline Pumps.

Two requests for permission to put in gasoline pumps were received. Reeve Hess insisted that as times had changed all such pumps should be placed inside the sidewalk, as otherwise they would interfere with paving operations that may be undertaken in the future. This question was referred to the Committee on Streets.

Asks for Rebate.

W. Wellman asked that an electric light pole in front of his garage be removed as it interferes with his business. The Committee on Streets will consider the request.

Mr. Wellman, who is head of the Hastings Athletic Association, asked for a rebate in the rent of the Town Hall, in which a dance and box social was held. There had been no surplus, but Councillor Doxsee said he saw no reason why the municipality should help make up a deficit. He believed that young people giving an entertainment should stand any losses incurred.

Reeve Hess, less than two years ago, was president of the Athletic Association, the position Mr. Wellman now holds. The Reeve said he had been accused of getting the Association into shoal financial water, but if this were true, he had, at least, paid all debts out of his own pocket. Defending one lawsuit, which had been decided in his favor, had cost him $125, as he had been left to defray the entire cost alone. He could see no reason for granting a rebate, and the other members of Council appeared to be of the same way of thinking, with the exception of Councillor Hatherly, whose motion, that Mr. Wellman's request be granted, was not seconded.

Like Rural Problem.

The Council were confronted with another new problem. R. Welch, who lives on a farm on the outskirts of the village, had some sheep killed by dogs, whose owners, he asserted, he knew, and who live in Hastings. He asked payment for his destroyed live stock.

Clerk Wilson, who, owing to his 33 years of service in that position, has come to be a recognized compendium on municipal law, ruled that as Mr. Welch appeared to know the dogs' owners he would have to look to the latter for compensation.

Parking Place for Cars.

A by-law will be prepared setting aside the following streets as parking places for autos:

Bridge Street—North of Front Street.

Front Street—West to Wellman's Garage.

Front Street—East of Victoria Street.

LADIES' AID SOCIAL HELD IN LAKEFIELD

At Home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Payne—Three Birthdays.

LAKEFIELD, April .—A very successful social was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Payne, Queen street, under the auspices of the apron committee of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church. Nearly one hundred and thirty ladies were present and a very pleasant evening was spent, in which good fellowship was the keynote, the result being that the guests enjoyed it from the moment of arrival till the end.

A short programme was rendered, Miss Webster, the president of the Ladies' Aid, being in the chair, and opening the evening's programme with a few words, expressing her pleasure at the splendid attendance and hoping that the ladies would have a profitable and pleasant evening.

The following is the programme: Piano duet, Mrs. Reddick and Miss Marjorie Reddick; solo, Miss Eva Hendren; reading, Mrs. A. Hunter; duet, Mesdames F. H. Richardson and Percy Spence; solo, Mrs. A. B. Burrows; reading, Mrs. J. H. Sherin; duet, Mesdames D. H. McMillan and D. H. Webster; piano duet, Misses Maud Nixon and Isabel Sutton.

After the programme the ladies took part in a contest which very appropriately at a woman's party took the form of a cake contest. This created lots of dfun an kept everyone guessing. Mrs. J. H. Sherin received the first prize, and Mrs. G. G. Connell, Mrs. McCoy and Misses Maude Nixon and Isabel Sutton were tied for second place and the prize was divided among them.

The committee served refreshments which were both bountiful and delicious, after which the singing of the National Anthem brought to a close a social which was successful in every way. The financial returns were $20.30. Afeature of the evening was a beautiful birthday cake with three candles, signifying that three of the ladies present were celebrating their birthday on that occasion, viz.: Mrs. S. Edwards, Mrs. John Hendren and Mrs. Abel Hendren; also a cake with silvered candies was in honor of Mrs. John Millage, whose wedding anniversary it was. The persona note added not a little to the enjoyment of the evening.

The committee were: Mesdames G. H. Spence and W. Hamblin (convenors), and Mrs. J. H. Payne, John Hendren, G. A. Welbourne, H. J. Brown, S. Spence, A. D. Payne, Purdy, H. E. Moore, Albert Darling, A. C. Carveth and Miss Grylls.

CAPITAL LEVY INTRODUCED IN FRENCH HOUSE

New Financial Bill Brought in by Finance Minister De Monzie.

ASK CONTRIBUTIONS.

Those Not Giving Voluntarily Will Be Obliged to Pay Their Share.

PARIS, April 7. Canadian Press. —The government's new financial bill, embodying provisions for a proposed capital levy, or forced loan, was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon by Finance Minister De Monzie. The measure was agreed to by the Cabinet this morning. He asked for its immediate reference to the Finance Committee.

The mechanism of the proposed financial measure, the Finance Minister explained, is intended to afford property owners and capitalists a chance to come forward and contribute proportionately of their wealth to the renovation of French Finances. It contains provisions obliging them to do so if they refrain from voluntary subscriptions.

Declarations for income tax will be taken as a basis for obligatory subscriptions to the forced loan, in cases where the capitalists fail to come forward voluntarily.

Contributions to the forced loan may be spread over a period of five years, and the contributors will receive three per cent. perpetual rents.

Although the government has agreed on the measure and on a plan to raise the limit of bank bill issue by the Bank of France to 45 billion francs, and increasing the limit of advances by the bank to the state by four billion francs, its majority in the chamber is divided. Most of the radical left group presided over by M. Loucheur will fight both measures, M. Loucheur announced this morning.

The first test is expected to come this evening when the government will demand an immediate discussion on the measures. The Socialists will ask for consideration of a counter proposition providing for a straight capital levy of ten per cent.

PREMIER GOES TOO OFTEN TO UNITED STATES

Senator Robertson Scores Mackenzie King's Trips Across Line.

NOT PRO-CANADIAN.

Ex-Minster Arraigns Present Government's Handling of Finances.

MONTREAL, April 7 (Canadian Press).—The frequency of the Prime Minister's visits to the United States was referred to in an address by Senator Gideon Robertson, late Minister of Labor in the Meighen Government, in an address to the Liberal Conservative Association here last night. "Through Canada," said Senator Robertson, "many people are thinking that the policy of the Prime Minister is not pro-Canadian."

The Senator's address was an arraignment of the present administration in the course of which the speaker took a gloomy view of the nation's finances. Senator Robertson declared that a year ago the Budget was held up for four days while the Prime Minister went to the United States, and that last Friday when the Budget was before Parliament, "the Prime Minister got suddenly tired and went to New York—and is there now."

SOVIET WAR LORD WARNS RUSSIANS

Says War Will Come As Unexpectedly As In 1914.

MOSCOW, April 7 (Canadian Frunz, Commissiar of War, warned the Russian people to be prepared for war, which he believes may come as unexpectedly as in 1914.

Addressing a large gathering of supporters of the Russian Volunteer Air Fleet last night, the war chief declared that the recent meeting of the general staffs of the Baltic States at Helsingfors together with the murder of two Communist officers on the Polish border, showed clearly that Russia must be prepared to meet an attack from any quarter at any moment.

PROMOTE GOOD UNDERSTANDING

Premier Will Have Full Investigation of the Bilingual Question.

CHANGE TEACHERS.

TORONTO, April 7. — Investigation of the whole bilingual question in Ontario schools, with a view to a better understanding between the French and the English peoples, and an exchange of teachers between Ontario and Quebec, were announcements by the Premier this morning in the Legislature which influenced A. Belanger (Liberal, Russell), to withdraw a resolution standing in his name in favor of the use of the mother tongue as the language of instruction in the primary grade.

"Ontario is not wedded to Regulation 17," the Premier declared to the members, assuring them that his greatest desire was the development of the fullest possible understanding between the two races which mingled in the province.

Important in promoting such an understanding, in the opinion of the Prime Minister, was the suggestion emanating from Quebec for an exchange of teachers between the two provinces. Such an idea, he averred, was an excellent one, promising that the French-Canadian view-point would be brought to appropriate districts in Ontario, and that the English view point would be taken to Quebec. "We are, therefore," he said, "going to take this advanced step in the hope that it will aid in the creation of a better understanding between the two races."

The prime minister drew attention to the features agreed upon in bilingual principles.

The first, was that the medium of instruction in the preliminary classes should be the mother tongue.

With this view Mr. Ferguson was in thorough accord, and he believed that the present educational regulations provided that it be followed.

The second principle was that the teachers should be qualified to teach in both tongues.

The province, he said, had been making a special effort to improve the equipment and the qualifications of teachers for English-French Schools.

"I am not wedded to Regulation 17," said the Premier. "We are willing to accept suggestions. We are going to undertake a careful and comprehensive survey of the whole situation with the hope by honest effort to bring about a better understanding."

SEND GREETINGS BY TELEGRAPH.

Easter is a time of goodwill when greetings between friends throughout Christendom are exchanged. A new departure in the sending of seasonal messages was announced to-day by General Manager W. G. Barber, Canadian National Telegraphs, when he stated that special Easter greeting telegraph forms had been prepared for the delivery of greeting messages during Easter time. These forms, which are specially decorated with Easter lilies and printed in three colors, will be placed in every one of the hundreds of Canadian National Telegraph agencies throughout Canada, and will give an intimate touch to all messages received.

With a view to simplifying the wording of these messages, Mr. Barber also announced that a special booklet, suitably decorated, containing more than twenty-five suggestions for Easter telegrams, will also be found at the various Canadian National Telegraph agencies for the benefit of the patrons.

Arrangements have also been made for the cabling of special Easter messages to the United Kingdom and Ireland. For the benefit of patrons twelve appropriate messages have been prepared and will be cabled exactly as written for the unusually small amount of $1.00 in Ontario and points East; and $1.25 throughout Western Canada and the Pacific Coast. The special facilities offered for telegraphing Easter messages is an innovation and should prove most popular with and acceptable to all Canadian National patrons.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe, and sure way to get them out, and that is to dissolve them. Get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts, and every blackhead will be gone. Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make larger pores, and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application and peroxine powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.

PROBE OPENS IN ATLANTIC RATES

Special Committee Arranges Procedure—Hear Shipping First.

OTTAWA, April 7 — (Canadian Press) — For an hour the special committee of House which is to investigate the contract with Sir William Peterson and the control of ocean freight rates discussed its proceedure and then adjourned until Friday of next week when witness of shipping men will first be heard. At the outset, Andrew McMaster of Brome, was appointed Chairman of the Committee.

H. J. Symington, K.C., counsel for the Dominion Government, asked for the production of a mass of documents relating to the workings of the North Atlantic shipping conference.

Sir Henry Drayton, while declaring that the fullest possible information should be available, added that the government was apparently throwing the "Preston report into disregard." Evidently, he added, the Government had no case to submit and Mr. Symington's request was a sad confession of weakness.

Counsel for the shipping companies pressed for an examination in the first place of W. T. R. Preston.

The chairman ruled that Mr. Symginton should be given the information he asked for, and that witnesses for the shipping company should be heard first. He observed that ample opportunity would be given for examination and cross-examination of Mr. Preston.

AT WORK

Goods which lose weight during handling must bear an expense sufficient to make up for the lost weight.

An item easily overlooked in computing prices, profits and expenses is that of shrinkage. It is of importance because it may often be controlled.

Accurate shrinkage figures may point out theft or some loss occurring in handling which could easily be stopped. Some losses in weight which are due to loss of water content of goods are prevented by having the installation of air humidifiers which prevent evaporation by having the air so saturated that water is not drawn from the goods.

As a controllable expense, shrinkage should be watched.

OLD-STYLE MARRIAGE PRAISED IS GUARANTEE OF HAPPINESS

No Career is Comparable to Motherhood, Says Dr. Eliot.

FEARS RACE SUICIDE.

By CHARLES W. ELIOT.

The subject for this address is, I find, decidedly interesting to both men and women. I have lately been asking a good many young men and young women the question, "Is marriage the most important event in life?" I have received a considerable variety of answers; but the great majority of men say at once, "Certainly, beyond a question, marriage is the most important event in life."

There are some women who are not so sure as the men are in saying "Yes" to that question. The apparent reasons for hesitation on the part of women, coming forward into life, are, first, the growing desire for an independent life in regard to their livehood, and, secondly, in regard to their intellectual development. A considerable proportion of modern young women believe — and sometimes even hope—that there is a healthier and happier career for women in these days than that of the mother of a family. I need not say that to my thinking this contemplation of a career for a woman better than that of the mother of a family is a delusion; but it is a delusion which obviously is harbored in these days by some small proportion of intelligent and aspiring young women.

My next suggestion on our subject concerns the great variety of conditions under which a woman or a man begins to think about marriage. This variety is a very interesting fact. The preoccupied young men and young women of today come late to the contemplation of marriage. There is a tendeney in the recent improvement of education for both young men and young women, and its wider accessibility, to postpone the thought of marriage. Indeed, there are many tendencies in modern society, especially in American society, which seem to bring about the postponement of even the thought of marriage.

This variety among the modern youth in their thoughts of marriage is similar to the great variety in modes of thinking about many other ends or careers in life. We hear a great deal in these days about equality of opportunity, for instance. Many of the campaign speeches now filling the air mention equality of opportunity as one of the things to be aimed at by democratic society. I do not mean Democratic in the party sense, but democratic society as a whole, as the coming kind of society in the civilized world. As a matter of fact, there is absolutely no such thing as equality of opportunity and never has been, because of the infinite variety—I use the word "infinite" in the literal sense—of human powers, in children, in youth, in adults. Unless you can bring about a dead level of capacity in the human race you will not bring about equality of opportunity. And that levelling off of human society is one of the horrors in modern thought, one of the worst conceptions of the purpose of democracy and particularly of the purpose of the American democracy.

Variety of Thought About Marriage.

We may take for granted, therefore, that there is a large variety in the thoughts of young men and young women on the subject of marriage. Given, however, this great variety of thought about marriage, should humane and sensible spectators be anxious or hopeful about its effects on society and the State? I think we should all face the situation hopefully, and be ready to resist any evil or wrong thing which may develop out of it.

We all know that their treatment of marriage was illustrated vividly the differences among the great religions of the world. The followers of Confucius have had and still have one sort of view about the marriage relation. The followers of Buddha have long been and still are divided into many various sects and denominations holding different views about marriage, the bearing of children and the interest of the father or the mother in their children. We all know that Jesus Christ taught a quite new view of the relations between parents and children and between children and their elders. His prevailing view was "Suffer the little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of God." (Mark x., 14.) Then we come down to the Moslem view of family and children, and again we find a striking difference between Mohammed's views and the views of the other great religious teachers whom I have mentioned. Consider, for instance, the difference between the Moslem paradise and all the other paradises pictured in recorded time. The Moslem paradise is, of course, a green garden where there is abundance of water. That is the conception of paradise among a people who lived in deserts and traveled from one desert to another, as the vigorous Arab race expanded through North Africa. But there is another characteristic of the Moslem paradise. There are plenty of nymphs at the service of the men in Moslem paradise, and they are perfectly beautiful and forever young. No other religion has made such a provision.

Admitting this difference in the views about marriage in the great religions of the world and in human society today, what are modern youth going to think about marriage as the important event in human life? Are they not going to think that it is not only the most important event in life but that it opens to competent women the most beautiful, rewarding and influential career in life, a career in comparison with which all other careers open to women are very inferior?

Marriage Woman's Best Career.

For my own part, after full experience and an unusually long period of observation, I believe that marriage and the natural, normal result of marriage—the birth and bringing up of children—is infinitely the best career for women and married life the best life for men. But the other day I asked a young man who has been married a few years already if he thought that marriage was the most important event in life. He answered very promptly and very loud, "No." I was a bit surprised, but I asked him another question, "Well, if marriage is not, what is?" His answer was equally prompt and loud, "The birth of a child." Is that a view which is prevailing or going to prevail in American society, that the fundamental thing in life is to become a parent, to have a child and probably several children? Is that the thing which young men and young women are looking forward to, calculating upon, so to speak, when they think of their own future, that it is the birth and care of children that are the most important events in life? Well, the obvious reflection on the answer of my young friend is that marriage is a necessary antecedent to the birth of children among decent people; so we need not worry ourselves too much about that young man's frame of mind in regard to the most important event in life.

I like to remember how I fell in love. I dislike that phrase, "fell in love." It is really always a rising, not a fall. Falling in love took place with me very suddenly, without any intention or expectation on my part. I was not looking for or intending anything of the sort. I have seen in my own family other cases of very sudden falling in love. I recall at this moment being told by one of my own kindred just how he fell in love with the young woman who many months afterward became his wife. This young man was standing on the pier, looking after the carrying of his bags and traps on to the steamer on which he was bound for Europe to continue his professional studies. He was intent on the process of getting his things aboard. But he chanced to look up and caught sight of a woman's face. The young woman was leaning over the bulwark, watching the coming aboard of the passengers and trunks up the steep gangway. He just had a glimpse of that face and said to himself then and there, "I must make the acquaintance of that stranger." It took him three days of the voyage to get a chance to speak to her, even; but that first conversation sealed the business for this young man. It seems to me that most happy marriages begin in some such way as that, in a sudden emotion which takes by surprise the person who feels it. Doubtless love also grows gradually between friends of long standing, but oftener in women than in men. Most of the unhappy marriages I have known about have taken place for social or pecuniary reasons, without love on the part of one or other of the pair. Such marriages always result sooner or later in indifference or aversion.

We hear much in these days of marriages entered into "light and unadvisedly," of trial engagements and even trial marriages, of quick divorce and quicker remarriage, of children who spend part of each year with their mother and part with their divorced father—the parents having no dealings with each other—of children whose manners to their parents show no reverence, of parents who pursue their own pleasures without regard to their duties to their children, and of strictly brought up sons and daughters who suddenly run away from their parents' home and marry depraved or mercenary persons.

Unwelcome Social Symptoms.

These unwelcome social symptoms suggest strongly that the subject on which I am speaking—marriage, the most important event in life—is a timely one, because the remedy for the bad tendencies I have just mentioned lies in the exaltation and consecration of marriage and family life. We may all gain courage for new struggles by remembering that primitive man developed by slow stages into the barbarous and thence into the civilized in strict proportion to the growth of marital love and tenderness, and of like affections in and toward children. For thousands of years the tender woman has done more for the progress of the human race than the rough man.

If we look about at our acquaintances in the society in which we move I think we easily see that the number of happy marriages is very much greater than the number of unhappy marriages. But we also see that an unhappy marriage is the worst disaster that can befall two human beings, the very worst disaster. If failure in marriage is the greatest calamity in life, does not that go to show that marriage is the most important event in life?

Most of my auditors are, I am told, married already. What is your conception of a happy marriage and how did you get it? That is a difficult question to answer for other people, but I hope every one of you has a perfectly clear conception in your own mind, attained in your own way, of happy marriage. For my own part, I think that a happy marriage is to be looked for when the married pair have a variety of intellectual attainments and powers, but only one spirit, which is the spirit of tender love, and the confident expectation of enjoying that tender love each in the other. When that expectation is fulfilled and is accompanied by an approximate equality of power—intellectual power—and is also accompanied by an ardent admiration of each other's powers, principles, hopes and purposes, the conditions of a happy marriage are completely fulfilled. This happiness, it must be confessed, is not dependent on the having of children. It may exist between two people who never have any children. It will, of course, be greatly perfected, enlarged and magnified by the bringing forth of children and the devotion of father and mother to their education and training.

Has education—which, as we all know, has been greatly improved, enlarged and strengthened within the past sixty years and is still enlarging and improving—an unfortunate effect on marriage and the bringing forth and bringing up of children? There are some discouraging facts on this subject. For instance, the Harvard classes from 1860 to 1880—classes which are not likely to have any more children—have not reproduced themselves and their wives. That result is caused in part by the deplorable fact that in every Harvard class there is a considerable number of men who never marry, who live and die bachelors. But that is not the only explanation. The fact is that many marriages of Harvard graduates have so small a number of children that they do not reproduce themselves and their wives. The last figures that I saw on that subject represented that a Harvard graduate married at the proper age and, living his whole life in an active business or profession, reproduced not two persons but only 1.7 plus on an average through his class. That is a deplorable result even when we recognize that the number of bachelors in large. The condition is still worse in respect to women's colleges. You are probably familiar with the statistics on this subject. The last figures that I have seen go to show—I say "go to show" because I find it difficult to accept them as exact—that a graduate of a women's college while married does not produce, on the average of her class, more than 1.5 children instead of the two required to reproduce the pair.

Fear of Race Suicide.

It was with these figures in mind that not long ago I undertook to ascertain the reason for what I had noticed in the Quinquennial Catalogue of Harvard graduates, namely, that families which had been represented in that catalogue for two, three, four, five and even seven generations had ceased to be represented in the catalogue in recent years. I went through twenty classes with the thought in mind, "To what extent is this ceasing of representation in the Harvard quinquennial taking effect?" I have found that the number of families which had ceased to be represented was deplorably large, but I had to give up the attempt to ascertain the real facts on the subject. Neither the Harvard quinquennial nor any other printed list discoverable by me enabled me to ascertain how many of those Harvard families that had failed to appear in the quinquennial were still represented by descendants on the maternal side. I found it impossible to ascertain those facts, and therefore abandoned the whole research.

You see how complicated and difficult such researches about marriage and the bearing of children become as human society changes, comes under new conditions, endeavors to encounter prudently the rapid alteration of the conditions of civilized life and particularly the conditions which prevail among the white race as a whole.

That mention of race suggests to me that we must all think about what many authors have been calling by a horrid name, but a very expressive one—race suicide. It is a discouraging fact that the number of children in a family is rapidly diminishing, not only in what we call the British-American stock but in all the European stocks. This is one of the most formidable things we see as we look forward to the future of civilized society. That it is formidable is only a reason, however, for our doing our utmost to change that state of things. In fact, the formidableness of it summons us all to courageous contention against it, and one of the points at which that contention is most needed is this somewhat new view held by an unknown fraction of the rising generation of modern youth, that marriage is perhaps not the most important event in life. I summon you to that contest, to that fight, all through your lives to fight against this threatened suicide of our race. I hope you all realize that there is no career for a woman which compares in lasting influence, in satisfactions, in hopefulness, in all the rewards of right living, with that of the mother of a family.

'STARVING A FEVER' IS PROVED WRONG

Temperature Rise Increases Metabolism, Which Calls for Food, Scientists Say.

The manner in which the metabolism of the human body increases in the presence of external temperatures either above or below 98.4 degrees Fahrenheit, which is the normal body temperature, is discussed in a recent issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association. The action of high temperatures on men has lately been the subject of tests by the United States Bureau of Mines, and the results are the subject of comment here.

The metabolic adjustment of man to a lowered external temperature is fairly well known, says the writer. Some physiologists believe in the so-called chemical regulation of body warmth whereby there is an increased production of heat in the presence of external cold. Others maintain that in the human subject the increase in metabolism at low environment temperatures is due entirely to muscular activity that involves conscious or unconscious shivering.

Experience shows, for example, that a cold bath is likely to induce shivering unless some muscular effort, such as the movements of swimming, is indulged in so as to supply caloric energy in another way. Of course, in everyday life, when possible, man adapts himself to cold temperatures by warming his abode or increasing his clothing, so that there is not so much difference between the air bathing his skin in Summer and that which jackets it in Winter.

"What happens to the metabolism at abnormally high external temperatures has been somewhat debated," the writer says. "Du Bois has pointed out that in such environments the regulation of the body temperature by evaporation, radiation and conduction may become insufficient, particularly in humid air, and there may be hyperthermia of the body cells and a consequent rise in metabolism.

"Something of this sort has been demonstrated in recent tests at the United States Bureau of Mines in a study of basal metabolism before and after exposure to high temperatures and various humidities. The investigators there have stressed the importance of estimating what they call the 'effective temperature' of the environment, whereby account is taken of certain modifying atmospheric conditions. Effective temperature is defined as an index of the intensity of heat felt by the human body as a result of external temperature, humidity and air movement. In other words, it takes care of physical factors of the air.

"According to the Bureau of Mines researches there is a range of successful operation of the body thermostatic control, which adjusts the heat production well withing reasonable limits, according to the temperature of the environment. Above an effective temperature of 85 Fahrenheit, however, there is apparently a strain on the mechanism. The body makes strenuous efforts to resist rise in its temperature by promoting evaporation of perspiration from its surface; but the limit of action of the thermostatic control is reached, and the latter falls above an effective temperature of 90 degrees.

OBITUARY

THOMAS AMES.

ORLAND, April 7.—Thomas Ames, who was an old resident of Codrington, died Thursday, April 2, 1925, at his home in Trenton where he moved some ten years ago to be near his youngest daughter, Mrs. Weaver.

Mr. Ames was born in the Orser neighborhood about three miles northeast of Codrington seventy-nine years ago, his parents being one of the pioneer families in that locality.

Fifty-nine years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Nancy Fraleigh, whose father, Mr. Carlton Fraleigh, resided at the time in that neighborhood.

He is survived by his wife, who bore him six daughters and one son. Of these the following survive him: Mrs. Sam. McColl, Mrs. Clarence Massey, Mrs. Weaver, and Milton Ames, general merchant in Plainfield. Mrs. H. Russell, Mrs. W. Thompkins and Miss Mildred predeceased him.

Mr. Ames was a lifelong Methodist, being a member of the congregation of Bethany appointment, was of a retiring disposition, and very much respected by all who knew him. He was a supporter and admirer of the late Sir John A. Macdonald.

Two brothers, James and John, survive him, while several brothers and sisters predeceased him.

The funeral services was conducted at his late home at 1.30 p.m., Saturday, April 6, and the cortege proceeded to McPhail's cemetery for interment in the family plot.

Is Your Boy Glad You Are His Dad?

IS your son proud of you? Or does he wish Wally Lawson's father was his father?

Wally says his father is the best in the world. To prove it, he shows your boy the peach of a new C. C. M. Bicycle his dad bought him.

Sticks Up For You

Your boy stoutly sticks up for you. But deep down in his heart, he's wondering if Wally Lawson's father doesn't think more of Wally than you do of him. He can't even get you to talk about buying him a bicycle. You put him off from day to day. And he feels it, though he may not say much.

He's a Good Boy, Dad

He's doing well at school. You're proud of him, even though you don't tell him so.

Maybe he's joined the Boy Scouts. That means wonderful trips to the country, and all sorts of thrilling and boyish sports, if he has a bicycle. A Boy Scout and a bicycle are as inseparable as a cowboy and his pinto pony.

Isn't it up to you to make your boy glad by giving him a real bicycle?

C. C. M.'s are the favorite bicycles with Boy Scouts — and all other boys who want real bicycles.

Built to Stand the Gaff

C. C. M. Bicycles are made to stand the bumps, the wear and tear, that the joyous energy of youth puts upon them.

Frames of English seamless tubing, strongly reinforced. Bearings of hard, tough automobile steel. Nickelling done over copper so it won't rust. Glossy enamel baked over a coat of anti-rust so it will stand all kinds of weather.

C. C. M. Boys' Bicycles are equipped with the famous C. C. M. Triplex Hanger—the same as the adult models. This is the hanger that makes the C. C. M. ride so easy you feel as if you were coasting along. Very little pressure is needed on the pedals. The youngest boy can ride a C. C. M. without tiring himself out.

And the Hercules Coaster Brake gives him perfect control of his bicycle. He can stop it slowly or quickly by pressing back on the pedals. He can glide down any hill with safety.

The Kind He Won't Outgrow

Go with your boy to the C. C. M. dealer's and look over the snappy, glistening new models. There is a new 14-inch model for the very young boys. A 16-inch model for larger boys. And the special Curved Bar 18 and 20-inch models that will fit equally well the lad of nine or the youth of twenty. The Curved Bar is the bicycle the boy won't outgrow.

Prices of boys' and girls' models have been sharply reduced from the war-time peak prices. The quality is the best ever put into C. C. M. Bicycles.

There are also C. C. M. Joycycles for little folks too young to ride bicycles.

HAUNTED HOUSE NOW OCCUPIED

Warkworth Man Shows No Fear of Orland's Pet Bugaboo.

VACANT OVER YEAR.

ORLAND, April 6.—Alex. Dewey, who has resided in Warkworth for many years, has moved to Orland, and is the first occupant of the "haunted house" since it was vacated by Edward Ash about a year and a half ago, and made famous by the publicity of the Mary O'Brien case a little over a year ago.

George Rogers, who is contemplating trying his fortune in the realms of Uncle Sam, is looking for a house in which to move his family till such times as he can prepare a home for them over there.

Harold Steinburg, cheesemaker in the Wooler factory, is making a day's visit to his mother, and is assisting her in some outdoor work.

Willet Simpson has started cutting lumber and will be busy at it for a considerable length of time.

Nearly all the men folk in this locality are strangers in their own homes as the women are busy housecleaning.

P. McLavey and Wes. Hall are busy plowing some light land sod, and if the weather man continues to smile on them many other farmers will also be at their spring work.

Trappers' Poor Season.

Almost all the southern trappers who have been camping at the Trent river are trcking back homewards and report only a fair catch, the shortage being due to the farmers fencing in and placarding their lands.

Sugar making has about run its course and has not been extra good this season.

Sam. Hazlewood, who has been visiting friends in New York State, has returned home and is enamored with the possibilities there.

Baseball fills the air and much speculationsi indulged in by the surrounding towns as to whether Orland will be in the field again or not.

David Wright had the misfortune to loose a horse this week by having its leg broken by a kick from its mate in the stable.

GEOMETRICAL TRIMMING

This interesting and very practical wrap is made of natural colored wool, bound with a heavier wool printed in geometrical designs in shades of red and black. It is lined with wool in a brilliant shade of red.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

GOVERNMENT AND TRADE.

The Editor of the Examiner:

From time to time some enthusiast proposes that there would be a high public advantage through government interference with the ordinary processes of trade. Just now, in certain quarters, the favorite idea is legislative embargo upon the export of pulpwood. It appears not to be enough that in those provinces where the pulpwood business amounts to anything substantial, eighty-five percent of the supply is now owned by governments and already under prohibition as to export. What is suggested is that the private owners of the remaining fifteen per cent should be required to sell their products to buyers on their own soil, and to no one else.

This change is recommended in the name of "conservation of natural resources." But in the next breath we are assured that it would bring American companies in great numbers to establish mills in Canada. Surely this would exhaust those same natural resources just as fast as if the cut were made by Canadian woodmen for export across the line? We believe that under such circumstances the process of exhaustion would be accelerated. For those who expended vast sums on establishing mills would have to compensate themselves for the outlay as fast as possible, and the surest way to do this is by cutting without regard to the future of the forest.

The great fault of such proposed State interference is that no man can draw a line beyond which it may go. Private owners of woodland have bought those wood lots as they might have bought anything else, assuming that they would have the usual chance to carry on trade freely with customers at home and abroad. It is now suggested that by legislation, the value of these lots should be suddenly reduced, but it is not suggested at the same time that there should be any compensation to those who have sunk their money in the purchase and their labor in development. What will become of the "good faith" that is essential to business? American companies, we hear, will be attracted to establish mills. Their countrymen, some of whom have bought these woodands, will be likely to bid these America capitalists think twice before they run such risk in a country that may legislate mills—no less than woodlands—out of business.

For why not interfere with the mills too? Why not, under the rapturous vision of some "public advantage," propose a new law to compel the mills to grind raw material on a custom basis at a fixed maximum profit, making the possible profit very low indeed? There would be an outcry against government spoliation of private enterprise. No doubt, and very naturally. But those who would shriek most loudly over such spoliation are just those who want an embargo to perpetrate a like spoliation upon others. It is a steep and slippery road upon which we should have entered once we begin setting limits to the market within which any single class may carry on business. You cannot make fish of one and flesh of another.

ECONOMIST.

WAIT A YEAR

Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Why is it that "the daylight saving" must be brought out and dusted with house cleaning every spring.

I have heard so many working mothers say—not the ones with a wash woman, maid and nurse maid—but the mother who must do all the work herself and then some, who will have to rise an hour earlier to prepare the breakfast and two hours earlier than that to do the family wash on Monday, say they wish they had a chance to vote against D. S.

There are 25,000 people in Peterboro who elected our worthy mayor and city council. When they were given a chance two years ago to vote on D. S. it was defeated. Why not let it go till another year and give every one a chance to vote on it?

Thanking you in advance for your courtesy in publishing this.

—One of the Mothers.

AN ANGLICAN'S DEFENSE.

Norwood Ont.
April 7, 1925.

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir —You printed a very long and interesting pamphlet by Canon Troope of Montreal in a recent issue. With the charity and mellowed sympathy of that article—so suitable and fitting in an old Christian coming nearer to to God and Heaven—we must all be in deep accord. But unfortunately as so often happens the human heart errs even in its most loveable ambitions; and the Reverent Canon has so expressed his wide sympathies and wide hopes as to seem to have little sympathy left for the vast majority of his own Mother Church. It is not by denying or flouting, or belittling, the various beliefs of Christian men, but by thoroughly exploring, learning and understanding them that we can possibly arrive at the glorious goal of visible unity. No brief panacea can be found for our sad troubles of division: neither the solutions offered by the XXXIX Articles, nor the Angsberg Confession, nor the Tridentine Canons, nor the Westminster Confession have been able to gain all Christian intellects and hearts; though they undoubtedly seemed to their several authors like the most obvious, simple and God-given opportunities for universal agreement. No doubt, too, the Quietists and Quakers, the Salvation Army and the Christian Scientists are sadly surprised that their notions have not removed all caused of difference. And, undoubtedly, Canon Troope must be pained that what seems to him so simple, seems to some others a web of almost sophistical argument, to some a noble sacrifice of his own denominational narrowness, and to some (alas!) an unblushing denial of what his vows undertook, and what his open continuance his Churchs' ministry admits to be still incumbent upon him. My principal object in writing this letter is to point out that neither Anglican not Roman nor Protestant need ever remain in any doubt or ignorance as to the position and teaching of our Church. Alone, I believe, of all religious bodies, the Anglican Church publishes her entire position in a compact volume, which is accessible to all the world: nothing concealed or reserved for initiates, the whole matter fully revealed to every enquirer. In the Book of Common Prayer are to be found all offices used by clergy, or bishops, the Ordinal (or forms of making clergy), the Articles of Religion, and certain most illuminating prefaces. Let anyone in doubt as to any of Canon Troope's positions consult the Prayer-book. They will find there just what solemn injunctions surround the celebration of communion, the making of ministers, etc., and will certainly realize that whether they like it or dislike it, agree or differ, admire or despise, the Anglican Church openly clings to her august Catholic inheritance, and to her careful and tempered Reformation, in matters of doctrine and discipline, that she fills her services with the Holy Scriptures, and that she holds fast to the highest ethic of Old and New Testaments. And now let me put a question to the heart and conscience of everyone who read Canon Troope's article in your paper. 1st, to the Anglicans—Did you really need this dissolution of all Anglican doctrine in order to learn charity? Were you ever taught, was there any suggestion even in your teaching, that you should deny Grace and Hope to any Roman or Methodist or Presbyterian or Baptist? Were you not always conscious of goodwill to all men, even when most diligently following the uttermost niceties of your theology and worship? 2nd, to all non-Anglicans—Have you ever found us lacking in fraternity and fellowship? When we attend your services, e.g., at funerals, do you ever find us irreverent or scornful? Do you find us keen to meddle with your young children's thoughts? Though you know us to be rigid, firm and (if you will) rather bigoted, do you ever find us unable to frankly see goodness, and God's grace, and even sanctity, wherever such lovelinesses show themselves? Do you ever find Anglicans among the last to contribute time, and cheer, and money to all efforts after goodness and Christian endeavour? I cannot doubt what answer must be made to these questions. It does not need Canon Troope's attempted solution of all Catholic order and Catholic doctrine and Anglican Reformation settlements to bring Anglicans into the feeling of widest charity and most joyous hope for all Christian people who walk humbly with God.

—Yours,

T. J. O'CONOR-FENTON,
Rural Dean of Peterboro

YOUR GARDEN

FLOWERING SHRUBS FOR LAWN DECORATION

The usual long lists of ornamental shrubs that may be used for foundation planting or lawn decoration, are liable to lead to confusion in the minds of those who would beautify their home grounds. When care is taken to familiarize oneself with the size, shape, blooming season, growing habits and general adapability of a small selection and then plants and cares for them, he will almost at once have added great charm to his home that will become an inspiration within the neighbourhood.

Properly placing shrubs around a homestead is a comparatively simple task. In fact the very first rule to follow is to make it simple, and then make it natural or arrange it as near as possible like nature would have it. For a small home lawn, not more than five kinds should be arranged in groups near the corners of the lawn and about the base of the building. Shrubs may also be set to a hedge form to add grace to the picture or to hide unsightly objects. The placing of either individual shrubs or groups of shrubs in the centre of a lawn is not regarded with favour by authorities and is always disappointing.

Many Varieties Tested.

Many varieties of ornamental shrubs have been tested on the grounds of the Macdonald College at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Quebec. Mr. T. G. Bunting, professor of horticulture, after checking over quite an extensive list, records the following as among the very best:

1. Philadelphus virginal.
2. Viburnum lantana.
3. Lonicera tatarica.
4. Spiraea Van Houttei.
5. Berberis Thunbergeri.
6. Syringa Vulgaris.

Philadelphus virginal is spoken of by Professor Buunting as one of the finest of the mock orange group. Viburnum lantana is not so well known, but is extremely hardy and very ornamental. The next three plants in the list are all well known and may be depended upon to give satisfactory results. Syringa vulgaris, otherwise known as the lilac, should be included in any list of the best six varieties. Of these there are many varieties. Probably the best are: Abel Carriere, Charles X., Charles Joly, Emile Lemoine, Madame Lemoine, and President Grevy.

When it comes to the selection of low growing evergreens, the following are all well known and very suitable:

Pyramidal Cedar, Thuja occidentalis pyramidalis,

Globe Ware's Cedar, Thuja occidentalis globosa Warreana.

Savins Juniper, Juniperus sabina tamariscifolia.

Virginia Juniper, Juniperus virginiana pfitzeriana.

Many By-laws

Alderman Phelan introduced a by-law authorizing the borrowing of $132,000 on debentures to pay for paving; another to borrow $5,371.12 for sidewalks; a third to borrow $2940.73 for drains and sewers; a fourth to borrow $7,200 for the same purpose; another authorizing grants to Children's Aid $1000; Health Association $1000; Industrial Exhibition $2000; Poultry Association $200; Well Babies' Clinic $700; Salvation Army $500; Trent Waterway Development Association $200; Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League $150. Alderman Phelan also introduced a by-law to provide for the expiration of billiard table licenses at a uniform time. The by-law provides license fees for billiard tables as follows: 3 month $15; 6 month $25; 9 months $30; 12 months $35. All licenses must be renewed on March 1 next.

Another bylaw appoints E. H. D. Hall arbitrator to represent the city in ascertaining the amount the city should pay the county for the administration of justice.

Parks Caretaker

Alderman Turner introduced a by-law to authorize the completion of an agreement for caretaking of the parks. Tenders were opened and the contract awarded to Daniel Hayward.

The tenders were: W. Henry, London street, $335; D. Hayward, Harvey street, $900; J. McDonald, Jackson avenue, no sum.

Last year's contract awarded to Mr. Hayward was at $875, but he pointed out that there is a great deal more work this year. Mr. Hayward was highly recommended by the chairman of the Parks committee.

By-law for Sewers

A bylaw was introduced by Alderman Fife to authorize the construction of sewers on Hetiune street from Wolfe street to a point 296 feet north of Wolfe street. This is to provide work for the unemployed and will be started at once.

Ald. Fife introduced another to authorize the Mayor and Clerk to execute a license with the Department of Railways and Canals in connection with the laying of pipe lines to the sewage disposal plant.

Alderman McIntyre brought in a bylaw to provide for the remuneration of His Honour E. C. S. Huycke as member of the Board of Commissioners of Police. The sum to be paid is $300 per annum.

All of these bylaws passed.

Another Tax

Alderman Fife would charge a rental for all gasoline tanks of at least $10 or $20 a year. He thought it was too easy to get a tank and to get permission to install it. Alderman Crowe said that as considerable private capital was going into tanks on private property the council should refuse any further tanks for a year.

Alderman Fife and Meyers moved that permission to instal those applied for be granted.

The offer of D. Mitchell to sell a lot for $60 was accepted.

E. H. D. Hall asked for permission to extend his building as far out as the Hill Building.

The city engineer said that the Market building encroached 2 feet, 2½ inches on Charlotte street, and the Customs House was 2 feet on Charlotte street, and 7½ per cent of the business buildings were over the street lines. The request of Mr. Hall was granted.

Aldermen Jones and Phelan moved that each person in the City Council photograph group be given a copy of the photograph to cost $1 apiece.

Alderman Fife thought it a compliment that the members of council should have their pictures alongside those of the staff. The motion was passed.

Song Services in Park

Mr. Mulligan asked permission to use Central Park for song services after church services on Sunday evenings during the summer. This was granted.

The City Clerk was authorized to have 200 copies of the auditors' report printed.

The City Engineer will proceed with work for the sewage disposal plant. The order of the Provincial Board of Health to construct the plant was referred to the Board of Works.

A request frm Miss M. J. Barnard for permission to build a brick veneer kitchen and sheet iron garage within the fire limits and one from R. M. Wilson for a sheet iron garage within the limits were granted. City Engineer suggested that this section of the bylaw be changed as the Council always gave permission in any event on application being made.

CIGAR BOX CONTAINING MONEY IS A NEW MYSTERY UNCOVERED IN MATTHEWS' JAIL TESTIMONY

Rumor Current During Last Days of Hearst Government, He Says.

HEARSAY BANNED.

Peter Smith Says He Was Offered $15,000 by Late Col. Mason.

TORONTO, April 7 (Canadian Press)—The evidence of Peter Smith and Charles Matthews, former treasurer and deputy treasurer of Ontario respectively, who are now serving terms in Portsmouth Penitentiary, relating to the charge that a "toll gate" existed at Parliament Buildings was read in full this morning before the public accounts committee. It was taken yesterday at the penitentiary by a sub-committee of the public accounts committee.

One of the features of the Matthews evidence was that a rumor was current during the last days of the Hearst Government that there was a mysterious cigar box in the building containing a large sum of money. Mr. Matthews, on advice of counsel, declined to state from whom he had heard the rumor. Mr. Matthews stated he had heard Thomas McGarry, former provincial treasurer, had received money from somewhere. W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, proceeded to question Matthews about this rumor, but C. M. McCrea, Minister of Mines, interrupted to say that in justice to men in public life, witness should confine himself to what he actually knew. The committee decided not to hear hearsay evidence.

Another sensational bit of evidence was the statement made by Peter Smith that he had been offered $15,000 by the late Col. Mason of the Home Bank. He declared he refused it, and had never received anything from the Home Bank.

Smith Could Make Name.

Matthews said he remembered little about the loan which went through in September, 1919, a few weeks before the defeat of the Hearst Government. He had been told about the loan by Thos. McGarry, then treasurer. He said that Mr. Haney of the Home Bank had come several times to see Mr. McGarry before the loan was made. Mason met McGarry in his private office. Matthews said he had no personal knowledge of money coming to Mr. McGarry. He was not permitted to amplify his statement about rumors.

Witness said McGarry, after the election, "told me he would like me to mention to Mr. Smith,' that Smith could "make a name for himself by going ahead making arrangements to purchase succession duty free certificates." Witness arranged for Smith to meet McGarry at the King Edward Hotel. Witness knew nothing of what transpired.

He was next questioned about a letter missing from the file, which McGarry had afterwards returned.

Paper Collection of Queen Alexandra Association Was Successful.

Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held their regular monthly meeting Monday evening, April 6th, the president, Mrs. H. G. Walker, in the chair.

Considerable business was attended to.

The paper collection carried on by the children of the school is proving a great success. A picture, "The Doctor," is the prize. Junior Third, Miss Walker's room, has won it with the three collections. There is to be another picture for the junior rooms—up to Senior First—as they cannot compete with their older sisters and brothers.

A donation for Nova Scotia relief is to be sent to the Local Council.

Mrs. S. F. M. Touchburn will be the representative to the Well Babies' Clinic.

Mrs. J. H. Vance and Mrs. E. E. Brumwell will represent the association at the Local Council.

The Association will co-operate with the Local Council to attain their share of the year's budget.

The residents of Benson Avenue and Conger Street are urging the necessity of lights on the Normal School grounds and better lighting for those streets.

Vocal solos by Miss Beulah Payton and Mr. Vaughan Walker and a piano solo by Miss Alma Blanchard were greatly enjoyed. The accompanists were Miss Blanchard and Mr. Renwick.

The banner was won by Senior Fourth, Mr. M. H. Park's room.

Suffered For a Year Friend Gives Advice

Mr. Louis Pourier Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Quebec man suffered with pains in his right side and was completely relieved after a short course of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Gerard des Laurentides, Que., April 6.—(Special).—"I have suffered for a year with pains in my right side. A friend of mine advised me to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have taken seven boxes and am now perfectly relieved, thanks to your Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I had taken several other remedies but without getting relief." This statement comes from Mr. L. Pourier, well-known resident of this place.

Dodd's Kidney Pills strengthen the kidneys and put them in shape to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. With pure blood there is good health all over the body.

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from druggists everywhere, or The Dodd's Medicine Co., Ltd., Toronto.

DEATH AND INJURY FOLLOW EXPLOSION

One Killed and 100 Buildings . . Destroyed Out of 300.

HANOVER, Mass., April 7 (Canadian Press).—One man is known to be dead and several other employees of the National Fireworks Company plant here are believed to have lost their lives when a series of explosions followed by fire destroyed a large part of the plant this afternoon. The fire departments of seven towns were struggling to save the magazines and surrounding houses.

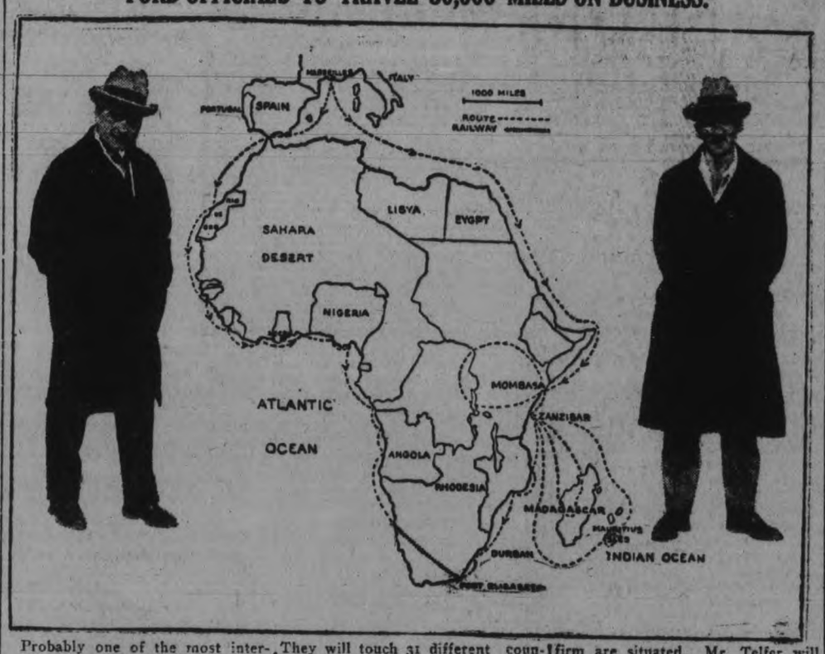
At 2 o'clock it was estimated that 100 of the 300 buildings had been destroyed. The number of dead will not be determined until a check up has been made of the workers, most of whom are of Portuguese and Lithuanian origin. At that hour the firemen believed that the powder magazine was safe, but in the path of the flames was a large shipping building in which hundreds of tons of finished products are stored.

WOMEN MAY VOTE.

Chamber of Deputies Gives Municipal Suffrage to Women.

PARIS, April 7 (Canadian Press)—The Chamber of Deputies this evening passed a bill giving women the right to vote in municipal elections, and also making them eligible for municipal office if elected. A similar bill was passed by the chamber in 1919, but was defeated in the Senate.

FORD OFFICIALS TO TRAVEL 30,000 MILES ON BUSINESS.



Probably one of the most interesting trips ever undertaken by any Canadian or British concern, is the one just commenced by Alan F. Telfer and J. D. Leach, of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited. They have left the Home Office, Ford City, Ontario, to encircle the dark continent on a trip of trade investigation in Africa and each faces a trip of 30,000 miles. They will touch 31 different countries, and colonies.

Both representatives will travel first to London, and then to France, to Marseilles. Here they will part company—Mr. Leach will sail eastwards, carrying out his duties right down the coast, and through the islands to Port Elizabeth, where the South African headquarters of the firm are situated. Mr. Telfer will strike out for Rio De Oro and the Gold Coast, on the west. The adventurers will meet at Port Elizabeth, and each man will proceed to cover the ground passed over by the other.

After the double trip is completed, they will return to England, and eventually to the Home Office in Ford City, Ontario.

JESSIE ALEXANDER CONCERT.

Mrs. Jessie Alexander, the noted elocutionist from Toronto, gave a delightful series of readings in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening, at the concert held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Church. Although the attendance was not very large, it was an appreciative audience that responded to the efforts of the visiting reader and assisting musicians in an enjoyable programme. Mr. John Crane acted as announcer of the various numbers and also as accompanist for the vocal selections.

Mrs. Alexander's readings were given in her well-known manner, natural, unaffected, with a real mastery of the mimic art that made her characters live for her hearers. Her selections in dialect were particularly good, much applause following every effort along this line.

She gave, with splendid effect, some impressions of travel on "The Continong," by an elderly Scotch lady, whose ideas on the religion and art galleries of Rome created much amusement in her hearers. As an encore, there was a humorous little bit, epitomizing opinions of different religions.

"The Turning Point," the story of a homesick little Irish lad and a dog, contained a good deal of dramatic force, and was applauded vigorously. An encore was the bachelors' skit, "Auction Extraordinary."

The different characterizations of children reciting their "pieces" contained in Friday Afternoon in a Primary School," was very well done, and there was a degree of haunting pathos in its encore, the brief bit by the Irish poet, Padraic Colum, "The Old Woman of the Roads."

Mrs. Alexander's final contributions to the programme were a patriotic poem, a tribute to the King of England, and one of her well-liked Mrs. 'Arris readings, depicting the talkative lady extolling the virtues of "Patient Medicines," while suffering from "affectations of the throat."

Instrumental and vocal selections that added much to the entertainment was a violin number by Miss Winnie Evans, accompanied by Miss Olga Fowler, two Scotch songs by Mr. D. Carlisle, a vocal duet by the Misses Bertha Hill and Helen Lamb, and a pianoforte number by Miss Olga Fowler.

KANSAS CITY, April 7.—(United Press). — After kidnapping H. S. Southward, who was en route to a bank, and forcing him into an automobile where two accomplices lay in waiting, a pretty bobbed hair flapper bandit offered to kiss her victim for the trouble she had caused him.

"Nothing doing," said Southward as he pushed her away, "you have caused be enough trouble already."

He lost $112 in cash, $93 in cheques and the pair of shoes he wore.

NO FILIBUSTER IN UNION BILL

Word Passed Around Progressive and Liberal Ranks That Talk Useless.

THRESHED OUT.

TORONTO, April 7. — In spite of the many forecasts to the contrary, it is not anticipated that there will be any attempt at a filibuster when the Church Union Bill comes before the Legislature for discussion. From a reliable source it was learned this morning that word had gone through the Liberal and Progressive ranks that there would be no use discussing the matter further as it had been threshed out for weeks by the sub-committee and committee on private bills.

GREAT HONORS FOR BALFOUR

Jews Perform Ancient Ceremony of Welcome and Honor.

CARRIED LAW SCROLL.

NAZARETH, Palestine, April 7 (Canadian Press).—The Earl of Balfour, who came to Palestine to dedicate the new Hebrew University, arrived here last night somewhat worn and fatigued after a strenuous day in which he had visited the Jewish settlements of Nahalal and Balfouria, lying in the plains of Jesrael. He was accorded an enthusiastic reception at both places. At Balfouria, Britain's statesman was received with the highest honors that Jews can pay to an illustrious visitor, the scroll of the law being carried before him, under a canopy, and bread and salt placed for him on a table.

HAM-AND-EGGER TRIES ELECTION

Hoboed His Way in New York as a Prize Fighter.

NOW IN GERMANY.

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Some old time "ham-an'-egger" — fourth-rate prizefighters who rarely get beyond the second round—are watching the progress of the German Presidential election with great interest.

For Ernst Thaelmann, one of their number, is running for the office.

He is the Communist candidate and didn't score very heavily in the first election, March 29, when he polled less than 2,000,000 votes. But then no one did get the decision—for there wasn't a majority vote for any of the combatants.

By April 26, the next election, Thaelmann may pick up some of the votes his party lost. But the old-timers here aren't taking any bets.

"Thaelmann was an awful bum scrapper," they recall. "We don't think he ever won a bout."

But no one can recall exactly when he lost one. For Thaelmann is a man of mystery.

He came to this country, and hoboed his way around. When he was down and out he would try his hand in the prize fight ring.

Then he disappeared.

The next thing heard of him was his appearance in the political arena—in Germany.

If he gets elected, some of the old fighters may start recalling the time when he did show promise. He will be heralded as another Trotzky, who went from seclusion in The Bronx to fame in Russia.

But if he gets defeated, they will relegate him to the realm of "has-beens—who never was much anyhow."

BOYISH FROCK FOR GIRL.

The French designer who conceived this frock for a miss of eight or so did not scruple to copy the costume of her little brother and we find a gingham blouse buttoned to lightweight flannel trunks. The vogue for masculine clothes has, evidently, no age limit.

TRYING TO SETTLE EUROPEAN DEBTS

American Treasury Official is on His Way Overseas.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(Canadian Press).—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Winston, who has just been appointed secretary to the Foreign Debt Funding Commission, is on his way to Europe. The inference is that he goes to see if something cannot be done to get the countries that have failed to arrange for settlement of their accounts with the United States to have the matter put on something like a business basis.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

IDEAL SPRING CAMP.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., April 7.—The continued popularity of Florida as a training camp for major league clubs depends on whether the magnates value climate more than filthy lucre.

Unquestionably Florida offers the ideal spring climate to condition a club for the long campaign of 154 games. Of the 10 clubs training in Florida I doubt if one of them loses more than two days' practice during their long stay. Some of them haven't lost a single minute.

The climate is in Florida but there isn't much patronage. A goodly number of the clubs are training in small cities. The natives are only mildly interested. The transients are willing to wait until they get back north for their baseball.

A crowd of 1000 at an inter-league game in Florida is a large gathering. The attendance at most of the contests is considerably less. Such crowds won't make expenses; showing a profit is out of the question.

When you see a magnate forsake Florida for some of the larger southern cities after his club has once trained in that state, the answer is the gate has a greater appeal than the climate.

GATE MONEY SMALL.

The one exception to the small gate wil be the series between Washington and New York. These games between tho two pennant winners have just enough color to attract native and tourist.

So far there has been a sell-out of the park wherever the games have been payed. In the two games at Palm Beach, big business resulted, the top price being $3.00, which was willingly paid.

Th transient population of Palm Beach and West Palm Beach is made up largely of easterners, many of them New Yorkers, and they turned out big to see the world series rivals of last year renew the battle.

In other cities along the route north, the secretaries of the two clubs tell me the advance sale points to capacity crowds. Then there are the games to be played in Washington and New York.

These two clubs will not only get the climate but the old cash as a result of the spring training games in Florida and points north.

NEED BETTER INFIELDS

One thing major leagues must pay more attention to, in order to get full benefit of the spring training in Florida, are the infields.

The soil of Florida, in many places made up of much sand, does not make for good baseball diamonds. The clay and loam are lacking that give a base to the infield.

In a number of games this spring I have seen high-priced stars subjected to bad falls and twisted legs as a result of slipping in the sand of the infield and outfield.

Several of the clubs have sent their ground-keeper south well in advance of the squad, imported the proper clay and loam to work with and have got excellent results.

With all other conditions ideal for conditioning a club, the question of good infields, which must be of grass, if the best results are to be attained, will soon be solved.

Any big league club that can't get in shape in Florida simply must be classed as a team that is lacking in major leaue caliber.

MAILS EXPECTS TO WIN 25 GAMES.

Star of Cleveland's Pennant Victory in 1920 Says He Has Developed Right Mental Attitude.

WALTER "DUSTER" MAILS

STOCKTON, Calif., April 7.—"Fans—watch Walter Mails this year!

"If he doesn't win at least 25 games for the St. Louis Cardinals, he's going to be the most surprised man in the world."

Walter Mails speaking. And the big eccentric southpaw—"The Great Mails" they call him in the Coast League—is back in the majors positive that he'll be a star for several years at least.

And don't get the idea the fans can ride Mails from the stands. Neither can the coaches tease him until he chucks away a lead and is rushed to the showers.

"I'm totally deaf on the ball field nowadays," says Walter. "And the fact that I took part in over 60 games in the Coast League last season, turning in 23 wins, shows I've still got the stuff.

"They've classed me as temperamental for years—some charitably call it colorful. I've been rated a hard man to handle. Let me say my troubles in this respect haven't been due entirely to Walter Mails. Most of it was managers' lack of understanding.

"I was an idol in Ohio after I pitched Cleveland to a pennant in 1920. When I reported back in the spring they expected a win every time I pitched regardless of the injury to my back. They began riding me. That made me sensitive. I listened to the gibes of opposing coaches. That was when I needed an understanding manager.

"Tris peaker told me I was a big leaguer even when he sent me back to the coast. I knew it, so I started to get my mental attitude as good as my throwing arm. I did—and that's why I am going to be one of the big figures in baseball from now on.

"Now that I'm with Branch Rickey, there is nothing to it. He's a keen judge of ball players, a student of human nature, and the man to bring the best out of Walter Mails."

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The "pull down" operates to take out of the forward swing in golf the usually predominant "right hand instinct." That is, the average player, from the top of the back swing, instinctively strikes down with his right hand and right side, as he would strike a blow with his fist or with a baseball bat.

The golf club, in the full swing, is not struck down with the right hand—it is pulled down with the left arm, and this left-arm pull extends throughout the entire left side. Right there you have the "pull down" in principle. This "pull" extends clear down to the ball, at which time the right shoulder and the right side of the body instinctively go into the shot, but you will observe how very late in the swing this right side influence is exerted. The "pull down" takes the right side push off the beginning of the forward swing and puts it near the end of it, where it belongs.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., April 7.—The Browns picked out an appropriate training spot. Tarpon Springs is a notable fish center. The fish consist mainly of tarpons, tourists and theorists.

Young George Sisler, who skulled his way through Michigan, is still subjected to collegiate relapses and runs the ball cub on an academic basis with advanced educational amendments.

Just the same, some of Mr. Sisler's theorems are not to be snickered at behind coarse, manicured fingers. One of his most important one is that it takes ball players to win ball games.

Some of Mr. Sisler's employees, posing as ball players could be indicted for misrepresentation of fact, but in Williams, Tobin, McManus, Gerber and the ancient Jacobson he boasts talent of a neat and fashionable pattern.

One of his new pitchers is Joe Bush, late of the Yankees. Bush is a gentleman with plenty of stuff including a back-firing temperament. He probably takes his new situation with about as much satisfaction and enjoyment as an invalid would a second helping of typhoid germs.

Until recently Dave Danforth, one of the valued onion tossers, was a holdout. Danforth wired Mr. Ball, the animated bank roll, he intended to enter the dental profession.

Mr. Ball distributes his money with the same freedom of movement that marks the progress of glue flowing from an open bottle. Danforth received a wire to this effect: "You'll make more money pulling teeth than trying to pull my leg."

Whether the Browns will go anywhere in particular or nowhere in general hinges to a vital extent, on the deportment of Mr. Sisler's eyes under fire. Mr. Sisler is quite optimistic. And sometimes an optimist, in such cases, gets further than an optometrist.

The Browns have never won a pennant. Sympathy is always with an underdog. But sympathy gets little chance to break in the box score, as a pinch-hitter for Ruth or a relief pitcher for Johnson.

CHURCH LEAGUE—Y.M.C.A.

The Church League semi-finals were played off at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday and Thursday. The opposing teams on Tuesday were Murray Street, led by Harry Baptie, and St. John's, led by Archie Hood. Some of St. John's team unwisely chose that night to roll their low games of the season and allowed Murray Street to romp home in front by over two hundred pins. This is the first year that St. John's have entered a team in this league and yet their captain has managed to gather one of the strongest teams in the league and they are to be congratulated on getting into the semi-finals. This is the second year for Murray Street getting into the finals, they having been eliminated by St. Luke's last year. Murray Street will now play All Saints, the winners of Thursday night's game on Tuesday and Thursday of this week.

Murray Street rolled a nice game for the third game, rolling 989. Fitzgerald was high for the three games, rolling 612 for the three games. He also had two great singles of 240 and 237. Ham rolled high for St. John's for three games. Some other nice singles were Loomis' 228, Good's 234, Ham's 194 and 181, McClellan's 185, Hall's 185, White's 180.

In the second game of the Church League semi-finals at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday night All Saints captained by "Ted" Rye, managed to beat out George Street, led by Ellsworth Ingall, by about a hundred and fifty pins. All games were good and the second was closely contested, George Street winning out by a few pins. This victory enables All Saints to enter the finals against Murray Street. George Street has steadily improved since entering the league last year, and if the same improvement is noticeable next year, they are due for the championship. All Saints were in the finals last year, when they were beaten out by a few pins by St. Luke's.

The steady finish of All Saints in all the games enabled them to pull through with the victory. Lewis was high for the three games, having a total of over 600, with three nice singles of 203, 202 and 195. Jory had the high single of the evening, however, with 222. Some other nice singles were Wasson's 202 and 192, Gimblett's 195 and 178, Rye's 189, Borland's 182, Hodgson's 180, Ash's 182 and 182.

LEE DE FOREST FIRST ON AIR

Broadcast From Toledo in 1907—Heard a Block Away.

INVENTOR'S START

TOLEDO, April 7.—The first radio sending station in the world, where music and the voice were broadcast by wireless telephone, was established in a room in the Nicholas Building, this city, in July, 1907.

Lee De Forest, inventor of the wireless telephone and father of the present extensive radio broadcasting, was at the sending station. His co-worker, Frank E. Butler, received in a room a block away in the Ohio Building.

Butler is now manager in charge of sporting goods and radio sets in a Toledo department store. He had been associated with De Forest since they met at the St. Louis Fair in 1904 when Butler, then a train dispatcher, visited the exposition.

In the summer of 1906 Butler, from the station he had erected at Manhattan Beach, L. I., in conjunction with De Forest, sent the first wireless telegraph message across the Atlantic.

De Forest in 1907 perfected, in the old Parker Building, New York City, the first audion bulb, the instrument that foreshadowed the dawn of the wireless telephone. He and Butler designed two crude sending and receiving sets and went to Put-in-Bay, in Lake Erie, where during the yacht races the wireless telephone proved its worth. De Forest had his set on the Yacht Thelma and sent to Butler, on shore, verbal accounts of the races on the lake.

Neither had funds. Toledo being nearby, Butler induced De Forest to come here where they at least could eat at Butler's father-in-law's table. Setting up their crude sets in the Nicholas and Ohio Buildings they carried on their experiments, using an old talking machine for music when not discussing the results orally by wireless.

Butler says De Forest got his real financial start when he was ordered in 1908 to build 40 wireless telephone sets for Admiral Bob Evans' fleet about to sail around the world. Butler left the inventor about this time and organized the American Wireless Institute, the first of its kind in the world.

The proposals have been given support of the Cabinet and the Government's forces are preparing for a finish fight which may mean the end of the Herriot Premiership.

The great enthusiasm aroused here over the forthcoming engagement of the ORIGINALS is indeed well merited for "Stepping Out" is the biggest laugh maker and the most beautiful singing production these clever entertainers have ever brought to town. This season has brought forth many novel ideas in the Original shows, while many of the Original Dumbells favorites, together with several new soldier artists of distinction, are all "Stepping Out" as they have never 'stepped' before at the Grand, Friday and Saturday. JULIA ARTHUR IN "SAINT JOAN."

George Bernard Shaw's much discussed play, "Saint Joan", will be presented at the Grand on April 20, with Julia Arthur in the title role. The play has made a profound impression in New York and London and now that it is to have the distinction conferred by an actress of Miss Arthur's high attainments, its presentation is eagerly awaited.

Shaw is said to have drawn Joan as boyishly simple, yet of a spirit that flames forth and inspires the defeated French Army to victory. In the Cathedral scene, Joan, deserted by State, Army and Church, is said to rise to heights of dramatic intensity. The scene in which the judges are faced with the horrible crimes committeed in the name of religion has been praised as intellectual drama of the highest order.

Seldom in the past twenty-five years has a play caused such general discussion as Shaw's "Saint Joan." It will be a pleasure to welcome Julia Arthur to interpret his Joan. Her return to the legitimate stage is something of an event, as it is well known that her brilliant mind, her fascinating personality and charm, her remarkable beauty, with her skill in delineating character, place her among the foremost ranks of the dramatic artists of this country. In fact, to properly represent Shaw's great play, the very best actors are required, and some of those in the more important parts are Edwin Mordant, John McGovern, Lynn Pratt, Henry Travers, George Fitzgerald, Lowden Adams, Erskine Sanford, Albert Barrett, Emil Hoch, Stanley Wood, Edward Skinner, House Baker Jameson, George Kendall and others.

BERNARD SHAW, Author of Saint Joan, at the Grand, Monday, April 20th.

AT THE REGENT

"DANTES INFERNO" COMES TO TOWN—GOES OVER WITH BANG, SAYS REVIEWER

Famed Allegory Pictures Dante's Trip to Hades—Has Strong Modern Story.

"Dante's Inferno," the picture which has been talked about for months for this reason or that, came to town at last and will be seen daily at the Regent Theatre until Wednesday evening. So much advance comment is floating around on 'Inferno' —about its hell-roaring Hades scenes, its hundreds of—ahem—unadorned ladies; demons lashing aforesaid beautiful ladies with whips or throwing them into lakes of burning brimstone, that we slipped an extra aspirin tablet or two into our pocket, and went to the Regent Theatre prepared for the worst.

Well, we can't deny that we had our feelings prodded and jabbed and our emotions thrown around from the depths of infernal woe to the heights of celestial bliss, all in one evening, but we came out of the theatre smiling and happy, with the sense of having enjoyed ourself immensely. It's that kind of a picture. Fantastic, beautiful, dramatic, spectacular, unique—these and a whole bunch of other two-dollar adjectives are necessary to describe this picture.

The hell stuff is strictly as per advertisement, and there are just enough scary little touches mixed up with the fire and brimstone and writhing souls to put the Dante part over with a bang. A modern story about a terrible-tempered old millionaire and his family has been worked into the picture without detracting one iota from the great poet's conception of Hell. In fact, to our mind, it built up the picture in very satisfactory style.

Really the picture is well worth seeing; it has been reverently handled; it is a faithful picturization of the Dante text and it sets some new high marks in motion picture photography. Better see it.

AT THE CAPITOL

"ZEEBRUGGE."

Something so extremely different from the ordinary run of moving pictures that, as a last night patron remarked, a second visit to the theatre would be almost necessary to fully grasp the inner meaning of its magnitude, is the showing of "Zeebrugge" at the Capitol. It is an epic of the Great War, the story on the screen of one of the most daring of exploits ever conceived by human brain or carried out by the hands of men who brought the traditions of the sea and of England to the successful accomplishment of a marvellous achievement.

In the hands of other producers, one can well imagine this film as forming the material for super sob stuff. With unemotional British exactitude, its English makers have gone ahead and turned out an authentic picture of what really happened during the night of St. George's Day, 1918, without any frills, with very few, indeed, of those ornamental little insets of emotion which might have been added to it. So plain is the pictured narrative that the onlooker hardly grasps the magnitude of the drama long after its conclusion.

The U-boats of the Germans were taking swift and unceasing toll of British shipping and British lives. British officers, aghast at the increasing menace of the fiendish submarines, decided that something must be done to stop them, so they went ahead and did it. That was all. But in the doing, one of the most heroic exploits of all time was accomplished. Through the years of time, men and women have responded to the story of bravery. They have thrilled to the courage of that bold Horatius who held the bridge, they have commemorated in song the charge of the Six Hundred who rode into the midst of guns that "volleyed and thundered," they acclaimed as a nation the courage of Michael O'Leary when he charged, single-handed, a nest of German machine guns and captured nineteen Huns.

But there is something that grips the imagination and the mind in the inner story of that night raid on the German submarine base, and the boldness and daring of the men who carried it through. What appeals possibly most of all is the quality of the inanimate agents that helped. The old Vindictive, the discarded and battle-scarred cruiser, going down with her two old sister ships to seal forever the opening of the home of the German submarines, the unwieldy ferryboats from Liverpool, with their ridiculously peaceful names, the Iris and Daffodil, turning from the lanes of commerce to have their moment of glory in helping in the fray of that wild night, the tiny motor boats, like little flies, darting in and out at the commencement to create a smoke screen against the German guns, these were the materials that had their part. Not stately battleships flying bright pennants and roaring great guns, dashing to the charge. Just the old hulks and their helpers turning the trick.

"St. George for England" was the flag-ship signal for the embarking of the ships on their thrilling errand, and the answer, "May we give the Dragon's tail a damned good twist." On board were the men who had trained through long weeks for the adventure, with the relay crews who hid when the call came for them to leave the ship before starting out, so that they too might have their part in the exploit. Of the thousands that were engaged in the encounter, there were 637 casualties, among the most heroic of these, possibly, the men who blew themselves and their ship to pieces under the Mole bridge, as a part of the carrying out of the general plan.

The photography is excellent in this production, which is prefaced by pictures of Their Majesties attending the theatre in London where the pictrue was first exhibited. Opening scenes show the sinking of British merchantmen by submarines from pictures actually taken by German makers, and captured from them later. The German idea was to broadcast these pictures in the United States, so that the frightfulness of Hunnish warfare as exemplified in them might prevent the Americans from entering the conflict.

Then come the long and detailed preparations for the event, the daring plan conceived and carried through of bottling up the German subs in their home base at Zeebrugge, and the training of men for the adventure. And, finally, the night scenes, with the bewildered Germans watching the preliminary movements of the tiny motor-boats within their harbour, the old Vindictive taking the brunt of the first gun fire, and the wonderful moments of the long hours that followed, with men working under unceasing bombardment to carry out the bold design. And at the last, the triumphant return home through the black night, the feat accomplished, and the shadowy figure of the long-dead Nelson watching British seamen doggedly execute one of the most marvellous accomplishments in the history of the British Navy.

Part of the attraction of the production of "Zeebrugge" is the appropriate music rendered by the Capitol orchestra throughout the entire performance. The patriotic atmosphere of the picture is carried out, also, in the decoration of interior and exterior with dozens of bright flags.

Last evening, there was a good attendance at the Capitol, with the Band of the Peterboro Rangers in attendance as guests of the manager.—Jeannette.

AT THE ROYAL

"ROARING RAILS."

Thrilling Heart Interest Melodrama at the Royal.

An out-and-out melodrama, with heart interest, comic relief, pathos, thrills and romance, is "Roaring Rails," the newest Hunt Stromburg production, starring Harry Carey, released by Producers Distributing Corporation.

Right in the first few feet there is snap in the scenes of the battle of Chateau Thierry, and immediately after this a double thrill where the hero, an engineer, rescues his little protege as he is about to fall off the train, and thereby passes a danger signal, bringing about a collision in the middle of a trestle. This scene alone would provide a big enough thrill for a climax in an average melodrama.

A striking point in the production is the intense heart interest developed in the wonderful love of the hero for his little pal and the suffering that he goes through for his sake. There are several touching scenes between these two, and the sequences where the hero agrees to take the blame for a murder and faces death on the promise that the boy boy who has been burned will be taken care of and operated on will bring many a tear from the tenderhearted.

The plot concerns the building of a railway within a specified time, and the desperate measure of a rival company to prevent it. Nothing is too dastardly for the villain; he even blows up a bridge when the child is crossing and finally starts a forest fire. This contributes some spectacular and effective sequences and provides for a thrilling and satisfying climax in which the hero drives a locomotive through a flaming forest to rescue the boy, winning a job, a wife and a reward. These fire secnes are exceptionally realistic and well handled.

"Roaring Rails" is a picture that should certainly satisfy all who like thrilling heart interest melodrama, and be welcomed by all lovers of the outdoors.

"WHITE SISTER" COMPANY IN DANGER FILMING BATTLE.

Henry King and Players Get Into Actual Affray Between Italians and Algerians—Have Battalion of 500 For Protection.

One of the most exciting and dangerous locations ever used in the making of a motion picture was visited by Henry King's production unit of "The White Sister," the Metro-Inspiration special coming Thursday to the Royal Theatre, in which Lilian Gish stars. It was necessary to get some desert scenes, and in order to do this the company was forced to go to Algeria, where the natives were warring on the Italian government. Under military guard night and day, the actors were constantly in danger of being attacked by wild Mohammedan fighters.

As if to emphasize the danger they were incurring, the actors and mechanical staff were treated to the sight of a troop of Italian cavalry bringing into Tripoli, the capital city, 500 prisoners who had been captured in a severe engagement the preceding day.

Have Pleasant Dreams.

It was in the country where this battle had been fought that the actors were going to get color for the stirring scenes of the story dealing with the capture of the hero by Arabs.

"We could not wait for the rebellion to end," said Ronald Colman, who played the role of Giovanni, "and against the advice of Giuseppi Wolpi, the Governor-General of the province, we concluded to go out to our location on the desert forty miles from the capital city. So serious was the fighting that the city was surrounded by barbed wire entanglements. Owing to the cooperation of the Italian government, though, we were given a military escort, a battalion of 500 infantrymen and 150 native loyal camel troops under command of white officers were assigned to us.

"The White Sister," by F. Marion Crawford, is a Henry King production.

Haney was admitted to bail in the sum of $10,000.

Although considerably recovered from his illness he did not appear to be in the best of health.

ADJOURNS INQUEST IN LONDON MYSTERY

Coroner Gives Time for a Chemical Analysis on Victims in Bloomsbury Deaths.

LONDON, April 7.—A surprise was sprung in the Bloomsbury mystery house inquest Saturday when the Coroner, after hearing the testimony regarding the finding of the bodies of Granville Cooke and Selwyn Foster, adojurned the inquiry until April 25. It was announced that a complete analysis of the bodies in an attempt to explain the mysterious deaths would require three weeks longer.

Before the Coroner adjourned the inquest Dr. William Fairlie testified that Cooke's death was clearly due to gas poisoning. He said that while there was indication that carbon monoxide poisoning might have caused Foster's death, he preferred to wait for the result of the complete analysis before expressing a final opinion.

Mrs. Bertha Ethel Cooke, widow of the inventor and poet, who was the first witness, said she separated from her husband in January, but saw him recently. At their meeting, she said, Cooke acted queerly and seemed acutely depressed. Cooke often threatened suicide, but usually repented when the fit of depression passed, Mrs. Cooke testified.

Mrs. Emily Foster, mother of the younger victim of the mysterious tragedy, testified that her son recently parted with his reversionary interest in his father's estate. Foster suffered a loss of memory three years ago, she said, but never threatened suicide.

The police are in possession of a great accumulation of detail concerning the lives of Cooke and Foster.

It is known that Cooke had the power of attorney over certain money that would eventually have come to Foster from a trust fund and the police now have discovered that Foster had also executed another power of attorney to an unnamed London accountant.

POLITICAL HORIZON PRESENTS NO SIGNS OF AN EARLY ELECTION TO THE MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE

But Hon. Mr. Motherwell Observes Opposition Groups "Fixing Their Fences."

NO EXTRAVAGANCE

Conservative Says French Trade Treaty Has Resulted Adversely to Canada.

OTTAWA, April 8. — (Canadian Press).—The debate on the budget was resumed yesterday afternoon when D. A. Mackinnon (Liberal, Queen's, P.E.I.) continued his speech begun Monday night. He approved the proposed tariff board, and advised the practice of borrowing money for long periods rather than for short terms. He expressed optimism in regard to the progress of the Dominion, saying that Canada now stands seventh among the nations of the world from the point of view of wealth. He advocated a policy of improving the trade relations between this country and the United States. He considered the people of the United States a very fine people to trade with, even though they had retaliated in return for what Canada had done to them in 1911 by raising certain tariff barriers against us.

Mr. Mackinnon protested strongly against the embargo placed by Great Britain against Canadian potatoes. The so-called Colorado beetle, or potato bug, had been in England for the last 50 years. Great Britain had selected a most inopportune time for instituting the embargo because a lot of Prince Edward Islanders, relying on this export business, had gone into the business of growing potatoes extensively.

The action of the Mother Country in placing an embargo against the shipment of Canadian potatoes to Great Britain, was "like a bolt from the blue." Mr. Mackinnon declared that an authority on the subject had stated there were 150 species of potato bugs in Europe. Yet the Mother Country was importing this commodity from European countries where potato bugs existed, in preference to accepting Canadian tubers.

Has Missed Fielding.

J. D. Chaplin (Conservative, Lincoln) said the absence of Hon. W. S. Fielding from the House was regrettable. "He has been missed more than ever during the presentation of the last two budgets."

The statement of Mr. Fielding upon the closing of the financial year of 1922-23 had been a clear, distinct account, covering one column of Hansard. The present Acting Minister took ten columns, two of which were political propaganda, and the rest was intended to confuse and it gave very little information.

Mr. Chaplin protested against the lack of opportunity given to members to know just what was contained in many of the accounts. The Minister of Finance had told the House in 1921-22 that there was a deficit of $81,000,000 to be added to the public debt, and in 1922-23, there was another $40,000,000 to be added to the public debt. In the present accounts, there was no evidence of those sums having been added. Mr. Chaplin asked for an explanation from Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, and Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, who were the only members of the Cabinet in the House at the time.

"We are not sitting in committee," said Mr. Lapointe.

"I am sorry, for the people of Canada are interested in these things," said Mr. Chaplin.

HAVE MEN FOR FARMS.

Alberta to Import Labor From the Coast.

CALGARY, April 8. — Plenty of men will be available from the Coast to take care of demand for farmhands in the southern part of the province, according to officials of the Calgary office of the Alberta government employment service. "Farm hands will be imported in accordance with the demand in this district, and there is little likelihood of serious shortage developing here with a big supply to draw from at the Coast," remarked William Carnhill, superintendent of the Calgary bureau Tuesday.

KILLED AT CROSSING.

BROCKVILLE, April 8. — Russell Phillips, aged 58, of Burritt's Rapids, met death on Tuesday, in a grade crossing accident at Theresa, N.Y., according to word received here.

Phillips was almost instantly killed when he was struck by a New York Central passenger train while returning from a milk station driving a wagon. He was visiting his son, Ford Phillips. Several brothers and sisters live in Eastern Ontario.

HOLD-UP OF DRESS SHOP WAS TAKEN FOR A JOKE

Owner Locked in Window Seemed Publicity Stunt.

KEARNY, N. J., April 8.—Mrs. Jeanette Marshall, who owns Mae's Dress Shop at 425 Kearny Avenue, was robbed Monday by a negress who had locked her in the show window opposite the police station in view of hundreds of noonday pedestrians. The thief fled with $25 and several dresses and hats.

The negress on entering the shop asked for a pair of stockings on display in the window. As Mrs. Marshall reached for them the negress lifted her, pushed her into the window and pulled down the sliding door, making her prisoner. The victim pounded on the window, but passers-by thought she was doing a "stunt" to draw customers. The negress then walked out with her loot, got into an automobile and drove away.

THREE FIRES IN OXFORD COUNTY

Sawmill and Farm Residence Destroyed With Considerable Loss.

THIRD SCORCHED.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., April 8.—Oxford County has had a mild epidemic of farm fires within the last two days, no less than three valuable buildings having been burned down during that time. The most serious fire occurred at Gobles, where a large sawmill, owned and operated by John Hofman, caught fire from some unknown means and was totally destroyed. The loss sustained is about $7,000, which is covered by insurance of $2,000.

At Holbrook, the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Dickson was set on fire by an over-heated stove pipe in one of the upstair rooms and the whole upper storey of the house was gutted before the flames were brought under control. The furniture of the house, however, was all destroyed.

The third fire occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Millar, on the Fourth Concession of Blandford, the roof of this large frame residence having been ignited by a spark from a chimney. In spite of the efforts of the neighbors the house was completely destroyed. Only a small amount of insurance was carried on the building which was valued at between four and five thousand dollars.

ASK GOVERNMENT GRANT FOR RELIEF

Nova Scotia's $20,000 Only For Health Purposes.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 8. — The following telegram addressed to Premier E. H. Armstrong and D. G. Mackenzie, leader of the Opposition, by the Glace Bay Relief Committee, was read in the House of Assembly on Tuesday, by Mr. Mackenzie:

"The Glace Bay Relief Committee heard with great satisfaction that the Provincial Government had appropriated $20,000 for relief here. This seemed to our citizens the humane thing to do. The need was and is as urgent as it is possible to be. This morning we were dismayed to learn that this amount is for purely health purposes as administered by the Red Cross. Thousands here have nothing between them and utter want, and other channels have been closed by reason of the action of the Provincial Legislature. So far the United Mine Workers of America have not reported relief. In the meantime hungry mouths call loudly for bread. Health measures avail little while the people are starving. Are hungry citizens being played with by warring forces? An early government pronouncement is eagerly awaited."

OFFER TO TEST ROCK FOR GOLD IN MYERS CASE

Would Erect Mill at Rock Dump to Ascertain True Conditions.

CHARGE OF FRAUD.

Crown Asserts Purpose of Court to Prosecute the Accused.

WINNIPEG, April 8.—An offer by the defence to erect a mill to mill out 12,000 tons of rock now on the dump at the Bingo Gold Mine to prove the existence of gold in the mine and the refusal of the prosecution to consider the offer, featured Tuesday afternoon's session of the trial of Joseph Myers, manager of the Bingo Mine. Myers is being tried in the city police court on charges of making false statements with intent to defraud.

The morning's session of the trial was marked by clashes between opposing counsel that led Magistrate Sir Hugh John MacDonald to call to order R. A. Bonner, K.C., defence counsel. Accusations of making statements for purposes of propaganda were bandied back and forth between defence and prosecution lawyers.

The offer to erect a mill at the mine to test the case came during the cross-examination of L. Chamberlain, assistant superintendent at the mine in January, 1924. The witness in reply to a question said that there was 10,000 to 12,000 tons of rock on the mine dump. Mr. Bonnar, who was conducting the examination, brought an affirmative answer from the witness to a query as to whether the rock on the dump, if milled, would tell the truth about conditions at the mine.

"I suggest to my learned friends that we test this case here and now by their allowing us to erect a mill and mill the rock," Mr. Bonnar said.

"That is a sporting offer," Magistrate MacDonald interjected.

R. B. Graham, Crown Prosecutor, said that the Crown could not, even if it desired, give permission for the erection of a mill, and that they were in court for the purpose of prosecuting charges against Mr. Myers.

During cross-examination, Mr. Chamberlain admitted that it was possible for flakes of gold to adhere to bags from ore carried in them. He said most of the miners in the Bingo district panned their gold in the blacksmith shop of the Bingo mine. The witness had on Monday told of the finding of gold flakes in sweepings from the blacksmith shop. The witness said it was not unusual for miners to carry rock around in their pockets. He refused to admit that it would be possible for flakes of gold to rub off the rock.

SHORTEN SPEECHES HOUSE OF COMMONS

Definite Move May Be Made This Session—Budget Prolonged.

OTTAWA, April 8 (Canadian Press).—A move to shorten speeches in the House of Commons may take definite shape this session. The Budget debate has lengthener far beyond expectations and there is more than the usual talk round the corridors that something must be done to keep set debates in the House within bounds. Three-hour speeches have become common. It is quite likely that the question will be discussed in the special committee on rules which is now sitting. Prospects at present are that the Budget dvision will not be reached until Thursday, April 23. The House adjourns today for Easter, resuming on Tuesday afternoon.

CAT CAUSES $40,000 FIRE.

CARDIFF, Wales, April 8. — A cat chasing a mouse caused a $40,000 fire here recently. While pursuing a mouse in a warehouse, the cat knocked over a box of matches from a table. It ignited when it fell on the floor.

50 NETTED IN WINDSOR RAID

Prohibition Squad Said to Have Rounded Up Men and Women.

A WEEK'S WORK.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 8.—A further effort to clean up blind pigs of—the border following the unsuccessful attempts of six months ago, probably will bring fifty men and wo men, alleged to be dealing illegally in liquor into the police court within a week.

Officials of the Provincial police and the Liquor License Department, however, maintain an impenetrable silence as to the operations of the special officers sent from Toronto to carry on the work.

"It is not within the scope of my department," said Inspector William A. Lougheed, the head of the Provincial detachment, when asked to confirm rumors that a special squad was working secretly along the border. Other officials refused to comment on the reports that evidence had been gathered against many of the blind pig operators.

Inspector J. F. Sarvice, of Toronto, who was in charge of half a dozen special prohibition officers in the last series of wholesale raids, is here. With him, it is said, are "spotters" sent from the Department of the Attorney-General, to gather evidence of illegal sale of liquor.

MONTREAL PORT WILL SOON OPEN

May Be Clear For Navigation in a Few Days.

BREAKERS BUSY.

MONTREAL, April 8.—Following the breaking early Tuesday of the big ice-jam below St. Helen's Island, which cleared the Montreal harbor of ice, it is now practically assured that the port will be open for navigation in two or three days. The break-up resulted in a ten-foot drop in the water level, one of the largest on record.

Although there is still a considerable amount of work before the Government icebreakers, Mikula and Lady Grey on minor jams between here and Point de Lac, at which point they were working yesterday, it is not believed they will have much difficulty. The recent mild weather has had its effects on the ice, and the vessels are expected to make rapid progress on the last stage of their journey to Montreal.

With little ice reported in the Gulf and the Cabot Straits already clear, there will shortly be nothing to prevent ocean vessels ascending the river.

Interest in Montreal shipping circles is now centered on the arrival of the first vessel from a trans-Atlantic port ,the captain of which will be the recipient of a gold-headed cane presented annually by the Montreal Harbor Commissioners. There is no indication yet of the probable winner in 1925.

NOVA SCOTIA HOUSE DEFEATED MOTION TO VISIT MINING AREA

Minister of Mines Scored By Labor Member For Recent Speech.

SPOKE FOR COMPANY.

Independent Believes Harmony Possible if Disturbing Influences Removed.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 8—A. R. Richardson ,Independent, Cape Breton, resuming the debate in the local legislature yesterday on the motion of Dr. J. A. MacDoald, Richmond, that the whole house as a body visit the colliery districts to study conditions at first hand, described his view of the situation, its causes and possible remedy.

Mr. Richardson said he believed the corporation and men, if both were sincere, could easily be brought together and set to work again in peace and harmony, providing all disturbing influences could be cleaned out of the situation.

D. W. Morrison, Labor, Cape Breton, was the next contributor to the debate. He referred to the speech commenced by Hon. Mr. Chisholm, Minister of Works and Mines, last Friday, and finished Monday night ,and said that if either Mr. Wolvin or Mr. McLurg were allowed to stand on the floors of the House and plead the cause of the British Empire Steel Corporation, they could not have done it more effectively than had the Minister.

Low Assessment

He did not believe it necessary for Mr. Chisholm to defend the corporation in the House. The local government and the Federal Government as well as the municipalities had already done well enough by the British Empire Corporation, he said, and pointed out that in Sydney the steel plant had been exempted from taxation for thirty years and that by an act of parliament the corporation assessed itself for taxation purposes, and that if the municipality concerned objected to the assessment value given out by the company the onus of proof was on the municipality and the case had to go to court. As an instance of what he claimed the unfairness of this law he referred to mines No. 1-3 at Glace Bay, said to be the finest in North America and "boasted by Corporation officials" to have cost upwards of $3,500,000, yet it was assessed for only $417,000.

Mr. Morrison said a great number of Cape Bretoners doubted that the Minister of Mines had ever visited the mining area and told him that if he would visit Glace Bay he could assure him a welcome at the hands of the miners "that would make the return of the prodigal son look like a very tame affair indeed."

Decent Living Possible

Claiming that Mr. Chisholm had advocated in his speech a ten per cent decrease for the miners as reasonable, Mr. Morrison said that Messrs. Wolvin and McLurg, president and vice-president of the British Empire Steel Corporation, had advocated the same thing. He had never heard any other person publicly make the same declaration. He felt that the government might easily set up an inquiry that would

BOURBON VISITS WEST.

French Prince Not Buying a Farm Now.

CALGARY, Alta., April 8.—(Canadian Press). — Prince Charles Phillipe D'Orleans, who wishes to be known simply as the Duc De Nemours, arrived in Calgary on Monday afternoon in the course of his journey through Western Canada, which he plans by concluding with a visit to the ranch of Lord Rodney, at Fort Saskatchewan, where he will make a study of farming. He may buy a farm, but not now.

PRIMED WITH BEER HE ATTACKED GIRL

Alleged He Mistook Her For Man Who Wronged Him.

VICTORIA, April 8. — That it was a case of mistaken identity, and he had beaten up the young woman complainant under the impression that she was a man against whom he had just cause for complaint, was the answer made by Joseph Gamley, in response to a charge of assault in the city police court on Tuesday.

Miss May Stapley, a resident of the James Bay district, stated that she heard a noise behind her in a room where she was playing a piano on Monday night. Witness turned, and saw a man she now identified as the accused. As she rose from the piano stool she was struck twice in the mouth and once on the side of the head by the accused.

Taking the stand in his own behalf, Gawley stated that he had been suffering for some time from a wrong done by a man whose name he gave to the court. To forget his trouble he had gone to Esquimalt on Monday and had between 12 and 15 glasses of beer, then he returned to the city, and bought three quarts of beer which he consumed. It was then that he started to look for the man who had wronged him. The case was remanded until Wednesday.

Messenger Boy Retained $30,000 For Day's Work

NEW YORK, April 8.—Simon Lester, an 18 year old messenger boy, got Wall street excited and himself arrested.

Angered because he thought he would not be paid for his afternoon's work, Lester withheld $30,000 worth of stocks and bonds belonging to the brokerage firm by which he was employed.

The police found him several hours later at his home in the Bronx. All the securities were recovered.

UNITED STATES PROSPECTS FOR BUSINESS GOOD

Judge Gary of U. S. Steel Corporation Sees Improvement This Month.

BASIS IS SOUND

Industry Was Unduly Inflated After Presidential Election Last November.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman o fthe United States Steel Corporation, said yesterday that there had been a considerable recession in the steel business during the last thirty days, but that some improvement in business had been noted since the first of April. Bookings of the corporation's subsidiaries, he announced, now have reached about three-fifth of producing capacity, with shipments running at the rate of 50,000 tons a day.

Fundamental conditions, Mr. Gary asserted, were the best they had ever been in the history of the country, and offered promises of good business over the next few months. If the steel industry is any barometer of trade, he adde, this country has a good business future which cannot be impaired by political, congressional or any other kind of agitaton.

Cause of Lull.

In explaining the reasons for the recent reaction in trade, which was most pronounced during the month of March, Mr. Gary said that the progression in business activities which followed the election last fall was very enthusiastic and somewhat implusive.

"Consequently," he stated, "in some lines the speed was too rapid. Some of us uttered words of caution during the late fall and early winter against inflation, with the statement that it might result in a sudden and unreasonable check. I think that has happened. I think also that the present depression although not great, is more than it needed to have been if we consider fundamental changes of the country.

Prompt Supply.

"In some lines of industry because of very prosperous conditions, industrialists indulged in rapid increases in producing capacity so that the purchasing public found by experience, however, imperative the demand for products, it could be promptly supplied, and that it was not necessary to buy a long time in advance of proposed usage."

These circumstances, Mr. Gary explained, had combined to produce what he hoped was merely a temporary modification of the disposition to develop, extend and utilize the producing facilities of the country.

GRAND DUCHESS IN ASYLUM

Anastasia is Reported in Austria as a Drug Addict.

VIENNA, April 8.—According to the Acht Uhr Blatt, the Grand Duchess Anastasia Romanoff, member of the former Czars family, is interned in an Austrian asylum at Steinhof.

The Grand Duchess, who is a beautiful young woman, is a drug addict.

It is stated that she suffered terrible privations in Berlin, where she was interned for a time at the wish of her family to undergo a morphine cure.

The doctors declare they have great difficulty in keeping the Grand Duchess from the drug, other women inmates assisting her to smuggle morphine into the asylum.

MASCART BOUT DROPPED

NEW YORK, April 7.—Negotiations for the featherweight title match between Louis (Kid) Kaplan and Edouard Mascart of France, which had been tentatively arranged for Madison Square Garden on May 5 as the final attraction for the historic arena have been discontinued, Frank Flourney, matchmaker at the Garden, said Tuesday. Mascart's financial demands, which Flournoy said he considered exhorbitant, caused the match to be dropped.

PROGRESSIVE IN DRURY DAYS HAD SIGNED A PETITION TO INCREASE SESSIONAL INDEMNITY TO $2,500

Now Leslie Oke Opposes the $600 Extra Which Passed Committee Tuesday.

LIMIT AUTO LIGHTS

Must Not Exceed 21 Candle Power—Marriage Licenses Three Days in Advance.

TORONTO, April 8—The Legislature made rapid progress Tuesday afternoon with Legislation although it did not reach the church union bill which was eagery awaited by crowded galleries. Some of the Progressive members again put up some argument against the bill to increase sessional indemnities and cabinet ministers' salaries. Peter Heenan (Labor, Kenora) failed in his gallant effort to get the Premier an increase in salary as well as his ministers. Mr. Heenan was informed that as it was a money matter he could not move an amendment because he was a private member. Leslie Oke (U.F.O., East Lambton) protested against the increases declaring that the Legislature should set an example in economy to the province.

Mr. Oke thought increases should be announced just before an election and made an issue so that the people could judge. M. A. McCallum (Progressive, South Bruce) said he had promised his electors that he would oppose any such move and was therefore making his protest.

"Will you accept the extra money?" aked Mr. Mageau.

"That is another question," replied Mr. McCallum.

The Premier suggested that it could be arranged so that those who opposed the increases might not get the extra cheques as the government did not want to embarrass any member.

Raney Protests

"That is one of the cheapest things ever said in this House," said W. E. Raney to the suggestion made by the Premier. "If it is a joke it is all right but if it is meant seriously let me say that members cannot be intimidated that way." He protested against the Premier using a club over the members. Mr. Raney argued that this was not a proper session to have the increases made. "If we stayed here long enough to make legislation instead of delegating that power to the government we might be entitled to the extra money," said Mr. Raney. Mr. M. McBride (Conservative, Brantford) said members should state right out loud that they were going to take the money and that more courage and less hypocrisy was required in public life.

The Premier then produced a "round robin" signed in the days of the Drury government asking an increase to $2500 a session. This, he said, was signed by Mr. Oke and several other members of the Progressive party who were opposing the present measure. He also stated that he could not see how members who opposed the increase could reconcile that opposition with acceptance of the extra money. The

OLDEST "FREE CHURCH" FALLS A PREY TO FIRE

At Little Bras D'Or in Nova Scotia.

SYDNEY, N.S., April 8.—(Canadian Press). — The Presbyterian Church at Little Bras D'Or, reputed to be the oldest "Free Church" in the world, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin, early Tuesday afternoon. The loss will be over $15,000, partly covered by insurance. The minister is Rev. B. D. Earle, of Florence. The church recently voted in favor of Union.

In 1843, at the time of the Disruption of the Church of Scotland, through some chance happening, the decision of the little Bras D'Or Church to break with the parent body was the first to be received by the chiefs of the Church movement at Edinburgh, according to local Presbyterian historians, who claim it thus achieved the distinction of being the first "Free Church."

SUSPECT FREED IN MURDER CASE

Proceedings Stayed Against John Tully, Held Since Last November.

AT POKER GAME.

SASKATOON, Sask., April 8. — After having been in custody since shortly after November 4, 1924, when John Baptiste Michaud was murdered after a poker party at Meacham, Sask., John Tully, a harness maker, of that town, was given his freedom on Tuesday, when the Crown indicated that it was unprepared to prosecute at the opening of the King's Bench Assizes, at Humboldt.

Ernest Gardner, Crown Prosecutor, asked for a stay of proceedings, which was granted by Mr. Justice Taylor, in the face of sharp objections by J. Harvey Hearn, defence counsel, who demanded that his client be brought before a jury and given the opportunity to be honorably acquitted. This the judge said he was unable in law to order.

Tully, who is a married man with a family, was committed for trial last November, the only evidence produced against him being that he was one of the men who had been playing poker at Michaud's rooming house, and had the opportunity of committing the crime, although no motive was offered.

Meanwhile the Michaud murderer remains as complete a mystery as it was on the day it occurred.

After an all night poker game Michaud was found on a bed in his rooming house with his head crushed in with a metal pump handle apparently while he slept.

"BILL THE BARBER" MADE ESCAPE IN NIGHT SHIRT

Filed Way to Freedom From Mental Hospital.

REGINA, Sask., April 8.—Wasyl Mackenzuk, widely known criminal, who escaped at 8 o'clock Monday from Weyburn Mental Hospital, was still at large at noon Tuesday. He had succeeded so far in evading a force of 25 from the hospital and a squad of provincial police.

Mackenzuk, commonly known as "Bill the Barber," secreted a file on his person before entering his cell. He filed through the iron bars over his window, broke the glass, and jumped to freedom. He escaped in his nightshirt, but is reported to have secured clothing at a nearby farmhome. He was traced to Hume, Sask., but there the trail was lost.

WEATHER

Highest temperature yesterday, 62 degrees in the shade. The thermometer is endeavoring to do a little better each day, and though the improvement is slow it is steady. Last night's lowest, 30 degrees, or 2 degrees below freezing. The season is if anything ahead of last spring, which was backward. Snow lay on the ground on April 22nd of last year.—W. P.

The greatest number of automobiles are found in the United States, Canada and England in the order named.

WEST AUSTRALIA VOTES WET.

PERTH, Australia, April 8.—West Australia has decided against prohibition. In Sunday's polling on the question 35,806 votes were cast for prohibition, while 64,377 votes were against it.

The police this morning found empty revolver shells of the same calibre as the revolver used by Moon at Bay Bridge, a mile from Moon's quarters, where he was employed as messenger, and it is suggested that he had been doing practice shooting.

PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

KIWANIS MINSTREL PLANS BEING LAID

Mimics Intend Putting on the Best Amateur Show Yet.

Already plans of all sorts are being made by the various committees in charge to make the coming production of "Minstrel Mimics," the annual Kiwanis Show, the best yet in local talent events. No stone has been left unturned to assure the unusual success looked forward to by all concerned including the cast of nearly one hundred people.

First rehearsals for the revue were held last night and the director, who comes from the John B. Rogers Producing Co., praises most highly the talent picked up for the various parts. Every one is getting the benefits of timely rehearsal so that no part of the production will suffer on the nights of the show at the Grand Opera House Friday and Saturday nights, April 24th and 25th at 8.15.

So many times are local people scoffed at for trying their best in a very inexperienced way due to lack of rehearsing. The Kiwanis club is taking another step forward in putting aside all chances for uneasiness on the above named dates as far as work behind the footlights is concerned.

To-night the fun makers, or the minstrel part is to have its initial try-out so all those who have been asked to take part will kindly report at the Business College, on the third floor of the Bradburn building at eight o'clock sharp.

SETS OCTOBER FOR FEDERAL ELECTION

Gossip Says Ferguson Will Go to Ottawa as Meighen's Helper.

TORONTO, April 8.—(Canadian Press).—Political gossip which fixes the date for the next Federal general election on October 7 next, is given publicity by a Toronto paper in its news columns to-day. In this connection the newspaper says a story is being circulated that Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, is about to relinquish the reins of his Provincial office and will go to Ottawa as Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen's first lieutenant. Mr. Ferguson, it is said, will play a major part in the organization of the party for the impending election. According to rumors, Hon. W. F. Nickle, at present Attorney-General of Ontario, will succeed to the Provincial Premiership. The newspaper links these developments with the visit of Mr. Meighen to Toronto during the Easter holiday period, during which he will discuss political matters with his Ontario supporters.

Important Real Estate Deal Involves Change of Business —Modern Property.

ANDERSON ACTIVE

Many Phases of Campbellford Affairs—13 Years in Business.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8.—The biggest real estate deal since the sale of the Windsor Hotel, was closed here when J. A. Anderson disposed of his store building on Tice Street to Joel H. McArthur, who is in the meat business almost directly opposite. Mr. Anderson is given about three months in which to dispose of his stock of dry goods, after which Mr .McArthur will lease his new property, at least the store part of it, to D. A. Owen, who will conduct a hardware business.

Desirable Property.

The property is one of the most desirable business blocks in Campbellford, with a frontage of 25 feet on Tice Street. The brick building extends back 50 feet, and there is a large frame annex in the rear. The building is three storeys in height, the two upper floors being divided into apartments.

Mr. Anderson purchased this property from George Willman, who now resides in California, the sale being made 14 years ago. Mr. Anderson was at that time in business in Morganston, and one year later he moved to Campbellford and opened a dry goods store in his new property.

The Willman property, as the place was then known, had been occupied for some years by James Gibson, who conducted the hotel known as the Victoria House. Originally the place was built by a member of the Benor family, and was one of the first of the more pretentious business blocks to be erected in Campbellford.

Has Been Active Citizen.

Mr. Anderson announces that he will hold a sacrifice sale in order to dispose of his large stock. He has led an active life since coming to Campbellford 13 years ago, taking a prominent part in fraternal, business, political and civic affairs. He was for some years president of the Conservative Association in this riding, held high office in Masonic and Orange Orders, served two years on the Town Council, and a third year as Reeve. His colleagues who remember his services when associated with him at Cobourg still speak of him as one of the most intelligent and hard-working representatives ever sent to the "Little Parliament" from the town of Campbellford.

Mr. Anderson was one of the officials of St. Andrew's Church, and one of the most determined opponents of the Union movement, which he fought from the beginning without wavering. He has no announcement to make as yet with regard to his future plans.

The New Owner.

Mr. McArthur, the new owner, is one of the most successful of the younger generation of business men and is one of the most enterprising. He says that he will refit the apartments in the building which he has just acquired, making them modern in every respect.

Mr. Owen, who will occupy the store part of the building when Mr. Anderson moves out, has had experience in the hardware business, both here and in other places.

A Hospital Account.

Mayor Meyers and Councillor Kingston appeared before the Seymour Council Monday to discuss the case of a former resident of Campbellford, who was sent to the Nicholls Hospital in Peterboro and who was unable to pay his bill. The resident in question moved last summer from town just across the Corporation limits into Seymour Township. Soon afterwards he was injured while working on the Sebastopol Street sewer, and had to be sent to the hospital, where one of his eyes was removed.

The hospital authorities sent a bill for his care to the Township Council, but payment was refused on the ground that the patient was really a charge of the town. After the matter had been thoroughly discussed by the town delegation, and members of the Council, a compromise was reached, each party agreeing to pay half the bill.

Laid on Table.

N. A. MacColl, as attorney for A. Free, wrote Council, asking that compensation be allowed A. Free, driver of a delivery rig for Stoner's bakery, who had a leg broken last winter when his sleigh upset on a drifted road in the township. This matter was laid on the table, the councillors being of the opinion that the injured man should be assisted by the Workmen's Compensation Board.

The usual number of applications for repairs to highways in different parts of the township were received, and in each case inspection was promised.

The Council in a body will make an official tour of the roads in a few days to lay out the work for the year and to instruct the superintendent as to what is required.

Has Bought Farm.

Fred. McMullen has purchased, T. L. Diamond negotiating the deal, the farm which James Moore recently purchased from Peter Johnston, and which is situated near Havelock. Mr. Moore takes in part payment the residence and 10 acres of land formerly owned by Mr. McMullen in Campbellford, and will reside here. Mr. McMullen, who also purchased the chattels and seed grain on the farm, moved to his new home Tuesday.

PASSENGERS HURT AS DRIVER TURNED TO TALK TO THEM

Mr. and Mrs. W. Richardson, Albert Street, Peterboro, in Accident Near Bailieboro.

MILLBROOK, April 7—Turning to talk with the passengers in the back seat of his car, W. West, who was driving, lost control of the auto, and met with an accident on Sunday afternoon on the provicial highway near Bailieboro.

The car struck one of the guide posts on that part of the road tearing off the left front tire, wrecking the fender, and putting the steering gear out of use. Another six inches and the motor and its occupants would have been overturned in the ditch which is about four or five feet deep where the accident occurred.

Mrs. West had her side badly bruised, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Wm. Richardson, of Peterborough, was injured about the face. Mr. Richardson and Mr. West escaped without being hurt. R. H. Edmunds' truck brought the disabled car to the village.

"The Ideal Man"

There was a good attendance at the Young People's League on Monday evening when the topic, "The Ideal Man," was taken up, the Vice-President of the Citizenship Committee, G. Elson, occupying the chair.

Proverbs is a good book for young men to study, and the scripture lesson was chosen from Solomon's "Instruction and Exhortation to Sons," as given in the 4th chapter, Margaret Howard reading the selected verses.

Nelles Rowland read a sketch of the life of Abraham Lincoln and Walter Sayles give Burns' "A Man's a Man for a' That". The president, Miss S. Hetherington, after a brief introductory talk, read the beautiful verses written by Matthew Arnold expressing his appreciation of the character of his father, Dr. Arnold, and the influence upon his own life which the latter's fine, Christian manhood had exerted, saving the son from drifting into absolute atheism.

A study of the topic brought out the thought that when Pilate said, "Behold the Man," he was pointing to the only ideal man the world has ever seen. Following His example, in an honest effort to reach the ideal which He set, means "all affections are pure and clear as the crystal stream; a heart aflame with love to, and service for, humanity; a life of self-denial and a ready sympathy for suffering and oppression; courage to fight fearlessly to right wrong; an honest attempt to attain that distinct model which God has for every rational creature He has formed, and to reach, with unsullied soul, the particular end for which each one must answer."

"Worth makes the man, and want of it, the fellow. There is no blank in time, or in duty, that God ever meant. Therefore, in the morning, when thout art sluggish at rousing thee, let this thought be present, 'I am rising to a man's work, learning to measure life by its usefulness, and not by years."

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Garside, and family, motored to Peterborough on Sunday and were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Garside. Their little daughter, Audrey, is remaining for a visit with her grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith, and daughter, Bernice, were guests of his parents at Bewdley on Sunday.

Women Raise $500

The Lindsay Women's Institute has raised $500 toward the erection of a public fountain for that town. The design, which it is expected will be followed, is on a generous scale, built of concrete, and will be elaborately ornamented.

The local Women's Institute has been trying for some months to secure suitable premises for a public rest room and lavatory for Millbrook, their efforts ,so far, meeting with no success.

The motto, "For home and country," when it includes something that would supply a real need in the community, is evidently carried out with difficulty because local conditions and sentiment are neither encouraging nor helpful.

Miss Dixon, who spent the winter with Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, has returned to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley motored to Lakefield with Peterborough friends on Sunday.

Mr. R. M. Barlow, of Toronto, who has been the guest of Rev. M G. B. and Mrs. Williams, has returned to Toronto.

CAMPBELLFORD WOMEN HONOR MRS. M'INTOSH

Wife of Presbyterian Minister Receives Presentation —Goes to Toronto.

RE-NAME SOCIETY.

McIntosh Auxiliary of the W. M.S. is New Title of Association.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8. — Mrs. (Rev.) C. F. McIntosh, who takes final leave of Campbellford today and with her two children, departs for Toronto, will carry with her many pleasant memories of her eight years' residence in St. Andrew's Manse, but none of these memories will be brighter than those of yesterday, when ladies who had been all these years associated with her in church work and who esteem her as a friend, wished her Godspeed and presented her with a handsome gold watch as a tangible token of their appreciation.

It was at the second meeting of the new Missionary Society of the Unionists which by special invitation of the members of the eMthodist W.M.S. was held in the Sunday of the members of the Methodist Church. These two missionary societies are required to carry on as separate units for nine months after the new church is inaugurated on June 10. The officers of the Unionists' Auxiliary Society are Mrs. (Dr.) A. Haig, president; Mrs. Henry Free, first vice-president; Mrs P. B. Nelson, secretary; Mrs. Earl Greig, treasurer. By special invitation the members of the Methodist W.M.S. were present for the literary part of the programme, the address of the day being delivered by Rev. C. F. McIntosh, associate pastor of the Methodist Church.

No Blue Blood.

Mr. McIntosh spoke in his usual interesting and instructive style, "The Outlook for Canada," being his theme. He dealt with the problems that confront the country on account of the different nationalities that are found within its borders, and of the duty of the native born to help blend the different elements into one harmonious whole, a single great brotherhood. The speaker said that there is no such thing as blue blood, that all mankind sprung from a common origin and are entitled to equal consideration.

The Presentation.

At the conclusion of the address Mrs. McIntosh was called to the front. There was no formal address read to her, all expressions of regard being as spontaneous as they were gracious. Mrs. Haig voiced the esteem of the members for one who had be with them so long, and their appreciation of her qualities as a friend and co-worker. Mrs. Henry Free then presented Mrs. McIntosh with the watch.

The recipient of this handsome gift was almost too overcome to reply, as the whole affair had taken her completely by surprise.

"The McIntosh Auxiliary."

This was not the only honor conferred upon Mrs. McIntosh by the members of the society. It was unanimously decided that as a compliment to her the organization be known as The McIntosh Auxiliary of the W.M.S., which is to carry on the same work as was undertaken so long before the change, with a slightly different connection. The musical number on the programme was a solo by Miss Helen Wood.

After the presentation the members of the different societies separated and each branch held its regular business session.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh vacate St. Andrew's Manse today. Mrs. McIntosh as before stated, goes to Toronto, and Mr. McIntosh will take up bachelor quarters with Rev. C. D. Daniels in the Seymour Parsonage on Rear Street.

Mr. McIntosh will go to Toronto Thursday to be absent some days on church business.

News Notes.

Burning grass and rubbish at the residence of J. D. Cumming set fire to the barn on the premises, but the brigade extinguished the blaze before much damage was done.

John McGie, one of the men shot to death by Albert Moon in Belleville Monday night, spent his boyhood here, his father being a prominent business man in Campbellford for a number of years.

Members of Golgotha Black Preceptory, No. 381, will celebrate the 50th anniversary of their organization on Dominion Day at the farm of Peter Campbell, at Crow Bay. There will be an old-fashioned picnic with a long programme of athletic and boating events.

Personal.

William Buchanan, who learned the harness-making trade with J. I. Adams some years ago, and who has since spent two years in Saskatchewan, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Adams. Mr. Buchanan is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Buchanan of Havelock.

DOCTOR LEAVING FOR SHARBOT LAKE

Springbrook People Lose Dr. Helliwell—District is Too Healthy.

BONAR LAW, April 8.—Dr. Helliwell of Springbrook left Thursday for Sharbot Lake where he will take up a practice there and also act as Medical Health Officer. He was well liked in Springbrook. It seems a healthy district however for the doctors never stay very long having had four different surgeons inside of five years.

Mrs. Helliwell expects to join her husband at the middle of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Allen and Mr. John S. McKeown motored to Belville on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Wilson and Mrs. Mary Russel were at Bartholemew Stiles for tea on Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott West spent the week end in Madoc and vicinity.

Her many friends will be glad to know that Miss. Grace Stiles is able to be around again, having been ill most of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt spent Friday with the latters parents Mr. and Mrs. Reied and attended funeral of the late Mrs. Reid of Peterborough on Friday.

Ernest Stiles spent the week-end under the parental roof.

William Melroy had the misfortune to break the crank shaft of his car.

A number from this district attended the sale at the home of Mr. E. O'Connor, Marmora Station, on Wednesday last.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Allen McComb will sympathize with them owing to the death of their infant son who died on Saturday morning.

Fred McKeown entetrained a few of his friends on Friday evening.

DEBATE SEVEN HOURS ON UNION

Provincial House Passes Second Reading of Bill After Discussion.

CURRIE OBJECTS.

TORONTO, April 8.—(Canadian Press.)—The Church Union bill, following a debate of over seven hours, was given second reading in the legislature last night after an amendment by Col. J. A. Currie for referring the bill back to the Private Bills committee had been finally withdrawn on the suggestion of the Premier that the interested parties should make a final effort to reach an agreement over the details before the bill is considered in committee of the House. The Premier intimated that there would be a full discussion over the details in committee even if the house had to prolong its sessions beyond Easter on that account. One of Col. Currie's main contentions was that Knox College should be handed over to the continuing Presbyterian church, "without any strings on it." Major Alex Leads felt that it would be useless to send the bill back to committee, and Hon. W. F. Nickle concurred in this view.

OBITUARY.

ELIZABETH K. LAMBERT.

HASTINGS, April 8. — The funeral took place on Monday of Elizabeth Kathleen Lambert, who died on Saturday in her twenty-second year, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Lambert, of Hastings. Kathleen was taken to the hospital on the Monday before her death, and underwent an operation. At first her recovery was expected, but as she was too weak and ill, she failed to rally.

She was greatly loved by everyone, the old and the young, and by her sunny disposition won for herself many friends.

While ill in the hospital her room represented a bower of flowers sent by her many friends, to give a message of cheer to one so loved. The floral tributes were beautiful and many and numerous mass cards were brought by friends.

The six pall-bearers were boy friends and were: Lynn Hill, Stanley Stevenson, R. A. Cassidy, Hugh Walsh, Frank Walsh and Harry Walsh.

On Monday morning all places of business in the village remained closed while the funeral was held.

The Village Council (of which Kathleen's father was a member a few years ago) marched in a body in the funeral procession.

Requim High Mass was sung at the service in the Church of Our Lady Mount Carmel, Rev. Father C. S. Bretherton officiating, and interment took place in the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

The floral tributes were from the following: The Family, Sister Mary, Stanley Stevenson, Dr. Dorran, Mr. and Mrs. James Stevenson and Gladys, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. German and Jessie, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Louderville, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. McKee, Mr. Fred. Baxter, Lloyd and Cecil Scriver, and others.

MAN 70 SAVES DROWNING BOY

Cut Channel Through Half Mile of Ice to Save Lad.

PULLED BY CANOE.

HUNTSVILLE, April 8.—(Canadian Press).—Word has just been received of a remarkable rescue in Peninsula Lake, to which Ross Brooks, son of E. J. Brooks, of Hillside, owes his life. Young Brooks, who lives at Grassmere, attempted to cross the ice on the lake near his home. When about half a mile from shore the ice gave way and he found himself unable to climb out. His cries were heard on shore, and William Green, a neighbor, over 70 years of age, devised a plan of rescue. Unable to cross on foot, he procured a canoe, and with the assistance of an axe, broke a channel through the half mile of intervening space to where the young man was holding on to the edge of the ice. It took Mr. Green over an hour to reach Brooks, whom he found still conscious, but too weak to longer make any outcries.

Unable to lift himself into the canoe, he secured the boy's hands to the gunwale by a rope and towed him through the channel to shore. He carried him to a nearby house and 'phoned to Dr. MacDonald, of Huntsville, who says the young man is comparatively out of danger.

GIRL AQUITTED ON ONE CHARGE

Mrs. Bessie Tate Found Not Guilty of Burning Mother's Home.

ONE CHARGE TO TRY.

SUDBURY, Ont., April 8.—(Canadian Press).—Charged with arson and attempted arson in connection with mysterious fires at her mother's home on a farm near Hagar, 35 miles west of Sudbury, last November, Mrs. Bessie Tate, aged 22, was found not guilty by a jury at the spring assizes here last night, with Mr. Justice Mowat presiding. Another charge of attempting to burn the C.P.R. Station at Hagar last August is yet to be disposed of, and the girl was released on her own bail of $5,000.

"SLEEPS" WITH SNAKE.

PARIS, April 8.—A few minutes after Mme. Dullac crawled into bed she felt something cold and clammy wrapping itself around her right leg. Her screams brought her brothers, who found a large boa-constrictor in the bed. It had escaped from a menagerie and a snake charmer had to be called to get it out of the house.

NOVA SCOTIA

prove to the world that it was not only possible to mine coal at a profit in Nova Scotia, but to pay the miners a decent living wage at the same time.

Archibald Terris, Labor, Cumberland, spoke briefly and advanced a concrete suggestion to the Government. He said if conditions in Cape Breton among the idle miners were any worse than in Cumberland County, then "God help them." He was not a revolutionary nor a "red" but he would warn the Government that if conditions continued as at present the miners of Nova Scotia would be not only accepting money from the miners in Russia, but would be adopting the same methods the Russians used to obtain their rights.

Impartial Enquiry

Mr. Terris suggested that the Government, since it was not receiving royalties on coal now and would not so long as the strike lasted go to the Corporation with the proposition that it would waive royalty rights pending the findings of an impartial inquiry into operations of the company, providing the corporation would pay the 1924 rates of pay in the meantime. Mr. Terris said he believed the miners would agree to such a proposition and agree to accept the findings of the inquiry board as to wages.

Joseph Steele, in a brief but pointed speech, attacked the Minister of Works and Mines of whom he declared he "gets his inspiration from statements made by that master mind, McLurg."

Decrying the Minister's knowledge of mining affairs, Mr. Steele continued:

"The public has been waiting four weeks to hear some Hon. member come to McLurg's defence in regard to the statement 'they can't stand the gaff,' and lo and behold you the one man in the House who should cover his anxiety to be of service to the man, comes across with a defence of that gem."

Ravages of Capitalism

He urged the Minister to visit the mines and "see the ravages of capitalism, see the seeds being sown that will bring forth fruit bitter to the taste of the Hon. Grit members opposite and be assured that people will name their children after fighting Jim McLauchlan at the same time as they name their curs after men of Chisholm's type."

The motion was lost on division the vote being 19 to 8. Mr. Richardson voted with the government.

THE CAPE BRETON STRIKE.

The feature of the Cape Breton coal strike that most impresses the Canadian away from the scene of the trouble is the difficulty of getting at the real causes of the controversy, of obtaining all the facts of the case.

How much of the blame for the situation should be credited to the British Empire Steel Corporation?

What about the United Miners of America?

What part does that organization play in the matter?

The situation is serious; the effects are being felt all over Nova Scotia; thousands of people are suffering; the coal industry is paralized.

Why?

The people of Canada would like to know the answer.

The only way to get at the facts is a genuine investigation into the whole controversy; an investigation that will put all the cards on the table and bring out the truth, no matter who may suffer as a result.

The Nova Scotia Legislature is the body to whom it is natural to look for action along these lines.

The mines are the property of Nova Scotia, and the Province is losing revenue because of the conflict.

The Provincial authorities should face the issue.

The conditions cannot be suffered to continue.

A PLEBISCITE DESIRABLE.

For the time being the daylight saving controversy is settled by the action of the City Council in turning down the proposal by a 6 to 3 vote—although the whole argument may bob up again at the May meeting.

The fact that it was possible to present a petition signed by 2,700 people, the majority industrial workers, in favour of daylight saving was not considered by the majority of the Aldermen as sufficient warrant for ordering Peterboro's clocks to be changed, but at least the evidence of such a strong sentiment supporting summer time should have convinced the Aldermen that the submission of this question to the electors at the next municipal election would be a wise move.

This course is already followed by a number of Ontario municipalities, the election providing an opportunity for taking a daylight saving plebiscite at a minimum cost.

The matter would be settled in this manner for a year at least—otherwise it is certain that next year's Council will find themselves again wrestling with the problem.

At the same time, as Ald. Crowe pointed out, the submission of a daylight saving bylaw would have the effect of bringing out a larger vote than is customary in municipal elections, and that result in itself would be ample justification for asking for an expression of opinion on the question.

UNEMPLOYMENT A CRIME?

In Calgary the plan has been adopted of offering the unemployed work at $1.00 a day, with the alternative of going to jail.

It is not surprising to hear that many of the workless rather than accept such a ridiculous wage for a day's work are going to accept the hospitality of the jail.

The men who vote for imprisonment will ensure themselves board and lodging without earning these things by the sweat of their brow, while it is doubtful whether they would be as far ahead financially trying to live on $6 a week.

It is not to be expected that boom-time wages will be paid for labour under the present conditions, but at least it should be possible to pay a worker enough for a real day's work to keep body and soul together.

There was a time when men lived on a $1.00 a day, but it is asking the impossible to expect that the feat can be performed in the face of the present-day cost of living.

The London Advertiser, remarking that unemployment must be considered a crime in Calgary, points out that there is not much to choose in the matter of punishment between drawing $1.00 a day or going to jail.

And it cannot be said that the Advertiser is very far off the mark in that expression of opinion.

MERELY A GESTURE.

As was generally expected, the opposition to the proposal to increase the sessional indemnities of the members of the Legislature appointed to nothing but a slight gesture.

Several of the Progressive members, it is true, criticized the increase, but the veteran Liberal member, Sam Clarke, sharply declaring that no ope should attempt to play politics with such a question, took the ground from beneath the feet of the complainants by pointing out that any one who opposed the measure could salve his conscience by refusing to accept the increase.

Needless to say, no member pressed for a division after that.

The Examiner, in common with many other newspapers in the Province, has consistently opposed the increased indemnities, believing that the financial condition of the Province is such that higher remuneration for legislators is absolutely inconsistent and a flouting of public opinion.

Nevertheless, we are inclined to agree with Mr. Clark that the member who votes against the proposal and accepts the increase afterwards is little short of a coward.

For members who oppose the increase in the hope of gaining some personal prestige or political advantage and then turn round and pocket the extra $600 when it is passed, as they know full well it will be, the public will have little but contempt.

Legislators who are sincere in their opposition will demonstrate that fact by refusing the larger income.

METHODS OF MARKETING.

The liquidation, just announced, of the Niagara Peninsula Fruit Growers, Ltd., ends the career of a co-operative organization which had been regarded as successful, says the Monetary Times. It had served a class of producers within a small area and with many common problems; there seemed every reason for believing that, if there were any merit at all in co-operative marketing, it should work in this particular case.

There are several kinds of co-operation. One is co-operative buying, as instanced by retail stores in Great Britain, which return, to their shareholders or customers, all or part of the profits, or else attempt to fix selling prices at exact cost. Then there is co-operative marketing, which takes the goods out of the hands of individual producers and tries to secure the best price for them. Actual co-operative production is less common.

In Canada co-operative effort has been aimed almost entirely at marketing. Besides the outstanding instances of the grain growers in the West, there have been few other successful examples. Conditions on this Continent do not appear to be encouraging to co-operation, probably because, as in other young countries, business methods change rapidly, and no organization is so adaptable as a private concern.

Much attention is now being given to methods of distribution. The widespread between what is paid for goods by the consumer and what is received for them by the first producer has made a lasting impression on the public. There is a general tendency to underestimate the real services that are performed by the merchant, in storing goods, risking possible price changes, and in breaking up large purchases into small sales. The patrons of the corner grocery do not sufficiently realize that they are paying for service as well as for goods; a householder cannot expect a stock of necessary goods to be delivered on instant call and perhaps against a charge account, without paying for it.

Some real progress is, however, being made towards reducing this cost of distribution; and the new methods supplement rather than supplant the old. The credit store still functions throughout the rural districts, but has almost entirely given way to the cash stores in the cities. The keenness of competition among the latter has, again, led them to introduce such attractions as C.O.D. delivery, exchanges, etc., that a newer kind of store known as "cash and carry" has found it possible, by reducing their free service to a minimum, to compete successfully.

WAR FILMS.

The showing here recently of a film which graphically reproduced one of the great naval exploits of the war has given rise to some lively discussion as to the wisdom of exhibiting such pictures, says the Kingston Whig in discussing a picture at present being shown in Peterboro. If we wish to avoid future wars why cast such a glamor over the last butchery? Most of the hundreds of boys who saw it here must have wished to share in such an exploit. In that wish is the infection which advances the cause of war.

A very good case can be made out for the picture. It is a reproduction as accurate as could be obtained of a brilliant and heroic effort. It gives the ordinary man a new insight into what was so courageously attempted and successfully accomplished. It pictures vividly the daring and self-sacrifice of heroes to whom too much honor cannot be given. It recalls a people which has settled back into pettiness to that brave mood in which life is poured out for a common ideal. What could be more inspiring than the sight of those officers who, one after another, mount the parapet of the Mole in an attempt to make fast their ship, or the tragedy as each falls before the aim of a German sniper? Or there is that other scene, the greatest moment of all, when a shell has shattered the foretop and mangled the gun crews. Slowly there rises out of that ghastly ruin the figure of a man, staggering ,dazed, wounded, the only one left alive, who yet succeeds in getting his shoulder to the quick-firer and works the gun alone. Upon such devoted heroism the spectator can gaze only in grateful reverence and wonder.

The pacifists—let us clear from that honorable title the filth which we flung at it in our war blindness—admit the full force of these arguments. The film could hardly have been better of its kind. The question is whether along with this undoubted good it did not do a greater amount of harm. Such scenes of stirring heroism arouse in the spectators the wish to be likewise heroic. Good! But in the minds of the young it will also stimulate a very lively regret that they were too late to take part in such adventures. It is a short and easy step from there to the hope of sharing in some future conflict. So the bad old business begins again. That picture is spreading the seeds of death.

Perhaps the wisest thing to do under the circumstances is to show the picture, allow the good that is in it to have full scope, and spray some good disinfectant wherever war germs may have lodged. Knowledge is a far safer disinfectant than censorship. What should also be stressed is the utter waste of the lives which were lost on both sides in the conflict. In the war humanity poured out its best blood not for progress but for disruption. It is the cruel nature of war to call forth the noblest qualities in men only to squander them on destruction.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Council failed to save daylight or East City either.

Apparently it is nothing new for politicians to get into the penitentiary while newspapermen remain on the outside.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, April 7.—The export trade in all lines of Canadian grain in the Montreal market today was reported inactive owing to the fact that the bulk of the firm bids received from foreign buyers were thrown out of line by the sharp advance in prices established in the Winnipeg market. The feature of the local cash grain trade was the further strength displayed in oats, and prices scored another advance of one cent per bushel for car lots ex-store. There was some demand for sample oats on spot and sales of odd lots were made at 1 to 1 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal, and at the close of the market holders were asking two cents per bushel over. The demand from country buyers for oats showed an improvement and a moderate trade was transacted.

Owing to the continued strength in the Winnipeg cash wheat market the local flour market was stronger again and millers generally marked up prices another 10 cents per barrel for Spring wheat grades. The trade in all directions was slow. While prices for Winter wheat grades were firm at the recent changes noted, the demand continued of a very limited character.

The feature of the millfeed trade was the renewed demand from United States buyers for bran and shorts and as the prices bid were in line with some millers' views, a fair amount of business was done in this direction, but the trade for local and country account was reported to be still somewhat quiet. The market for rolled oats was steady.

Egg Market Unsettled.

The undertone to the egg market was easy at the late declines noted, but prices did not display any further change. This is attributed to the steady increase in the receipts and a still lower range of values are looked for in the near future. There was a good demand for supplies. The receipts were 3,625 cases, as against 2,064 for the same day last week, and 4,395 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter today were 2,946 packages, as against 467 for the same day last week, and, 3,248 for the corresponding day a year ago. A firm feeling prevailed in the market and prices for all grades were maintained. The demand for supplies continues steady for both local consumption and for shipment to outside sources, therefore stocks on spot are being steadily reduced and the indications are that by the time new milk butter begins to come forward liberally the market will be in good shape to receive it. A fair amount of business was done today.

Cheese Receipts.

The receipts of cheese were 572 boxes, as compared with 1,771 for the same day last week, and 518 for the corresponding day a year ago. The unexpected increased European demand for "process" loaf cheese has upset the balance of the market for the ordinary variety of cheese for some time past, as there has been an increased demand for the latter for the purpose of manufacturing the former. The trade on spot was quiet and the undertone to the market was easy, with Western fodder made No. 1 white and colored quoted at 22 to 22 1-2 cents per lb., and No. 2 grades at 21 to 21 1-2 cents per lb.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, April 7.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.78 1-2
Sterling cables $4.78 7-8.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 7.—A brisk demand for all kinds of butcher cattale quickly disposed of to-day's light offering. Cattle were arriving during the day, but most of these were not offered in to-day's market, owners preferring to hold them over for to-morrow.

A few small lots of export steers and bulls were taken by exporters, but most of the heavy beef steers around 1,200 pounds were well taken around $7.75 to $8. Choice handyweight butcher stuff was in good demand at steady to firm prices. The market generally was holding firm at yesterday's 15 to 25 cent advance.

Calves steady, but poor quality.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Hog market unsettled, sellers asking 25 cents higher over yesterday's advance to $12.75.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, April 7.—Egg prices show little change from those ruling yesterday, some dealers are now putting a few into storage, but the general feeling in trade circles is that present prices are too high for storing, and an effort is being made to bring down buying costs.

Toronto—Jobbing, extras 34, firsts 33, seconds 29 to 30.

Montreal — Jobbing, extras 37, firsts 35; dealers quoting 2 cents less delivered for shipments.

Winnipeg — Jobbing, extras 32, firsts 28, seconds 25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 7.—Assertions that Italy is trying to purchase 20,000,000 bushels of wheat did a good deal today to bring about a lively fresh advance in grain values. Wheat ran up 5 1-2 cents a bushel in some cases, and corn 4 3-4 cents. The wheat market closed unsettled, 2 to 4 3-4 cents net higher; May $1.50 3-4 to $1.51, and July $1.39 1-4 to $1.391-2, with corn showing 3 7-8 to 4 3-4 cents gain; oats at 7-8 to 1 1-2 cents upturn, and provisions unchanged to 30 cents lower.

An unexpected rise in wheat quotations at Liverpool helped to give an early upward slant to the wheat market here, and so likewise did reports that extensive hedging sales at Winnipeg for a Canadian pool had been completed.

DUNSFORD, April 6.—The members of the Dunsford Methodist church gathered in the church hall on Thursday evening of last week, to say farewell to Mr. and Mrs. M. Morrow, who are about to leave this vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. Morrow have lived here for the past four years, Mr. Morrow being the blacksmith. They have both been ready to help in any way they could, both in the church and in social affairs of the community. Thus they will be greatly missed by all.

The following address was read by Mr. P. H. Skitch and the presentation made by Mr. Delmer Thurston:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Morrow,—Your many friends of the Methodist church regret that you are about to leave our village and on this occasion desire to express in a tangible way our acknowledgment of your many services rendered to the choir and church and ask that you accept as a slight token of esteem this gift.

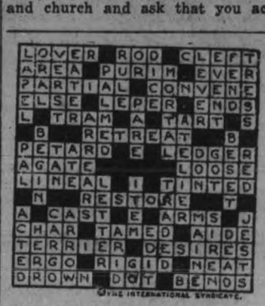
Our best wishes go with you in your new field of business and trust that your efforts there will be crowned with success, and as you will not be far removed from us, hope that we will often meet together again.

Rev. T. A. Carmichael,
P. H. Skitch,
S. S. Supt.
J. Cyril Elliott,
Pres. Y.P.S.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow were the recipients of a beautiful Irish linen table cloth, a floor rug and their little girl, Adelle, received a nice box of chocolates.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow, although taken by surprise, both replied in a very suitable manner.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and a dainty lunch was served.



SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

A THOUGHT.

TEN RULES OF LIFE.

(Contributed)

First—Be honest in all things, in business and in personal matters.

Second— Work hard, physically and mentally. Make every task, no matter how great or how small, a personal test.

Third—Live cleanly and avoid illness. Remember that a healthy body is a great asset. Eat wholesome food and build up your strength. Think wholesomely, too, for to the mind wholesome thoughts are what wholesome food is to the body.

Fourth— Take some recreation. Have a hobby, but do not let your recreation or your hobby interfere with your business, and don't make your recreation lopsided. The brain needs exercise and pleasure just as much as your body does.

Fifth—Use your imagination. The radio, on which you are listening in, is the child of imagination. The steam engine, the telephone, the telegraph, the phonograph, in fact the very country in which you live, are all products of some one's imagination. The man without an imagination can never succeed.

Sixth—Interest yourself in public affairs and do your part in both civic and charitable work. Charity is a great stimulus to both the heart and the head.

Seventh—Do not feel that you are overeducated. No matter what your education has been, don't stop studying. There is much knowledge in the world, and even the most learned can, in a lifetime, only scratch the surface. Read good literature.

Eight—Never let success turn your head. Success is only relative. There is no human accomplishment that cannot be improved upon.

Ninth—Never stop smiling. The smile is a great maker of friends in business. Remember that your frown never put wrinkles on the other fellow's forehead.

Tenth—Never give up. The world is big, but has no place for quitters. "The great difficulty with ninety-nine out of 100 people is that they will not go out of their way to gain success. Instead of waiting for opportunity to knock on the door, they should be half way up the block to meet opportunity when it comes along.

"It is pure 'bunk' to say that the age of opportunity has passed. There always are and there always will be opportunities."

8 Men out of 10 Picked the Duofold Blindfolded

From 11 New Pens of Different Makes

"I believe that the hand can tell this super-smooth writer sight unseen," declared a Duofold owner—and he proved it!

YES, ten men, chosen at random, agreed to make this test with 11 large pens obtained from dealers' stocks; and were blindfolded in the presence of several witnesses.

Each man wrote with all 11 pens, one by one, on an ordinary note pad. And one by one he laid them all aside until only a single pen remained in his hand—the pen he ranked as the smoothest, most inspiring writer.

Then the blindfold was removed. And man after man, with but two exceptions, glanced down to behold in his hand the flashing black-tipped lacquer-red Parker Duofold, with 25-year guaranteed point.

Never before a pen selection so unbiased as this. No one behind a counter to urge this pen or that. Not even the Duofold's famed name or handsome color visible, to sway the hand's Simon-pure judgment.

You, too, can tell this super-smooth point with your eyes shut. Step to the nearest pen counter now and try it.

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

"Tuboa meant to kill him when the spring came, and he could travel. When Tuboa died I knew that it was I who must kill him. So I came, with Tuboa's gun. It was fresh loaded—yesterday. And—M'sieu Jeem"—she looked up at him, a triumphant glow in her eyes as she added, almost in a whisper—"You will not go to Lac Bain. I have sent a messenger."

"A messenger?"

"Yes, Ookimow Jeem—a messenger. Two days ago. I sent word that I had not died, but was here—waiting for him—and that I would be Iskwao now, his wife. Ooo-oo, he will come, Ookimow Jeem—he will come fast. And you shall not kill him. Non!" She smiled into his face, and the throb of Carvel's heart was like a drum. "The gun is loaded," she said softly. "I will shoot."

"Two days ago," said Carvel. "And from Lac Bain it is——"

"He will be here to-morrow," Nepeese answered him: "To-morrow, as the sun goes down, he will enter the clearing. I know. My blood has been singing it all day. To-morrow—to-morrow—for he will travel fast, Ookimow Jeem. Yes, he will come fast."

Carvel had bent his head. The soft tresses gripped in his fingers were crushed to his lips. The Willow, looking again into the fire, did not see. But she felt—and her soul was beating like the wings of a bird.

"Ookimow Jeem," she whispered—a breath, a flutter of the lips so soft that Carvel heard no sound.

If old Tuboa had been there that night it is possible he would have read strange warnings in the winds that whispered now and then softly in the treetops. It was such a night; a night when the Red Gods whisper low among themselves, a carnival of glory in which even the dipping shadows and the high stars seemed to quiver with the life of a potent language. It is barely possible that old Tuboa, with his ninety years behind him, would have learned something, or that at least he would have suspected a thing which Carvel in his youth and confidence did not see. To-morrow—he will come to-morrow! The Willow, exultant, had said that. But to old Tuboa the trees might have whispered, why not to-night?

"To morrow I will go to Lac Bain."

It was midnight when the big moon stood full above the little open in the forest. In the tepee the Willow was sleeping. In a balsam shadow back from the fire slept Baree, and still farther back, in the edge of a spruce thicket, slept Carvel. Dog and man were tired. They had travelled far and fast that day, and they heard no sound.

But they had travelled neither so far nor so fast as Bush McTaggart. Between sunrise and midnight he had come forty miles when he strode out into the clearing where Pierrot's cabin had stood. Twice from the edge of the forest he had called; and now, when he found no answer, he stood under the light of the moon and listened. Nepeese was to be here—waiting. He was tired, but exhaustion could not still the fire that burned in his blood. It had been blazing all day, and now—so near its realization and its triumph—the old passion was like a drunkening wine in his veins. Somewhere, near where he stood, Nepeese was waiting for him, waiting for him. Once again he called, his heart beating in a fierce anticipation as he listened. There was no answer. And then, for a thrilling instant, his breath stopped. He sniffed the air—and there came to him faintly the smell of smoke.

With the first instinct of the forest man he fronted the wind that was but a faint breath under the starlit skies. He did not call again, but hastened across the clearing. Nepeese was off there—somewhere—sleeping beside her fire, and out of him there rose a low cry of exultation. He came to the edge of the forest; chance directed his steps to the overgrown trail; he followed it, and the smoke smell came stronger to his nostrils.

It was the forest man's instinct, too, that added the element of caution to his advance. That, and the utter stillness of the night. He broke no sticks under his feet. He disturbed the brush so quietly that it made no sound. When he came at last to the little open where Carvel's fire was still sending a spiral of spruce-scented smoke up into the air it was with a stealth that failed even to rouse Baree. Perhaps, deep down in him, there smouldered an old suspicion; perhaps it was because he wanted to come to her while she was sleeping. The sight of the tepee made his heart throb faster. It was light as day where it stood in the moonlight, and he saw hanging outside it a few bits of woman's apparel. He advanced soft-footed as a fox and stood a moment later with his hand on the cloth flap at the wigwam door, his head bent forward to catch the merest breath of sound. He could hear the breathing. For an instant his face turned so that the moonlight struck his eyes. They were aflame with a mad fire. Then, still very quietly, he drew aside the flap at the door.

It could not have been sound that roused Baree, hidden in the black balsam shadow a dozen paces away. Perhaps it was scent. His nostrils twitched first; then he awoke. For a few seconds his eyes glared at the bent figure in the tepee door. He knew that it was not Carvel. The old smell—the man-beast's smell—filled his nostrils like a hated poison. He sprang to his feet and stood with his lips snarling back slowly from his long fangs. McTaggart had disappeared. From inside the tepee there came a sound; a sudden movement of bodies, a startled ejaculation of one awakening from sleep—and then a cry, a low, half-smothered, frightened cry, and in response to that cry Baree shot out from under the balsam with a sound in his throat that had in it the note of death.

In the edge of the spruce thicket Carvel rolled uneasily. Strange sounds were rousing him, cries that, in his exhaustion, came to him as if in a dream. At last he sat up, and then in sudden horror leaped to his feet and rushed toward the tepee. Nepeese was in the open, crying the name she had given him—"Ookimow Jeem—Ookimow—Jeem—Ookimow Jeem——" She was standing there white and slim, her eyes with the blaze of the stars in them, and when she saw Carvel she flung out her arms to him, still crying:

"Ookimow Jeem—Oo-oo, Ookimow Jeem——"

In the tepee he heard the rage of a beast, the moaning cries of a man. He forgot that it was only last night he had come, and with a cry he swept the Willow to his breast, and the Willow's arms tightened round his neck as she moaned:

"Ookimow Jeem—it is the man-beast—in there! It is the man-beast from Lac Bain—and Baree——"

Truth flashed upon Carvel, and he caught Nepeese up in his arms and ran away with her from the sounds that had grown sickening and horrible. In the spruce thicket he put her feet once more to the ground. Her arms were still tight around his neck; he felt the wild terror of her body as it throbbed against him; her breath was sobbing, and her eyes were on his face. He drew her closer, and suddenly he crushed his face down close against hers and felt for an instant the warm thrill of her lips against his own.

"He is dead, Nepeese."

"Dead, Ookimow Jeem?"

"Yes. Baree killed him."

She did not seem to breathe. Gently, with his lips in her hair, Carvel whispered his plans for their paradise.

"No one will know, my sweetheart. To-night I will bury him and burn the tepee. To-morrow we will start for Nelson House, where there is a Missioner. And after that—we will come back—and I will build a new cabin where the old one burned. Do you love me, ka sakahet?"

"Oui—yes—Ookimow Jeem—I love you——"

Suddenly there came an interruption. Baree at last was giving his cry of triumph. It rose to the stars; it wailed over the roofs of the forests and filled the quiet skies—a wolfish howl of exultation, of achievement, of vengeance fulfilled. Its echoes died slowly away, and silence came again. A great peace whispered in the soft breath of the treetops. Out of the north came the mating call of a loon. About Carvel's shoulders the Willow's arms crept closer. And Carvel, out of his heart, thanked God.

THE END.

POLITICAL HORIZON

"My hon. friend may know many things, but he does not know the rules of the House."

"I may not know the rules of the House, but I know that Canadian people and members in this House want to know these things."

Higher Coal Duty.

Mr. Chaplin favored the increase in the duty on slack coal, but he asked what reason had impelled the Government to raise this duty. "Are they only doing it because they are clubbed into it?" he asked. "If protection is a good thing on coal, why isn't it a good thing on other commodies? If protection is a good thing for the workers in Nova Scotia and Alberta, why isn't it a good thing for the workers in Ontario and Quebec?" The people of Ontario asked the Government for help and it gave them a stone in the shape of an export duty on electric power. He was satisfied that this duty would be paid by the Canadian people. "I miss my guess if they don't hand a few doses back to this Government when they get a chance," Mr. Chaplin said.

Mr. Chaplin referred to losses resulting, he said, from the treaty with France.

For ten months of the fiscal year, ending in 1923, Canada imported from France to the value of $10,-215,000, while for a similar period in 1924 the amount was $13,100,000, and for the same ten months of the fiscal year ending in 1925, $15,100,-000. On the other hand, Canada's exports to France for the same ten months of the fiscal years ending 1923, 1924 and 1925 were valued at $11,200,000, $15,000,000 and $8,000,-000 respectively. In other words, during the past fiscal year we sold to France $8,000,000 worth of goods only, but bought commodities valued at $15,000,000. Who could say that Canada benefitted therefore by this treaty? We reduced our duty to France on a great many articles which were really in the nature of luxuries, resulting in a reduction for consumers who could very well afford to pay and not for the poor man.

Mr. Chaplin compared the tax actually received on the imports covered by the treaty with the amount that would have been paid to the Dominion Government had not this treaty been put into effect. These losses included $32,000 on champagne imports, $142,000 on brandy, $65,000 on velvets, velveteens, etc., and $108,000 on non-sparkling wines. These losses would have to be paid in some way or other by the poorer class.

Motherwell's Address.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, declared that members of the Opposition had in the course of the budget debate discovered everything ranging from a surplus of $2,000,000 to an alleged deficit of $100,000,000.

The Civil Service had been denounced as being overcrowded. Mr. Motherwell invited anyone to find any extravagance in the Department of Agriculture. There were 1,200 Civil servants in that Department, and not one could be dispensed with without sacrificing the public service. It was the same in other departments.

Answering charges made respecting increased imports of natural products, Mr. Motherwell gave examples of what was happening in respect to agricultural products. The per capita consumption of eggs in Canada had increased 60 per cent. within comparatively few years. Canada was exporting 3,000,000 more hides than she was importing. Lard imports amounted to 12,000,000 pounds, while the exports were 8,-000,000. This, however, was due to the development of bacon as improved bacon yielded less lard. Mr. Motherwell said that Western Canada would produce, if it went ahead according to present indications, 100,000,000 pounds of creamery butter annually within the next ten years.

Mr. Motherwell referred to the speech of R. A. Hoey (Progressive, Springfield), in which the latter had stated that the tariff policy enunciated by F. R. Jones, president and manager of the Canada Cement Company, would result in "an immeasurably better tariff than we have at the present time." Mr. Hoey had stated that Mr. Jones advocated "a uniform tariff not only on manufactured goods entering this country, but on raw material as well." Mr. Motherwell figured that Mr. Jones' tariff would be in the neighborhood of 31½ per cent., and he proceeded to tell the House a number of items, now on the free list, which would be forced to pay this duty under the Jones' plan.

Would Tax Bibles.

Among the items which Mr. Motherwell mentioned were "Bibles and hymnbooks," which now enter Canada free of duty. "Surely," said Mr. Motherwell, directing his remarks to Mr. Hoey, "surely the hon. gentleman does not wish to make the way to the celestial city more difficult by placing a tax on Bibles and hymnbooks entering Canada." Other commodities which Mr. Motherwell said would have to pay a duty of 31½ per cent. under the Jones' plan were artificial teeth and wooden legs.

Mr. Motherwell also wished to remind Mr. Hoey that the Jones' plan would considerably raise the tariff on agricultural implements. He could remember when some of these were taxed as high as 35 per cent., and now were lower than 10 per cent.

Mr. Motherwell said: "There seems to be an impression in the country generally and in the press, that we are on the eve of a general election. Speaking for myself, I can't see any signs of it." In any event, said the Minister of Agriculture, the two groups in the Opposition side of the House were "tending to their line fences."

Dealing with Mr. Meighen's manifesto, the Minister said that the heart of the thing was a proposal to revive the protection of Sir John A. Macdonald. It reminded him of the references in Scripture to the valley strewn with dry bones. These dry bones proposed by Mr. Meighen were, according to the manifesto, to be clothed in both flesh and sinew and brought back to life.

As for the proposal that the tariff board should be made up of representatives of Labor, farmers and manufacturers, Mr. Motherwell said you might as well "tie a dog and cat together by the tails and throw them over a clothes' line."

"How about the duty on coal?" asked Mr. Meighen.

"That is the nicest morsel of them," replied Mr. Motherwell. "I am leaving that till the last."

Election Talk Bluff.

Mr. Motherwell declared that the Conservatives did not want an election. "They don't want one and no amount of bluff will convince me that they do," said Mr. Motherwell.

"What seat will you contest next election?" asked R. B. Hanson (Conservative, York-Sunbury).

"Let the hon. gentleman look after his seat and I will look after mine," retorted Mr. Motherwell.

Mr. Motherwell dealt at some length with the Hudson Bay Railway, the construction of which he advocated very strongly. It was an instinct of the human race to seek tide water for carrying trade, he said. A comparatively few years ago any one who had suggested that the products of the prairies would be carried to Vancouver and shipped from there to Great Britain via the Panama Canal would have been laughed at.

"The first article I read on it, I thought the writer was plumb bughouse," Mr. Motherwell said.

People contended that the Panama Canal was too hot to ship Canadian produce by. Now they contended that the Hudson Bay route was too cold. Hudson Straits were frozen only for a comparatively short time of the year, and were navigable at other times.

Mr. Motherwell said that he could not understand why the terminus of the Hudson Bay Railway had been placed at Fort Nelson. All the information which he could gather tended to convince him that Fort Churchill would have made a much more effective terminus.

Mr. Motherwell made passing reference to Herbert Marler (Liberal, St. Lawrence-St. George). "I have watched that young man ever since he came into this House," he remarked. "Sometimes he stumbles a bit, from my point of view, but he is groping for the truth." This remark was received with amusement by the members present.

There were no natural facilities for a harbor at Port Nelson. What evil spirit had directed us to Port Nelson instead of Fort Churchill? At the former place you have to build on sand or make a foundation; while the harbor at Fort Churchill was one of the finest.

Mr. Motherwell advocated approaching this problem in a broad-minded way, and the East would prosper as well as the West by shipments through Fort Churchill. "The Lord Himself made Fort Churchill," remarked Mr. Motherwell. Why the engineers had gone to Port Nelson therefore was difficult to understand as Fort Churchill had a natural harbor.

STRICTER CHECK ON LINDSAY WATER

Commission Believes Leakage in Revenue Exists.

LINDSAY, April 8.— The town auditor has prepared his report of the Water Commission of the town, the only utility in the municipality managed by a commission. This report has been forwarded to the council and will be considered by that body next Monday night.

It appears that at a recent meeting of the Commission there was quite a spirited discussion relative to the management of this utility. It was felt that a proper cheque was not being kept on the list of water users, and there was a lingering suspicion that some citizens were using more water than they were paying for. It was decided to make a house to house canvas of all water users in order to compile a complete list of those who were using town water by meter and also through the flat rate. The question of an increase in rates was deferred until this inspection was completed.

It was brought out in the auditors report that while the revenue received from water users amounted to about $38,000, about twenty per cent. of this amount was expended in administration.

The C.N.R. was a heavy user of water, but owing to their failure to secure a reduction in the rates charged, the railway authorities constructed a pumping plant on the Scugog during the past year, the Water Commission losing about $5,-000 revenue.

ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP NEAR BEST'S STATION

Four Tramps Alarm Farmers —Police Arrived Too Late.

BEST'S STATION, April 8.—A startling event occurred Monday night on the second line of Smith, in the vicinity of Best's Station, when the residents were aroused by the company of four husky tramps, all of whom were of a peculiar appearance. They had been noticed in the district since Sunday but nothing occurred till an attempt was made to hold up a party between Mr. Harry Fowler's and the railway crossing. The police were notified at once, this being about seven o'clock in the evening, but they did not arrive until about 10 p.m., thus leaving the highwaymen ample time for escape.

However, the farmers hope for the capturing of these loafers, and several of the residents were forced to lock their doors securely lest further harm might be done.

PROGRESSIVE IN

bill passed through committee without amendment.

Second reading was given a bill to provide for a superannuation fund for Hydro employees. Second reading was also given a bill to allow municipalities to have advanced election polls open for two days instead of three. A bill allowing the appointment of issuers of marriage licenses in rural townships was laid over. The bill providing that Ontario insurance policies must be taken through an Ontario agent passed through committee as did a bill providing that in townships adjoining cities the municipality may put sanitary conveniences in a house and then charge the owner for same over a period of five years.

Register Motorists

Hon. Geo. Henry got second reading for the bill providing that auto lights must not be over 21 candle power and also for a registration of all auto drivers. He said lamps were in use now in some cases which were three times 21 candle power. He said there would be a fee of ten or 25 cents for the auto registration. W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, could see little need for such regisrtation, declaring that there was registration now through the licenses and the new provision would simply be another irritating trouble to motorists. Mr. Henry explained that each driver would have a card which in case of accident or trouble would be marked. If there were many offences then the person would not be allowed to drive. He wanted it for a check and in the interests of safety.

The amendments to the marriage act proposed by E. R. Wigle (Conservative, Centre Huron) passed through committee. The main amendment provides that the marriage license must be secured three days before the day of marriage. There was an amendment that no action could be taken for infraction of this regulation without approval from the Provincial Secretary. The amendment is calculated to stop many hasty marriages.

When the beverage tax came into committee E. Proulx (Liberal, Prescott) moved that the clause taxing soft drinks be struck out. All the Liberals and most of the Progressives supported the amendment but it was lost on a standing vote. Mr. Sinclair argued again that the tax was an indirect one and therefore not constitutional.

GRASS LAID TRAIN OF FIRE TO 2 BUILDINGS

Barns at Manila and House at Hartley Destroyed.

LINDSAY, April 18.— A serious fire occurred near the village of Manilla on Monday morning, when Mr. Alex .McInnes lost his barn, together with the contents, which included a quantity of grain, hayloader, threshing machine, seed drill and binder. Mr. McInnes had started a rubbish fire near the house, when the shifting wind ignited the long grass and the fire spread to a straw stack and thence to the barn. Mr. McInnes, who was alone, tried to save the threshing machine, but failed. He suffered severe burns on his hands and face, which required medical attention. There was insurance of $1,500 on the barn and $800 on the threshing outfit.

House Destroyed.

LINDSAY, April 8.—On Monday afternoon the residence of Mr. Alexander McMillan, of Hartley, Victoria County, was destroyed by fire, together wtih a portion of the contents. The blaze originated from a grass fire and had made great headway before being noticed. There was insurance on the house and contents.

GOVERNMENT RECEIVES NEW STEAMSHIP OFFER

Proposed Subsidy Less Than Peterson Contract.

OTTAWA, April 8. — An offer to establish a steamship service under government subsidy, has, it is understood, been received here by Hon. Thomas A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce. The offer is said to come from an Anglo-Canadian Company headed by Donald MacLeod, and to propose a line of ten steamships at a subsidy considerably less than that accepted by Sir William Petersen. Though correspondence has passed between the promoters of the scheme and the Department of Trade and Commerce no action has been taken to date. In the absence from the Capital Tuesday of the Minister of Trade and Commerce, no official statement is available.

Your grandparents relied on ENO

Years before the C.P.R. spanned Canada, ENO's "Fruit Salt" had found its way across the continent. As years have sped, its sterling merits have become more and more widely acknowledged. Now there is not a corner of the civilized world where the morning 'dash' of ENO is not part and parcel of life as it should be lived.

ENO excels because it is the one simple, pleasant and, above all, natural way to ensure internal cleanliness. You never wish you hadn't taken ENO, as perhaps you have wished with other laxatives. It doesn't do good to-day to leave you worse to-morrow.

It excels, too, because of its purity, its unchanging high quality, its freedom from purgative mineral salts and sugar and flavouring matter.

The rule of our grandparents—ENO's "Fruit Salt" first thing every morning—is as sound to-day as ever it was.

Once they called him the "Old Crank"

—but that was before he lost his Corn

"New dispositions for old corns." . . . That isn't an impossible bargain . . . Doctors know that a corn may plague a man's whole system—nagging his nerves, ragging his temper—making him feel mean all over . . . For a corn isn't just a local pain. It's a pain-station on the "main line" of the nervous system. Tiny nerves telegraph its twinges all over the circuit . . . So Blue-jay offers this fair exchange—"New spirits for old corns." . . . Solid comfort comes the moment you put on the soft and downy plaster. Two days later, you remove the pad—and the corn comes out—gently uprooted by the little brown disc of magic medication within the pad.

Conscience

HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

I'm strong for the man who can hold his head high, and look every other man square in the eye; who fights for his rights and calls each spade a spade, and can honestly claim every penny he's made.

For he is the fellow who knows how to grin, 'cause he fights his way out of the things he gets in. His road may be hard, but he plugs without fear and, when he has finished, his conscience is clear.

No man can accuse him of being the cheat, who dodges his victims who pass on the street. He never has taken another man's share, but rests on his own, 'cause he plays the game fair.

No better example for all of us lives. Consider the valuable tip that he gives. No matter how long or how tough is his grind, he h..sn't the worry of cheat on his mind.

It pays after all to treat every man fair, and do just the things that you know on the square. You may fool your friends, but you'll have to atone, for you'll find that your conscience won't let you alone.

THIS IS A PARADOX.

EXPRESS GOOD WILL IN EASTER CABLE

C.N.R. Has Special Telegraph and Cable Messages —Reduced Rate.

Easter is a time of goodwill when greetings between friends throughout Christendom are exchanged. A new departure in the sending of seasonal messages was announced to-day by General Manager W. G. Barber, Canadian National Telegraphs, when he stated that special Easter greeting telegraph forms had been prepared for the delivery of greeting messages during Easter time. These forms, which are specially decorated with Easter lilies and printed in three colors, will be placed in every one of the hundreds of Canadian National Telegraph agencies throughout Canada and will give an intimate touch to all messages received.

With a view to simplifying the wording of these messages, Mr. Barber also announced that a special booklet, suitably decorated, containing more than twenty-five suggestions for Easter telegrams, will also be found at the various Canadian National Telegraph agencies for the benefit of the patrons.

Arrangements have also been made for the cabling of special Easter messages to the United Kingdom and Ireland. For the benefit of patrons, twelve appropriate messages have been prepared and will be cabled exactly as written for the unusually small amount of $1 in Ontario and points East; and $1.25 throughout Western Canada and the Pacific Coast. The special facilities offered for telegraphing Easter messages is an innovation and should prove most popular with and acceptable to all Canadian National patrons.

WHY WE CLIMB TREES.

LONDON, April 8.—Children's fondness for climbing trees comes from their monkey ancestors, insists J. R. Lesson, famous scientist. He argues that we are "cousins of the monkeys 50 times removed."

USE 24 HOURS TO TELL TIME

May be New Agitation to Replace That for Saving Daylight.

CHANGE SYSTEM

The agitation over daylight saving that received a body blow at Monday evening's meeting of the council, when a majority of the city fathers voted it down for Peterborough, recalls a suggestion made from time to time to change the numbering of the hours on the clock dial. This is the system of dividing the day into twenty-four hours, and marking the clock accordingly. It is said to have been tried out by railways in the Atlantic and western provinces and found quite satisfactory.

One idea in carrying out the change would be to increase the size of the clock face. Instead of the medium-sized dial that we are now familiar with, we would have a double-sized affair, with figures from one to twenty-four staring us in the face, and the hour hand making one long revolution during the day and night, instead of two. Wrist watches would immediately go out of fashion, as the ordinary wrist could not accommodate the larger size required. However, the proponents of the idea suggest the placing of the figures from thirteen to twenty-four in red ink over the numerals now inscribed on watch and clock faces, and allowing the hour hand to make its double trip, as usual.

After twelve midnight tonight, as we have it, the day would end by the new system at twenty-four o'clock. Any time after that should be expressed as 0.20, it is suggested, not 24.20 as twenty-fourth hour has really lapsed forever on the tick of the sixtieth minute of its duration. No hour, only minutes, would be used, until one o'clock arrived.

It might be a good idea, but a witness in a murder trial, for instance, if the fatality happened to occur any time between twenty-four and one o'clock, might have some difficulty in fixing the exact moment by the "nought" system. And nobody would want to do anything during the thirteenth hour. Perhaps it was the "thirteen" jinx that prevented our forefathers from creating such a system when first adopting the standard double twelve of the timepiece superstition has a great deal to do with many things.

ATTENDANCE POOR AT CITY SCHOOLS

Report to Board of Education Shows a Falling Off in March.

The Board of Education held its regular March meeting last night, with all the members present with the exception of Mrs. Kate Morris and E. F. Reid.

Attendance Poor.

A. Mowat, public school inspector, reported the attendance for March as being discouraging, the average being 85.4 per cent. instead of the usual average of more than 90 per cent. This condition he ascribed to the prevalence of colds, measles, mumps and other diseases. His report was borne out by that of James Abraham, school attendance officer, showing 105 absentees from sickness. The inspector's report is as follows:

	On Roll.	Attend.	Aver.
Prince of Wales	611	531	87 %
Central	508	404	80
King Edward	494	428	87
Queen Mary	479	404	84
Queen Alexandra	368	316	86
King George	341	305	90
South Central	81	47	92
	2852	2435	85
Colleg. Institute	562	524	93

The Queen Alexandra Home and School Association wrote asking that the gully in one corner of the school grounds be filled in so as to enlarge the playing space. The request was referred to the Property Committee.

Several Vacancies.

The resignation of Miss Mabel Stillwell was accepted and the committee on appointments will advertise for teachers to fill several vacancies which will occur at the summer vacation.

Summer School.

John Edgar and Rev. Dr. Rose were a committee from the Peterboro Branch of the Board of Religious Education to ask that a room be set aside in each school at which there was a supervised playground for a vacation school. These schools would last for five weeks and would provide more time for religious education than is provided in 52 Sundays by the Sunday schools, Mr. Edgar said. They had not been tried in Canada, but were a great success in the United States. They did not ask financial assistance, said Dr. Rose, but wanted the use of a room and the sympathetic co-operation of the Board. The matter was referred to the Supervision Committee, to confer with the delegation and report back to the Board.

Leave For Doctor.

Dr. A. W. MacPherson asked for leave of absence for June and September, as he had been appointed a resident interne of the Sick Children's Hospital for the months of June, July, August and September. His request was granted.

The reports of the School Medical Officer and the School Nurse showed 413 examinations by the doctor and 302 by the nurse.

A resolution of sympathy will be sent Mrs. Kate Morris on account of the death of her brother.

Dr. Greene, school dentist, was appointed a delegate to the Dental Section of the School Trustees' Association, which meets in Toronto on April 14, 15, and 16.

SOCIALISTS WIN.

Small Polls and Apathetic Voting Return Socialist Guardians.

LONDON, April 8. — (Canadian Press).—Socialists won out by a big majority at the elections of Guardians in London yesterday. The Fashion In Suits will be Strictly Mannish!

It is the mannish tailleur which will be smartest on the streets this year. The influence of O'Rossen has made the double-breasted, four or six-button model much to be desired. They are cleverly made up of stunning tweeds in plain or mixed colors, of kashas or cashmere weaves. The narrow velvet collar is a seasonal note which is unusually chic. Their youthful, boyish simplicity makes them most becoming, and they have that distinctive note such as only well tailored lines can give. Priced from

ALL RESOURCES OF HEAVEN ARE GRANTED TO US

Sermon by Rev. T. N. Wesley, of Norwood at Marmora Anniversary.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Text—"If God Be For Us, Who Can Be Against Us?"

MARMORA, April 6. — Anniversary services were conducted at the Methodist church here on Sunday.

At the morning service the choir was heard at its best in the anthem "My Soul Waiteth for the Lord." Mr. Brock Leonard, in addition sang very impressively "My Task."

The preacher was the Rev. T. N. Wesley of Norwood, who before commencing his inspiring sermon, briefly eulogized the movement towards Church Union. He announced his subject as "Predestination," which though it was distinctively taught in the Presbyterian church he proposed presenting without its intricacies and without entering into its depths. His text was "If God be for us who can be against us?"

"One of the rarest things," he declared, "to be found to-day is a thorough going atheist. God is believed in by atheists though they think of Him as a far away God in a distant place. The atheist is joined by others who believe in God but at the same time do not get comfort or strength from the thought. A man who believes in God aright can go through this world with his head up. There are many people who coming short in their belief, are practically speaking atheists. Then there are those who believe in God but think that he is against them. They consider Him a God of hardness, because He disciplines them. "How can it be," they ask, "that it is easier to be lost than to be saved when God is said to be on our side?" If we believe God is against us we are beaten from the beginning. Other people say that God is indifferent. They would compare God's dealings with men to that of a man with his watch. A man winds his watch at certain intervals and leaves it to go by itself. The belief of some people amounts to this. God was here at the beginning of the world. He will be here at the end but He is not here now.

Are Wrong Thoughts.

Such are not right thoughts to have about God. God is for us and not against us. Jacob, in the early days of theology had a child's idea of God. He started out on a life of crookedness—and why? Because he did not know of one outside of himself who would help him. He thought he would win out by his own power. So it is with many to-day. They live their lives with the consciousness of their own strength only. When Paul grasped the fact of God being for him and on his side, he said "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

The disciples were awakened to the experience of God being for them. How they disappeared at the crucifixion of Jesus; but when He appeared to them in His risen glory and said unto them "Lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world," they changed into heroes of faith. If God be for us all the resources of heaven are for us. "All things are yours and ye are Christ's." Have we understood all that it means that God is on our side? Think of our worries. Worry is a crime against our own bodies and against our God. The Psalmist of olden time fought off worry when he said, "I have been young and now am old, and yet never saw I the righteous forsaken or his seed begging their bread."

If God is for us, we can dare to be honest and to speak the truth. A large number of the crimes are committed as a result of men thinking they can start out on life's journey alone. If God is on our side, then we can make the sacrifices He requires of us. Each one can say "He is for me. Must I not be for Him"

Evening Service

At the evening service the choir rendered the anthem "Abide with Me," and Mr. Lester sang "The Plains of Peace" in pleasing tone. Again the congregation listened to a splendid address from the Rev. T. N. Wesley based upon Psa. 102:26, "They shall perish, but Thou shalt endure." He remarked that it was one of the great verses of the Bible concerning which he felt inadquate to preach the sermon it demanded. One needed to be a real poet to preach and congregation to be responsive would need to be poetical. There is the responsibility not only of pulpit but also of pen. "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear," said Christ. It requires imagination to understand the text. You have to look far ahead to when the last summer has come, the last autumn and the last spring time and when the hills no longer leap for joy. As one wraps up an old worn out garment and puts it aside so will God wrap up this earth and heaven (wherein the stars are fixed) and put them away. The things we see shall then perish but God will endure. Then will the old prophet's word be fulfilled. All things are taken from us and become portions and particles of the past." There are two pictures which may be brought out from the text — change and decay, and the abiding which does not decay. There is that which does change

Lesson of History

Most have read history which is more than dates and names. It is a great teacher which teaches us to see with right respect the things which have happened. It teaches us that all things change. Away in the dim past the Egyptian empire thought it was firmly founded. The subjects thought theirs was a kingdom without end. Today the pyramids remain but of the empire there is but the name. What they did and said has in the main been lost. Then there arose Greece, a fairer country with better civilisation. If anything had a right to remain and call itself immortal, Greece had. Today Greece is only a memory. Her history is forgotten until searched up in dusty books in a dusty part of a library. Then came Rome and we know how north and west went her conquering legions, men said that the Roman Empire could never die. The hosts of barbarians swept down upon her from the north and her power perished. The things of this world belong not to the kingdom eternal but to the things which vanish.

They tell us that there are one and a half billions of people in the world today. This means that in one century four billion or more populate the world. Eighty billion people have lived since Christ. Each individual among these billions has lived his life, turned to dust and not returned to tell of the life beyond the grave excepting Jesus. We, like the empires, are mortal.

Mans' best achievements are those which decay. He plans a beautiful cathedral and ere it is finished, the work of decay has set in. So it is with the painting of a picture. Man's highest achievements are not in the realm of life but in that of death. The things men most of all agonized for, are gone and forgotten. When we think how relentless is time and how little achievements seem, pessimism seizes upon us. Why do we labor and sacrifict, we are tempted to say, when the sum total of what we have done will be nothing? From this point of view it does not seem wise to try to do anything worth while. If this were all ,we would either become a pessimist or a devil. But it is only the first part of the sermons that the text lends itself to.

Thou Shalt Endure.

"Thou shalt endure." Something lasts. Not everything disappears. So we ought to be seeking what the abiding things are and build up our lives upon them, one in olden time said: "In the midst of the years, make thyself known." God's purpose comes down the years like a golden thread. Just as the trees, so are the centuries. Whilst the leaves fall away from the tree, the tree remains. Men's lives and achievements have fallen off the tree of the centuries but that three is there, being God's purpose The disciples took Jesus to admire the temple. They thought that so long as this temple stood, Israel would never die.

Jesus told them that the time was near when not a stone of the building would be left resting upon another. He spoke to them after this manner: "Dont' build your faith on that which is merely visible and material. He never taught us to pray for the church but rather for the Kingdom to come. The church will change but it will not alter the purpose of God's Kingdom. Many are apt to confuse the church with the Kingdom. The church is the visible form of the Kingdom. It is the Kingdom as now organized with externals.

There is teaching that the church never changes. That is not what Christ said; no church is essential for no church carries the completion of the Kingdom within it. The glimpse into heaven as given in the Book of Revelation reveals that there is no temple therein because the lamb is the temple thereof. There will be none of the churches we now know there for they are externals and will vanish. So we should not think of the external Kingdom. In our thinking, we stand in two dangers. We are apt to count changing things as permanent.

"Build thy nest in no tree here, for God hath sown the forest unto death."

We may count things eternal as transient, we may think of God as being only in Heaven. He is everywhere showing His face. We need eyes to see Him where He is visible. Then shall we get to know Him as to partake with Him in that which is eternal.

As a result of the liberal thankofferings by the congregation, the amount called for by the Trustee Board will be made up.

The Rev. T. N. Wesley further assisted the Rev. D. R. Clare by preaching in the afternoon at Springbrook.

You need a Tonic in the Spring

Miss Prudence Hubbs, Hillier, Ont., writes:—

"I suffered for some time from severe headaches, nervous trouble and physical exhaustion. In Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I found my remedy. I think this is an excellent medicine, and from the benefit I received from it, would recommend it to all who are weak, nervous or in a run down condition."

IN the spring as at no other time does the human system require assistance.

Then it is that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proves a friend indeed.

The blood has become thin and watery. The nerves are starved. The whole vital machinery of the body has become slowed down.

You do not sleep well, you are nervous and irritable. You feel tired and discouraged.

A few weeks' use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will work wonders for you. Not in any miraculous way. But simply and naturally by supplying to the human system the elements from which rich red, life-giving blood is created. Why not get started today on the road to better health?

LADIES' AID MET AT BURNBRAE

Interesting Meeting Held on Thursday—Large Congregation Sunday.

PERSONAL NOTES

BURNBRAE, April 8.—The Ladies' Aid of St. Andrews' met at the home of Mrs. W. S. Milne on Thursday afternoon. After the business meeting a short program was given, consisting of piano solos by Misses Leafa Hay and Marjorie Rannier; vocal solo, Mrs. G. V. Taylor; readings, Mrs. Thos. Wetherall and Mrs. Wm. Rannie, and an address by Mrs. (Rev. McKenzie on 'Canadian Women." A very pleasing feature of the afternoon's entertainment was the serving of maple sugar and taffy by the hostess. This proved a rare treat and was enjoyed by all the ladies as well as several gentlemen present.

A large congregation assembled at St. Andrew's on Sunday morning last to enjoy the splendid address given by Rev. D. A. McKenzie in preparation for Easter. He chose as his text Mark 14:32, "They came to a place which was named Gethsemane; and he saith to his disciples, sit ye here, while I shall pray."

Mr. McKenzie divided the sermon into three pictures. First, Christ's prayer in the garden; second, the sleeping disciples; third, the betrayal. At the time when Christ most needed their prayers and sympathy, the disciples failed him and fell fast asleep while he suffered and prayed, awaking only to find him captured by the soldiers, led by the traitor Judas. There were too many sleeping disciples in the world today; too many people who were careless of their spiritual welfare, who had lost sight of the Saviour who suffered and died for them.

Special Easter services will be held next Sunday at 11 a.m.

EASTER HAT IS HIGHER IN AIR

Height is Distinguishing Feature—Simple, Squatty Hat Goes.

FELT AND STRAW.

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, April 8.—An ambition to get up higher in the world characterizes the Easter hat. Height is its distinguishing feature.

Only consistent plugging on the part of designers and milliners has been able to bring about this change and to arouse women from the simple simple little round, squatty hats that were popular so many seasons.

The very high, pointed crown that was launched last winter did not take well with the majority of women so this season the height is achieved by means of trimming.

Feathers, pompons, flowers and bows extend high above the crown, but the crown itself is usually close fitting. Instead of being perfectly smooth and plain, it is frequently creased and folded—this without disturbing the line.

Felt and Straw.

Naturally, the felt hat is the leader in small shapes, but its popularity is by no means undisputed. Straw is a close second, though straw rarely occurs without a fabric such as silk or velvet used in combination.

Velvet is used lavishly on bangkok and milan, the most popular straws. Grosgrain ribbon is liked for the tailored hat, and flowers, particularly the rose and violet, are seen in greater profusion than for many seasons. Feathers, too, including ostrich and coque, as well as the stiffer types, are handled with great chic, and there are very clever imitations of the forbidden aigrette and osprey.

Wider Brims Later.

With the freer use of trimming and the heightening of the general effect has come a mode that is much less severe and less routine than was possible before.

For early spring the small hat is choice of most women, but the hat with the very wide brim is scheduled for a later run. The large hat is usually very short across the back, frequently cut off straight from the crown, but the sides are very wide and the front is medium. This is the line best suited to bobbed hair. Between the extremes of very large and very small, there is practically nothing. The medium-sized hat does not exist.

LENA BARTON

A STORY OF THE EARLY SETTLEMENT IN PART OF EMILY TOWNSHIP

By JOHN J. GLASS

The first settlers to take up land in the South West part of the Township of Emily, Victoria County, Ontario, were a party of immigrants who left Ireland somewhat over a hundred years ago to settle in Canada and grow up with the new world. At that time it took from three to four months to cross the ocean. Then after another tedious trip up the St. Lawrence, and through Lake Ontario they finally landed at Port Hope. Here they entered the bush and after a journey on foot, of about thirty miles due north, carrying most of their effects and provisions on their backs, they came to a small river, which they named "Pigeon Creek," no doubt from the number of wild pigeons and ducks they found there. Here they decided to remain and select their farms. Soon after other settlers followed and it was not long before all the land in that section was appropriated.

The sufferings and hardships endured by the first settlers in Ontario are "are oft told" tales and as they are similar in every part of the Province, it is useless to dwell on them here.

Among the first settlers to arrive was a man named William Cottingham, who, though without education or business training, was naturally a keen, farsighted business man. He selected a farm beside the river or through which the river ran.

When the settlers had their cabins built, small patches cleared on their farms, and commenced raising a few vegetables, and a little grain, a serious problem confronted them, how would they get their wheat ground. Some crushed it between stones, as was done before the times of the Pharaohs, while others of more fastidious taste carried a bag of wheat on their backs to Port Hope, had it ground there and carried it home.

To relieve them of this hardship the Government constructed a dam across the creek where there was a suitable fall, and built a flouring mill. The back water from this dam submerged Mr. Cottingham's farm who then began negotiations with the Government with the view of buying the mill. Satisfactory terms were arrived at and Mr. Cottingham came into possession of the mill property. This brought some work around the place and a little hamlet soon sprang up.

At first there were about six taverns, one little general store, three blacksmith shops, a large distillery and a small Anglican Church. The hamlet was first named Cottingham's Village, but was changed to Metcalf, then it was discovered that there was already a post office of that name in Canada West, so the name was changed again to Omemee, which it has retained since.

This in very brief was the nucleus of the Town of Omemee which, in spite of many drawbacks, the principal of which were fires which twice almost wiped out the town and destroyed all its old landmarks, has slowly but steadily progressed until at the present time it is quite an important town, with good business blocks, homes and churches. The town is nicely situated; it sits in a valley through which the river runs with high hills to south and west, the one to the south is the highest promontory to which the first settlers gave the name of Mt. Nebo. From the summit can be seen the whole country for miles around, with the river slowly winding its way towards the lake twenty miles below.

When in retrospective moods, in which I occasionally indulge, I sometimes wonder that my memory reverts so often to this old town and its environs. In my early years when I played a barefoot boy around its commons it afforded me little but the pinch of poverty with attendant slights and spurns but it was there I enjoyed the carefree heart, the buoyant spirits, the hope and anticipation of youth, over which poverty holds no jurisdiction or power to suppress.

The following lines, the author of which I have forgotten, appeal strongly to me just here:

"When all the world is old, lad,
And all the trees are brown;
And all the sport is stale, lad,
And all the wheels run down;
Creep home, and take your place there,
The spent and maimed among:
God grant you find one face there,
You loved when all was young."

Lena Barton.

Among the first immigrants to settle in the vicinity where Cottingham's Village afterwards stood was a family named Barton, consisting of father, mother and one little girl named Lena, who was about eight years old when the family settled in the woods. There was nothing particular about the Barton family to distinguish them from others around them. They were industrious, careful people who bore the sufferings and hardships common to all the first settlers with patient fortitude.

Mrs. Barton, though without education, possessed a considerable degree of what is known as good common sense; she was a sociable, kindhearted neighborly woman who was always ready to lend a helping hand wherever needed, and was well liked in the neighborhood.

From the first Lena had little time to play with dolls. Her time was too fully occupied playing the role of housekeeper while her mother helped her father to clear a spot in the woods on which to grow something to eat. Lena was taught from her childhood to do all manner of useful work, such as sewing, knitting, making and mending clothes, helping her mother to card and spin the wool for the cloth from which the family clothing was made. As she grew older, she helped her father to plant corn and potatoes, and while he sowed the grain she followed him with a yoke of oxen and a wooden harrow and covered the seed. During the summer she helped to hoe the potatoes and corn and to keep the weeds out of the garden. In harvest time she helped to cut the grain with an old-fashioned hand sickle and carried many of the sheaves to the barn on her back when the oxen and cart were elsewhere busy. In winter along with other occupations she helped her mother to make straw hats, which they traded at the store for things they needed.

In early spring Lena ripped the trimming off her Sunday bonnet (no hats in those days), and arranged them in a different manner and adusted the faded and green veil. She also ripped her Sunday frock apart, washed and ironed it, turned it inside out, upside down, hindside foremost, and reassembled it in order to have it look as presentable as possible. She also made her new frock when she was fortunate enough to have one to make, an incident in her life which rarely occurred, in those days when if a girl got a new frock it created about as much flurry in the neighborhood as if she was going to be married. The material in the frocks was generally coarse homespun flannel and the girl who could sport on Sunday a gingham or a calico frock was the envied of all the enviers.

When Lena's new frock happened to come her way it was cut out by an old frock pattern herfmother had used for years to cut out her own frocks by. The pattern was so old and thumbworn that it had to be handled with delicate care lest it fall to pieces while being used. In cutting out Lena's frock by it, allowance had to be made for her more slender figure. Among those varied occupations and healthy exercises Lena grew up and at the age of twenty had developed into a beautiful young woman. There are no records giving particulars of her personal appearance but it was well known that she was an unusually pretty girl, merry, sociable and kindhearted. Just such a girl who, without the slightest effort on her own part, could compel those with whom she came in contact to become her friends. She was very fond of singing and possessed a full, clear, musical voice. Her particular desire was to cultivate her voice or as she put it, "to learn to sing right," a desire that was never realized for "chill penury" froze it in the bud.

Lena was considerde a belle in the neighborhood and very popular, and because of these advantages, she was not always exempt from the jealousies and criticisms of some of her less fortunate associates. Whatever special gifts of mind nature was pleased to bestow upon her are not known, but one thing is certain, her school training was next to infinitesimal. In her day and surroundings it was difficult if not impossible to obtain an education.

Schools were few and those that were, were very poorly attended. Many of the first immigrants in the Township of Emily had no school training and did not understand the necessity of teaching the children. There was no law to enforce attendance and so long as there was work for the children at home they were not forced to attend school. Anyone who remembers his childhood can form a good idea of the irregularity of attendance at school under such conditions, especially as discipline was maintained by the constant and unfailing use of the rod. The courses taught in the schools were the very simplest. Reading, spelling and writing and arithmetic were about the only branches then taught. Writing was considered an accomplishment which the children did not begin to learn till about the age of twelve or fifteen. At that age they might begin if they had a copy book or paper to write on, which was by no means always the case, as few books as were needed for the studies taught, it seemed a great hardship to some of the parents to furnish them. I can remember when I was a small boy, seeing children going to school without readers, depending on borrowing from their more fortunate schoolmates.

Some years ago an old gentleman who was then eighty-four years old, and who had spent his early years around Omemee, told me that when he was a lad of fifteen years, he worked for a farmer for two weeks for a York shilling with which he wanted to buy paper on which to learn to write. When the two weeks were up the farmer had no money to give him so he had to wait four months for his pay. The York shilling of those days was a small silver coin slightly larger than a dime and worth 12½ cents in our money, just think of it! A boy almost capable of doing a man's work working for a cent a day in an effort to learn to write and the work day of that time was from fourteen to sixteen hours.

It seems to me that if the boys of the present day had to learn writing under such difficulties there would be few of them who could write their names. In those days if a farmer's son, when he had reached the age of eighteen or twenty could compute the amount he should receive for the load of grain he drove to market, he was considered a prodigy, and was a wonder in the neighborhood.

The school in the village was considered superior to those in country districts, but in the early days there was little difference in the branches taught or enforcement of attendance. In winter when the larger boys attended it was often a difficult matter for the teacher to maintain order, the boys seemed so crude and untrained in discipline. As an instance there was a family who lived about a mile outside the village. Their oldest son, William, or Bill as he was called, was then about twenty years old, a fine speciman of physical manhood, but his pareuts were illiterate. Bill had never been to school, knew no more about the alphabet than he did about the nebular hypothesis or the parabola. But Bill heard that some of the neighborhood boys were going to attend school that winter so after a little deliberation decided to go himself and lay a foundation for a course of reading. Armed with a primer and a lunch in a school bag he set out one morning for the village school. On his arrival he was examined by the teacher as to his efficiency and consigned to the first division, among some little boys who were "larnin' their letters." Bill struck it manfully to memorize the alphabet and apply the letters practically to spelling out such sentences as these—"I see an ox"; "Yes, it is an ox"; "Ox go up." With these problems he wrestled till about two o'clock when the discipline and mental strain became irksome and Bill became restless and commenced teasing one of the little boys sitting near.

The teacher reprimanded him once or twice to no effect and finally called him up for correction. The punishment generally consisted in the culprit holding out his flat hand while the teacher struck it with the butt end of a hickory pointer the size of an ordinary whip stock as many times as in his judgment the nature of the offence merited, but Bill resented this familiarity and showed fight. Thereupon the two men clinched and in their tussle through the schoolroom, overturned seats, benches, the teacher's desk and a pail of drinking water which stood on a stool in the middle of the floor, raising pandemonium in the schoolroom. Frightened girls ran screaming hither and thither to reach a place of safety while the larger boys cheered and laughed with glee. Finally Bill, whose muscles were better developed by hard work on the farm, got the upper hand, forced the teacher out of the schoolroom, and closed the door. He then returned and searched through the debris for his primer and school bag, these secured, he donned his cap and muffler and left the school house to come back no more.

Poor Bill was obliged to worry through the world without the knowledge that reading imparts, and long since sought the quiet sleep where any regrets he may have had concerning educational inefficiency will trouble him no more.

In school sections outside the village the settlers were too poor to pay their teacher a salary sufficient to enable him to pay his board and have anything left, though board was very cheap at the time, so they paid him a small yearly stipend and boarded him themselves. In which case the teacher would remain two weeks at one house, then move to the next for the following two. This itinerancy was continued till all the houses in the school section had been visited then commenced again at number one. This mode of living was called boarding around and while no doubt it had its inconveniences it afforded at least the novelty of variety. One teacher who tried out this method, ran against an awkward or embarrassing experience. He was a new man on the job making his first round of the section. In one of the houses on his beat were three young women of marriageable age. As the teacher was quite a handsome young man, possessed of a social friendly nature, and as the young women considered a school teacher a much more desirable matrimonial find than the ordinary run, he became a favorite from the first, and most of his leisure hours were spent in their company in friendly chat and repartee. The girls' mother who was somewhat eccentric, was visibly pleased to see the close friendship which so suddenly sprang up between her girls and this most desirable suitor, and saw or thought she saw a wedding in the family looming in the near future. But watch as closely as she might she failed to see that the teacher paid special attentions to any one of the girls.

At length her desire to know which of the girls was the prospective bride got the better of her and she determined to find out, so one day at lunch time when the teacher had been at her home about a week she asked him which one of the girls he was going to marry. This straight question took him somewhat by surprise but without equivocation he told her he was not just then in a financial conditio to think of marrying and had no intention of doing so, and that his courtesies to the young ladies so far as he was concerned held no tenderer sentiment than that of good friendship. The evening of that same day when he returned after dismissing school he found all his belongings lying outside on the ground in front of the house and the door locked. As there was no response to his repeated knocks on the door, the only course left him was to gather up his effects and carry them to the next billet where he hoped to find a more courteous reception.

In view of the many obstacles with which she had to contend in her efforts to secure even the most primitive rudiments of an education no one will be surprised to learn that Lena was not an accomplished scholar, that she was not familiar with the languages both living and dead, that she could not converse with scholars and educators on literature, art, ethics, philosophy, metaphysics, the psyche, phenomena, etc., etc., nor solve offhand problems that have challenged the minds of sages and sophists ever since the infancy of the human race, as heroines of song and story usually can. In truth Lena could hardly be considered a heroine in any sense of the word as heroines generally go; for she had never done anything remarkable to distinguish herself as such. That is, she had never attacked a pack of hungry wolves with a pitchfork and put them out of commission, thus saving the family from a dreadful fate, nor had she ridden horseback five miles through a forest fire to rescue neighbors "in dire peril."

No doubt her shapely hand could handle a hoe, a rake or a pitchfork with as much grace and dexterity as the modern graduate of Whitby or Victoria can handle a golf club or a tennis racket. Lena was essentially a girl of her period and environments and if she could read simple sentences miscalling half the words, and write her name in an almost illegible scrawl she could boast of an accomplishment which amongst her acquaintances was confined to a tenuous minority. Her busy useful pioneer life was confined to opening ways, removing obstructions and bettering conditions, that those who followed might enjoy the results of her useful labors exempt from the want and privations that fell to her lot. Therefore, "let grandeur lear with a disdainful smile the short and simple annals of the poor."

Enter the Hero.

George Colby was a young man two or three years older than Lena. His family had come with the first settlers but his father died soon after, leaving a widow and five small children to clear and cultivate the farm as best they could. George was the youngest and possibly spoiled to some extent. He did not take well to farming or, in fact, to work of any kind. When he was about fifteen he apprenticed himself to a carpenter and followed that trade. When he grew up he was the handsomest young man in the section, with a fine figure, dark wavy hair, and large dark eyes from which every glance twinkled with humor and good nature. He was fond of telling stories at which he was quite adept, and music seemed to come

Tells Why He Can Now Eat Hearty

"A letter which I read in the paper about Carter's Little Liver Pills fitted my own case so closely that I could not help trying them and am very happy I did." So writes Mr. Frank J. Trumbull of Jersey City, N. J., whose letter goes on to say, "I had heard about Carter's Little Liver Pills for years but never knew they helped overcome poor appetite and sour stomach, until I read about another man in the same plight who took Carter's with good results. I tried them and can honestly say that they freed me of nasty gas on stomach, so that I can now eat without getting bilious, and they improved my appetite fully 100%. You can rest assured that from now on I will boost Carter's Little Liver Pills whenever I can."

SCHOOL SERVED 2,449 LUNCHES

Brighton Children Are Kept Healthy During Winter Months Through Service.

CLUB THANKED.

BRIGHTON, April 8.—Friday, March 27, was the last day on which hot lunches were served at the Brighton Public School for the winter months. The following is the report of the work done and the money expended.

There were 2,449 lunches served during the forty-one days and one of the teachers was present each day. The total cost of provisions bought was paid by the Home and School Club and amount to $23.77, while the equipment, which was provided by the school board, cost $85. Many of the ladies donated hot lunches and sincere thanks are extended to them. As the first object of the club was to provide a library for each class room the donations were very welcome, for the club is anxious to save money with that object in view.

It is worthy of note that during the time these lunches were served not one dish was broken. This speaks well for carefulness of the children, both during the lunch hour and while the wishes were being washed and put away.

It was decided at the last meeting of the Home and School Club that an entertainment would be put on by the children in the Town Hall on the 1st of May, under the direction of Mrs. Addie Wellington Lapp. Practices are now in full swing for this, and it is being looked forward to with anticipation by all.

MOCK TRIAL GIVEN AT CENTREVILLE

Baraca Class Repeats Their Successful Entertainment in Sunday School.

CENTREVILLE, April 8. — The Sunday School Hall at Centreville was well filled last evening for the entertainment put on by the Baraca Class of Murray Street Baptist Church, Peterboro. The class put on a well-balanced, amusing and exceedingly interesting entertainment. A high standard was reached at the very first by the music, which was supplied by Sedgwick's orchestra, which was appreciated whenever it played during the evening.

Dick Lush, the well-known Peterboro cartoonist, with a very humorous monologue and cartoons, was heartily received by the audience, who had a strong desire for more than time permitted. Mr. Lush has a voice and manner with him very much similar to Jimmy Good, of Dumbell fame. With a black face, he would have you guessing.

The song, by a Baraca trio, Graham Eastwood, Harold Nicholls and Harry Baptie, was very much enjoyed as a preliminary to the trial.

The mock trial, the case of the Crown versus Mrs. Hannah Henpeck, went off even smoother than at Murray Street Church on Friday last. The boys were over what little stage fright they had, and the parts were all well taken. The cast was the same as at the church, and as before, the two female impersonators, Cecil Lapp and Sherwood Preston, kept the audience in gales of laughter throughout the evening, especially Cecil Lapp in his sob scene, where he fills the part better than a girl could. The two lawyers, Graham Eastwood, prosecution, and Emmett Crawford, defence, were equally good in their two roles, while the witnesses, by their actions as well as their parts helped the amusement exceedingly.

Rev. Mr. McConnachie, in a few chosen words, expressed the appreciation of the people present for the high class of entertainment which they had produced that evening. The ladies served refreshments at the close of the trial.

Mr. W. W. Richmond expressed the appreciation of the class for the support the people had given the class during the evening, and for the refreshments. There have been several demands already for the class to put on their entertainment outside the city, and they are working hard to raise the standard to all that could be expected of a Christian body, such as the Baraca Class represents.

THE KIDS "GOT EVEN."

WIMBLEDON, Eng., April 8. — Fifty-eight children, many of whom probably didn't like to practice their music lessons, "got even" with a composer here recently. He was required to listen to each one of them play his composition in order to award a prize.

Laxatives do not overcome constipation

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only. Their continued use leads to permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Physicians advise lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

natural to him. He had learned to play by ear many dancing and other tunes on the violin. He could also sing and dance steps and jigs.

These accomplishments were considered wonderful in his day, and surroundings, and George was a welcome guest at all social functions. But, in spite of all this, George was subject to frailties like other humans. His most pronounced faults were aversion to work, lack of ambition or purpose in life, and a taste for intoxicants which he acquired in early life. Much of his time was spent around the village inn entertaining the guests and hangers-on, with humorous stories and mimicry.

George and Lena had known each other almost from infancy but he had taken no more interest in her than in other girls of his acquaintance until one Sunday when they accidently met at a field meeting. For the benefit of the younger generation it may be well to explain briefly just what a field meeting really meant to the settlers in pioneer days.

The first immigrants who settled in the Township of Emily were for the most part adherents of the Anglican Church. Of course there were some Roman Catholics, but as these two factions did not mix, like birds of a feather they flocked by themselves, but in different sections. About the time the immigrants were settled in their cabins the Methodist circuit rider made his appearance, and for a long time his work was no sinecure. The Anglican laymen had nothing in common with Methodism and the clergy referred to it in no very flattering terms. The newcomer had no place to hold meetings or preach unless he could prevail on some more liberal minded Anglican to allow him the use of his barn. When the weather was fine in summer the meetings were held in the open. Those were announced a week or more ahead and were always well attended. They soon became a place where neighbors who did not see each other very often could meet and exchange greetings, talk over plans and future prospects, also hear the news from the old country, if any had come. Many people would walk several miles to the meetings, bringing a lunch. Preaching in the open air was an innovation, the doctrine was new, the preacher was a stranger, and no doubt the people had been cautioned by their minister to keep away from the meetings, all of which would have a tendency to arouse curiosity and swell the attendance.

The meetings were usually held in the edge of a wood or a clearing from which the trees had not all been cut. There were no camp stools nor other such luxuries. The people had to content themselves with stones, logs, stumps, grassy banks or any place they could find an improvised seat. The leaves overhead shaded off the sun and the whole scene was enlivened by the voices of innumerable birds, which long since have vanished. Circuit riders of the Methodist church were not all educated men by any means, some of them were but little above illiteracy, but they were men of zeal, courage and integrity, and their simple but earnest exhortations had a wonderful effect on the minds of their hearers; they were no much different from the staid and formal sermons read to them in their churches. Many converts were made at these meetings and it sometime (happened that young men of the swaggering sort who "came to mock remained to pray." Some of these afterwards became exhorters and class leaders in their respective neighborhoods. The meetings were also the nucleus of many romances which ended in happy marriages, but with the erection of cheap, crude meeting houses here and there in country places, which were thought more practical, the field meetings passed out.

After their meeting on that Sunday, George contrived to monopolize Lena's company whenever possible, and often called evenings at her home. Mrs. Barton viewed this growing intimacy, if not with alarm at least, with some concern. She liked George in manners, indeed she could hardly help liking him as he was always pleasant and good natured and many a cheery laugh she enjoyed at his quaint jokes and sayings. But George was not the kind of man she desired for a son-in-law or a husband for Lena. She regarded him as a person who looked upon life as a huge joke without a serious side to it. She objected to his idle habits, his want of purpose in life and, above all, she could not think of Lena marrying a man who was in danger of becoming an inebriate. She knew there were other young men in the neighborhood who were industrious, and thrifty, anxious to get on in the world, and who could offer jLena a more cozy home and much better prospects in life. Of these Lena could have her choice just for saying "yes." Thoughts of this nature oft times occupied the mother's mind but she held her peace awaiting developments.

These came one evening in October when George called to ask her if she would allow Lena to join a singing class the young folks were organizing in the village, and grant him the favor of seeing Lena to and from the practice meetings. When this proposition was made to her, Mrs. Barton thought the time had come when she should express her sentiments frankly on this whole question, so she kindly but firmly refused her consent. She made it plain to George that his attentions to Lena were not sanctioned by her, and explained to him without reserve her reasons for withholding her approval. She also told him that from that time forth his attentions to Lena must be discontinued. This put an end to the courtship for the time being at least, and George called no more at the Barton home.

Mother Died.

The land in the Township of Emily is what farmers call rolling, but in some places the roll is more pronounced than in others, that is the elevations are high, and in early days the low depressions were wet and swampy.

The fall rains and spring freshets filled the swamps with water to such an extent that it was impossible to penetrate them at any time of the year except in winter when the water was frozen. In summer this water stagnated and produced swarms of mosquitoes which, for numbers, size and executive ability, would compare favorably if not carry off the palm from the best specimens that New Jersey has ever been able to produce. In the heat of summer germ-laden fogs would rise from this water during the night and fill the air with fever. In consequence fevers were prevalent every summer and caused a number of deaths. One summer in particular was remembered for many years after as the summer of the great fever when no family was known to have escaped its effects. The common people had no idea of the origin of this scourge, and even if they had they would have been powerless to prevent it, as draining was simply out of the question.

The winter following the fall that Mrs. Barton laid down her decrees to George Colby her health began to fail and early in the spring she contracted fever which proved fatal. When she began to realize that the end was near and the change might come at any moment, she had a motherly talk with Lena. She told her she knew she had but a few hours to live, but she did not fear death. She admonished Lena to live a life of purity and rectitude, to give as much of her time as she could to acts of benevolence, in assisting the needy and unfortunate, and otherwise doing such kindness as she could. She advised her particularly to take a personal interest in the church, to attend its services regularly, and to follow its precepts to the end so that when her time came to leave this world, her life might have a joyous ending.

Under other conditions she would welcome a summons that called her from a world that had done so little for her. A world that had robbed her of a joyous youth, such as every child has a right to expect. From infancy she had been denied proper and sufficient nourishment for the building of mind and body. She had been denied mental training, allowed to grow up in ignorance and finally consigned to a life of obscurity, drudgery and want, but as a recompense for those privations had been given a husband and daughter to love. Those were the only objects that bound her to earth and for the sake of those she would live longer, however uncharitable the world should otherwise happen to be. She would live to assist and encourage her good husband who she knew would be so lonely and heart broken when she was gone. Also to counsel and admonish her darling girl, who needed so much a mother's care and advice in settling herself in life. But if it pleased Providence to remove her to another sphere she would pray, "Thy will be done." But since she began to realize that the end was rapidly approaching, her mind had beee filled with troublesome forebodings.

She could not banish the thought that when she was gone George Colby would renew his attentions to Lena and by his pleasant manners and persuasive words induce Lena to marry him. If Lena would promise she would never marry George Colby it would remove those troublesome thoughts and enable her to die in peace.

All this while Lena sat on a low stool beside her mother's bed, her body bent forward and her face buried in her hands and while tears trickled through her fingers she promised her mother that she would never marry George Colby. If she ever came into her life again she would treat him as a passing acquaintance, she said. She was not thinking of marrying for her heart was breaking at the thought of having to part with her mother who had always been her close and confidential companion, who had been so loving and so lenient and had made so many sacrifices for her sake. She could never refuse any request her mother would make however much it might effect her after life. She would be selfish ingrate if ever she thought of following the fortunes of another and leaving her father in such a plight. She would remain at home and help him on the farm as she had always done. The greatest effort of her life would be to follow the beautiful example her mother had set for her. She would attend the church services regularly and follow its precepts so far as she could understand its teachings and be first in her efforts to relieve suffering and distress in the neighborhood.

Lena might have continued such promises to relieve her mother's mind of annoying apprehensions but her heart was filled with grief and sobs choked her into silence. The day following this pathetic scene, the mother, happy in the assurance of Lena's promises, and resigned to the will of Providence, closed her eyes in eternal sleep.

George Returns.

Lena had not seen George Colby nor heard from him, at least not directly, from the time he requested permission for her to attend the singing class, until more than a year after her mother's death. A building boom in Port Hope had attracted carpenters to seek work, and George was one who went. During his stay there he worked steadily and kept straight. When he returned he was wearing good clothes, had a few dollars in reserve and looked his very best.

He had been home but a short time when he renewed his attentions to Lena. At first these were met with an indifference several degrees below zero, but as George persisted Lena's resolutions were scattered to the winds. In a short time they were better and more intimate friends than they had been before, happy in the thought that they loved each other, but all unconscious that a crisis was near.

1870 Savory

From School Teacher To Great Eminence

A young man who was brought up on a farm in Western Pennsylvania studied diligently and qualified for district school teacher. Further pursuing his studies and teaching, he managed to save up enough money to put him thru medical college. After the Civil War, he began the practice of medicine in the new oil section of Pa., and often rode horse-back thru the woods to reach and relieve those who were seriously ill. He was a student of nature, knew and could easily recognize most of the medicinal plants growing in the woods.

Later, he moved to Buffalo, N.Y. where he launched his favorite remedies, and, in a short time, they were sold by every druggist in the land. Today, the name of this man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, is known throughout the world. His Golden Medical Discovery is the best known blood medicine and tonic. More than fifty million bottles have been sold. If your druggist does not sell the "Discovery," in liquid or tablets, you can obtain a trial pkg. of the tablets by sending 10c to Dr. Pierce's Branch Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.

BIGGS AND RANEY HAVE CLASH WITH COMMITTEE QUESTIONERS

Former Attorney General Swears He Knew Nothing of Treasury Deal.

BIGGS INDIGNANT.

Says He Was Not Bankrupt When He Came to Toronto—Hasn't $200,000.

TORONTO, April 8.—(Canadian Press).—In his evidence before the Public Accounts Committee yesterday, W. E. Raney, former Attorney-General, disclaimed responsibility for irregularities in the bond deals. He was particularly resentful of the imputation that a portion of the profits of the Rideout deals had gone into the U.F.O. campaign fund with his cognizance. While not attempting to defend several bond deals, he asserted that he had left the matter in the hands of Peter Smith. Mr. Raney had several clashes with the committee.

Liberal Leader Sinclair suggested that if fewer objections were made and more explanations given such as Mr. Raney had been doing, it would rebound to the credit of the committee. The trouble with the committee this year, he said, was that the shoe was on the other foot, that the Government was striving to defend itself by the bulwarks of power which its office gave it. "If this Public Accounts Committee is to be all one-sided, let us know at once," he said, adding, "for if it is, I know where I can be more profitably employed."

Mr. Raney said he had no recollection of the issue of the Rideout block of Treasury bills as distinct from many other transactions of the kind. A great deal of money was being borrowed at the time, and the Treasurer was guided by the condition of the market. He was asked if he had known that T. B. Roadhouse of the Osler and Hammond firm was treasurer of the U. F. O. campaign fund. He admitted that he had.

"And an election was approaching?" he was asked.

Mr. Raney assented, after which he was asked if it was not significant that the Osler-Hammond firm had been allowed at this time to make $50,000 from the Government by the Treasury deal.

Checks Up Finlayson.

Mr. Raney did not consider so. He emphasized again that he had known nothing of this deal.

"You swear that?" Mr. Finlayson asked.

"Yes."

"I can't believe that," Mr. Finlayson said.

"Then why ask me to swear it?" Mr. Raney demanded, becoming wrathy, and adding, "You can browbeat in the House, Mr. Finlayson, but you can't browbeat here."

Towards the end of the session Mr. Raney said: "My probity has been assailed and my honesty has been assailed both on the floor of the house and in this committee. I want to know if there is to be any evidence brought in support of the imputation that the $90,000 Rideout deal profit was to have been divided between Mr. Rideout and the U.F.O. campaign fund, and that I refused to accept the campaign fund's share because it had been denosited in a bank from which it could be traced."

"If any evidence is to be brought in support of this imputation," he said, "I want to know. I am ready to meet it. I am ready to proceed now."

Mr. McBrien pointed out that no charges were involved.

Mr. Raney expressed himself as satisfied, if no direct charge were made.

This concluded the former Attorney-General's testimony.

Ledger Sheets Missing

F. C. Biggs, former minister of highways denied before the committee in the evening that he had ever shared in bonds purchased h yprofits made by the Provincial Securities Company from the Drury government business. Entries in the books of the Browning, Harris, Northey Bod Company of Haminilton, which credited Mr. Biggs with having sold to them bonds of such character to a total of $26,000 were denied by Mr. Biggs as absolutely false in so far as they had used his name.

The committee was given two explanations of the Borwning, Harris entries. One came from Mr. Harris in the form of a letter which stated that when Mr. Biggs had sold Browning, Harris Co. certain Province of Ontario and Victory Bonds he had substituted for them in making the book entries bonds which he had been anxious to transfer from the Provincial securities company to his Hamilton firm. The other explanation was given by Mr. Biggs himself, and suggested that his own name as well as that of Mr. Brownin and Mrs. Harris had been used as channels in Browning, Harris books through which to transfer bond holdings of Provincial Securities Company to the Browning Harris company.

Certain facts of evidence were closely brought home to Mr. Biggs during the course of the evening's examination. The fact that other entries in the books, which he denied as accurate as far as he was concerned, had all been tested and had been found to refer to bona fide business transactions was emphasized. The other circumstance was that Biggs' ledger leaves were missing from the books of the Browning Harris Company. "That is one of the very suspicious circumstances in this case," Hon. Mr. Price commented. Upon question of his personal affairs and investments, Mr. Biggs would not answer the committee's questions, declaring that such information could be secured from the company records of the provincial secretary's department. He declared however, that his total holdings would not come near the $200,000 total which was suggested, and added: "If the committee wishes me to make a statement of my assets, I want also an opportunity of showing from whence I obtained those assets. While I am not advertising the fact, I want to say that I was by no means bankrupt when I came to Toronto."

SPRING PLANTING—TREES AND SHRUBS

When the stock arrives from the nursery, undo the bundles, check them over and plant immediately. If this is not possible heel in the separated plants in a convenient spot that is moist and cool. If the wood has dried out at all, it is advisable to bury the whole shrub or tree in a moist soil for a day or two or immerse them in water for a few hours.

Before planting it is advisable to thoroughly prepare the soil and avoid disappointing results. Shrubs are much better planted in beds rather than in individual holes in the sod. Where there are very young children, however, the latter may be the better method, allowing the grass eventually to grow well up to the stems. This will leave no bare earth spots to be dug up by the youngster and scattered over the lawn. With a sand pile provided and no temptations to dig in the lawns, the home grounds can be kept reasonably tidy and the shrubs will do very well. They should, however, receive a little extra care by the application of fertilizers.

Planting and Pruning.

Dig a hole large enough to hold all the roots without cramping or bending them and deep enough so that when planted, the subject will be about one-half inch deeper than it grew in the nursery. It is advisable to keep the top soil to one side to be used at the first in among the roots when filling the hole. If the ground is very dry during the planting season it is advisable to water it a day or two in advance.

Prune out all broken roots and shorten back any extra long or top roots to somewhat balance up the system. These cuts will heal more rapidly if they are made at such an angle that they will come on the underside of the roots.

The pruning of the top may be done before or after planting. When the subject is small and easily handled, or in the case of large trees, which would be difficult to prune when upright, it is advisable to prune before planting. Larger bushes can be more conveniently pruned after being set.

First prune out the broken, weak and crossing branches. Then shorten the remaining growth to balance with the root system. That is if the root system be poor, the pruning of the top will have to be heavy, to prevent too great an evaporation from the foliage.

Good but natural form and balance should always be kept in mind of course, and bad crotches should be avoided especially in trees. Only one leader (top branch) should be allowed to develop.

Everygreen are never pruned at the time of planting, except to remove a double leader. Nursery specimens have usually been sheared a little to improve their form.

Place the subject in the hole and spread the roots out well. Throw in a spadeful or two of soil (using the top soil set side, first) and move the plant up and down slightly, to settle the soil around the roots. Then fill in the hole to about half its depth and tramp the soil firmly. Finish filling the hole and again tramp the soil firmly. If the subject be a large one, it is especially advisable to use the heel at a sharp angle to tramp the soil. The flat sole of the shoe is not sufficient at any time and at least the flat heel should be used. After the trampling stir up the top soil a little to produce a loose mulch or layer on the surface which will prevent the loss of valuable moisture. The earth on no account should be heaped up about the stem of strung as this mould will shed moisture. Cart away or spread out any surplus soil. A slight depression is advisable.

Should the ground be very dry at planting time, the newly set plants will need a good watering. After the surface has dried the dust mulch on top should be restored by cultivation.

Trees require to be staked to prevent any swaying and loosening of the roots until they became established. Use substantial stakes, 1½ to 2 inches square and at least 5 feet long. Prevent the trees rubbing against the stake by wrapping the tree with cloth or using a piece of hose around the tree with wire. Fasten the tree to the stake firmly in either case. Street trees should be carefully protected by a strong boxing of iron or wood.

Should the season continue to be dry the newly planted subjects will need further watering. In the case of large trees and bushes, sprinkling will not be sufficient. The soil in a good sized ring should be removed from about the trunk to a depth of two or three inches. This circular area should be filled with water, and the supply continued until one is sure that there is sufficient to work well down to the roots. It is a good idea to place a mulch around the trees of well rotted manure or cut grass to further conserve the moisture.

IRON RULE OF SOVIET BEING LOOSENED AMONGST RUSSIANS

Bloodless Revolution Gives More Power to the Peasants.

PEOPLE DON'T VOTE.

By ELIAS TOBENKIN.

The Soviet Government has gone through a "bloodless political revolution" in the last two months. It was not a conversion on paper only. Proceedings are now under way in Russia to dismantle the iron dictatorship that a host of over-zealous and sometimes dishonest Communist officials had set up in every corner of the Slav Empire. Russia's highest governing body, the Central Executive Committee of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, is directing the proceedings. The "disgerous officialism," of which Trotan gave warning a year or more agosk, being swept away.

Observers within Russia and outside are convinced that the Soviet rulers recognize the necessity of making their Government a government by the people, by Russia's peasantry, in fact as well as in name. The project has been under consideration for some time; now the time for action has come, and a more democratic system, it is asserted, will ensue.

It is not possible to accept the widely held view that Russia has for seven years been dominated entirely by the membership of the Communist Party, which numbers 700,000. Iron discipline and even terror could not have given so small a number of men complete control over a country of 7,041,000 square miles and a population of 132,000,000. In the control of Russia the Communist Party membership has been supplemented by nearly 6,500,000 workers who are members of trade unions. The League of Communist Youth, with a membership of more than 1,000,000 boys between the ages of 17 and 23, again has supplemented the class from which Soviet officials and executives are drawn, bringing up the total of Bolshevist "shock troops" in Russia to 8,000,000.

But whether 700,000 or 8,000,000, the outstanding issue which the Soviet Government recently faced remains unchanged. The issue was this: Between the army of Soviet "shock troops" and the 100,000,000 Russian peasants there was no firm bond. There was, on the contrary, an alarming amount of antagonism. Instead of acting as missionaries for the Bolshevist cause the Soviet functionaries have in many instances left behind a trail of apathy and disillusionment. Instead of cementing the peasant villages of the interior with the central Government at Moscow they have widened the gap between village and city.

Pleasant Terrorism.

Nor has this antagonism remained passive. In the Summer and Fall of last year a wave of peasant terrorism swept through many remote provinces of Russia. In numerous villages the peasants took the law into their own hands and the Soviet officials, agents of correspondents who displeased them were killed. Disciplinary measures intensified the difficulties without getting at their root. The sullenness on the part of the so-called "dark people" was not without political reaction. The peasants stayed away from elections, leaving the governing machinery of the villages in a sorry state.

It was the last phase that stirred the Soviet authorities at Moscow to extraordinary watchfulness. The peasant village, with its village soviet, is considered the primary cell, or nucleus, of the Communist State. But even where it operates at its best the village soviet is not yet working on all cylinders, so to speak. The peasant as a voter is still in the process of formation.

By laying down as the cardinal principle of Bolshevism that workers and producers only should enjoy the right of suffrage, the Soviet authorities have reduced the voting population of Russia to 50,000,000, mostly peasants. Of the 50,000,000 people with the right to vote only 18,000,000, or 35.8 per cent., voted in 1923. Even this figure is an excellent showing over the figures of 1922, when only 22.3 per cent. availed themselves of the ballot. With 64 per cent. of the voters abstaining from voting, the 58,000 village Soviets elected were only in a very limited sense representative of the peasant constituencies for whom they acted.

Why Some Do Not Vote.

There are several inherent reasons why the Moscow Government has failed to bring out a larger peasant vote. In the first place, it takes time to convert a raw peasantry into a voting citizenry. The Soviet State is still exceedingly young, seven years old, in fact. It has operated only three years on a peace basis. In part, at least, the relaxed interest of the peasant in Government affairs is due to his greater security. As long as the Soviet was threatened by enemies the peasant was wide awake. He realized that if the Government were overthrown the land that the Soviets had given him would be taken back and restored to the former owners.

Then, too, the peasant duties during the period of "war communism" were simpler, more concrete. He was told to turn in so much grain or cloth, and with this his part in self-government was over. His duties today are of a more advanced order and not so easy to grasp.

When this much has been put to the credit side of the Soviet Government, there still remains the fact that more efficient handling of the peasantry by Bolshevist officials and administrators sent from Moscow to the provinces would have reduced the figures of non-voters considerably. Moscow's agents have in many instances proved themselves either unfit for their work or else too tyrannical. They were inclined to lord it over the peasantry in a manner not unlike that of the officials of the Czars.

Not only have they not done their full share toward attracting the indifferent to the ballot, but they have disqualified from voting numbers of politically minded peasants, either by arbitrary rulings or because of personal animus.

Things came to a climax at the last election to the peasant Soviets. In a large number of districts, over widely scattered territories, the elections were turned into a travesty on popular government. Solid blocks of peasant voters were disqualified byt the local Cummunist officials. Others would not take the risk of coming up for their vote. In a typical section in White Russia, out of 3,000 qualified voters only 126 came to the polls, and a situation was created whereby 4 per cent. of the population elected the Soviet that was to govern the community.

Such widespread breakdown of the peasant election system called for drastic action and early this year the Central Executive Committee of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics took action that has proved to be a milestone in Russia's progress toward the democratization of her Government. The committee voided the elections in all districts and regions where wholesale disfranchisement of peasants had taken place. The decree voiding these elections and ordering new elections to be held follows verbatim:

"Having examined the facts concerning the elections to the Soviets, the Presidium of the Central Executive Committee of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics established that in a series of regions there have taken pace actions and omissions in connection with the election commissions, and that in these regions the electors have not adequately participated in the elections. For the purpose of righting these incorrect practices and in order also more widely to attract to Soviet elections and to the building of the Soviet State the peasant masses, the Presidium directs:

"That it be proposed to the Central Executive Committees of the Federated and Autonomous Republic and to the Regional and Provincial Executive Committees that in all those places where the above irregularities have taken place the elections be voided and new elections to the Soviets be instituted, particular care being taken that in these new elections the broad masses of workers and peasant participate widely, and that they likewise share more actively in all the work of the Soviets and their affiliated organizations."

The precise personal, social and psychological angles which caused the recent disagreements between the semi-primitive peasantry in Russia's distant provinces and the Soviet agents are set forth in the following excerpts from a letter to the Izvestia from one of the more enlightened peasants. Hundreds of such letters have appeared in the Soviet press in recent weeks.

Seen Through Peasant Eyes.

"The trouble is," says the peasant correspondent, "that many of our village Communists have strayed far from the peasantry. * * * They have tastes and habits that the peasant formerly met in landowners and not in people of his own kind. * * * When such a 'gentleman' comes to a meeting of peasants his attitude is not unlike that of a former zemstvo official. He seems to look down upon the peasant from a great height. The peasant keeps away from him a distance of ten yards. When he begins to speak he hurls at the peasant all sorts of foreign phrases, which leaves the peasant puzzled. Ilyitch (Lenin) never used foreign phrases when he spoke to peasants. * * * After the Communist settles down in the village he grows lazy. He himself becomes apathetic and, of course, cannot rouse enthusiasm in others."

Another change is a more responsible and tolerant attitude on the part of the Soviet rulers toward the more successful producers, whether in agriculture, industry or trade. Rykov and Djerzinsky have spoken plainly on the subject of incompetence and dawdling among the peasants and industrial workers.

Whenever the question of the low state of the peasant village came up, the answer in the past was that the blame rested with the richer peasants, whom the poor peasants nicknamed "kulak," or fist. The inference was that the "kulaks" were interfering with the Soviet order and the welfare of the masses. Premier Rykov recently undertook a tour through a number of provinces to study the peasants, and his report was made at a meeting in Moscow.

"The real problem before us," M. Rykov said, "is the fact that the productivity of our peasantry is not keeping up a sufficient pace. It is stagnant. The peasant is in a rut and must be made to come out of it. In one village I came across two families, neighbors. Both owned the same sort of land, next to each other, in fact. One peasant, by dint of interest in his work and untiring enterprise, managed to draw out of the soil forty poods of grain from a dessiatin of land. His neighbor, lacking his interest and enterprise, drew only two poods of grain from a dessiatin.

"I considered," Mr. Rykov continued, "the work of the first peasant a real benefit to the Soviet Government and in the name of the Council of People's Commissars I thanked him and presented him with a money reward. A 'kulak' is one who exploits his brother peasants, who capitalizes their poverty and their ignorance for his own greed. This peasant has looked well after his soil. He has been on the job early and late, working tirelessly, and the soil rewarded him with an ample living. Such a peasant is no enemy of the Soviet order. He is, on the contrary, our best friend. He is a model of industry and should be held up as an example for others to follow."

Told to Work Harder.

In the industries, in mines, oil fields, tobacco works, according to M. Djerzinsky, head of the Council of National Economy, a not dissimilar situation prevails. Excellent progress is being made in these industries because of the faithful efforts of some of the workers. In the main, however, Russia is kept behind other countries of Europe in production by the inertia and indifference of great blocs of industrial workers.

Thus, according to M. Djerzinsky, in the coal mining industry in the year 923-24 214 men did the work for which only 100 men were required in 1913. The oil, cement, glass and leather industries showed a similar average. The work done before the war by one man now somehow seemed to call for from two to two and a half men. The tobacco industry has the worst record in this regard. The work done by 100 men in 1913 today calls for 318.

"We are emerging from the years of isolation," M. Djerzinsky warned, "and are entering into relations with other governments. We are in open competition with other countries. Our problem now is not only to reach our prewar level of production, from which we are still far, but to bring our production to a level with that of foreign countries."

Carelessness and indifference are also characteristic of Russia's co-operatives, the institutions of retail commerce that are supposed to drive the private trader out of business. Discussion of these institutions of a recent congress fell to Premier Rykov, and he told the co-operators quite frankly that thus far their work had not been effective.

"If the dictatorship of the working class, the Premier said, "does not bring to the people cheaper products and an easier life, the dictatorship will not hold together."

EMIR IS SHUTTLED BACK TO ENGLAND

Was Recently Debarred From Landing at Southampton.

NEW YORK, April 8. — "The Emir of Kurdestan," like Philip Nolen, the fictional character of Edward Everett Hale's story, was placed in the role of a man without a country Tuesday.

The transformation was accomplished by a special immigration board of inquiry at Ellis Island, which decided that the self-styled "Emir," whose name is Prince Mohammed Said Zerdecheno, must be deported to England on the earliest east bound steamer of the White Star line. Mohammed Said had just got back here a few days ago after Ellis Island Officials had deported him on the steamship Celtic, on March 14. The British authorities refused to grant him entrance at the port of Southampton, and started the trans-Atlantic game of shuttlecock with him.

The "Emir" says he isn't loath to leave declaring he wants to get back to Kurdestan to lead his armies now in the field. He said he came here last July to "interest American capital in the oil and minerals of my Turkish privince," and was deported because the United States would not recognize a Provincial diplomatic passport.

Immigration officials asserted that the "royal" visitor has a police record in the United States, France and England.

Mohammed Said has the right to appeal his case to the Secretary of Labor in Washington.

GERMANY GAINING IN SHIPBUILDING

Second to Britain With Big Increase For Last Year.

NEW YORK, April 8.— Expansion of German shipbuilding and an increase in motorship construction are outstanding facts brought out in a statement covering the world's shipbuilding in the quarter ending March 31, 1925, issued by Lloyd's register of shipping Tuesday.

German shipyards, including those of the international port of Danzig, are now building about 120,000 tons more than a year ago and rank second to Great Britain and Ireland, which in the same period have declined about 310,000 tons. The United States has dropped to seventh place.

Germany's gain is the greatest, 421,000 tons March 31, 1925, against 299,000 tons the year before. The British figures for 1925 and 1924 respectively, are, 1,165,000 tons and 1,474,000 tons. France, Italy and Holland all show substantial gains. Japanese building has fallen off 30,000 tons as compared with March 31, 1924.

Forty-two per cent. of all ships building are motor ships, the world survey shows. All shipbuilding totals 2,396,000 tons, of which 1,022,000 tons represents motor ships.

The world total for all classes of shipbuilding is 74,000 tons less than for the quarter ending December, 31, 1924, and 120,000 tons less than for the first quarter of 1924.

HANEY DENIES TAKING MONEY TO BUILDINGS IN CIGAR BOX

Swears He Did Not Give Money in Connection With Loan.

MEMORY BAD.

Denies That He Gave McGarry Anything For Any Purpose.

TORONTO, April 8.—(Canadian Press).—R. P. Gough, Clarence Smith and S. Casey Wood, former directors of the Home Bank, appeared before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature this morning.

Under examination by W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, all denied any knowledge of the commissions paid to Government members or any one else. None of them knew anything about the Government loans until they read about them after the Government inquiry was started. They knew nothing about "toll gates." The examination of all three only lasted a few minutes.

M. J. Haney, former president of the Home Bank, was called next. He was examined by Mr. Sinclair. He declared that the declaration made by him last year was prepared in his presence by Mr. Finlayson, chairman of the committee, and Mr. Clarkson, auditor.

He did not know why Thomas McGarry's name was mentioned in the declaration.

"Were you told Mr. McGarry was charged with anything?"

"No, I can't remember."

Mr. Haney could remember nothing of the circumstances, pleading that his sickness had interfered with his memory.

"Did you meet Mr. McGarry in 1919 at the Parliament Buildings?" asked Mr. Proulx.

"I don't remember seeing him at the buildings. I saw very little of Mr. McGarry, said Mr. Haney.

"Did you give money to any person in connection with this loan?"

"I did not."

"Did you bring any money to the buildings in a cigar box?"

"I did not."

"Did you bring any money to the buildings at all?"

"I did not."

"Can you swear you did not give McGarry any money for any purpose?"

"Yes, I can swear that. I gave him no money."

Mr. Price said he was calling the auditor to tell the committee the state of the highway improvement funds. He said there were discrepancies of from $300,000 to $700,000, where vouchers and statements were missing.

SLEUTHS USING RADIO.

LONDON, April 8.—Automobiles equipped with radio are being used by Scotland Yard to aid in detecting crime.

Money
AT WORK

Beware of investing your money in radio corporations without first having obtained the opinion of your banker.

Many years ago the favorite game of the fake stock salesman was to sell mining stock—usually copper or gold. The American people were swindled out of billions in this way. A little more recently the practice changed to selling valueless oil stocks to the gullable—and the people were swindled out of some more money.

Now the practice has changed to selling worthless radio stocks. Of course, there are many excellent radio companies in the field—companies which are well managed and financially sound, but most of these companies are "close corporations."

Do not be tempted into buying radio stock by listening to a salesmen talk of the boundless possibilities of radio. There are boundless possibilities—if you buy into the right company. Your banker can help you, make the correct purchase, if you feel the need of buying radio corporation stock.

VOLUNTEER REWARDED.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8. — Thomas C. Spencer has received $75,000 from the will of his cousin, John Mulhern, because he didn't wait to be drafted in the World War. "He answered the call of his country in its hour of need by volunteering and I like him for it," the will read.

BURNED CHURCH WAS HISTORIC

St. John's, Bath, Was Built in 1793 By Rev. John Langhorn.

FIRST DISASTER.

(Special to The Examiner.)

KINGSTON, April 7.—St. John's Church, in the village of Bath, which was destroyed by fire on Saturday, has a very interesting history. It was built by the Rev. John Langhorn, in the year 1793, a year after the Hay Bay Methodist Church had been erected. The building has been so often repaired as to leave very little outside of the original foundation. The continuity, however, was there. No disaster had ever destroyed the whole fabric, and in this land of new things, the old church was a notable and much-loved monument.

Rev. John Langhorn, who first erected it, was a character such as these conventional days do not produce. He rode about his parish with stockingless feet, encased in low shoes, splendid with large silver buckles. He was a great swimmer, frequently swimming from Amherst Island to the mainland. In the winter he maintained his habit, and would dive through the ice by one one hole and come up at another. He was a mysogynist, and no woman was allowed to cross his threshold. He was a great reader, interested in science and criticized for his views. He gathered a good library, and when he left Canada, in 1813, he gave his books to "The Social Library of Kingston." Mr. Langhorn went to England in the summer of 1813 and was drowned upon the voyage, mer of 1813 and was drowned upon the voyage.

And on Saturday a blaze destroyed not only a beautiful church but some associations memorable in the history of Upper Canada.

GUM PROFITS GO TO UNIVERSITY

Will of Artemas Ward Provides Share of Money for Harvard.

NEW YORK, April 3 (Canadian Press).—When New Yorkers purchase chewing gum from the slot machines of the Artemus Ward Incorporated, Harvard University will receive a fraction of every penny dropped into the slot, under the terms of the late Artemus Ward's will just filed for probate. The University also becomes virtual owner of other Ward concessions, which goes to make it one of the biggest beneficiaries of the Ward estate, valued at $3,000,000.

Japan is the largest market for American softwoods, taking more than 800,000,000 feet from the U. S. last year.

Closing Quotations —— on Principal —— Active Stocks.

CHICAGO.

Grain prices have been on the upturn for three days, and there is a more confident feeling in the trade with an increased disposition to buy on all breaks and with the principal selling by profit takers. The trade is looking for moderate setbacks and an irregular advance in prices following every good break.

At the same time Canadian wheat is being taken freely with reports that one million bushels have been bought by Italy, Germany and Holland, a factor in making the closing bulges.

SURGERY FROM EARLIEST DAYS

Dr. Moir Addressed the Kiwanis Club on Its Development.

AN OLD PROFESSION.

The development of modern surgery was the subject chosen by Dr. A. Moir for his address to the Kiwanis Club at noon to-day. Dr. Moir said that surgery was a very old profession, as skulls of prehistoric men had been found which bore evidences of successful trepanning. Among the Hindus the surgeon had been loked up to, and an old writer had said "Surgery is the first and highest division of the healing art." The writings referred to such operations as the reconstruction of noses and other plastic surgery. Among the Egyptians surgery was not held in such honor. The ancient Greeks had skilled surgeons such as Hipprocrates who wrote many learned treatises on the joints. They had such a reverence for their dead that dissection was not permitted and anatomy was unknown. In the Sixth and Seventh Centuries the Arabians were the best known surgeons. In the Thirteenth Century medicine was in the hands of the Jews and the clergymen and surgery was in the hands of the barbers and bonesetters who were, on the whole, an ignorant body of men.

The First Hospitals.

Coming down to more modern times, in the Seventeenth Century hospitals were organized and schools of anatomy were established in France. The first hospitals were pesthouses, and even as recently as 1875 the German Government considered closing all hospitals because the mortality was as high as 85 per cent. In the Nineteenth Century the development of bacteriology by Pasteur, Lister and others, and the discovery of anesthetics made a great change in surgery. Formerly an amputation had been performed in one and a quarter minutes with a knife about a foot long, a specimen of which Dr. Moir produced. The hospitals, which were once places where people went to die, are now places where the people are comfortableand only about one per cent. of the acute cases in the local hospitals are lost.

Dr. Moir ascribed the development of surgery to the discovery of the source of infection, to the trained nurses, to the discovery of anesthetics and antiseptics, and to the biochemical laboratories where tests are carried out on patients. The discovery of insulin was a great advance in the treatment of diabetics, who were formerly thought incurable. He also gave credit to the X-ray.

The Mayo Clinic.

Speaking of the Mayo Clinic which had been advertised as his subject, he said that their great work had been along the line of research work. While they did good surgical work there were many surgeons who did just as good. He mentioned that they had spent $85,000 on a dog hospital, and had from 500 to 1,000 dogs there besides other animals for research work.

At the conclusion of Dr. Moir's address, a hearty vote of thanks was proposed by Dr. Ed. Wood and seconded by Dr. Ray Scott.

Mr. Perkins, who will direct the staging of the Kiwanis Minstrels' Show, was present and asked for the co-operation of all the members.

BELLEVILLE TO CELEBRATE 110 YEARS OF PEACE

Will Call Attention of Whole World to Long Peace.

MANY ATTRACTIONS.

Speakers From Both Countries and International Yacht Race For Celebration.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 7 (By Canadian Press).—One hundred and ten years of peace. That seems a long time for the people of two nations, descended from warlike stocks, to live alongside of each other in peace and concord, with three thousand miles of border line, undefended by a fort, gun or soldier, especially when it is recalled that people of the same flesh and blood in Europe have been fighting a considerable portion of that 110 years.

War started by the declaration of the United States against Great Britain, June 19, 1812, when Great Britain was fighting the mighty Napoleon, who was at the zenith of his power. The avowed object was the capture of Canada, so that Canada became the chief theatre of the conflict. Upper Canada had then a population of about eighty thousand, Lower Canada about three hundred thousand. Upper Canada, with an exposed border line of 1300 miles, bore the brunt of the war. The United States had a population then of eight millions. Congre ratified the Peace Treaty, February 18, 1815. There were a few battles after that date, owing to slow methods of transmitting news then available. At the close of the war there was no Canadian territory in possession of the United States, and Canada handed over to the United States Fort Niagara on May 22, 1815, the only United States territory in possession of the Canadian forces.

The people in the historic city of Belleville, on the picturesque Bay of Quinte, have conceived the happy idea of celebrating the 110 years of peace between Canada and the United States. The 1st to the 5th of next August, inclusive, have been selected, because the first week in August is holiday time, and Monday, the 3rd of August, is Civic Holiday practically all over the Province, which will enable people throughout Ontario, Old Upper Canada, to participate in the celebration. The great international yacht races, in which over 50 yachts from Buffalo, Rochester, Watertown, Oswego, Toronto, Hamilton and other ports will sail, will be held at Belleville the same week. The Governor of New York State, and governors, senators and other prominent persons from the neighbouring Republic are expected to attend the celebration. The League of Nations might use this to inculcate a peace lesson among Europeans, and the citizens of Belleville are entitled to credit for focussing attention on this wonderful exhibition of good sense displayed by and good feeling existing among the people of these two countries.

The Protected Family

When a man makes successful application for an adequate policy of life insurance to acquire what is popularly called "Protection," he comes into what is possibly the greatest asset a man may possess.

—And it is so easy to furnish this "Protection" the London Life way. For instance, a man age 30, by laying aside any proportion of his monthly earnings for a London Life Jubilee Policy, can make it guarantee four times as much monthly to his wife (age 30) for life—no matter at what time he may die, nor how long she may live after him. For instance: A deposit at the rate of $25.00 per month would provide $100.00 per month income for life.

Such protection for the family can not be obtained by any investment other than life insurance. And the policy that makes it possible at so low a cost is issued by the London Life.

Play safe! Secure life insurance and then enjoy your income in the happiness of knowing that all is well.

State Commission Lifts Suspensions of Two Champions.

NEW YORK, April 8.—That New York State will enjoy one of the busiest pugilistic seasons in its history, was assured Tuesday when the State Athletic Commission lifted the suspensions of two world's champions and another former champion and officially approved of the Tunney-Gibbons match at the Polo Grounds, June 12, in addition to granting a sanction for a match at the Polo Ground, June 19, for the benefit of the Italian Hospital Fund.

Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, was reinstated in the good graces of the commission when he promised unconditionally to meet Dave Shade, Pacific Coast welterweight, in a title match.

Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, was restored to good standing upon the promise to meet any title contender the commission selects within the next sixty days.

Johnny Dundee, former featherweight and junior lightweight champion, who was suspended indefinitely upon the recommendation of the French Boxing Federation for his alleged failure to meet Fred Bretonnel in a contracted match in Paris, January 27, was reinstated following a hearing on his case.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

There is one factor in the application of the "pull down" that is so indispensable that without it the "pull down" is impossible. This is a straight left arm.

SHOWING STRAIGHT LEFT ARM NEAR TOP OF SWING — AT THIS POINT THE PULL OF SHAFT 'A' IS FELT IN WRIST

The left arm must be kept straight to the top of the back swing and it must be kept straight clear through the forward swing. By straight I do not mean stiff and tight. But I do mean that the left elbow must never be permitted to break near the top of the back swing. You sweep the club up with the left-arm shove all the way. See to it that the left wrist does not break to the right—keep this wrist in line with the shaft until, near the top, the pul lof the shaft makes it break back slightly. Do not let it go under he shaft. Keep the right elbow fairly close to the body, but not tightly close. At the top of the back swing your left arm should be straight and the right hand should be directly under the shaft, palm turned up. The left wrist occupies the same position as the hour hand of your watch at 8 o'clock. Now you are ready for the "pull down."

OUT FOR SEASON

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—Joe Hauser, first baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, broke his knee cap in the first inning of to-day's exhibition game with the Philadelphia Nationals. He will probably be out of the game for the remainder of the season.

CULLOP GIVEN HIS RELEASE

Huggins Upsets Sporting Writers' Stuff—Predicted Berth For Youth.

NEW YORK, April 7.—After all, the baseball correspondent's task on a Spring training trip is harder than solving a cross-word puzzle. Major League managers are constantly outguessing the newspaper men by doing the unexpected. Apparently, Miller Huggins, who guides the destinies of the New York Yankees, has his own ideas concerning the ability of his athletes, and all that the staff of correspondents could say in praise of Nick Cullop couldn't keep that young player in the select circle this season.

Despite repeated and emphasized opinions of young Mr. Cullop's value to the Yankees emanating from the correspondents at St. Petersburg and other points South, Huggins had turned him over to the Atlanta team for further seasoning. Perhaps Mr. Huggins hasn't read the evidence printed in various metropolitan newspapers recently, but whether he has or has not, he has taken the responsibility upon himself. If the Yankess fail to win the pennant this season because of the lack of a right-hand pinch hitter, a first baseman or an outfielder, the correspondents can go to Mr. Huggins and say "we told you so." Mr. Cullop is all of these and a pitcher besides.

His rise and fall has been described in the dispatches from the Southern camps along the lollowing lines:

"St. Petersburg, March 3.—One of the most promising prospects among the recruits who have reported to the Yankees is Nick Cullop. He has had experience as a first baseman, outfielder and pitcher. It is not known in which role Manager Huggins will use him, but it appears very probable that he will be retained when the weeding-out process starts.

"St. Petersburg, March 12.—Nick Cullop is being used in the outfield because of his tremendous hitting power. He is certain to be kept by the Yankees through the season, as his value as a pinch hitter at least is fully recognized by Manager Huggins.

"St. Petersburg, March 20.—Babe Ruth is having a hard struggle to hold on to his outfield position, as young Cullop, who has been the hitting sensation of the training season, is rapidly becoming a bixture and the Babe may spend the season on the bench. Cullop received three bases on balls in to-day's game.

"St. Petersburg, March 27.—Nick Cullop has earned a regular berth with the Yankees and will be used in one of the outfield positions during the coming campaign. Which of the veterans he will displace is yet to be decided. He hit two long flies in the game today.

"Atlanta, Ga., April 3.—Cullop, a recruit outfielder, has been relased to the Atlanta club on option."

BILLY EVANS SAYS

UNIQUE FACT.

It is a fact that very few ball players of Hebrew extraction make the grade in the majors.

This is rather surprising, since the Jew shines in other sports, the fight game in particular.

During a recent fanning bee at one of the spring training camps Hughey Jennings offered what I regard as the real reason for the failure of the Jew athlete to shine in the majors.

The successful ball player, the fellow who makes the big show, must start playing ball the moment he is able to walk and go through the motions of throwing.

"From the ages of six to 12 is the most important period in the development of the ball player. He must master the fundamentals of the game and train properly the muscles used in baseball.

"It is absolutely a physical impossibility for a boy to shun baseball until he is 14 or 15 years old and then take it up with a hope of becoming proficient.

"It is impossible to develop the baseball muscles at such a late age. During the period when the youngster should be playing baseball if he wants to be a star, the Jewish boy is learning the fundamentals of business, the art of making money."

The theoery propounded by Jennings was generally accepted as the real reason for the failure of the Jew to shine in major league circles. He's a street or store merchant at the time when the ball-playing youngster is in the making.

WITTY SOLUTION.

It is a matter of record that during the past 20 years there haven't been over a half dozen star major ball players of Hebrew extraction...

In this connection it is a most interesting fact that there are no more enthusiastic fans in the country than the Jews. Their patronage does much to make baseball the remarkable financial success that it is.

A star of the type of Collins, Ruth, Speaker, Vance or Johnson would be a mint in New York if he were of Herbrew parentage.

John McGraw of the Giants, quick to sense such a possibility, had a player by the name of Solomon last year, who he hoped would make the grade and be a big favorite with the New York audiences. He failed to stick.

Getting back to the question of the scarcity of Jewish ball players in the majors, which Jennings best explained, Jack Bentley, star pitcher of the Giants, ended the discussion with a humorous explanation which was new to me. If you have heard it before I pass the buck to Bentley.

"What Jennings says about the scarcity of Jew ball players in the majors is probably right," said Bent ley, "but I have always understood it was because they just wouldn't step on a diamond."

REGULAR JOB.

Bentley, by the way, looks to be in for a big year. Always troubled by extra weight, which he puts on easily, he is in the best shape of his career this spring.

He tells me that he is 15 pounds lighter than last season and weighs less than he ever did before in the spring.

Bentley, aside from being a great southpaw, is one of the best hitters in the National League. He strengthens a team at the bat when he pitches. When a pinch-hitter is needed he is at his best.

Jack tells me that while he likes pitching, he loves to play baseball so much that he is sorry he can't get into the game every day.

He would have liked to have made good at first base and believes he could have delivered if given the proper chance.

SOME ADVANCE DOPE ON OPENING GAME.

HERRIN, Ill., April 8—The opening ball game here was a distinct civic triumph. A dispute over a play at third base arose in the seventh inning and the two squads lined up at sixty paces and shot it out. Fortunately, there were no survivors.

SPARE TIRE, Okla., April 8.—Uncle Hiram Flaxseed, aged 83, got away to his usual good start in winning the season's opening tilt here today, though his misery seemed to slow him up somewhat in the 18th inning. Uncle Hiram looks like a cinch to join the Washington team by May, anyway.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 8.—The inaugural game here was stopped in the seventh inning by the local burgomaster when a bird named Patrick Xavier O'Malley was sent in to bat for Louie Herman Schnitzelbaum. Visitors from the states have petitioned the American consulate for relief.

BLOODY GULCH, Neb., April 8.—With the bases full and two down and the home boys trailing by a run, One-Eyed Connolly, the umpire, called Swat Mulligan, the Babe Ruth of the Coyote Loop, out on strikes. Mr. Connolly's interment promises to be one of the gala events of the year hereabouts.

LOS ANGELES, April 8.—Jack Dempsey threw out the first ball today. Mr. Dempsey also announced he was ready to defend his title against all comers. Mr. Dempsey then introduced his new wife to the boys in the stands and read from a long sheet of paper the theaters at which her pictures can be seen. Mr. Dempsey refused to comment on the political situation in Germany. This was a great relief. (The opening game will be played tomorrow).

APPLE SAUCE, Fla., April 8.—The opening game of the season resulted in a riot when an unidentified tourist in the stars admitted he wanted to make an investment in real estate. Armed with bats, the players beat the spectators off and captured the helpless tourist for their own. The affair has been referred to Landis who will be asked to decide whether, in the circumstances, the player or the spectator is entitled to the victim.

CHICAGO, April 8.—The first game of the season was marked by the attendance en masse of the city's Flourishing Order of Spectacular Murderers. They departed in disgust, however, on learning that to kill the umpire constituted nothing more than a legendary phrase.

INFLUENZA CAUSED COLLAPSE OF RUTH

Fainted at Asheville, N.C.—Condition Not Serious.

NEW YORK, April 8. — The Evening World said yesterday that Babe Ruth, professional baseball's premier slugger, collapsed in the railway station at Asheville, N.C., as the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Robins reached that city for another game of their exhibition series.

The newspaper's baseball correspondent, travelling with the teams, said that Ruth fainted and that he apparently was suffering from influenza. He has been ailing for the last few days of the strenuous barnstorming tour.

ASHEVILLE, N.C., April 8.—Illness yesterday prevented Babe Ruth from playing in the exhibition game here between the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Robins.

Ruth's trouble was described as a slight attack of influenza. When the Yankees arrived from Knoxville, Tenn., he was forced to go immediately to his room at a hotel; but physicians gave assurance that his condition was not serious.

Ruth suffered a slight nervous attack while leaving the train, and Miller Huggins, the Yankee manager, said late Tuesday that he had been unconscious most of the afternoon. The manager termed his ailment a "bad case of the grippe," and added that he wouldn't be used in a game again for a week or ten days.

KINGSTON SHOULD HAVE GOOD TEAM

Have Signed Up Several New Players to Strengthen Squad.

(Special to The Examiner.)

KINGSTON, April 7.—With the signing of "Red" Legon, former Peterborough outfielder, and Harry "Red" Batstone, prospects look good for Kingston's team in the Central Ontario Baseball League. "Jimmy" Arniel and Arthur Quinn, two Kingston players, will likely look after the catching end of it. Legon will strengthen the outfield, and may possibly be used in the infield as he is a good all-round man. "Teddy" Gallagher and "Tinner" Young, a new man from the village of Sydenham, are slated for the twirling. Others to be taken on are Del Cherry, Purvis, Teeple, Somerville, Evans, Mickle, Hebert Halbert, Knapp.

"Chummy" Lawlor may also join the team. Altogether, it looks as if Kingston will have a pretty fair line-up.

There is great rejoicing among the fans over the signing of "Red" Legon. He has proved himself to be one of the most valuable players on the Central Ontario League circuit.

"ZEEBRUGGE" FINE FILM SPECTACLE CLOSES TO-NIGHT

Although the late war is relatively out of favor as a screen topic, and has been for some considerable time, no such ban could possibly apply to a film spectacle like "Zeebrugge," a British super production that comes to Canada endorsed by the Sovereigns of Great Britain and the highest naval authorities.

There is universal agreement that the picture is a truly remarkable achievement in realism. It is a marvellous reconstruction of the Battle of Zeebrugge, which occurred on St. George's Day of 1918, and was one of the decisive operations of the Great War.

The opening reels are concerned with the preliminaries of the attack, the necessity for which is explained by means of striking pictures of the sinking of British ships by German "U" boats. These views are actually from German cameras, and were obtained by the British when an enemy submarine was captured on the way to the United States. . . .

Following this comes a series of scenes that show the units in training and the life of young volunteers during the waiting periods. Then comes the drama proper. The story is unfolded vividly and thrillingly. It is a moving sight to watch H.M.S. Vindictive sending marines over the Mole in the face of death-dealing fire from German batteries, and there are episodes . . . that have such intense realism that the watcher half forgets he is not seeing the actual things. . .

"Zeebrugge" is more than a spectacle. It is a historical record the correctness of which is guaranteed by the British Admiralty, the Belgian Government and many individual authorities whose word carries weight.

It is termed an "Educational" production, but don't let this scare you. All who see it will agree that modern youth has come into a happy heritage if history is to be imparted to it by this pleasant method.

Zeebrugge will be shown at the Capitol last time to-day.

AT THE ROYAL

"THE WHITE SISTER."

Another Big One at Royal Prices: 10c, 15c, 20c, 25c.

Lillian Gish in 'The White Sister' which comes to the Royal to-morrow is without a doubt one of the best pictures ever made. The Royal management booked it because thousands of Peterboro citizens have never seen it, and the low admission prices at the Royal should made it easy for all lovers of the better pictures to avail themselves of this opportunity. The story is too well-known to go into detail. Every newspaper everywhere have given it an ovation. The following is what New York thinks of "The White Sister":

The New York Herald: Miss Gish is always exquisite. . . . Remarkable qualities and emotional repression. . . . The exterior scenes are beautiful. . . . It is so superbly played by Lillian Gish and by Ronald Colman, and so perfectly directed by Henry King that one is entitled to assume that here is an unquestionable candidate for the Hall of Film Fame—Robert E. Sherwood.

New York Evening Post: Don't miss it. . . . Never has a simple tale of love and despair been told with greater beauty, sincerity or truth. Every picture is a painting. Lillian returns to the screen with a charming impersonation.

The Evening World: "The White Sister" contains much genuinely moving and thrilling drama. A big and a fine picture that deserves to rank with the best the movies have yet produced. It is fine entertainment. You ought to see it.—Don Allen.

The New York Times: The players actually appear to live the parts they enact on the screen. . . . Miss Gish obtains the full effect in every situation. . . . One of the strongest love stories that has ever been filmed.—F. W. Mordaunt Hall.

New York Tribune: Miss Gish does some of the best acting she has ever done. . . . One has come to expect perfection in a Lillian Gish performance.—Harriette Underhill.

The Evening Telegram: Miss Lillian Gish as "The White Sister" is all loveliness and appeal. . . . The picture has not yet been equalled for scenic beauty.—Robert G. Welch.

CLEVER CHILD IN SUPPORT OF CAREY IN "ROARING RAILS."

"Roaring Rails," a thrilling heart interest drama now playing at the Royal, is worthy of more than passing mention on account of the clever work of Frankie Darro, the cleverest child on the screen that has come to our attention. This little fellow's work in this picture is remarkable. "Roaring Rails" is filled with the kind of thrills and punches that the average patrons "eat up." It closes its engagement to-night at the Royal, being replaced by Lillian Gish in "The White Sister."

AT THE GRAND

THE ORIGINALS IN "STEPPING OUT."

Theatregoers all over Canada hail the appearance of the ORIGINALS in town every year as a thing of joy and this year the boys are "Stepping Out" in the biggest laugh they have yet given us. Their local engagement promises to be one of the big events of the season and patrons of the Grand Theatre should lose no time in making their reservations for this popular entertainment which comes to the Grand for a Good Friday matinee and Friday and Saturday evenings.

The Originals have been before the public for a number of years now and it is very evident that they have developed with the passing of time, there is the smoothness and finish now to their entertainment which was lacking in their first shows immediately after the war. The singing this season is of the kind that pleases even the most critical musical ears and the comedy is the best and most outstanding part of the performance. Bob Anderson touched a high spot this year with his easy smooth manner of delivery. He is naturally funny and does not have to strive in order to make his audience laugh. His every appearance on the stage is the occasion for one continuous roar.

With such outstanding favorites as Gene Pearson, the sensational male soprano "Found" last season, whose singing and magnetic stage appearance is the talk of the public; that marvellous quartette with Bertram Langley, Jerry Brayford, Thomas Dunn, and Gus McKinnon; Alan Murray who appears in entirely new characterizations this season, to the delight of his many admirers; Leonard Young, the "Duchess" and director of the show; Lionel Broadway is the Originals' new juvenile, and he has already become a great favorite with Canadian audiences; Norman Blume and Jimmy MacDonald, both popular newcomers to the Company this season; The Originals now have the best aggregation of talent since their starting on tour with the Original Dumbells in 1919.

BERNARD SHAW'S "SAINT JOAN" DRAMATIC MASTERPIECE.

"Saint Joan," Bernard Shaw's latest and, in the opinion of many, greatest play, will be presented at the Grand Opera House Monday evening, April 20th. Curtain at 8 o'clock sharp.

A distinguished cast, including Julia Arthur, portraying the title role, will present the play here. Because of the author's insistence that no cuts in the text be permitted, the curtain will rise promptly each evening at 8 o'clock. No person will be seated after the rise of the curtain until the end of the first act.

Seldom in the past 25 years has a play caused such a general discussion as Shaw's "Saint Joan," Shaw had for a scrutiny a variety of Joans. There is Joan the Boadicea of the patriots; Joan, the vaunting Amazon of Henry VI, who fights hard with mouth and sword until she is brought to the sluttish level of her executioners; Joan, the defender and defended by the faith; the Joan of the legends; a glimpse of Gothic through the mists of time; Joan of the modern psychologists who see in her "voices" an interesting case of hysterical automatism and rare matter for the specialist in nervous diseases; Joan the gunnery expert and perfect model for the artillery students; the Joan of Anatole France, an honest, ignorant, valiant fanatic whose tactics were simple.

Contrasted with this Joan of moral reform, there is always Joan of the hard head and guarded tongue, Joan the despair of cross-examiners. Shaw's Joan is nearly akin to that of Anatole France. She is simple and always rustic, yet confidently patting princes on the shoulder and fully aware that for people with a mission manners are merely an unnecessary luxury.

It should be a great pleasure to welcome Julia Arthur in the character of Joan. Although absent from the stage for a short time, her high artistic achievements in the past have not been forgotten. It would be difficult to name another American actress who is so well qualified to bring both intellectual and physical realization to the character. Surely no one could be expected to real Shaw's brilliant text more intelligently or gratifying.

The carefully chosen supporting cast will include Edwin Mordant, Lynn Pratt, Henry Buckle, George Fitzgerald, Lowdon Adams, Erskine Sanford, Albert Barrett, Emil Hoch, Stanley Wood, Edward Skinner, House Baker Jameson, George Kendall, William J. Maloney, John McGovern and others.

CITIZENSHIP OF LIQUOR SELLERS

Need Not Be Canadians, Says Nickle in Exclusive Message.

MONTREAL, April 8.—(Special).—Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General of Ontario, telegraphs The Examiner correspondent regarding a widespread report that under the new Ontario license law there would be a provision restricting the ownership of licenses to Canadian subjects. His wire reads:

"Regulations in respect to permits have not as yet been prepared. Mere lack of Canadian citizenship will not in itself be a bar to permits being granted. The matter will be viewed in respect of personality, premises and the idea of service to the public. —W. F. Nickle."

Barns and Houses Destroyed —Child Had a Narrow Escape.

LINDSAY, April 8.—(Canadian Press).—Three disastrous fires occurred in this vicinity on Monday and Tuesday nights. On Monday night the barns of Mr. Alex. McInnes, Manilla, were completely destroyed, with their contents. A spark from a nearby fire was the cause.

The residence of Mr. Frank Woods, Manilla, together with the bulk of its contents, was destroyed on Tuesday night owing to an overheated pipe. Henry Woods, a young son, had a narrow escape from being suffocated by smoke.

On Tuesday afternoon fire completely destroyed the home of Mr. Alexander McMillan, a farmer living near Hartley. Most of the contents were saved. A small insurance was carried.

REDISTRIBUTION CAUSES WRANGLE

Likely to be Strenuous Objection When Bill Reaches House.

TORONTO, April 8 (Canadian Press)—There will be strenuous objection to the redistribution bill when it comes on to the floor of the House. The committee has finished its work but several members of it are dissatisfied with the draft of ridings. Whether they will bring in a minority report has not yet been decided but if not they will fight the main report in the House.

The majority of the committee decides to leave Simcoe county with four members. M. Lang (Liberal, Cochrane) claims that his riding has 60,000 people and believes that not only his riding but other Northern Ontario ridings are entitled to more members. Members from other rural counties which have been cut down in the redistribution, including Bruce, Huron, Grey, Durham, Northumberland and Norfolk, are indignant that Simcoe should retain its four members, claiming that it is not entitled to more than three.

MUNROE—In loving memory of my dear father, who passed away, Apr. 8th, 1918:
In Maple Grove cemetery softly sleeping,
Where the flowers nod and wave,
Lies my dear father I loved so dearly
In his lone and silent grave.
My heart is full of sorrow,
And tears have dimmed my eyes,
But I shall meet you once again,
In the home beyond the skies.
Farewell, dear father, your life is passed,
I loved you dearly to the last.
In life I loved you dear father,
In death I do the same,
And Christ shall bind
That broken link when we meet again.

ENERGETIC TRADE POLICY WITH MORE REPRESENTATIVES ABROAD ADVOCATED BY LIBERAL MEMBER

U. S. A. Has 98 Ambassadors of Business Here to One Canadian There.

BUDGET DEBATE

Commons Adjourned for a Week's Rest During the Easter Holidays.

OTTAWA, April 8 (By Canadian Press)—An aggressive policy with a view to extending the foreign trade of the Dominion was advocated in the House of Commons yesterday by A. B. Hudson, Liberal, South Winnipeg, in the course of his speech on the budget. Enlargement of the Department of Trade and Commerce and the appointment of more and better trade commissioners were among the methods suggested by Mr. Hudson, who pointed out that Canada had but one trade representative in the United States as against 98 from that country in the Dominion. There were things that Canada could do better than any country in the world, Mr. Hudson said. The energies of the country should be directed toward these things.

The final day of debate on the budget, prior to the Easter recess, brought speeches in criticism and also in support of the Government proposals. Opened by William Irvine, Labor member for East Calgary, who continued his speech of Tuesday night, the discussion swung to the Liberal side where Mr. Hudson claimed that history showed that the periods of low tariffs had been the more successful in Canada.

M. E. Maybee, Conservative, Northumberland, declaring that Canada was suffering from an "impotent administration" demanded increased duties on boots and shoes, dairy produce and fruits.

From the Progressives J. L. Brown, of Liscar, advised caution in exporting electrical power. Industries might be built up in the United States depending on Canadian power which would resent the withdrawal of this power later on. He made a plea for the conservation of Canada's forest resources, and, while not favoring an embargo, he thought that if restriction on exports were to be considered, it might be well to begin with lumber and logs.

Debate was adjourned until next Thursday by Hon. James Murdock, minister of Labor.

Hudson's Review

Mr. Hudson dealt with the three periods since confederation which had been subjected to tariff changes. The first period from 1867 to 1878 found Canada on a revenue tariff basis. During that time there were increases in population and moderate increases in trade. The tariff on all imported goods averaged 13.1 per cent. During those years, also, external trade increased from $29,000,000 to $170,000,000.

The year 1878 was one of depression in trade. Public men of the time sought a remedy in tariff and Sir John A. MacDonald introduced the national policy. In 1879, when the Conservatives were returned to power, the tariff was increased to an

Canada And West Indies Agree On Conference To Discuss New Trade Pact

OTTAWA, April 9 (Canadian Press) — The Canada-British West Indies Conference, with a view to arranging a new trade and transportation agreement between these countries, will be held in Ottawa on June 19 next, according to an official announcement made yesterday afternoon.

Acceptances of the invitation of the Prime Minister, conveyed by Hance Logan, M.P., who recently visited these island as Canada's representative, to attend this meeting, have been received by the Dominion Government from Bermuda, Leeward Islands, Windward Islands, Barbadoes, Trinidad, British Guiana, Jamaica and British Honduras. One or more representatives of these governments, it is stated, will be in Ottawa for the conference. Acceptance from the Government of the Bahamas is expected to arrive here shortly.

UNWED MOTHER CHOKED CHILD

Leamington Girl Accused of Murder By Coroner's Jury at Chatham.

BURIED IN CULVERT.

CHATHAM, Ont., April 9.—(Canadian Press).—That Dorothy Margaret Brown, the year-old illegitimate baby of Edna Brown, 18-year-old Leamington girl, died of strangulation, was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury at an inquest at Ridgetown yesterday. Responsibility for the baby's death the jury placed on the girl mother by the verdict.

Edna Brown, who faces a charge that she did "kill and strangle" the baby was present at the inquest. Showing no emotion during the three-hour inquiry, the girl only cried when she heard Coroner Marr read the verdict.

The girl was apprehended late on Friday when she confessed to causing the child's death by tying a napkin around its neck and later burying it in a culvert on the Scane Side Road. She first told a story that a man in an automobile, after giving her a ride, had tied a handkerchief around the baby's neck and cut its throat with a knife.

Evidence adduced during the enquiry for the most part was a repetition of facts made known with the discovery of the crime, more or less corroborated by a confession made by the girl.

VON HINDENBURG NOMINATED AS CANDIDATE OF REACTIONARIES IN GERMAN PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

War Lord to Carry the Standard of the Nationalist-Conservative Bloc.

JARRES DISCARDED

Von Hindenburg Chosen After Three-Day Fight in Ranks of Right.

BERLIN, April 9. — (Canadian Press).—Field Marshal Paul Von Beneckendorf und von Hindenburg, whose fame during the world war was emblazoned over the battlefront that reached from Riga to Bagdad and from the Alps to the Belgian coast, was yesterday nominated for the German Presidency by the National Conservative bourgeois bloc in place of Dr. Karl Jarres, who was the candidate of the united Righ parties in the preliminary election of March 29.

Field Marshal Von Hindenburg accepted the nomination and will oppose ex-Chancellor Wilhelm Marx, candidate of the Weimar Coalition, and Ernst Thaelmann, the Communist nominee, in the first decisive popular balloting for a German President, on April 26, when the highest individual poll will determine the victor.

Von Hindenburg's nomination and his immediate acceptance came after a stubborn three-day fight in the ranks of the United Right, where the opposition of Herr Stresemann's people's party, proved the sole obstacle to an earlier ratification of the Field Marshal's nomination. He steadily refused to become a substitute for Dr. Jarres, and even urged upon the bourgeois bloc leaders that the latter be retained. But the opposition to Dr. Jarres since his failure to make a more impressive showing in the first election on March 29 reached proportions which virtually made him useless as a further medium of popular appeal to the German voters.

Ferguson Might Prove Ottawa Monkey Wrench

TORONTO, April 9.—(Canadian Press.)—W. E. N. Sinclair, leader of the Liberal party in the Legislature, reading from the Toronto Telegram of yesterday, questioned Premier Ferguson as to whether or not the story that he was to enter Federal politics was true.

Replying, Premier Ferguson stated that he had formed such close associations in the Ontario House that it would be a severe wrench to him to say good-bye.

"What sort of a wrench would it be if the Premier injected himself into Federal politics?" asked Mr. Sinclair.

"I suppose," replied the Premier, "it wold be a monkey wrench to the Federal government."

Hon. W. F. Nickle presented the House re-drafts of various clauses of the Church Union bill that were under discussion last night.

WHEAT'S SLUMP AIMED AT POOL

Secretary of Saskatchewan Co-operative Organization Said Market Purposely Broken.

SHAKE CONFIDENCE.

WINNIPEG, April 9.—(Canadian Press).—The Manitoba Free Press said yesterday:

"That the crash in wheat prices which has caused a flurry on the market recently was an organized effort on the part of big wheat manipulators to destroy the wheat pool is the effect of a statement which has been made public and purports to come from George W. Robertson, secretary of the Saskatchewan pool, who was in Winnipeg Tuesday in conference with officials of the central office.

"Mr. Robertson declared that the pool was strong enough to withstand attacks from any quarter, however, and that their agency sold wheat at five to seven cents above the quoted market price during the artificially produced depression. It was admitted in the statement that the largest and best known dealers were not connected with the attempts to undermine the co-operative organization, but it could be doubted that the market had been purposely broken by the selling of small parcels of wheat a few cents below previous prices, and probably creating the lack of confidence which is reflected in reports at home and abroad."

QUALIFIES REPORT.

REGINA, Sask., April 9.—(Canadian Press). — "I made no charge that grain interests were trying to kill the pool," said Mr. Robertson, secretary of the wheat pool in connection with an interview credited to him at Winnipeg. "I specifically stated," he continued, "that I did not believe any legitimate members of the grain trade were concerned in it, but that a well-organized attempt on the part of certain interests not only to kill the pool but also to destroy the whole co-operative marketing movement in Western Canada was quite evident."

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Jury Finds William Beare Killed His Son and Then Himself.

COBOURG, April 9. — (Canadian Press).—That twelve-year-old Harry Beare had been slain by his father, William H. Beare, while the latter was in a fit of despondency, and that the father had then deliberately ended his own life, was the verdict returned by Coroner Dr. G. M. Ferris' jury last night. The two bodies were recently found in a vacant house.

CANADIANS ARE QUESTIONED IN BOSTON MURDER

Long Delayed Vengeance Believed Motive For Killing Former Canadian Soldier.

FEARED ATTACKS.

Suffocated By Gas Mask Soaked With Chloroform Friday Night.

DEDLAM, Mass., April 9.—Three men, all Canadians, were arrested in Milton Wednesday for questioning in connection with the death of Alexander Buchanan, Canadian war veteran, whose body was found in an abandoned cellar hole in Waverley last Saturday. A gas mask of a type used in the United States navy had been attached to the head and saturated with chloroform.

The three gave their names as Rene Boucher, Edward Tremblay and Josephs Chauvin. They were held on a technical charge of vagrancy and taken to the Dedham jail. Police officers from the town of Belmont who had been investigating the Buchanan mystery were to question them.

Story of Crime.

BOSTON, April 9. — Vengeance, long delayed, was the motive, the police now believe, for the extraordinary murder of Alexander Buchanan, former Canadian soldier, found dead at Waverly on Saturday.

Almost certainly, it now appears, comrades in arms had sought Buchanan to kill him. He knew it. They tried to kill him at Christmas time, and failed.

They caught him on a lonely road last Friday night and put him to death by slow torture, utilizing an apparatus he knew well—a gas mask. To take life they use a device intended to save life.

Scrap of Paper Clue.

A scrap of paper may lead to the solution of the mystery, possibly to the apprehension of the murderers, believed to be three in number. On the ground near the body were found torn bits of paper. On one of these appeared the name "McDonald." When found this was one of the slightest of clues. It was almost disregarded.

Now, the police have found John McDonald, of Roxbury, a cousin of the murdered man. He has told them that Buchanan was attacked on Christmas Eve in his Pembroke Street home. On that occasion his two assailants used chloroform. It was by chloroform that Buchanan was killed Friday night.

McDonald said Buchanan withheld the details of the Christmas Eve attack, in fear his mother, who was ill, would hear of it. McDonald says, too, that Buchanan had admitted he had been trailed for weeks by two ex-service men.

But he steadfastly refused to say what the trouble was; why he was followed; why he was in danger.

However, since Christmas he never entered his room on Pembroke Street without examining the interior first.

Three Canadians Seen.

Hot on the clues revealed by McDonald the police learned of three Canadians seen early Friday night near the entrance to the McLean Hospital, in the grounds of which the body was found. One carried a black, shiny leather bag.

Four hours later William Wallace, brother of Edgar, saw the same two men. It is significant, too, that at the earlier hour a housekeeper in the hospital saw two men in an automobile on the road on which Buchanan was killed.

As soon as they saw they were observed the men turned off the lights of their car and drove away swiftly.

Buchanan died, probably in great agony, on Friday evening. His body was found Saturday afternoon. He was hunched up in a depression where once had been the cellar of a gate house of the McLean Hospital grounds. He was fully dressed, even to his overcoat and gloves.

His hands were tied under one knee. Over his head was the gas mask.

Buchanan had slowly suffocated. Perhaps for hours he breathed the deadly fumes in agony, unable to tear off the mask, unable to cry out, knowing he was dying.

Of his movements just before he was killed, his sister, Christine, tells thus:

"Sandy arrived at the nurses' home at 5.30 on Friday. We talked of many things—his health, his work, the folks at home. We played at cross-

CHAS. SCHWAB SEES GOLDEN ERA OF AMERICAN INDUSTRY AT HAND

Next Twenty Years Will be Period of Greatest Expansion—Was Born Too Soon—Boasts of Never Having a Strike.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(Canadian Press).—"I believe the next twenty years will see the greatest expansion and the greatest accomplishment American industry has ever known," said Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in a speech before the annual meeting of the New York Building Congress yesterday.

"It is to this end," the steel master continued, "that God has endowed this country with the vastest of natural resources and a people of the most alert integrity, the bravest spirit and the finest of ideals."

"If I had my choice to be born again, I believe I would choose to be a young man to-day," he told the nearly 2,000 architects, builders and working men, attending the meeting.

Mr. Schwab was introduced as the first golfer of those present to make a birdie this year. He admitted it.

Co-operation between competitors in industry, and democracy relations between employer and working men, were points on which the speaker dwelt. He prided himself that in his long career, in which he had handled hundreds of thousands of workingmen, he had never had a strike.

STARVATION ON THE HEELS OF RELIEF AS LIST OF DESTITUTE PERSONS INCREASE

Springhill Committee Added 322 Names Yesterday and Went in Debt $344.

CHILDREN'S WANTS.

SPRINGHILL, N.S., April 9. — (Canadian Press).—The following appeal was issued yesterday by the Springhill Relief Committee:

"With the small fund at our disposal very little can be done beyond keeping the needy a step ahead of actual starvation. Even this feeble effort must soon cease unless help speedily comes. Almost one-quarter of the population needs our help but we cannot continue to supply it unless a great deal more comes in from outside. We are still hoping that part of the Government Red Cross relief grant will go towards relieving hunger.

"We appreciate the fact that His Grace the Archbishop of Nova Scotia has included Springhill in his new appeal for help.

"Boots and shoes are badly needed so that children may continue to attend school.

"Three hundred and twenty-two more destitute persons were added to our list yesterday. Orders for food were given them, but to do so we had to go in debt to the amount of $344. We cannot go behind any further.

"We can only cry again for help."

TOM MOORE'S CRITICISM.

OTTAWA, April 9. — (Canadian Press).—Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress, yesterday criticized the Nova Scotia Government and also the "narrow interpretation" of the Red Cross Society regarding the use of the $20,000 recently granted by the Government for the relief of Cape Breton miners.

"It seems deplorable," said Mr. Moore, "that the Red Cross should have so narrowly interpretated their duties as to consider that the grant of the Nova Scotia Government could only be extended after sickness has occurred." Mr. Moore said the Nova Scotia Government had apparently lent itself to such interpretation, notwithstanding the broader interpretation put upon the Government's first announcement by the public at the time, and which resulted in several Canadian relief organizations closing down.

Mr. Moore stated that in the case of children, particularly, it was almost impossible to eradicate the sickness induced by such conditions when allowed to get to such extremes.

SOUTH AFRICAN BUDGET READ IN DUTCH LANGUAGE FOR FIRST TIME WILL PROTECT HOME INDUSTRIES

Admit Raw Materials Duty Free or at Lowest Possible Rates.

ADJUSTS TARIFFS

British Preference Cancelled and Plan of Reciprocity is Substituted.

CAPE TOWN, April 9.—(Canadian Press). — Minister of Finance Havenga yesterday introduced his budget in the House of Assembly. In doing so, he announced an adjustment of the British preferential tariff on a "quid-pro quo" (reciprocal) basis. The revised rebate shown by the budget amounts to £300,000, as compared with £860,000.

For the first time in history the budget was in the Dutch language. It was of special interest because of its bearing on the question of preferential trade relations with Great Britain. It confirmed previous reports that the Government of Premier Hertzog was not disposed to reciprocate the preferential ideas of the British Conservative Government.

Minister of Finance Havenga announced the Government's intention to propose a revised tariff intended, first, adequately to protect union industries; second, to admit duty free, or at the lowest possible rates, raw materials; and, third, to adjust preferential tariff rates given unconditionally in favor of goods grown, produced or manufactured in the United Kingdom, and reciprocally to Dominions, colonies and British possessions.

Withdraw Rebates.

The Govenment, said the Minister intended to place them, as far as possible, on a reciprocal basis and to withdraw rebates entirely from articles on which Great Britain predominately held the market, or where a proprietary name or trade mark was the determining factor in the sale of an article.

Minister Havenga emphasized that while the rebate was withdrawn in some cases it was retained in others, and even was increased in certain cases from three to ten per cent.

Seek New Markets.

The Minister said there was a provision of maximum and minimum rates for certain commodities, made in order to enable the Government to negotiate with countries outside the British Commonwealth for most favored nation terms for South African produce and manufactures. This course, he declared, was very necessary if the Government was to procure additional markets for the country's rapidly expanding production. The budget also provides for a system of suspended duties, applicable to certain industries in a nascent stage which do not warrant protective duties. The budget restores penny postage in the Union.

Stole Baby' Candy And Emptied Its Bank of $3

MONTREAL, April 9.—(Canadian Press).—The meanest of all thieves has cropped up in Montreal, the fellow about whom many a truth is spoken in jest; he stole candy from a baby.

Entering the home of an east end resident while the family was away, using a false key, he took a child's bank containing three dollars and a stick of candy that lay beside it.

KILLED WOMAN; SHOT HIMSELF

Double Slaying in Winnipeg Apartment—Couple Planned to Wed.

GIRL INJURED

WINNIPEG, Man., April 9. — (Canadian Press).—Two persons, a man and a woman, are dead and a twelve-year-old girl is in the General Hospital with a bullet wound in the knee as the result of a shooting affray in a block at the corner of Logan Avenue and Fountain Street yesterday afternoon. The man is A. W. Berger and the woman is Mrs. Rose Henderson, 41. From details given by neighbors, the police believe the shooting followed a jealous quarrel. The man is said to have shot the woman and her daughter and then turned the gun on himself.

The police state that Berger had been paying attention to Mrs. Henderson for some time, and that yesterday the couple set out to get married and choose an apartment. They investigated a suite in the block at Logan Avenue and Fountain Street. Persons living in the block report that as Berger and the woman, the letter accompanied by the child, reached the head of the stairs on their way out, Berger drew a revolver and shot the woman and child. A bullet entered the woman's throat and another struck the child on the knee. Berger is then said to have put the gun into his mouth and pulled the trigger. The bullet went through his tongue and severed an artery in his neck. The shooting created a near riot in the district, which is densely populated, chiefly by foreign-born people. Berger was a Hungarian.

CATTLE INDUSTRY IMPROVES IN WEST

Economic Production on Real Business Basis To-day.

CALGARY, April 9.—A decidedly optimistic note was sounded by D. H. Riley, president of the Western Stock Growers' Association at the annual convention of that organization held here yesterday. He said that evidence was not lacking that agricultural conditions generally were improving. "To-day, as never before in Western Canada, the economical production of commercial cattle is on a real business basis," he said.

The loose ends have all been gathered up and it only wants a betterment in prices to bring about the regeneration of the cattle industry, and that may not be so far away," he added.

PIONEER OF PERCY BURIED WEDNESDAY

Funeral of Terrance McLean at Campbellford Largely Attended.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 9. — The funeral of the late Terrance McLean was held Wednesday morning from the family residence on Front street to St. Mary's church, where High mass was sung by Rev. Father Phelan. The church was filled by the mourners and friends and neighbors of the deceased. The pallbearers were Peter Corkery, D. J. Lynch, J. A. Irwin, Charles Dunk, Thomas McAvoy and Thomas Oulton.

A Pioneer Resident.

The late Terrance McLean was born in Percy township, near Warkworth, but had resided in Campbellford for 51 years, following the business of painter before his retirement from work some years ago. With his wife and son he went to Norwood a short time since to attend the funeral of Edward Englis, husband of Mrs. McLean's sister. He was taken ill in the car during the journey and on reaching his destination was obliged to go to bed. After being removed to his home he gradually sank until the end came.

The deceased was married twice, his first wife being Margaret Keating, who died about 19 years ago. The only surviving child by this mariage is a son, James, who lives in Trenton. Mr. McLean's second wife, who survives him with one son Charles, was before her marriage Miss Margaret Heffernan, whose relatives reside in the vicinity of Norwood. Two sisters, Misses Alice and Nellie, live in Trenton.

SHELL KILLS SIX.

25 of Crew Injured On Italian Battleship.

SPEZIA, Italy, April 9. — Six men were killed and 25 others wounded, 15 of them critically, when the shell of a 12-inch gun exploded prematurely on board of the battleship Caio Dulio yesterday. Fire broke out immediately, but it was hoped to save the vessel from destruction.

WHITE CAPS AGAIN TOSS ON RICE LAKE

Ice Vanished Saturday Without Any Blockade.

BAILIEBORO, April 8—During Saturday the ice completely disappeared from Rice Lake. There has not been any jam this spring, as the ice was in a crumbly condition. The residents residing near Rice Lake once again have the pleasure of seeing the white caps roll over the blue water.

U. F. O. Party

The U.F.O. Club held a progressive euchre party and dance in their club rooms on Friday evening last. There was a goodly crowd present, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

The winners of the prizes were Miss Edna Huggins, and Mr. Geo. Morrison, and the consolation prizes went to Miss Agnes Brackenridge and Mr. Willard Waterman.

Stewart's four-piece orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Mrs. E. Morrison has returned home from Nichol's hospital after having undergone a serious operation. Her many friends will be glad to learn that she is recovering favorably.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smithson and daughter of Peterboro were the guests of friends in this village on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnard went to Lindsay on Monday to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas Allen.

Human Ills May Be Cured By Using Sun and Raisins

PARIS, April 9.—A panacea for human ills was offered here yesterday by Sir Herbert Barker, British physician. The progamme consists simply in constant sun baths and a diet of fuits, nuts and raisins. Cities throughout the world should build huge sun parlors. Sir Herbert said, where the inhabitants could bask in the rays for an hour or so daily. This, combined with proper food, keeps the apes from becoming ill, he pointed out, and would also keep men well.

LAKEFIELD PROPOSES TO REOPEN NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE CEMENT COMPANY FOR RESUMING OF WORK

Ratepayers at Public Meeting Advise the Council to Interview the Management for the Completion of Big Mill—May Amend Bylaw.

COMPANY'S POSITION IS EXPLAINED

Object to Penalty Clause Increasing Tax If Plant Not in Operation—Have More Than Fulfilled the Spirit of Their Agreement.

LAKEFIELD, April 7.—A largely attended meeting of ratepayers was held in the Memorial Hall on Monday evening to discuss ways and means of overcoming the difficulty which has arisen between the Canada Cement Co. and the village. Mr. W. H. Casement occupied the chair, and in a brief speech outlined the purpose of the meeting, stating as his opinion that some effort should be made to effect a settlement with the company, whose activities mean so much to the village.

Reeve Strickland was the next speaker and he expressed pleasure at the large attendance which showed the interest of the ratepayers in the efforts of the Council for the village welfare. In their dealings with the Canada Cement Co. the Council were handicapped by the by-law, and he presumed the Cement Co. desired the present by-law squashed before they would take any action. Personally, he felt that it would be a mistake to rescind the by-law without a definite agreement with the company. "We want work in the village, and the Council are heart and soul behind any effort made to induce the company to continue."

In 1920, the present by-law was drawn up, and a penalty could be exacted by the Council if the plant was not in operation at the end of 1921. This penalty was the tax on the difference between the fixed assessment and the school assessment. As the company were employing a number of men at construction work the penalty was not exacted. In 1922 they became a little slack, and the assessment was raised, and the result was that a representative of the company came from Montreal and the matter was arranged satisfactorily and the school assessment fixed at $75,000, and a verbal agreement made that work must continue or the company must pay the rate. Last year these were dropped in July and in August, and the Council exacted the penalty. If they had not done so any ratepayer could sue the Council personally for the amount. This was done recently in the city of Edmonton, and the Council were compelled to pay $2,000 each. Mr. Strickland said also, that Mr. Kilbourn said the agreement was satisfactory, and he would like to know what the difficulty is and would like enlightenment from Mr. Bailey.

Mr. C. S. Tanner said that the men of the village think some common ground could be found to get the machinery running, and, personally, he believed that if the Council would start negotiations with the Cement Co. they would not find them unreasonable. At anyrate, it would be worth the effort.

Wrote the President.

Mr. J. F. Lillecrap read his correspondence with Mr. Frank Jones, president of the Canada Cement Co., in this regard. Mr. Lillecrap wrote last December to Mr. Jones, asking, if possible, to give employment to the men, some of whom had appealed to him to make an effort in their behalf. In reply, Mr. Jones stated that he regretted that, owing to circumstances over which they had no control, and of which he (Mr. Lillecrap) was aware, that work had to stop. If this difficulty could be straightened out work could go forward.

Mr. Lillecrap replied that the Council considered itself bound by the by-law, and the Reeve and Council would be pleased to consider some proposition from the company, as employment on the construction work is of value to the village.

Mr. Jones replied that all the company want, in order to go on with construction, is a settlement in accord with the spirit of the agreement. They want taxes as in the agreement and dating from the agreement. The mill now under course of construction was much larger than they agreed to build, and the company have more than carried out the spirit of the contract.

Mr. Lillecrap thought the agreement could be altered to omit the penalty clause, which appears to be the real obstacle.

Reeve Strickland stated that a by-law couldn't be altered without a vote of the people, which would take three or four months, which would be so much time wasted.

Trusted the Village.

Dr. J. R. Fraser was the next speaker. He was in the Council when the original Cememt Co. came to Lakefield, and the present company proposed to remodel the old mill in order that they might manufacture cement by the dry process instead of the wet, as formerly, and they agreed to manufacture 200 bushels per day. The by-law was drawn up to cover the re-modelling of the old mill, but on investigation, they discovered that the old buildings were worthless and they scrapped them and have a modern cement plant of much greater capacity under course of construction. Now, in doing this under the existent by-law, the company showed either trust in the village or a lack of business ability, and Mr. Jones certainly does not lack business ability, so we conclude he trusted the village. The penalty clause was to cover the making of cement for which the demand has decreased since the war, owing to hard times and lack of building. Plant after plant was closed until only three are running, viz., Port Colborne, Point Ann and the Bout de L'Isle plants. These three can manufacture twice as much cement as they can sell. No community can expect a company to run mills and dissipate their capital when there is no demand for their product.

In July last the company dismissed their ordinary workmen when the Dominion Bridge Co. took over the steel construction work, and in that they were wise, as, in case of accident to the workmen of the Cement Co., they would be responsible, and the risk was great. The Bridge Co. men are accustomed to the dangers, and, in spite of that, an old workman fell to his death and several were hurt. The local workmen were anxious for work, and appeals were made to the Council, who proceeded to exact the penalty which, the speaker said, was foolish in doing this. What does the Canada Cement Co. care about Lakefield or the plant which could stand five years without harm? If the Council had called a public meeting and asked the opinion of the ratepayers, it is very doubtful if the penalty would have been exacted. The matter is tied up, and if an arrangement could be made with the company, by which they would be guaranteed that this penalty would never again be exacted provided they continue work and spend the same amount of money, it would perhaps be satisfactory all round.

When complete, the plant here could manufacture a million barrels per year, and as cement can be manufactured cheaper here than elsewhere, it is almost a certainty that this plant would never be shut down, no matter what others were. Personally, Dr. Fraser would like to see the feeling of distrust which has arisen, removed, as the Cement Co. have been hurt by the lack of confidence displayed to them. Perhaps Hall & Hall, the village solicitors, could suggest a way out.

While it is true that there were few local workmen employed at the plant ducing the summer, the Bridge Company men spent a great deal of money in the village and helped to keep money in circulation.

The speaker suggested that the Reeve should go to Montreal and see Mr. Jones. The Reeve appeared to fear that the ratepayers would exact the penalty from the Council, but none were mean enough to do so.

The Cement Co. do not wish a new agreement, naturally, as with their plant so much better than the former agreement, the fixed assessment would be larger. When the plant is manufacturing cement and the ten years' agreement is ended, then the assessment might be raised, but the point remains—Could the penalty be dropped and let die a natural death?

Mr. Lillecrap suggested that the Council might instruct the Clerk to write to Mr. Kelbourne, putting the anxiety of the people for employment before him, and say that if they employ men enough to have wages equal to the amount of the penalty, the exaction of the penalty would be dropped. At anyrate, a letter would do no harm.

Mr. Casement thought that the by-law could be amended, omitting the clause over which there has been so much controversy, and leave the remainder of the by-law alone. After the agreement expires, the village will have a good business to assess.

Dr. Fraser suggested the omission of the cluase in the by-law re the making of cement, substituting that they (the company) bind themselves to a certain monthly sum in wages.

Willing to Continue.

Mr. Bailey suggested an annual sum rather than monthly, as winter construction is out of the question, to which Dr. Fraser agreed. Mr. Bailey is assured that the company would agree to continue operations on any reasonable terms. As far as the present agreement goes the company want no change, only the omission of the penalty clause, in the enforcement of which they consider themselves unjustly punished. The company had been doing its best to carry out the agreement, and have enlarged the plant to a much greater extent than they promised. If the penalty clause was omitted the speaker thought the company would carry on. He read a letter from Mr. Jones to Mr. Kilbourne re the Lakefield plant. In part the letter reads somewhat like this:

"In 1920, an agreement was made to employ so many men or spend a certain sum each year, and in 1922 the company would manufacture cement. However, the demand for cement is 35 per cent. less than in pre-war days, and thus it was impossible to manufacture at Lakefield, but construction work was continued at Lakefield, and a plant five times the size agreed on with the village is under construction. Lakefield has not been injured in any way, but if the village insists on the letter of the agreement and not the spirit, then we must close; if the reverse, we would be willing to complete the mill, and would manufacture cement when the market demands it."

Defends the Council.

Mr. E. A. Tanner was the next speaker, and, as a Councillor, he defended the action of that body as within the law. A municipal council must perform its duties in a legal way or they are liable to the people. He was glad to hear Mr. Jones' letter read as the correspondence heretofore was private and not in any way official. If Mr. Bailey had submitted the letter to the Council two or three months ago the difficulty might all be over by this time. Personally, he was quite prepared to get in touch with the company and see if it was possible to meet their requirements. He would suggest taking a little chance, as a Council, if they were assured of the backing of the people, but heretofore they had no knowledge of the people's backing. He suggested a motion from the meeting that would authorize the Council to meet the Cement Co. and make terms. The speaker did not like the word "penalty," and would suggest "gift" as a substitute.

Mr. Strickland did not think it necessary for the Council to state they were behind the village in trying to secure work, as that fact is well known. He was partly behind Mr. Tanner in his statement, and would go further and say they must know what kind of agreement would carry if put before the people. The Cement Co. would want definite and accurate information, and, personally, he would like an expression of opinion from the meeting.

Mr. Tanner recalled a similar situation after the cement merger, and Mr. Jones visited the village en route to Toronto, and after hearing the statement of the case, gave orders that a cheque be given for the taxes. Mr. Jones was a fine man, and we think he received a good impression in Lakefield.

Mr. Bailey suggested if the solicitors could find a legal way to omit the penalty clause, it was all the company wants, and it was not much. The agreement is out of date and needs changing, being practically the same as that made with the old company, with a few alterations. What ever is done must be done legally, as it will probably take several years to complete the plant, and the company does not want the same difficulty with each succeeding Council.

Mr. J. R. Hill spoke a word for the laboring classes, which, he feels, should be represented. The present problem is one for negotiation, and he feels that the Council was hasty in applying the Shylock method of exacting its pound of flesh. This is out of date, and work means more to the ratepayers than a few dollars in taxes. He thinks the ratepayers are rather late in starting their campaign.

Mr. C. S. Tanner made the following motion as an expression of feeling from the meeting:—

"That this meeting recommend that the Council get in communication with the Canada Cement Co. at once, and, if possible, have work started immediately, pending amicable arrangements with the company that will cover doing away with the penalty as long as the payroll remains as under the contract."

Mr. J. E. Richardson seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The Reeve said he was only too glad to say that the Council would do its best to carry out the wishes of the people.

The meeting then adjourned.

FIREMEN WANT HIGHER SALARY

Campbellford Committee Suggests Changed Schedule Which Men Dislike.

SAY IT LOWERS PAY

CAMPBELLFORD, April 9. — Members of the local fire brigade sent in a communication to the town council at the March meeting asking that the number of men on the roll be reduced from 16 to 12, and that the pay of each be raised from $25 to $50 a year. This matter was referred to a special committee consisting of Councillors Moore, Southworth and Wiggins.

That committee has prepared the report and recommend that the brigade consist of a chief, assistant chief and ten men; that the pay of the chief shall be $75, and of the assistant $30 a year; that all members, except the chief, shall in addition receive 75c for each day and $1 for each night call attended for the first hour or part thereof after an alarm. If the fire lasts longer than an hour the men (the chief excepted) shall be paid 75c for each hour or fraction thereof.

If the chief on special occasions deems it advisable to call on more men he shall be at liberty to do so, and the pay of each of such recruits shall be 75c for the call attended.

Club Insurance.

It is also recommended that the matter of placing club insurance on the firemen and of having additional fire alarm boxes installed in each ward be referred to the manager of the Water and Light Commission, and that he be asked to report on the same.

It is further recommended that any permanent changes decided upon by the council take effect on July 1st, and that the present arrangements with the department continue until that date.

Chief not Satisfied.

This report will be discussed at the next meeting of the Council.

Reeve Davidson, who is chief of the brigade, believes that his compensation as recommended by the committee is too low as keeping the time spent by the men at each fire would involve an extra amount of work and responsibility. Under the proposed new schedule he says it would be possible for his assistant and the men to make as high as $60 a year and in view of that fact he is of the opinion that his own position is worth at least $100 for the same time.

What Fireman Asked.

The firemen asked that the pay of the chief be $75, that of the assistant chief $60 ,and of each of the ten firemen $50 a year.

The town at present pays $570 a year to the fire brigade so that the new schedule asked for by the members, with five men off the payroll, would mean a yearly increase in salaries of only $65 a year, provided the time spent at any one fire did not exceed an hour. In the past two years there has not been more than one fire that was not handled by the department within 60 minutes after the sounding of the alarm.

In addition to the above scale of pay, the firemen asked that the chief be allowed $1 and each fireman 75c when the time of a fire exceeds one hour and the same for each succeeding hour or part thereof.

Say Pay is Reduced.

The firemen who have expressed an opinion of the schedule proposed by the special committee say that it practically amounts to a reduction in the compensation which they now receive and which their communication shows they regarded as too low.

The Day of the Hose Reel.

Besides the chief there are at present two captains in the brigade, one for each side of the river, and one of whom is the assistant chief. This arrangement dates back to the days of the hose reels when there was a volunteer company on the west and another on the east side, with a captain for each.

A more efficient department is the aim of the firemen even if greater efficiency means a slightly higher outlay. The firemen point to the fact that every call is promptly answered by the brigade, and that Campbellford can show the lowest fire loss of any town of its size in Ontario.

SAWMILL BURNS AT MEYERSBURG

Supposed That Blaze Started From Engine Spark—Loss is $3,000.

YOUTH INJURED.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 9—The sawmill of Peter Bound, a short distance from Meyersburg, was totally destroyed by fire on Wednesday afternoon, together with all the lumber that was on the premises at the time. Mr. Bound's loss will be over $3,000 and he has no insurance.

The mill, in which custom work was done for the farmers in the vicinity, was driven by a large threshing engine, and it is supposed that a spark from this started the fire, which spread rapidly through the frame structure. Mr. Bound telephoned for help to Campbellford and the brigade made a fast run to the mill and did effective work by the use of the chemicals carried on the truck. The residence of Mr. Bound, directly across the road from the mill caught fire from flying sparks but this blaze was put out before any serious damage was done. The barn, which also caught fire, was saved in the same way. Neighbors gathered from far and near and worked like Trojans with the Campbellford firemen to prevent the spread of the flames. As the lumber produced at the mill was generally removed by the farmers who own it as it came from the saw, there was very little stock on hand.

There was piled up in the yard a large supply of logs, but as all this timber was green, the damage to it was slight. The mill itself was reduced to a heap of ashes, and the valuable machinery which it contained was a total loss with the exception of the engine, which was damaged, but to what extent is not yet known.

Saving the Engine.

The traction engine which drove the mill machinery is worth in the neighborhood of $2,000.00, and weighs between five and six tons. The fire around it was so hot that it was impossible to set the traction gear so as to run the engine out of the building with its own power. A cable, however, was attached to the rear, and the ponderous engine was dragged into the open air by the men who had been called together by the fire. A stranger in the community who witnessed this feat of strength, remarked that it was little wonder that Seymour Township held the tug-of-war championship.

Mr. Bound has operated his mill for a number of years every spring, and it was always well patronized by farmers, all of whom hope that the building will be replaced.

Ward Baker Injured.

Jack Haig, son of Dr. A. Haig, and Ward, young son of T. S. Baker, were going out to the mill fire in an auto driven by the former. When near the town limits on Grand Road the steering rod broke, and the car ran into a hydrant, which was demolished. Baker was hurled heat foremost through the windshield, and was badly cut about the head and three of the fingers on one hand were injured. When he was taken back to town and given medical attention, it required seven stitches to close a wound on his forehead. His companion, who was driving, escaped with a few scratches. The injured youth, after his hurts had been dressed, was around as usual.

Suit Over Hay.

A session of the Division Court was held here yesterday, His Honor Judge E. C. Huycke, of Peterborough, presiding. The case on the docket which attracted the most interest was a suit over half a load of hay, the plaintiff suing for $15.

Nelson Poole, the defendant, was ill last summer and his hay crop was cut and stored on the shares system by George Breitmeyer, a neighbor. Both parties are farmers at Meyersburg. Breitmeyer was to receive half the crop as payment for his labor and when it came to a division the stored hay was cut down directly through the centre of the mow. The plaintiff claimed that there was one load that had not been included in the division and as payment of his share, half of the alleged missing load brought the suit.

Judge Huycke found for the plaintiff but reduced his claim to $6.00, Poole to pay the costs. Nine witnesses had been summoned by both parties at a cost of $1.25 per witness, a total of $11.25, only a trifle less than what was claimed as the value of the hay.

Mr. Hatfield Protests.

The Brighton correspondent of The Examiner has a paragraph in Wednesday's paper, stating that Archie Hatfield, of Campbellford, who drives the stage between here and Brighton, was acclaimed by friends here as a checker expert, but that he had been worsted in trials of skill with Brighton players. This inspires Brighton to call for more Campbellford checker artists to come to Brighton to be beaten.

Mr. Hatfield protests. He says that he was only beaten in one series of games in Brighton, and that the winner in that case was not a resident of the village, but was brought in from the back townships for the purpose of taking the scalp of the Campbellford man. He won the first round but Mr. Hatfield is ready to take him on again.

Mr. Hatfield recently played two games with Ben Ewing, the aged champion, winning one, the other being a draw. In a series of games with one of the villagers vaunted as invincible, Mr. Hatfield won five games out of eight, taking the last with eight of his men left on the board.

Magistrate Reaches Decision.

Magistrate G. A. Payne has prepared his decision in the case of the two Indians charged with trapping muskrats without licenses and will announce it when the postponed case is taken up again at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. All trappers at Hoard's Station and at Bradley Bay are still busy and pelts are selling here for $2 each.

CHURCH UNION THRESHED OUT AND REPORTED THIS MORNING

Fight of Non-Concurrents to Get Church Buildings Is Lost.

TENSE MOMENTS.

Tie Vote on Proposal to Assign Knox Library to Antis.

TORONTO, April 9.—(Canadian Press).—The contentious issues that have been agitating for weeks past the parties engaged in the Church Union controversy were threshed out on the floor of the Legislature last night when various sections of the bill were discussed in committee.

Several times Premier Ferguson appealed to the members to approach the questions in the spirit of conciliation and not make impassioned speeches. The bill was finally reported at 1.30 this morning, Premier Ferguson congratulating the House on its handling of the difficult problem.

Announcement was made that the three men chosen to form the Church Commission which will deal with the difficulties were: William H. Wardrope, K.C., of Hamilton; Richard S. Cassels, K.C., of Toronto, and John D. Falconbridge, K.C., Principal of Osgoode Law School, the last named to be chairman.

The trustees of Knox College were announced by Hon. Mr. Nickle to be John Turnbull of Toronto, Thomas McMillan of Toronto, and C. S. McDonald of Brampton. The first amendment to be admitted on the pressure from the non-concurring supporters was one which stated that property of non-concurring congregations should go into any church "to be formed by the non-concurring congregations," the idea, as outlined, being to prevent subsequent "snap" votes in favor of subsequent entry into the Union. The non-concurrents put up a vigorous fight with the object of giving, in effect, power to the Church Commission to vest in the non-concurring minority the Presbyterian Church where such church was the only one of that denomination in the locality and where there was also a Methodist Church. It was argued that unless this was done much hardship would be worked. This amendment was not accepted by the Attorney-General, who said greater hardship would be worked under it.

Premier Ferguson, however, suggested that the Commission should have power to enquire into cases of hardship and suggest adjustments, expressing the view that local opinion would work in aid of this arrangement. This suggestion was incorporated in the bill.

An amendment from R. L. Brackin that Knox College should stand in the same relation to the continuing Presbyterian Church as other colleges would to the United Church was not accepted.

Another point was conceded the continuing Church when the portraits, pictures and engravings of Knox College were given it, the proviso being made that copies should be available to the United Church for one-half cost of securing same.

There were several tense moments, the most notable occurring when the House divided in a tie vote on the proposal to assign the library of Knox College to the continuing Presbyterian Church. The vote of the members resulted in 25 yeas and 25 nays.

Charles McKeowan, Conservative member for Dufferin, a Methodist, and sponsor for the Church Union Bill of last year, gave his casting vote as chairman, defeating the proposal.

NO MARRIAGES IN HASTE.

Gretna Green weddings will disappear in Ontario as a result of the action of the Legislature in approving of a change in the Marriage Act providing that a license must be issued three days before the solemnization of the ceremony.

There will be varying opinions on the amendment.

Some people doubtless will feel that no obstacle should be placed in the way of marriages, pointing to the fact that there is a falling off in the number of matrimonial partnerships at the present time.

On the other hand, there has been a number of instances in Ontario recently of the hasty solemnization of marriages that never should have taken place, and probably would not have been if the amendment now approved had been in force.

In fact, it would not be difficult to find plenty of support for making the period between the issuing of the license and the wedding longer than the three days set by the change in the Marriage Act.

The amendment cannot do much harm, and if it prevents a repetition of such weddings as happened in Toronto recently where a girl under the influence of liquor was married as a climax to a drinking party, it will do considerable good.

VIMY RIDGE.

Were it not for the sad reminders in the form of "in memoriam" notices in the newspapers it is to be feared that the majority of Canadians would fail to remember that today is the anniversary of one of the most glorious achievements of the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

Eight years ago today the Canadian corps, then under the command of Lord Byng of Vimy, the present Governor-General of Canada, stormed Vimy Ridge and tore from the grip of the Germans a position that had been considered impregnable.

No finer feat of arms was accomplished by the Canadians in the World War than this most sagaciously planned and most gallantly executed operation, which not only won imperishable glory for the Maple Leaf soldiers but had military consequences of neat importance, inasmuch as the heights of Vimy remained in the hands of the Allies for the rest of the war, and the position was of great value later on when the German hordes staged their onslaught in the spring of 1918.

It is not feasible perhaps to observe the anniversary of all the battles in which the Canadians won fame, but it certainly seems desirable that the battle of Vimy Ridge should be remembered in more pronounced fashion than has hitherto been the case.

REGISTERING MOTORISTS.

When the Deputy Minister of Highways addressed the local Chamber of Commerce a short time ago he announced that the Ontario Government proposed to register all motor car drivers in this Province.

Amendments to the Highways Act providing for this important change has been approved of by the Legislature.

There are many people who would go further and insist upon a proper examination of all drivers before issuing permits, maintaining that there are too many people driving cars who are either mentally or physically unfit to be entrusted with an automobile.

However, the registration of drivers should have beneficial results, the idea being that it may not only be easy to obtain a permit but also to lose it.

If all motor car owners are compelled to secure a driver's license with the understanding that it may be revoked for careless or reckless driving, it may have the effect of steadying some people who have not been very particular in the past.

To be deprived altogether of the privilege of driving a motor car is a penalty that will not be regarded as light, and the system will give the authorities much better control of the situation.

It will not prevent reckless drivers from securing a permit, but it should see that people in that category do not keep their license very long.

ACCIDENT PREVENTION.

In several articles this week the Examiner referred to the number of industrial accidents in the Province and the necessity of greater attention being paid to safety principles.

It is satisfactory to be able to say now that the present year is making a much better showing than 1924 in this respect.

In the first three months of 1925 there were 46 deaths due to industrial accidents in Ontario. In the same period of 1924 there were 92 deaths.

This decrease is quite extraordinary, especially when it is remembered that the number of industrial deaths in Ontario has averaged over 30 a month for the past several years.

The value of these 46 lives can hardly be estimated, but the reduction, at least, indicates that there is a little more care and thought being used by all concerned.

The total number of accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board in the first quarter of 1925 was 12,655—also a noticeable decrease from the first three months of 1924 when there were 14,144 accidents reported to the board.

Accidents in the past three years have cost industry in this Province, in compensation payments alone, an average of over six million dollars each year, and in this manner have added to the tax burden that the Province must face.

Compensation losses offer one point of attack in the effort to lower costs.

Accident prevention makes greater returns to the employee whose life or limb is saved than to the employer whose compensation costs are reduced.

TO MAKE "SUMMER TIME" ILLEGAL?

Mr. A. J. Benoit, representing St. Johns and Iberville in the House of Commons, announces that he will move for legislation to make daylight saving illegal. He alleges that economic and social disturbances have resulted from tampering with standard time. Mr. Benoit may be perfectly sincere; but that does not prove his views to be sound, says the Ottawa Journal. It would be exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to show that any serious disturbances have been caused by that adjustment of clock time which gives an hour of additional sunshine at the close of the day.

It should scarcely be necessary to point out to a member of Parliament that time under the standard system is wholly arbitrary. For example, as between Campbellton, N. B., at the eastern limit of the zone in which Ottawa is located, and Windsor, Ont., the western limit, there is always a difference graded up to one hour between sun time and clock time. That is unavoidable. So that every social and economic disturbance which could possibly occur under daylight saving must now be happening under standard time. That will be clear to every man who pauses to think.

The longer one listens to the arguments of those who oppose daylight saving the clearer it becomes that hostility to the movement rests wholly on psychological grounds. When a man insists that the change now so popular in cities during the summer months compels him to get up an hour earlier every morning, and is hard on children going to school—although for two months of the period the schools are closed—he convinces those who differ from him that he has simply not given the matter unbiased thought. He has not realized, at least, that every hardship which he imagines takes place under daylight saving is being patiently and unconsciously borne by thousands under Standard time, and quite unavoidably so.

If the people of the cities want daylight saving, and find it contributes to health and joy of living, why should those who live in rural districts, and do not want it, bother their heads about the matter? The farmer may set up his own time, since he lives in a little kingdom all his own; and if he finds it just a little disturbing to carry in his mind the difference between his clock and city clocks, he ought to be cheerfully ready to put up with the situation for the sake of the enjoyment and benefit which his friends and customers of the city get out of it. Surely that is the sensible and expedient view to take; and Mr. Benoit should see it from that angle.

RUBBER CONSERVATION.

It is one of the peculiarities of the commercial mind that it sees all restrictions as obstacles to progress—save when they mean concentration of power and increased business. Mr. Firestone, one of the heads of the tire manufacturing industry of the United States, has just voiced a loud and indignant protest against the limitation of production and exportation of rubber from British colonial possessions. It will, he says, increase the price of tires to American automobile owners from $100,000,000 to $300,000,000 this year.

Mr. Firestone intimates that the object of this restriction of rubber output from British overseas territory is mainly to create an advance in prices whereby Great Britain will benefit at the expense of the United States. This is, of course, an ex-parte statement of a peculiarly inaccurate kind. The principal object of restrictive legislation in regard to rubber is to conserve, not the rubber supply directly, but the balata tree from which the rubber comes. The British Government is enforcing a very extensive, practical and elaborately planned scheme of conservation throughout the Empire, because without such conservation the balata industry might easily be ruined and the rubber output be virtually exhausted within a few years.

The balata tree can only be bled at long intervals. Excessive bleeding results in the destruction of the tree. The bleeding of immature balata trees also reacts disastrously. In the past local administrations throughout the various rubber-producing colonies have endeavored to combat commercial greed by imposing restrictions, but they have been very seriously hampered through the difficulty of keeping an adequate patrol of the balata forests and of tracing violations of the regulations. The restriction of exports, however, provided a handle against which those who were striving to evade the law were powerless, as balata is not material that can be easily smuggled.

The British authorities, in limiting both production—that is, the bleeding of the balata tree—and export, have taken most necessary steps to ensure the preservation of the industry. The re-afforestation of balata forests is not an easy work, and it requires careful and constant attention, both to ensure proper development and to guard effectively against attempts to bleed trees twice within prohibited periods and to get balata from trees that have not attained their mature growth. With an absolute check on the volume exported, however, it is possible to tackle the other problem with a much less restricted hand.

We have an identical problem in Canada in the conservation of our forest wealth. Had the Canadian Government taken, years ago, steps similar to those the British Government has taken in restricting rubber export, the problem of re-afforestation, of pulpwood export, and of forest conservation generally, would not be so acute in this country as it is. Curiously enough, we also have to combat mainly the protests of American industries. It goes without saying that the representations of Mr. Firestone will be so much wasted breath, so far as Great Britain is concerned. The preservation of a great industry at its source is of infinitely greater economic importance than the question of wobbling prices in automobile tires to the consumers of another nation. The rubber industry of the British Empire is being effectively conserved, and that is about all the British authorities will care to consider in the case. Nobody would be better pleased than Britain if the United States succeeded in growing balata trees in American territory. It would give them rubber and permit Britain to pursue her own policy free from charges of sordid scheming to milk the American purse.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Daylight saving seems to be one problem that awakens interest in municipal affairs.

The Legislature is at least sewing the public with plenty of reading matter via the daily newspapers.

A legislator who opposes the increase in sessional indemnities can consolidate his position by refusing to accept the extra $600. It will be interesting to see how many members will keep their eyes on the public instead of on the cashier.

It is a dull day when Mr. Raney does not cross swords with somebody.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 8.—No difficulty was experienced in disposing of all the cattle on sale at the Union Stock Yards on Tuesday. The sales amounted to 1,110 head and only about 200 of the 400 late arrivals were carried over till today. Receipts this morning were 81 cars, 932 cattle, 582 calves, 2,557 hogs and 37 sheep and lambs. Butchers' cattle are all being taken by the abbattoirs at firm prices and a load of steers and heifers 900 lbs. each, sold this morning at $7.60 a cwt. This looked very much like a further advance of 10 cents a cwt.

Today's prices on butchers are up 10 cents a cwt. from Monday and 35 cents a cwt. higher than last week. Throw outs from the export buyers were sold at good prices this morning. Export bulls for carrying till next week were taken at $4.25 to $5 a cwt. A few top butchers brought $8 a cwt. and a good to choice butchers' cows were $5.50 to $6 a cwt. and good medium cows, $4.50 to $5.25 a cwt. Trade was snappy all morning and the market will be sold out by the close in all butchers' cattle.

The high price of pork and the usual Easter demand is holding up the calf trade and even the common dairy calves are finding a ready market. Choice calves are 12½ to 13 cents and common calves are 4½ to 5½ cents a pound.

Spring lambs are filling the place of the 1924 crop, which are almost done. These sold this morning from $8.00 to $15.50 each. Choice butchers' sheep brought 9 cents and cull yearling lambs 10 to 12 cents a pound.

Hogs made $13.00 a cwt. on Tuesday on a further 25 cents a cwt. advance. The market is uncertain again today and salesmen are talking a further rise to above that recorded three weeks ago, although packers are only bidding $12.75 a cwt. f.o.b.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, April 8—Some extras are reported to be moving into storage. The chief demand at the present time seems to be for firsts and the general demand for extras is slow. A mixed car was received at Montreal from Winnipeg this week costing extras 30½, firsts 27½, seconds 25, f.o.b. Winnipeg. Jobbing prices are being shaded slightly at Toronto and Montreal and indications point to lower prices for next week.

Toronto jobbing specials 35, extras 30, firsts 31, seconds 28.

Montreal jobbing extras 34 to 35, firsts 32 to 33, seconds 28 to 30.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 8 — Although rain in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Nebraska led to lower prices today for new crop deliveries of wheat, the market for the May delivery showed considerable strength, owing more or less to higher quotations at Liverpool than had been looked for. The close in the wheat market here was unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 2¼c lower, May 1.50¾ to 1.51 and July 1.37¼ to 1.37¾, with corn ranging from ½c decline to ¼c advance, oats ¼c to ¾c off, and provisions unchanged to 17c down.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, April 8—Sales of No. 1 Northern Wheat were reported at eight cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, C. I. F. Buffalo and this price was bid here C.I.F. Bay ports, but none was available at this price, and a few odd loads of No. 2 feed Oats were sold at 1¾ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, C.I.F. Montreal. A moderate trade was done in car lots of oats for domestic account and prices were steady.

The improved demand from American buyers for the Canadian mill feed noted on Tuesday was again in evidence today and a more active business was reported, it being claimed that sales of fully 125 and 190 cars of bran and shorts were made in the last two days with the result that some millers have now disposed of all their surplus stock and consequencely the market is in a far better condition.

Receipts were 3,373 cases, as compared with 3,256 for the same day last week, and 2,934 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter were 1,255 packages, as compared with 131 for the same day last week, and 468 for the corresponding day a year ago. Owing to the more liberal supply of butter that has come forward here in the last day or two and the fact that the demand has fallen off some an Easter feeling developed in the market today and prices were quoted ½c per pound lower, and even at this reduction buyers showed little disposition to operate, and the market on the whole was quiet.

The receipts of cheese were 516 boxes, as against 88 for the same day last week, and 58 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no actual change in prices, but the undertone to the market was easy owing to the fact that the make is now steadily increasing throughout the country and in consequence the arrivals here are larger. A little business continues to be done for domestic account, but the market on the whole was quiet with Western No. 1 White and Colored fodder made cheese quoted at 22c to 22½c per pound, and No. 2 grades at 21c to 21½c per pound.

Beans showed no change at $3.70 per bushel.

Motor Notes

HARRISON, N.J., April 8 — Intensive tests will be made at the new Edison Lighting Institute here, from which it is hoped some solution to the headlight problem will be found.

These tests have been decided upon by offers of the institute, following failure of various engineering organizations and other interested in automobile lighting to come to some definite decision. Former tests have brought only confusion in the minds of the experimenters as to the proper lighting to use for automomibles.

According to L. C. Porter, commercial engineer of the General Electric Company, which has established the institute, 35 per cent. of last year's automobile accidents happened at night. Most of these, he adds, were traceable to faulty headlights. These had either too much glare or too little light, blinding others by the strong light or making it impossible for drivers to see people in the road.

Difference of Opinion.

The Illuminating Engineering Society and the Society of Automotive Engineers differ in their opinions of the intensity of headlight needed for safe driving.

The illuminating engineers set a minimum of 800 and a maximum of 7,200 candle power as essential. The automotive engineers go as high as 25,000 candle power as necessary for same driving at night.

Few Good Lamps.

The lighting equipment of 400 automobiles was taken. Of these, it was found that only 5.5 per cent. had good lighting equipment.

On many of the cars either the lenses or the reflectors were so dirty that the amount of light was cut down considerably. On others the bulbs were out of focus or the lamps misdirected.

It is these irregularities that the new institute is seeking to correct. An entire room has been set aside for the study of headlight foscusing alone. Various forms of anti-glare devices will be tried out, and other related matter put to the test.

WASH YOUR PLANTS.

Wash your house plants with soapsuds occasionally and they will not be troubled with insects.

OFFICER ORDERED TO HELP ROB BANK VAULT

Marauder Fled While Call For Police Was Turned In.

SASKATOON, Sask., April 9. — A. S. Wright, probation officer for Saskatoon, got the shock of his life on Tuesday night, when a man leaned out of a broken window of the Canadian Bank of Commerce main office here, covered him with a shot gun, and calling him by name ordered him to come in and help crack the vaults.

While Wright pondered this amazing request, A. F. Ward, an employee of the bank on his way to his room above the bank, strolled up, noticed the broken window, and enquired if the stranger was trying to mend it.

"No," was the reply; "I was just trying to break into the safe."

With these words Wright and Ward vanished in opposite directions, called the police, and when a patrol wagon full of officers arrived on the scene a few minutes later, the intruder was gone, leaving a trail of blood from a cut on the hand he had apparently sustained when he broke the window to get into the bank.

The police are wondering whether the man is a lunatic or a bank robber. They said they expected to have him in custody soon.

COMPLETION OF HYDRO ELECTRIC BOARD PRESSED

Sinclair Says Appointment Should be Made or Commission Reduced to Two.

BECK RECOVERING

Premier Looking for Outstanding Business Men for Vacancy on the Board.

TORONTO, April 9.—Perhaps the most important business in the Legislature yesterday afternoon was the discussion on the resolution moved by W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, that the Government appoint a third member to the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission immediately. Mr. Sinclair contended that the Commission needed three members in view of the greatness of the project. He made a reference to Sir Adam Beck, stating that every member of the House hoped for his restoration to good health. He said that if the Government did not intend to appoint a third member shortly that the Act should be changed so that the Commission would consist of two members instead of three.

Slowly Recovering.

Premier Ferguson, replying, said he was glad to report that Sir Adam was making sure but slow recovery to normal. He claimed that Sir Adam had succeeded in building up such a great organization that the Commission had very little departmental duty. He pointed out the field for selection of a man for the Hydro Commission was very limited. His own view was that the man should be an outstanding business man and that when the appointment was made it would be such a man. The Premier, in reply to a question about export power, met the argument that if export was now allowed there would be no encouragements for development, with the remark that Ontario Hydro with Quebec would be glad to look after all the development.

The amendments to the School Act went through without discussion or amendment, as also did the bill allowing cities of over 100,000 with the approval of the Government to establish suburban school areas.

The House passed through committee the bill providing for the registration of all motor drivers. Mr. Sinclair opposed the measure but did not press for a vote.

The resolution moved by A. W. Gray (Conservative, Leeds) that the Dominion Government be asked to tax liquors used in the Ontario dispensaries for medical purposes, $2.40 a gallon instead of the much higher tax imposed at present, was withdrawn after the Premier had stated that it was without doubt a reasonable request, but that it was not a matter for the Legislature to deal with.

LAKEFIELD BUYS FIRE ALARM BELL

A New Bandstand Also Included in Spring Improvements.

LAKEFIELD, April 9.—Several civic improvements are being made this spring including the purchase and installation of an up-to-date fire alarm which will be put at the Town Hall and will be a great improvement, as this was literally a "crying need." A band stand will be erected on the Town Hall square and will be used during the summer when open air concerts will be given by the citizens' band.

The bell of St. Johns' Church, which has been heard in the village, calling people to prayers for many years, was silent last week owing to the fact that the supporting woodwork had become unsound with age and exposure. The timbers have been repaired and the bell was heard again on Sunday. The belfry and bell of St. John's are a memorial to the family of the late Colonel Samuel Strickland.

The Peterboro Male Voice Choir will be heard for the first time in Lakefied on April 28. The concert promises to be the musical treat of the season.

Blocks of Ice Tore Up Sidewalks and Fences.

SAINT BONAVENTURE, Que., April 9.—Heavy damage has been done in this village by the overflowing of the Riviere aux-Vaches, caused by the spring thaw. When the break-up occurred the rush of the water drove heavy blocks of ice into the principal streets of the village, tearing up sidewalks and fences. BIG SLATE FOR CITY ENGINEER

Board of Works Talks Repairs and Improvements Wholesale.

SETTLE ROLLER.

Petitions for sidewalks, sewers and other improvements engaged the attention of the Board of Works last night more than any other business. Alderman W. J. Hancock performed his first official duties as a member of the Council when he took his seat with the Board of Works and was given a warm welcome by the chairman, Alderman Fife, on behalf of the members. Whether Alderman Hancock is responsible or not, the steam roller dispute was settled, for this year at least, and the old roller will be seen on the streets with a whole new set of inside fixings.

Ask for Sidewalks.

A deputation was present from Bethune street, to ask for a sidewalk.

The City Engineer said that arrangements might have to be made with the C.N.R. The members said that their deeds gave them a right of way, 3 feet wide, to Perry street.

The City Engineer will look into the matter and suitable arangements will be made.

A letter was read from H. Dummitt, asking for a sidewalk to his house on Walkerfield avenue.

A petition asked for a sidewalk on Douglas avenue.

The City Engineer will report on all these as well as on a sidewalk for the west side of Benson avenue which the Mayor requested.

Sewers Wanted.

A letter was read from Mrs. Lang, Rubidge street stating that the City Engineer had refused her sewer conection at the corner of Edinburg street.

Mr. Parsons explained that the only possible connection from Rubidge street ,was not satisfactory to Mrs. Lang, and the only other way was to build a sewer on Edinburgh street, which would cost a considerable amount.

The question of sewers on boundary roads was also discussed, and will be taken up with the reeves of the townships, as several residents in the city are asking for sewer connections.

A letter was read from Herbert Tremain asking for sewer connection to 360 Smith street, necessitating the laying of 140 feet of sewer. The City Engineer will report.

The question of approaches where new pavements were laid last year, caused some discussion.

Alderman McIntyre said he had one of them, and was going to fix it. The complaint is that they are too steep, causing a bump, and several people have put in planks.

Alderman McIntyre offered to put in a proper approach at his own expense as a sample for the Board.

Alderman Phelan moved that they be fixed.

The Mayor moved that any requests be granted, providing the property owner pays the cost.

Alderman Hancock said that the neighbors would say "Alderman McIntyre was getting his paid for by the city," and Alderman Jones informed him that he would not be long in the council before they would say that he was getting something out of it.

A letter from Jos. Wearing asked that Geraldine street be opened near Benson avenue.

Complaining about Dust.

As a number of complaints are being made about dust the City Engineer was authorized to procure a carload of oil.

A request for calcium chloride on Aylmer street was frowned on by the Engineer because of the extra cost and labor, and people refused to have it again. The watering cart will be used for a while.

The Old Question Settled.

A letter was read from the William Hamilton Co., setting forth what repairs are necessary on the steam roller. They will make these repairs for $600, and will keep it in repair for the season. Alderman Fife still held out for a new roller.

Alderman Crowe said that if it had been repaired by a good firm before instead of different little shops it would be in good shape now.

Alderman Fife claimed that the time the old roller would be in the shop would cost too much, as the city would have to pay for the operator's time. He said it was a wise policy and economy to buy a new roller.

The Mayor wished to have more information about new machines, both gas and steam. He also looked at the repairs from the point of efficiency of the roller.

The idea of buying a gas roller in the States did not appeal to Aldermen Denne and Meyers.

A motion of Alderman Crowe and McIntyre to repair the old roller was a tie on the vote but it was moved by the Mayor that it be made unanimous.

Mayor Turner asked that a man named Bowen be put at work sweeping the northern pavements, which he had done before.

The City Engineer objected to putting old men on street sweeping, as people complained about them loafing and blamed it on him.

The Mayor asked what was being done about erecting street signs, as men were asking for work. The City Engineer has written for tenders.

Alderman McIntyre asked in what manner the signs would be erected. He favored putting them on posts.

Want Devil Strip Paved.

The H.E.P.C. wrote that present business conditions did not warrant the paving of the devil strip of Water street.

The Mayor moved that the chairman, City Engineer and Alderman Crowe be a deputation to interview the commission, and his motion carried.

Go to the Township.

Ozias De LaPlante wrote to say that his father had a rail fence along his property on Wolseley street, and intended to rebuild it with rails. He said that the snow drifted and a wire fence would correct this condition. N. T. de LaPlante is willing to erect the fence if the city will provide the wire. The City Engineer said the property was in Smith township and Mr. de LaPlante will be so advised.

A letter was read from Mrs. Clegg complaining that water stood on his property at the north-east corner of Smith street and Benson avenue.

The Mayor reported that nothing could be done until the storm drains reached that far. The letter was received.

Alderman Crowe commended the Engineer on the repair material used on the roads last year. This was a mixture of road and and fine stone.

The Engineer was authorized to get material to repair holes in the pavement.

SCHOOL CONCERT.

Pupils of Central School Entertain Home and School Association.

Pupils of the Central School gave a most enjoyable concert yesterday evening in the kindergarten room for the entertainment of the Home and School Association and interested friends and parents. The room was filled to capacity, and many were unabe to see or hear this delightful exhibition by the children because of the limited space. Wishes were expressed that a larger room or hall had been secured for the occasion.

Inspector A. Mowat acted as chairman for the evening in his usual capable manner. Mr. K. S. Wightman, the school principal, in a few words, explained to the audience that although about one hundred and twenty-five pupils were taking part, there were four hundred others who would have been just as willing to do so. Every class in the school took some part in the programme, from the kindergarten to the entrance pupils.

FEELING TIRED IN SPRINGTIME

Not Sick, But Not Quite Well —You Need the Help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

With the passing of winter many people feel weak, depressed and easily tired. No particular disease, but the system lacks tone. You find yourself tired, low-spirited, and often unable to get sound sleep at night. All this is the result of indoor confinement of the winter months, and shows that the blood has become thin and watery. New, rich, red blood is what you need to put you right, and there is no other medicine can give you this new blood as surely and as speedily as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This new blood goes to every part of the body and quickly improves the general health. Digestion is toned up, you have a better appetite, nerves are strengthened and sleep is sound and refreshing.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when the system is run down is shown by the experience of Mr. William Mitchell, R.R. No. 1, Bedford, P.E.I., who says: "A few months ago I found myself in a badly run down condition. My appetite was poor, I was easily tired and did not sleep well. I tried several so-called tonics, but did not get any relief. Then I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and soon found that I had got the right medicine. Gradually my strength came back, the dull, tired feeling disappeared, and after using the pills for about a month, I could eat heartily and was as strong and active as ever I have been. I can most cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as an unsurpassed tonic."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HERRIOT ON THE OFFENSIVE TURNS UPON HIS ACCUSORS

Sweeping Charges of Faulty Treasury Administration Since Armistice.

REVEAL SECRETS.

French Premier in a Fighting Mood, Flags His Opponents.

PARIS, April 9 (Canadian Press) —Premier Herriot, suddenly assuming the offensive in the Chamber of Deputies today, made sweeping charges of faulty administration of the treasury against eevry government since the armistice blaming them for the present financial crisis.

Turning upon his accusers, who have been fighting bitterly for his political life the past few days, he took the rostrum and began a stirring speech in which he promised to reveal all the intimate secrets of the French Treasury.

It was forecast in cabinet circles before the session that if the Premier's reception in the Chamber and in the Senate where he also planned to speak, was such as to make the governments' position look dubious he might resign without awaiting a vote.

HARRIS ADMITS BIGGS' ENTRIES IN HIS BOOKS WERE ALL FALSE

Price Tells Biggs the Less He Says the Better It Will Be.

COMMITTEE REPORT.

Recommends Handing Over Evidence to Attorney-General For Action.

TORONTO, April 9. — The Public Accounts Committee practically completed its work to-day, and Chairman Finlayson read the report which it is intended to submit to the House this afternoon.

The report recommends that all evidence concerning the Provincial Securities Co., George R. Harris and F. C. Biggs, the former Ontario Minister of Highways, and referring to bond transactions, be submitted to the Attorney-General for his consideration and necessary action.

George R. Harris who was the star witness at to-day session declared he had made false entries in his books, using the name of F. C. Biggs as the vendor of the bonds. These false entries he said, were made for his own convenience. Harris declared he had never given Mr. Biggs money in connection with government business. He was told by Mr. Price that the criminal code contained provisions for dealing with false entries in books and Chairman Finlayson suggested that he probably would have to explain them elsewhere.

To the suggestion that he had been in conference with Mr. Biggs regarding the public accounts investigation witness made a vigorous denial.

F. C. Bigsg suggested that in the committee's report on the highway department, a clause be added that "the province has suffered no loss." Mr. Price pointed out that vouchers for $300,000 were missing, although the amounts were paid or received, as a check at the bank showed. Also it was found that contracts which started at $50,000 wound up at $150,000. This was a deplorable state of affairs and he thought that the less Mr. Biggs said about it the better.

Harris in the Box.

When the committee met this morning, George R. Harris of the Provincial Securities Co., went into the box.

Treasurer Price said that the Harris evidence of last year was not such as to commend itself.

He then proceeded to show discrepancies in Harris' evidence stating that he frequently took a position which was not in accordance with the facts. It is for that reason, he said, that Mr. Harris had been recalled. Mr. Price asked Mr. Harris to be more positive in his answers.

"Are you in a position to trace $30,000 profit made by Provincial Securities on its bond transactions with the province?" asked Mr. Price.

"Not in detail," was the reply.

"What was your idea in turning the profits into bonds?"

"I was dealing in bonds."

"Do you admit you made false entries in your books?" asked Mr. Price.

"No, I do not admit it," said the witness.

Hon. Charles McCrea asked point blank if the entries were false, and witness after much hesitation admitted some of the entries were false.

The first entry as indicating the purchase of $3000 bonds from Mr. Biggs he declared was false.

"They are my books and I could do what I liked with them," he said.

Witness did not know whether other entries with Mr. Biggs' name in them were false or not. Mr. McCrea told witness he did not believe he was telling the truth.

The witness said that he did not pay Bigsg any money and admitted again that the entries were false.

He was told that there is a provision in the criminal code covering false entries in books.

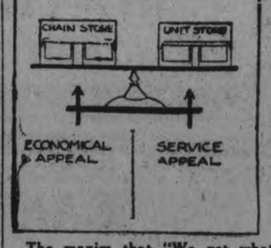
Money AT WORK

THE CHAIN STORE VERSUS THE UNIT STORE



The maxim that "We get what we pay for" may very aptly be employed in comparing chain and unit stores.

* * *

Chain stores handle, as a rule, staple, fast moving types of merchandise and sell on a cash and carry basis. Sometimes, even, the customer waits upon himself.

The unit store, that is a store other than a department store which is not a member of a chain, carries a complete line of goods, as a rule, often extends credit, usually delivers and many such stores perform numerous other small services from cashing checks to securing some unusual type of merchandise.

The chain store on the average can sell for a little less than the unit type of store. Both have their places and both will continue. The people to whom price is of greater importance than service patronize the chain store. Others, more exacting in their demands, favor the unit store.

Saturday and Sunday nights' frosts, with the sunshine during the day, have made the most optimistic farmers a little alarmed over their clover and fall wheat.

The sugar bushes have not been up to the mark. A few have already taken in their pails. In some bushes most of the last run last week was red, and therefore useless. Until then there had been but one good run. Monday morning the pails were fairly full. On the whole, the sap required a lot of boiling, and it has not been a very successful season. The product in quantity and quality of different bushes, as reported, is very uneven.

The annual meeting of the Methodist Women's Missionary Society was held on Thursday afternoon, Rev. F. G. Weir was present.

Besides the reading of reports, the new officers were elected. They are: President, Mrs. Robert Moore; Vice-President, Mrs. D. As it is not possible for the committee to see everybody, those who desire to help are asked to notify Walter Oke, R. Denne, Chas. Richardson or R. H. Turner as soon as possible.

That the need is urgent is shown by the statement issued by the Glace Bay Relief Committee yesterday, stating that the committee is facing to-day with an adverse balance of $2,813, and an increasing army of 11,000 people depending upon them for food.

REV. ROBERT POGUE IS GUEST OF HONOR

Rev. W. Harold and Mrs. Young Entertain—Resolution Regrets Resignation.

Rev. W. Harold Young, President of the Peterboro Ministerial Association, and Mrs. Young, gave a social hour last Monday afternoon at the George street Methodist parsonage, in honor of Rev. Robert and Mrs. Pogue, who are leaving the city in the near future. The guests consisted of the members of the Ministerial Association and their wives. Tea was served and brief speeches were made, and a pleasant time was spent. The folowing resolution, duly moved and seconded, and passed, expresses the spirit of the gathering, and indicates what a large and enduring place Mr. and Mrs. Pogue hold in the hearts of the ministerial fraternity in the city:

Dear Brother: We, the members of the Peterboro Ministerial Association have learned with sincere regret that you are soon to leave our city, where you have lived and labored for the past seventeen years. We desire at this time in this definite and formal way, to express to you our deep sense of loss at the thought of you going away, and to remind you of that secure and abiding place which you have in our affections.

As a brother minister we have always found you to be a kindly friend and a Christian gentleman; as a citzen of our town and province you have stood four square to every wind, and fearlessly espoused all good causes, being found foremost in every battle for righteousness.

We very keenly realize how great a thing it is to have ministered to a great congregation for so long a period of time as seventeen years, and to have seen its membership increase almost 50 per cent., in that time and its interest in the work of the church increase until your congregation became one of the most generous and influential in our land. It must, we feel, have been a peculiar joy to you to know that in the closing year of your ministry in St. Paul's, Peterboro, the contributions to missions was the largest in the history of the congregation, more especially as the general financial situation made such a feat very difficult.

As student, preacher, pastor, brother, citizen, you have nobly acquitted yourself, and you have made a record of service in the Kingdom of God which will not be equalled for many a long year in our city. Our affection and prayers follow you and your noble and gracious wife where you go, and we hope that a good long rest in quiet places will restore completely your impaired health, and fit you for that place and work in the Master's vineyard which your talents and energy command.

Signed on behalf of the Ministerial Association.

Harold Young, James W. Gordon,
President. Secretary.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are pleasant to take, entail no dieting or exercise, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A box is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat. You can reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet with fear of bad effects. Get a box and start getting slender now.

PICKEREL FISHING ILLEGAL IN APRIL

Local Doubt as to Legality Set at Rest by Statute.

"In the waters of the Province south of French River, Lake Nipissing, and the Mattawa River, no one shall fish for, catch or kill pickerel from the first to the thirtieth day of April, both days inclusive."

This quotation of Clause B, Section 9 of the Ontario Fishing laws should settle all dispute about the legality of fishing for pickerel during this month. The law further prohibits keeping any pickerel under fifteen inches long. Many Peterborough fishermen thought they were entitled to take pickerel this month.

The season for trout opens on May 1 but lasts only until September 14. The season for bass and lunge opens on June 16 and runs to November 30.

YOUR GARDEN

WHEN YOU RECEIVE YOUR TREES AND SHRUBS.

Very often when the trees and shrubs arrive from the nurseryman, it is not convenient to plant them for some hours or a day or two. Do not leave them lying around in the bundle, however, for a longer time than can be helped. Immediately on arrival they should be attended to. Undo the bundles and check the order as rapidly as possible. Then separate the individuals from the variety bundles and heel them in being careful to use markers for the different varieties so they will not be mixed.

Heeling in consists first of digging a trench the necessary depth to allow for the covering of the roots with soil. Throw the soil all to one side and bank it up against the trench on a slope. Lay the individual plants at suitable intervals well over on their sides against the mounded side of the trench. Next dig another parallel trench just clearing the first and close enough that the soil may be conveniently thrown on the roots of the first row, also banking the soil at the desired angle. Tramp the soil firmly about the plants and then lay down another row and repeat the process until all are safely tucked away. Be sure to lay the first row of trees pointing in the opposite direction to the one in which you expect to dig.

Should the plants be very much dried out and the bark shrivelled immerse them top and all in water for a few hours or bury the whole plant in a moist location for a day or two just below the surface. At the end of this period plant them and do not allow any drying out whatever. If attended to properly, few casualties should result.

SALE OF DODGE STOCK IS BEGUN

Check For $146,000,000 Will Be Paid to the Dodge Estate.

BANKERS' PROFIT.

NEW YORK, April 9.—The largest single piece of industrial financing in American banking history—the sale of $160,000,000 worth of securities of Dodge Brothers, Inc., the third largest manufacturers of automobiles in the world—was launched today.

Dillon, Read and Company, bankers, who recently purchased the mammoth automobile business from the heirs of its founders, John and Horace Dodge, announced last night that the first step in the huge financing programme would be inaugurated with the public offering of $85,000,000 preference and Class A common stock, to be followed early next week by the sale of $75,000,000 debenture bonds. Within a few days, as soon as title to the property has been transferred, a single cheque for approximately $146,000,000, representing the net purchase price, will be drawn by the bankers to the account of the trustees of the Dodge estate. This, it is believed, will be the largest cheque which has ever passed in a commercial transaction.

On the basis of the net purchase price, which was revealed for the first time last night by Clarence Dillon, head of the banking firm of Dillon, Read and Company, will clear an estimated profit of more than $10,000,000 on the transaction and still retain control of Dodge Brothers through ownership of 500,000 shares of Class B common stock in which sole voting power is vested. The indicated profit of $14,000,000, representing the difference between the price paid for the property and the aggregate amount of securities to be sold, will be reduced several million dollars by the cost of foating the huge stock and bond issues.

The Peterboro Symphony Orchestra made their second visit to Millbrook last night, where they provided a concert in the Armories, under the auspices of the Cosmos Club. The entertainment was largely attended, and each number on the programme received enthusiastic applause, the soloists responding with generous encores.

The orchestra, about forty in number, under the direction of Professor Gliddon, gave several well-played selections, including the overture, "Banditenstreiche," by Von Suppe, a suite of English numbers by Percy Fletcher, "In a Monastery Garden," and two sacred pieces. Assisting musicians were Miss Mathilde Masson, who sang, Miss Winnie Evans, playing the violin, T. Hully, the bassoon, and I. Minicolo, the cornet. Miss Olga Fowler played accompaniments in her usual proficient style.

At the conclusion of the programme, the orchestra and soloists were entertained to dainty refreshments, provided by the ladies.

MRS. COOLIDGE TO WEAR OLD DRESS

Cal, Too, May Go to Church on Sunday in Pressed. Up Suit.

WASHINGTON, April 9 (United News).—Following the president's thrifty example, Mrs. Coolidge has decided to forego an Easter dress and bonnet this year. She will attend the Easter Sunday church services in one of her old costumes, although she has not decided which one, it is learned at the White House.

President Coolidge already has set an example of Easter economy by having his old hat cleaned and reblocked. There is some confusion about his Easter suit, one report being that he has ordered a $65 one and another that he will have an old one pressed up.

11,000 DEPENDENTS RECEIVING RELIEF

Glace Bay Committee To-day Face $2,813 Deficit.

GLACE BAY, N.S., April 9.—The Glace Bay relief committee last night issued the following statement:

"The Glace Bay relief committee is facing tomorrow with an adverse balance of $2,813, and an increasing army of people, totalling 11,000 men, women and children, depending on them for food.

"The local government's decision, as announced in the House and set forth by the Red Cross Society, not to use any of the government's appropriation for the relief of hunger, has increased the responsibility devolving the committee. Our present slender resources and increasing task, while not affecting our resolution to stand by the needy, creates a staggering difficulty. The good will of the Canadian public, already so generously shown, is our support, and we confidently look for its continuance.

"Cash for foods or contributions for foodstuffs continue to be our requirements. While clothing is eagerly looked for and used when it comes, yet our one great aim is to feed the hungry. What will the answer be?"

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

ENERGETIC TRADE

average of 19.5 per cent. During the subsequent years from 1878 to 1896 the protective tariff brought small increase in population, an enormous increase in immigration and stagnation in external trade. Mr. Hudson estimated that the loss during the first ten years of high protection in the population was 1,026,000. This was at a time when the population of Canada was less than 5,000,000. Between the years 1896 and 1911 there was a slightly lower tariff, an increase in immigration and an increase in foreign trade. The average rate of duty on imports had been 19.2 in 1896 and 16.2 in 1911.

Heavy Interest Bill

Canada's world trade was becoming of increasing importance, said Mr. Hudson. The years of adverse trade balance had left Canada with an immense interest bill to pay to the outside world. Canada was paying it by virtue of the farmers and forestry men who supplied 85 per cent. of the external trade values.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the opposition pointed out that more than one-half of that 85 per cent. left the country in a manufactured form.

Railway Co-operation

Mr. Hudson thought the government would be justified in taking steps to enforce co-operation between the managements of the two Canadian railways aiming at a reduction in expensive competition. Duplication of services and such unnecessary expense might be eliminated. Perhaps the special committee on railway expenditure might turn their attention to this.

In closing Mr. Hudson condemned high tariffs and thought that Canada, as a whole, would never adopt a policy of protection.

Separate Railway Debt

J. L. Brown (Progressive, Liscar) expressed the opinion that the railway debt should be continued as distinct from the ordinary debt of the county. He also believed that there should be a separate accounting for liabilities incurred during the war. This system would permit us to know just what sacrifice Canada made in regard to the war, and also how much indebtedness was incurred as a result of the situation we found ourselves in on account of the railways. The inclusion of the amount of $4,000,000 arrears of interest on debts due Canada by Roumania and Greece, in the budget as an active asset, was improper. We had simply, for the time being, at least, bettered our prospects of recovering this sum.

Conservatives, said Mr. Brown, should search more closely the effect of the principles which they would apepal to all the problems of Canada. They might find, Mr. Brown pointed out, that protection would work against the best interests of Canada, and particularly the Canadian consumer, who almost invariably paid for protection.

He spoke in favor of a Government policy of reforestation. There was no greater tragedy than the devastated forest areas in our northern woods. Generations to come would hold us to account for the dissipatin of our heritage.

What of the Workers

Did the Conservative party really intend to give to the country a policy which would protect Canadian industry? Mr. Irvine asked. If the Conservative party did intend to do this, would it not result in doing away with the revenue raised through the tariff? Would protected goods be sold in Canada at a price equal to that at which such goods were sold in other countries? and finally, how did the leader of the opposition propose to protect the masses from being exploited by the protected manufacturers of Canada?

Apparently stated Mr. Irvine, we were not going to have free trade; but if we were going to have protection he would like to know how high it was going to be and other particulars. The farmers in this country were heavily burdened and many of them thought that this burden might be relieved by free trade, or a "bow" to it.

The Government, however, had not even made a nod to it.

The question of credit and finance was rising more and more to a position of paramount cosideration in all countries. The government had talked about prosperity. Yet all agreed that we could have no prosperity while a large percentage of our plants were idle, unemployment existed to a considerable extent, and our natural resources were unused. He considered that a solution of our difficulties might be made by a proper arrangement of our national credit, and suggested that the amount required by the government for current expenses next year could be obtained by issuing that amount of money on the strength of our national credit instead of borrowing it from New York. Mr. Irvine further advocated the principle of single tax.

MORE ARRESTS BY MONTREAL POLICE

Total of 16,049 as Compared with 15,705 in 1923.

MONTREAL, April 9. — "The Police Department during 1924 has done a great deal of work both in the prevention of crime and in the detection and arrest of criminals," Chief of Police Pierre Belanger notes in the preface to his annual report for that department for the past year. "The public has a right to demand an account and report from this department," he adds.

There were 16,049 arrests in the year, while in 1923 there had been 15,705. Of the attacks on bank messengers, clerks, common carriers, etc., most have been cleared up it is stated, and the perpetrators were brought to justice. If the nature of the arrests are analyzed, it is easy to conclude that the work of the police has been extensive and important, the report continues.

"In the case of the Bank of Hochelaga hold-up, April first, 1924, in which a bank employe was killed, one of the bandits was killed in the attack, four paid the death penalty, and two others are in jail for life.

There were three murders in 1924, as against seven in the preceding year.

The Chief adds that the detective office arrested 894 persons, and over 4,500 were arrested on suspicion and released after examination and questioning.

The value of stolen merchandise recovered totalled $242,662, and in addition stolen autos to the value of $747,175 were found.

The personnel of this department comprised three captains, 36 sergeant detectives, and 20 constables acting as assistant detectives.

APSLEY ROUSING UNDER SPRING SUN

Long Drives Floated—Plowing Starts at Lasswade.

APSLEY, April 8—The village is beginning to waken up from its winter sleep though in a somewhat desultory manner, the spring having come too suddenly and too early it seems for the majority. The only signs of activity during past week or two were in the wood cutting line, the portable saw mills operated by Messrs. S. Windsor and J. Downing, and Messrs. Brown being kept busy cutting householder's logs and pole into fire wood. The old cross-cut saw for this purpose will soon be a thing of the past.

Log Drives Start

Two drives started this week on Eel's Creek. Norman Lean is in charge of the Macdonald Estate drive and John Coones is taking down Johnston's drive. A number of green hands are on the job, but so far no casualties have been reported.

A mission is being conducted all this week at St. George's Church by the Rector. The Friday evening services all through Lent have been well attended. There will be special services on Easter Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

Mrs. John McCauley, an aged and well known resident, sustained a severe stroke of paralysis two weeks ago, and is in a serious condition.

Ploughing at Lasswade

The favorable weather of the past week is drying up the roads and they will soon be in condition for motoring. Quite a bit of ploughing was done around Lasswade the last week of March, Fred McColl and George Bullied being the first to get into the spring work.

A boom season is expected at Loon Lake this year and a number of lots on the shore have been sold. Several cottages will be erected this spring.

Maple syrup is selling as high as $3 a gallon.

word puzzles for a time. He was in great spirits.

"When he left we both looked at our watches. It was five minutes to seven. I walked to the door and saw him leave and go down the road leading to Pleasant Street. He was going direct to mother and was to give her my love."

The mother lived with a cousin. It was not until the next day that the sister knew her brother was dead. Then, visiting the cousin, she was told that Sandy had not been there. She instantly recalled seeing a crowd about a spot on the roadway leading to Pleasant Street, and realized what had happened.

Sailor Tied Knots.

A score of clues and rumors have kept an army of police and detectives busy. The knots in the rope with which Buchanan's hands were tied were clearly tied by a man with a sailor's experience. But nothing has come of that as yet.

It was learned that a mask like the one which killed Buchanan was sold by a shopkeeper on Washinton Street to a young man between twenty-six and thirty years old.

The shopkeeper was taken to look, secretly, at a man the police had under suspicion. The man was a sailor. The shopkeeper said positively he was not the man who had bought the mask.

Though they waited long and planned carefully, the murderers may have overstepped themselves. On the gas mask were finger prints. Those on the cloth part were of little value. But there were other marks on the glass behind which Buchanan's eyes slowly glazed on Friday night.

Photographs of these marks have been sent to Ottawa and Washington, where they will be checked against the finger prints of ex-soldiers.

Buchanan came from Sugar Loaf, Cape Breton. His army record was excellent. He was a member of the Nova Scotia Highland Kilties and rose to the rank of sergeant.

WEDDING BELLS.

HULL—WEBSTER.

LAKEFIELD, April 9. — A very pretty but quiet wedding took place at the Methodist parsonage, Lakefield on Wednesday, at 2.00 p.m. when Judson Richard Hull, son of Mrs. and the late John Hull, was united in marriage to Effie Luella Webster, both of Lakefield. The young couple were unattended. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. R. Reddick, in the presence of the immediate relatives.

The bride looked charming in a navy blue ensemble suit, with touches of sand and trimmed with muskrat fur. She wore a black gaby hat, with French roses. She wore Russian tan shoes with hose and gloves to match, and carried a bouquet of Premier roses.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom motored to Peterboro to take the C.P.R. train to Toronto. They will also visit Niagara Falls, and other points, and on their return will reside on Reid St.

Pre-nuptial events included miscellaneous showers given for the bride, by Miss Elizabeth Thompson and the ladies of the Methodist Church, in which the bride and groom are active workers, the bride being a valued member of the choir.

A large number of handsome presents testified to the good wishes of their many friends.

GOLD WATCH PRESENTED TO FRED W. FALLIS BY SUNDAY SCHOOL OF MILLBROOK METHODIST CHURCH

Recognition of Services of the Superintendent During the Last Eight Years.

IS RE-ELECTED

Final Quarterly Meeting Prior to Amalgamation With United Church.

MILLBROOK, April 9.—Special significance is attached to annual and other official meetings in connection with the Methodist Church as the time shortens before the name becomes merged in the great United Church of Canada. It was with this thought in mind that the Executive of the Methodist Sunday School decided to make its final regular quarterly meeting of a different nature to the usual formal business session.

Tables, attractively decorated with spring flowers, candles, etc., and laden with a tempting array of good things to satisfy the "inner man," were laid in the S. S. Hall, and about fifty guests, including members of the Executive with their wives and husbands, sat down to supper at 7 p.m.

The seats of honor were given to the Superintendent and his wife, W. Fred and Mrs. Fallis, and opposite them were placed Rev. F. H. and Mrs. Howard, Rev. J. Wilks, while on either side were Miss A. Hampton, whom all were glad to welcome back again after a prolonged illness, and Miss M. E. Hetherington, who, as teachers of adult classes, have been actively associated with the Board of Management for several years.

Business Session.

Rev. F. H. Howard acted as chairman for the business session when the tea was concluded, and reports from the various officers and heads of departments were received, proving most encouraging. Rev. J. Wilks, Superintendent of the Home Department, reported forty members on the roll, all taking an active interest in the study of the lessons and the welfare of the school. Three visitors, Misses Ethel Payne, M. E. Hetherington and Mr. W. G. Hetherington, see that supplies of lesson helps, papers, etc., reach these "shut-in" members each week.

The Secretary, W. G. Rowland, gave some interesting figures for the past quarter. Total attendance, 1,746; average, 134; verses memorized, 1,736; average, 133; collections, $52.98; average, $4.07. The attendance is lower than for the corresponding quarter last year, owing to the unusual amount of sickness that prevailed this winter. For 1924 the figures for the year were: Attendance, 7,033; average, 153; verses, 4,277; average, 82; collections, $248.78; average, $4.78.

Officers Elected.

The officers for 1925 were elected, the list being:

Superintendent—W. Fred Fallis.
Associate Superintendent — P. Stinson.
Secretary—W. G. Rowland.
Treasurer—W. G. Hetherington.

Gift to Mr. Fallis.

Mr. Fallis has been Superintendent of the school for eight years, and the teachers and officers, who were anxious to express their appreciation of his faithful services in some manner, took advantage of the opportunity offered by the gathering on Tuesday evening to present him with a handsome gold watch, suitably engraved, and also remembered Mrs. Fallis with a beautiful sheaf of flowers. Mr. W. G. Rowland read the following address, Miss Hampton presenting the watch and Miss M. E. Hetherington the roses:

"Mr. Fred W. Fallis,
"Millbrook.

"Dear Mr. Fallis,—Having in mind the efficiency of your services as Sunday School Superintendent and your loyalty and faithfulness to the school and its interests through many years, we, who have been intimately associated with you and know your work better than others can, wish, on the occasion of our last annual meeting as a Methodist Sunday School before becoming part of the great United Church of Canada, to express our esteem and appreciation of your work and ask you to accept this 'timely' token of our regard to remind you ever of the place you have in our hearts and confidence.

"Signed on behalf of the Board of Management of the Millbrook Methodist Sunday School."

The entire Executive signed the address.

That Mr. and Mrs. Fallis were so completely taken by surprise added to the enjoyment which his co-workers felt in having part in an event of so decidedly pleasant a character. His reply, on behalf of his wife and himself, was marked by emotion and a genuine appreciation of the gifts and the kind words which accompanied them.

Summer Sessions.

In concluding the business of the meeting, on motion it was decided to begin holding the Sunday School sessions at 10 a.m. the first of May, with church service at 11 o'clock, and continue this arrangement, which proved so advantageous last year, until the end of September at least.

The Superintendent was asked to take two weeks' holidays in the summer season, the Executive promising to see that all duties were duly looked after in his absence.

A special program will be provided for Mother's Day, the second Sunday in May, Rev. J. Wilks being requested to give the address on that occasion, or to relieve the pastor, if he preferred, and let Rev. Mr. Howard have the opportunity of addressing the school. Some special arrangements were completed relative to the proper observance of Decision Day, which is usually about Easter time, the pastor to be responsible for helping in connection with this supremely important occasion.

Those present included: Rev. F. R. and Mrs. Howard, Rev. Joseph Wilks, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. P. Stinson, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Nattrass, Mr. and Mrs. J. McKnight, Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Lang, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Brock, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. O. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hatherly, Mrs. F. W. Smith, Miss L. Stutt, Mrs. C. W. Richards, Miss A. Hampton, Mrs. (Dr.) Rea, Miss M. E. Hetherington, Miss Estelle Hetherington, Miss Marjorie Skitch, Miss Dorothy Crossley, Mrs. H. Ball, Messrs. C. C. Garside, F. N. Alcorn, C. Ball W. G. Hetherington and others.

4 out of every 5

Those are the odds you fight in the battle against Pyorrhea. Four out of every five over 40—as well as thousands younger, too—are afflicted with this sinister disease. Will you be a victim?

Protect your gums and save your teeth

Just as a ship needs the closest attention under the water-line, so do your teeth under the gum-line. If the gums shrink, serious dangers result.

The teeth are loosened. They are exposed to tooth-base decay. The gums themselves become tender and bleed easily. They form sacs which become the doorways of organic disease for the whole system. They often disfigure the mouth as they recede.

If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. Forhan's is safe, efficient and pleasant-tasting. It preserves gum health, corrects tender gum spots, hardens gum tissues so they will offer proper support to the teeth, and keeps your mouth fresh and healthy.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

REDISTRIBUTION ADDS ONE SEAT

No Change in North and West—South Ontario Loses Seats.

CITY UNIT 40,000.

TORONTO, April 9. — The distribution committee reported to the Ontario House early this morning.

The membership of the House is increased by one.

Pertinent sections of its report read as follows:

Your committee have come to the conclusion, for the present at all events, that it is not desirable to change representation in districts in northern and north-western Ontario. In the southern portion of Ontario, in what is nown as "Old Ontario," is is recommended that the following seats will disappear:

In the counties of Frontenac and Lenox and Adington that there should be two seats instead of three, one to consist of a new riding to be known as "Frontenac and Lennox."

In the county of Wellington, two districts have been substituted for the present three districts.

In the county of Lambton two districts have been taken out of West Lambton and annexed to East Lambton.

In the case of the City of Toronto, and East and West York, your committee recommend the creation of 15 seats for the City of Toronto proper. This will give a unit of representation of 40,000 for each electoral district.

"In the case of East and West York, both of which now comprise portions of the city of Toronto, which will be afforded additional representation as city seats, your committee has thought fit in view of the large and increasing population of these two districts, to establish a third seat, to be known as South York.

"In the case of the City of Hamilton and the County of Wentworth, three seats are created for the city."

In London, where there are now two seats, there will in future be three, while Middlesex County will have two members instead of three. Windsor will be split into two ridings.

It is understood that the two seats provided for Windsor will include the towns of Sandwich and Walkerville.

In Ottawa an additional seat has been provided for and the town of Eastview, now in Russell constituency, will form part of East Ottawa. West Ottawa will be divided into north and south Ottawa. Rural ridings in various parts of the province as previously reported, will lose members. The minority report of the Redistribution committee, signed by Messrs. H. C. Nixon, Malcolm Lang, Carl Homuth, D. J. Taylor and Sam Clarke, protests against this feature of the report and also demands greater representation for Northern Ontario.

Most of the children were accompanied by their parents.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.
